As he looked at those footprints Peter felt his back hair slowly stand on end. There was no doubt as to whose footprints those were. Yowler the Bob Cat had made them. Yowler had made them not so very long before. Peter looked all about hastily and anxiously. Then he hurried straight to a certain hollow log with an opening in one end just big enough for him to slip through. In front of this he sat down. It was near enough to the beginning of that new dam for him to see it. He felt safe now with that hollow log at his back. His hair once more lay down.

As before, Peter waited and waited. He waited most of the night. But not a Beaver did he see or hear. "It must be that they have decided that it will be too much work to build a dam here," said Peter, talking to himself for lack of any one else to talk to. "That must be it. If it were not for Yowler the Bob Cat being about I would run up to Paddy's pond and see what is going on up there. I wonder why they have stopped work on this dam."

But with all his wondering it didn't once occur to Peter that Paddy the Beaver might have seen those big round footprints in the mud. This is just what had happened, and Paddy had at once suspected that Yowler the Bob Cat had discovered what was going on in the alder swamp and was hiding somewhere in there hoping to catch a Beaver for dinner. So Paddy at once turned about and returned to his pond. Of course, Mrs. Paddy and the two young Beavers did the same thing.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

NOVEMBER RAINS KEPT NORWICH RESERVOIRS UP WITHOUT LOSS

Rains in November gave a total precipitation of 3.67 inches, according to the measurements at the water office, which was enough to keep the two Norwich reservoirs at practically the same level on the last day of the month as they were when the month opened.

The rain of last Friday gave a measurement of .45 of an inch and on Saturday the record taken at the reservoirs showed that Fairview reservoir was down 6 feet 1 inch from full pond and Stony Brook reservoir down 17 feet 7 inches. This leaves about 8 or 7 feet yet in Stony Brook from which water can be drawn so that conditions are better at the present time than they were at the corresponding period a year ago. At that time Stony Brook reservoir was empty and the city's entire water supply was coming from Fairview.

For the last day or two employes of the water department with Thomas J. Dodd as foreman on the job, have been at work laying the first of the 24 inch pipe line for the new Deep River brook reservoir that is to be built in the spring and summer. The pipe laying has begun in the meadow along Town street where a ditch six or seven feet deep has been dug, running northerly up to Sturtevant street for about half a mile. By Monday night about 200 feet of pipe had been laid from the southerly end of the ditch. Much trouble is experienced from water in the ditch that seeps through from the Yantic river or comes from the recent rains. Two pumps that are operated by two or three men apiece are in use to keep the ditch clear of water ahead of the lengths of pipes and pails for bailing have to be used to clear the spots that have to be hollowed out where the joints come. The big pipes are in lengths of 13 feet 1 inch, each length weighing nearly two tons.

A new composition, Leadite, is being used to seal the joints. This saves a large amount of work and time as it does not require tamping. The Leadite is poured in around the joint steaming hot, after the joint has first been prepared with a rope binding that is tamped in moderately tight. The Leadite expands as it cools and makes a completely tight joint.

Another shipment of the pipe from the manufacturers in France has arrived at Boston and will probably be brought here on lighters instead of by rail.

DIES WITH SUDDEN HEART TROUBLE ATTACK

Succumbing to a sudden attack of heart trouble, Charles Conrad Grebe, 59, died Monday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock at his home, No. 299 Boswell avenue. Mr. Grebe was in his usual good health Monday morning and went to his work at the Mohican store where he was employed as a baker. He felt ill towards noon time and while on his way home was seized with the attack, death coming about 1:30 o'clock.

Mr. Grebe was born in Hanover, Germany, 59 years ago. He came to this country when a young man and for 35 years or more had made his home in Norwich. In this city, December 9, 1896, he was united in marriage with Hulda Reichwald who survives him.

Mr. Grebe was a member of the German Lutheran church, Franklin street, belonged to Shetucket Lodge, No. 27, I. O. O. F., and was a member of the Sons of Hermann. Besides his wife he leaves two children, Alfred Grebe, now in Detroit and Miss Olga Grebe, at home. There are also a brother and sister living in Germany.

FIGHTERS WERE FINED IN CITY COURT SESSION

Charged with breach of the peace in striking Steve Rafel, 38, of this city, Daniel Zudzic, known as Big Dan, was fined and paid $10 and costs, total $18.50, in the city court Monday morning. Rafel, who was in court with his head covered in bandages, was fined $5 for intoxication, and $10 for breach of the peace, with costs, his bill totaling $33.50. It cost Rafel $10 for the nine stitches which Dr. Louis Cassidy put in his head at police headquarters Sunday night. The two men got into a fight Sunday night at Big Dan's restaurant at No. 9 1-2 Thames street and as a result were arrested by Officer Joseph Gendron.

Three sailors from the submarine base were each fined $10 and costs on intoxication charges. They had no money and couldn't get any from the sub base so Big Dan performed a philanthropic act by paying their fines for them. The fines totaled $18.85 in each case.

NOVEMBER WAS FAIRLY BUSY FOR FIREMEN

Three bell alarms, 14 telephone calls, two oral summons and one call for a fire outside the city limits gave the local fire department a fairly busy month during November. There were two calls for fires over the city line but only one of these calls was answered.

A warning to people to exercise care and good judgment in the matter of thier furnace fires at night, was issued Monday evening by officials of the fire department. Attention was called to the fact that many fires are caused by roaring fires in furnaces at night and in some cases people have lost their homes through lack of care in looking after the furnace. The drafts on heaters should be closed or otherwise properly regulated before the occupants of homes retire for the night.

Judgment was awarded in two cases by Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas at New London Monday.

Judgment of $350 was given the plaintiff in the case of the Beneficial Loan society of New London against John M., and Lilla M. Sousa of Waterford. At Amston, on Monday evening a revival meeting was held by Evangelist C. H. Reimers in the Hopevale Methodist church.

PRES. COOLIDGE WRITES ABOUT GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY

Recognizing the need of the children in the Near East, President Coolidge wrote the following letter:

The White House,
Washington,
June 22, 1925

Gentlemen:

The reports of the observance of International Golden Rule Sunday last year in fifty countries, and its far-reaching results in the training of orphans in the Near East have been of great interest to me. This expression of brotherhood inevitably has a beneficial influence upon those who give as well as those who receive.

As practical help is the best expression of friendship, I feel that the aid which we may give out of our prosperity to those impoverished by war may be of the utmost value in the promotion of international good will. The consistent observance of Golden Rule Sunday cannot but help to bring about the application of the Golden Rule itself to the misunderstandings of nations and of individuals.

I earnestly hope that the voluntary observance of this day may become increasingly prevalent in the homes of America and throughout the world.

Very truly yours,
CALVIN COOLIDGE

Near East Relief,
151 Fifth Avenue,
New York City.

Expressions similar to those of the president come from many who know. For instance the following leaders in American life have this to say about Near East Relief:

Its orphanage work in the cradles of Christianity is one of the finest pieces of constructive work I have ever seen.

WM. CARDINAL O'CONNELL.

If the American people could see what I have seen, there would be no doubt whatever about the adequate support of this great work.

JOHN R. MOTT

Of all the charitable and humanitarian work abroad during and since the war, the Near East Relief is easily the leader in the quality of its personnel. They are worthy of being entrusted with our funds.

FELIX WARBURG

Until the last orphan has been placed in a position of self-support, the great organized labor movement of America will continue to give its earnest assistance to this practical expression of the Golden Rule.

FRANK MORRISON,
American Federation of Labor.

It is the high privilege of Americans to do these things for the children who otherwise would not have a chance in the world; to give them food, clothes, medical care, education, training in crafts, a chance for independence. Next Sunday is nation-wide Golden Rule Sunday. Those making contributions in Norwich may send their gifts to Guy E. Dolbeare, Norwich Savings society, local treasurer, Near East Relief.

PORTER IS BOUND OVER ON BURGLARY CHARGE

On a charge of burglary, Wilfred Porter, 21, of 13 North Thames street, was bound over to the criminal superior court by Judge Arthur F. Libby when Porter was presented before him in the city court Monday morning. Bonds were set at $2,500 which Porter was unable to furnish and so he went to jail to await his trial.

The charge against Porter is theft of $22 in money, a police positive revolver, a .25 cali. automatic revolver, all of the value of $45, from the store of the Eaton-Chase Company on Main street. The theft was committed during the night of November 19th.

Porter denied taking a .32 cal. automatic pistol and a .25 cal. automatic which were exhibited in the court and identified as stolen from the Eaton-Chase company's store.

The case against Frank McCloskey, 19, charged with receiving stolen goods was continued until December 7th. The case was continued to allow the police more time in which to investigate the burglary and it is intimated that another arrest may be made in connection with the break. McCloskey's bonds were fixed at $500. One of the revolvers stolen from the Eaton-Chase Co. store was found in the possession of McCloskey. He had not paid anything for it, but admitted, according to the police, that he expected to pay for it.

In court, Porter had no lawyer and told the police that he did not want one, admitting being in the hardware store. He claimed that he was in the Eaton-Chase Co. store about 9 o'clock in the evening, but this is contradicted, in the opinion of the police, by the fact that footmarks were found in the frost on the roof over which he went to get to the hardware store. It is not believed possible that frost could have formed as early as 9 o'clock in the evening, but it was probably nearly midnight or afterwards when he crossed the roof.

POLICE MADE 107 ARRESTS IN NOVEMBER

Arrests in November by the Norwich police made a total of 107, in which intoxication was the leading cause, the number being 44. Breach of the peace was next with 25, and 19 were arrested for violating the city ordinances applying to the use of automobiles. Eleven others were arrested for violation of the state motor vehicle law. Other causes of arrest were the following: Fraud 2, resisting officer 2, receiving stolen goods, burglary, violation of liquor law, theft, attempted rape, and issuing worthless check, one each.

Connecticut Had 700 New Laws

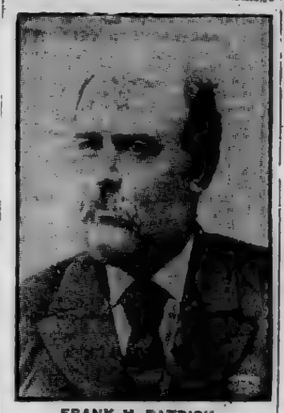
DIED SUDDENLY AT HIS PLACE OF BUSINESS

Seized with a sudden attack of angina pectoris while at the store of his son-in-law, Arthur G. Crowell, No. 185 Franklin street, Frank H. Patrick, well known and highly respected citizen of Norwich, died at the store Monday morning about 8:30 o'clock. Mr. Patrick had been in ill health for several years but was able to attend to his duties at the store. A short while after he arrived at the store Monday morning he complained of shortness of breath. Dr. H. E. Higgins was hurriedly called but Mr. Patrick had died before the physician reached the store. Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve made an investigation and pronounced death due to angina pectoris. Mr. Patrick resided at No. 102 Williams street.

Frank H. Patrick was born in Denmark, Maine, July 27, 1851. At Saco, Maine, Oct. 9, 1871, he was united in marriage with Phebe Ella Lane. For nine years Mr. and Mrs. Patrick resided in Saco.

During a residence in Springvale, Me., Mr. Patrick was an overseer of spinning. Returning to Saco he was for three years employed as a second hand of spinning, and then he removed to South Hadley Falls, Mass., where he entered the employ of the Glasco



FRANK H. PATRICK

Mills. He remained there nearly 10 years. In 1887 Mr. and Mrs. Patrick came to Norwich, having since made their home in this city. Mr. Patrick was employed at the Falls mill for 18 months and he then entered the employ of the Ossawan Mills.

Later he was employed by the W. H. Page Boiler company, and for some years he was employed as a traveling salesman for the Smith and Thayer company which was first known as the Smith and Winchester company. For 17 years he covered a large territory and retiring from the road he entered the employ of the J. P. Barstow company, remaining with them for three years.

Eight years ago he became associated with his son-in-law, Arthur G. Crowell, in the sole leather and shoe finding business, the concern being known as Patrick & Crowell. Three years ago Mr. Crowell became owner of the store, Mr. Patrick remaining with him.

For 30 years Mr. Patrick had been a member of the Odd Fellows lodge in Saco and he was a charter member and past councillor of Norwich Council, No. 30, U. C. T. He attended the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist. Although he was a stauch republican he never sought public office but was always in close touch with local, state and national politics.

Mr. Patrick is survived by his wife and three children, Herbert E. Patrick, Boston, Mrs. Arthur G. Crowell of this city and Ralph W. Patrick, also of this city. There are three grandchildren, Herbert H. Patrick of Boston, Frank L. Crowell and Lester E. Crowell of this city. There is also a brother, William A. Patrick of Saco, Me.

Mr. Patrick was widely known in and about Norwich. He made friends easily and retained his friendships through his sterling traits of character. He was of a charitable and kindly nature and was ever willing and ready to lend a helping hand wherever needed. His sudden death is a distinct shock to his many friends who deeply regret his removal from earthly life.

SUSIE AND HER BOY FRIEND PICK AN ALL-AMERICAN FOOTBALL TEAM

Susie and her boy friend spent a pleasant Thanksgiving together after their squabble of last week and she writes to the sports editor of the Bulletin about the day and incidentally picks an All-American football team. Susie's letter which arrived in the mail Monday evening is as follows:

Dear Sports Editor:

After that nice 'pology of yours I wonna write you 'nother letter. I feel kinda' 'shamed of myself for bawlin' you out like I did but I was some hot under my boyish bob and believe me, I didn't give a hang what I put down on the paper. Well, this ain't tellin' 'bout how me an' the Boy Friend spent Thanksgivin' day. Gosh, I got so much turkey in me I guess I aint gonna need nourishment 'till Christmas. The Boy Friend ain't no slouch when it comes to puttin' on the feed bag.

Well, my old man won a turkey in a raffle just 'fore Thanksgivin' and come Sunday it home one night. Ma said it weighed 'bout 12 pounds when she got it thawed out. Pa says the bird was a native but Ma comes right back an' says, "Yea, it's a native all right, a native of Russia or some other foreign country but not America." Gosh, Ma's quick with a snappy com'bak, every time and she can get Pa's goat in 'bout two shakes of a lamb's tail.

Well, the Boy Fiend arrives bright an' early so he wouldn't miss nothin' and he lugs in some candy with him which I suppose was a kinda peace offerin'. The old man meets him at the door and says "Why dinja come to breakfast?" "Didn't know you wanted me to," replies the Boy Friend. Say Mr. Editor didja see what I called the boy a few lines back. No, he ain't no fiend.

Well, me and the boy friend ate an' ate an' ate 'till, gosh, I thought they'd hafta getta derrick to get us away from that festive board. Well, after the turkey'd gone down the red lane the Boy Friends spring it on me that he's gonna give me a good time. He says he's gonna take me to the Academy-Aluminum game in his car. Gosh, you outa see that four wheeled tamata can. When I taka look at that animated piece of tin I knew that turkey I got for dinner was goin' to get an awful shakin' up. Well, I in the thing and away we bounded.

Well, we got up to the Campers all right and when one of them young fellers comes up to the Boy Friend askin' him to buy a coupla tickets the Boy Friends says "Why we don't need no tickets we're Susie and Jimmy, who writes for the Bulletin". Well whadda you know, That kid with the tickets comes back sharp like and says: "I don't care if you're Kip and Alice, who furnish news for all the papers, you ain't gonna ger in here without coughin' up two bits apiece." The Boy Friend forked over the required cohen of the realm and we went in. Gosh it made me think of the Yale-Harvard game we saw up in Boston it was so much different.

I knew mosta the fellers playing on the "Academy" team but them fellers that called themselves the 'Luminums I didn't know. A couple them 'Luminum fellers had some sniffy shirts, all orange color. But I didn't think much of the garters one feller wore 'cause his sox was fallin' down all the time I could told him a good kind to use.

Well I didn't care mucha 'bout the game but the Boy Friend kept hollerin' to this one an' that to do this an' do that 'till I got kinda tired of it. There were no seats an' you hadda stand up an' there wern't no hands or cheerin' sectors or nothin'. Well, I didn't make no dumb cracks 'cause I next kept my mouth shut. The only wise crack the Boy Friend made was that the game was "the survival of the filthiest." Guess he musta meant that the dirtiest team won. I guess it did too, 'cause the ground was awful muddy.

I heard some fellers talkin' 'bout a All-American team and I asks the boy what they was drivin' at. He tells me some feller picks out the men that he most has been writ about an calls them the All-Americans. I asks the boy friend if it must be Americans and no Irish or any of them other popular nations. Well I gets an idea that I might picka All-American and the boy friend says he's goin' to help me but believe me he ain't. He says you gotta explain why you pick 'em so I doped out a list and here tis.

Susie's All-American Team

Name	Position
Kip Rhinelander	Right End
Grange	Right Tackle
Any Norwich Policeman	Right Guard
Fatty Arbuckle	Center
Ben Turpin	Left Guard
Ty Cobb	Left Tackle
Col. Mitchell	Quarterback
Harold Lloyd	Right Half
Charlie Chaplin	Left Half
Senator Borah	Fullback
Ma Ferguson	Coach

Ther whadda think of that for a All-American team? If I ain't picked the most talked of people in the country for the past few years then my name ain't Susie. Now I suppose I gotta tell why I picked 'em. The Boy Friend told me a few main points, so here goes:

The boy said a end had gotta be fast an' not 'fraid to tackle. Well I picked that baby, Rhinelander, he sure is a fast boy and he don't care how he tackles, if you can believe what the papers say.

I picked Grange 'cause the boy friend said everybody in the country an' the city as well, would pick Grange. I ain't gonna left none of these smart sport writers get ahead of me.

The guard position was a sticker 'till I thought what the position meant. Then it was easy 'cause everybody knows what swell guards our Norwich policemen make. I didn't name anybody in particular 'cause I didn't wanta make any of 'em jealous. You can name one if you wanta.

The boy friend said a center hadda be heavy and big so I thought of all the big fellers I seen but I guess Fatty Arbuckle was the biggest so I elected him.

Then come the other guard place. I mighta picked another cop but I thoughta Ben Turpin with them cross eyes of his. That boy could see all ways to once and he could guard most anything and it would take a slick feller to go anything and him not see it.

I put Ty Cobb in left tackle 'cause I saw him climb into a grandstand once and tackle a guy 'bout twice as big as him an' it took two cops to pull him off the feller.

This feller Overlander I picked because of his name. Anybody with that name aughta cover a lotta ground. The Boy Friend says he's some football player so I guess I didn't make no mistake in electin' him. I don't know what position he plays but I couldn't find no other so I stuck him in at end.

The boy friend told me I gotta have somebody on the team that knew the aerial game so I picks Col. Mitchell I guess that boy can tell all something about the air game. Even Congress is asking him all kinds of questions about the aerial attack.

Harold Lloyd was picked 'cause I saw him in The Freshman at the theatre once and he sure did play a great game. If he can play such a game on the screen he sure aughta be able to do it on my mystical eleven.

Charlie Chaplin was my choice 'cause he was in the Gold Rush and was the hero of that game. If he can rush gold I guess he can rush a light thing like football.

You noticed Sen. Borah's name as fullback. Well the boy friend told me you gotta have a good kicker on the team so I picked the Senator. You remember when he played in the League of Nations he was kickins all the time and believe me he's been kickins ever since, so I guess I didn't commit no error in pickin' him.

Then I picked a coach. They tell me the sports writers ain't pickins the coaches so's I'm goin' one better. My vote is for Ma Ferguson. She's been coachin' the state of Texas along for the last year so she oughta be able to show eleven men whatta do, whether it's football or politicks.

Well, I'll hav to quit now but I'll write you a nother letter next week.

Yours in sports,
SUSIE

TIGERS WIN OPENING GAME OF INDOOR LEAGUE

Monday night at the Armory, in the first game in the Norwich Indoor league, the Tigers nosed out a lucky 9 to 8 victory over the Nutmegs in one of the fastest games ever seen at the Armory. The Tigers runs were all scored in the early innings before the Nutmeg defense had settled down and become accustomed to the floor. Two runs in the first, two more in the second, four in the third and one run in the eighth inning constituted the scoring for the Tigers.

On the other hand, the Nutmegs, after getting off to a poor start came strong in the late innings and by a brilliant ninth inning rally, in which five runs were scored on five successive hits, failed by one run to knot the score.

For the Tigers, McGowan, Leo Hamel, Lloyd Jarvis, Cimikoski and Burke were the shining lights. For the Nutmegs, Jim Kelly was without doubt the outstanding star of the game. His plething and fielding were of the highest order, but one run being scored off his twirling in the five innings he worked. Ellie Segal, Jab Burnes and Gibbs also put up a nice game for the losers. If the team continues its fighting spirit of the latter innings of last night's game the Nutmegs should prove a worthy foe for all teams in future contests.

The lineups were as follows: Tigers, c, L. Hamil; p, B. Labenski; 1b, Burke; 2b, Cimikoski. (Capt.); p, Labenski; ss, Nevins, Mgr.; rss, S. Tombari; lf, McGowan; cf, A. Tombari, Lloyd Jarvis; rf, E Hamil, M. Goldblatt. Nutmegs: c, J. Burnes; p, Segal, Kelly; 1b, Couture; 2b, Carlin; 3b, Kelly, Segal; lss, Gibbs; rss, W. Burnes; lf, Jackson, cf, Shannon, Belay; rf, Winters.

Score by innings:

Tigers	224 000 01x—9
Nutmegs	012 000 005—8

Umpires: Malcolm and Fitzgerald. Attendance, 300.

Next Monday the Nutmegs meet Faber's All Stars in the 6:30 game while Battery B and the Tigers clash at 8:30.

Battery Beats All Stars

In the second game of the evening Monday at the Armory the Battery B team defeated Faber's All Stars by the score of 7 to 5. Like the first game, the contest was replete with thrills and was not settled until the last man was out.

For the victors Cimikoski, West, Sawicki, Gilbert and Joe Faber were the shining lights. For the Battery, Roberts, Lemieux, Goodrow and Berberich were the luminaries.

Battery B, c, Goodrow; p, Robertson; 1b, Lemieux; 2b, Beausoleil; 3b, Berberich; lss, Mish; rss, Eichelberg; lf, Saunders; cf, Prodell; rf, Lewis.

Score by innings:

Stars	000 103 010—5
Battery	430 000 20x—7

Umpires: Malcolm and Jarvis.

TIGERS BEAT LORRAINE FOR E. C. TITLE

Sunday afternoon at the J. B. Martin gridiron the Greeneville Tigers defeated the fast Lorraine team by the score of 7 to 0. Although the Tigers were outweighed they outplayed their opponents in every department of the game the play being in Lorraine territory practically all of the time.

The Cadets were unable to break through the stonewall defense of the Tigers, making only one first down and were forced to punt frequently. Lorraine tried fourteen passes but the fast defensive work of the Greeneville backfield prevented their success.

In the first quarter the Tigers received and by a series of line plunges brought the ball to the 7 yard line and Clare Brewer smashed his way through the Lorraine team for the only touchdown of the game. Norm Courboin drop-kicked the goal for the point after touchdown. In the third quarter Higgins made a pretty run of 35 yards over the goal line but the ball was brought back because the head linesman failed to have his lines placed.

In spite of the fact that it was a cold day a good crowd was on hand and were treated to a good fast game. Gorton, the injured Tiger full-back is able to be around and witnessed the game from the sidelines. Swanton, another injured regular was in uniform but was unable to play. The Tiger team as a whole played a faultless game, every man sharing in the features. The Lorraine line wiltered before the crushing backfield of the Greenevillites. The line-up for the Tigers was: Gay, le; Lukoski lt; Mileski lg; McGowan, center; Christie, rg; Langevin, rt; Boyd, re; Tennant, qb; Higins, lhb; Courbois, rhb; C. Brewer, fb.

Substitutions: McIntyre for Gay; Nelson for Boyd.

Referee—Harris. Umpire, Jed Fox; head linesman, Ed Williams. Score:

EASTERN FOOTBALL TEAMS CARRY OFF MAJOR GRID HONORS OF 1925

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(By the A. P.)—During a campaign marked by keener rivalry than ever before among various college gridiron areas, the eastern sector of the football battlefront has carried off the major share of intersectional honors for 1925.

Fifty-five games among prominent teams in the east, south, middle west and far west, nearly twice the total of such contests in 1924, form the basis of comparison and out of this competition the east emerges with a convincing lead, piling up 28 victories against 12 defeats. The Atlantic seaboard section thus succeeds to the title held last year by the middle west, which finished second this season with 15 victories and 23 setbacks.

Despite the east's big numerical advantage, however, the middle west and south collected a fair share of laurels where the bigger teams came into conflict.

Western conference or "big ten" teams, for instance, broke even in six contests with major eastern rivals, in the most conspicuous of these Illinois and Michigan upheld middle western prestige by trouncing Pennsylvania and the Navy, respectively, while Dartmouth provided a finishing flourish for the east in swamping Chicago.

The eastern score also was aided by the performances of the Army and Navy in taking the measure of Notre Dame and Marquette, respectively, for victories that squared 1924 accounts.

The strength of southern contenders for intersectional honors was displayed in Tulane's victory over the Northwestern team which defeated Michigan. Southern Methodist's triumph over Drake and Georgia Tech's defeat of Penn States on a neutral battlefield. New York. Tulane also tied Missouri, champions of the Missouri valley conference.

The far west's biggest victory in intersectional play, which may still witness a post-season game or two of that type on the coast, was scored by Southern California over Iowa. Washington, coast champions, was held to a tie by Nebraska.

Army registered the most imposing intersectional record of any team by turning in five victories over opponents from the middle west and south. Besides Notre Dame, the cadet triumphs were scored over St. Louis Knox, Detroit and Davis-Elkins.

Notre Dame, which set the intersectional pace last year, slackened its stride a bit but still managed to outscore Baylor, Georgia Tech and Carnegie to offset the Army defeat and a tie with Pennsylvania State.

The Haskell Indians won the season's touring record, losing to Boston college by one point in the east on October 12 and then journeying to the Pacific coast to conquer Gonzaga by a similarly close margin on October 31.

The final intersectional standings.

	East	West	Far West	South	Midwest	East
East	x	20	3	0	28
Midwest	8	x	5	2	15	23
South	4	5	x	0	6	13
Far West	0	1	0	x	1	2

Ties, Far West and Middle West, one; East and Middle West, three, South and Middle West, one.

J., Yale club smoker in Nick Roberts' barn December 5.

Montclair Yale men contend. It was said, that the Harvard-Princeton game should not always precede the Yale-Harvard clash by two weeks, giving Harvard an opportunity of two weeks preparation for the Yale game while Yale and Princeton have their "big three" clashes only a week apart.

Tad Jones, head coach of the Yale team, is expected to voice his views on the subject at the smoker. He also may give some recommendations regarding the rule which prohibits the "big three" teams from starting practice before September 15. Jones speech will be broadcast from Station WOR, Newark, N. RUBY PARKER MUST SERVE JAIL SENTENCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 30—A special session of the superior court was held here today with Judge Christopher L. Avery on the bench, the session being called on the action of habeas corpus proceedings brought by Attorney Arthur T. Keefe, in behalf of his client, Ruby Parker, Flanders merchant, who is serving a 15 days sentence in the New London county jail. Parker was committed to jail Saturday night by Justice of the Peace Charles Watrous, East Lyme, to carry out the sentence, which was imposed last March, following Parker having been convicted of violation of the liquor law, and, at which time, execution of the sentence was suspended a year. However, when Parker was convicted on two of three counts of violation of the liquor law in the East Lyme court last week, the suspended sentence was put into operation. Following Parker being committed to jail Attorney Keefe instituted habeas corpus proceedings and this forenoon argued for the release of the prisoner. He alleged that Justice of the Peace Watrous exceeded his power of office in committing Parker to jail; also that State Police Officers Bernard Kenerson and Fred Caron exceeded their authority when they made a search of the Parker establishment earlier in the month and arrested him on charges of actual sale, keeping with intent to sell and reputation. Parker was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to 15 days in jail on the second count. The third count was nolled.

At today's session of court in which Charles B. Whittlesey, prosecutor of the court of common pleas appeared in place of State Attorney Arthur Brown, Judge Avery denied the motion and also denied the acceptance of a bond on an appeal to the supreme court of errors, which latter action makes it mandatory that Parker serve the 15 days in jail, at the time of Parker's conviction for which he is now serving a jail sentence, his wife paid the court fine of $200.

When Parker was last convicted he took an appeal to the court of common pleas.

FLOYD WILLIAMS WILL APPEAR IN COURT TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 30—Floyd Mitchell, will be called upon in court tomorrow to defend his actions in firing three shots after Benjamin Hankin, at the Mitchell place of business on Atlantic street, last Monday morning. There are seven witnesses under subpoena to appear in court to tell all they know about the case that is to go to trial. They have all made statements under oath as to what happened so there would seem to be little else for them to relate to the court. A question is likely to arise as to whether Mitchell could have intended to kill a man who was on the other side of a partition when the shots were fired. Mitchell declares that Hankin had left the room when the shots were fired. The state represents that Hankin was on the run when Mitchell sought to shoot him, and that Mitchell was in anger at the time. Mitchell is represented by Messrs. Shea and McGarry, two of the youngest lawyers in the city while the veteran, Percy Hollandersky is to prosecute the case. The case has attracted unusual interest because it was a surprise to people in general that gambling was being permitted at the Mitchell place.

STOPPED CONSTRUCTION WORK FOR C. V. RAILROAD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 30.—Building Inspector Benjamin R. Linicus has caused the Central Vermont railroad to discontinue the work of construction on a lumber shed at East New London. In issuing his edict the building inspector was compelled to threaten the carpenters with arrest if further work on the structure was attempted because they were in a mood to disregard the city official's order. The lumber shed is partially on railroad property, but a section of the structure, it is believed, encroaches upon South street, a public highway and in the event of the shed being completed it would practically close up one end of the highway to vehicular traffic. Building Inspector Linicus has made known the issuance of his order to Director of Law Charles B. Whittlesey, for the purpose of determining whether or not the shed is being built on city property. The railroad violated a city ordinance when it caused the work to be started for no petition was received for the work by Building Inspector Linicus, that the specifications might receive his approval.

Broadway Theater

You have no other alternative but to go to see a great show of vaudeville. And that stands for the photoplays also. The management is specializing on the vaudeville shows and with Keith vaudeville to choose from: something good is always assured. The proof is in the seeing of today's program.

Cooper and Thomas, two speed boys, show their worth as dancers from soft shoe to the newest wrinkle—The Charleston.

Joe and Dez Carlon followed with a variety of good entertainment that made a real impression.

Tom Renna and Revue, features five people. They proved to be one of the hits of the show with a melange of comedy patter, songs, dances and music.

Purdy and Fain an able couple of comedians made fourth spot bright with laughter.

The Worden Bros., novelty double foot jugglers kept up the interest to the last with their phenomenal work.

The feature picture topped off this fine program in great style. It boasts a real star cast which does excellent work in Borrowed Finery.

Brems, Fetz and Murphy Bros., are comedy Thursday, watch for them.

Palace Theatre

Mary Astor was literally trained to be a motion picture star. When a child—even now she is only seventeen years of age—she studied dramatic art, dancing and music, all with the one thought of becoming at some time a finished actress. In the beginning it was the stage she aimed for, but when motion pictures supplanted the stage in popularity, Miss Astor determined upon a film career. And now she is Douglas Fairbanks' leading lady in his latest screen feature, "Don Q, son of Zorro."

Her education began in the town of her birth, Quincy, Illinois, where she attended public school for six years. Then she spent two years at the Kenwood-Loring School for Girls in Chicago. When her family moved next to New York, Mary took a year of high school training by correspondence from the Chicago University high school department. Her studies were finished, however, under the tutelage of her father, once a college professor.

Her latest successful pictures have been with Richard Barthelmess in "The Bright Shawl", and in "Spring Magic," William DeMille's production for Paramount from the famous stage success, "The Faun," by Edward Knoblock.

Miss Astor is a lover of sports and is an adept at tennis and riding and has very lately conquered the art of swimming. She is also an accomplished pianist and possesses a pleasing contralto voice.

Breed Theater

Lovers of clean, wholesome fun combined with stirring action and a pretty love story will find an evening or an afternoon of real entertainment in The Pace That Thrills—First National's latest feature picture which comes to the Breed Wednesday and Thursday.

Ben Lyon and Mary Astor, as the featured players, head an admirable cast which contains Tully Marshall, Fritzi Brunette, Thomas Holding, Warner Richmond, Charles Beyer, Evelyn Walsh Hall, Wheeler Oakman and others. The picture was directed by Webster Campbell under the supervision of Earl Hudson, the man who made The Lost World.

Contrary to many motion pictures The Pace that Thrills contains a gripping story which is never lost sight of from start to finish. It is the story of a movie hero who has acquired much undesirable publicity because he refuses to take chances, demanding a double for the most trival danger. Even the girl in the case finally loses faith in her hero. But in the end all is cleared up happily.

Ben in the role of the movie hero is admirably cast. He incidentally proves to his fans that he is a comedian as well as a portrayer of serious roles. We have never seen him better than in this picture. He fights burly pugilists, stuffed and live bulls, and fairly takes your breath away by some automobile racing that is sensational.

The paperhanger finds business good when it drives him to the wall.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week remarkable progress was made on local building projects considering the weather conditions and the Thanksgiving holiday which delayed the work to some extent. The month of November has been an exceptionally favorable one for building and the contractors have made the most of it.

The new Sheltering Arms building is well along and is practically ready for the roof. The brick work is complete to the second story and the contractors are rushing the job along so as to avoid the extreme weather which is due.

The new garage and sales room for The Jordan Auto Co. on Main street is practically complete and ready for occupation. The building has been thoroughly renovated and remodeled with a new brick front and plate glass show windows.

At the Norwich State Hospital the new ward building is fast nearing completion, the exterior work being completed and the plasterers are at work on the interior.

In the town the new buildings are being brought well along. The majority of these are frame structures and the cold weather has not materially delayed the work on these projects.

At the office of Fire Marshall Howard L. Stanton several applications were received and permits will be granted this week for new buildings within the city limits.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were 13 sales of real estate in Norwich, 6 less than the number of sales during the corresponding week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $33,870 and $78,800.

The number of real estate sales in New London during the past week was 9, an increase of two sales over the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $82,347 and $85,060.

Building Permits in State

Statistics of building for the week, as shown by permits issued in the principal towns of the state show an increase in number over the past two years, a decrease in amount, as of 1924, but a decided increase over 1923. In 1925, 343 permits have been granted, against 258 in 1924, and 291 in 1923, with the cost of building for 1925 $1,400,149, against $1,838,635 in 1924 and $733,644 in 1923.

New London

Plans prepared for alterations to the Pequot Casino property on the Thames river for ex-Mayor Waldo H. Clark and Mrs. Clark, are being figured by an invited list of bidders. The owners are receiving bids for the proposed changes. The work will consist of the removal of the south section of the building and interior changes throughout. When completed the building will be an eight-room residence, with servants' quarters on the second floor and a garage in the basement.

Work has been started on a building at 30 Mercer street to contain a garage and dwelling for Henry H. Cooman. The building will be 34x26 feet. The first story will be of stone and the second story of frame. The garage will be on the first floor and the apartment above.

The permit has been issued to Meyer and Amon Rubin for the garage to be erected at 124 Golden street, which will be occupied by The Yellow Cab Co. The building will be 100x80 feet, of brick and steel construction.

The cellar has been excavated for a house to be erected on Briggs street by A. C. Miller, 164 Ledyard street. The house will be 24x26 feet, of frame construction, arranged for seven rooms. It will have steam heat and other conveniences.

Seaside Council, Knights of Columbus, are considering plans for enlarged quarters, the present plans are for a building containing an auditorium and gymnasium which would cost approximately $150,000. The directors are: Mayor William C. Fox, Dr. William J. Murray, Thomas C. Dillon, Henry J. Kennedy and David P. Condon. It is not likely that work will be started until spring.

Ground has been broken by C. C. Green for a cottage at 235 Ocean avenue. From private plans the house will be 26x30 feet, two stories high. It will be arranged for one family and will cost about $4,000. The owner will do the carpentry work.

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the supervising architect, Washington, D. C., until Dec. 7, at 2 p. m., for remodeling and extension, including incidental changes in the mechanical equipment at the post office building on State street. Plans and specifications may be obtained at the office of the custodian of the building, or at the office of the supervising architect in Washington.

Building Permits

Meyer Rubin, garage, 124 Golden street, $18,000.

H. H. Cooman, dwelling and garage, 30 Mercer street, $2,000.

MOOSUP

Advance preparations, far more elaborate than those of the past two years, are to be fully realized at the opening of the Third Annual Bazaar for the benefit of the Methodist Episcopal church at Moosup. Willing hearts and hands have been busy since early in the summer arranging the various details of what has become the most notable event in its line to be staged in this immediate section.

The affair is held three evenings, and on each a splendid entertainment is to be given, a bountiful supper provided, and the evenings will then be given over to a Christmas sale. The vestry is daily decorated, and ten large booths will be necessary to care for the varied lines of articles which will be attractively displayed.

A parish house, to better care for the needs of this denomination, has long been in the minds of those in charge of the various church organizations, and, in consequence, it has been decided that the proceeds of the bazaar this year shall form the nucleus of a sinking fund for that particular purpose.

The committee who are in charge of the arrangements are as follows:

BOY DROWNED TRYING TO RESCUE COMPANION

DEDHAM, Mass., Nov. 30—(A. P.)—The season's first thin ice fatality, with one of the boy victims sacrificing himself to save the other occurred here today. Peter Coccia, 8, went through the ice on the Washington street meadows, and Santo Violanti, his 15-year-old companion broke through as he tried to rescue his drowning playmate.

Two patrolmen working from a rowboat recovered the bodies of the boys.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(By The A. P.)—Uneven price movements characterized today's stock market, but the main tendency appeared to be downward. Trading showed a marked falling off in volume, reflecting substantially reduced public participation and temporary suspension of pool operations in several issues.

Stiffening call money rates, while mostly traceable to the sharp increase in excess reserve shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement and heavy month-end currency requirements, revived conjectures as to what action the New York Federal Reserve bank will take on its rediscount rate this Thursday. Wall street generally was of the opinion that if the Bank of England rate was raised on Wednesday, the New York bank would announce an increase the next day. The advance from 6 1-2 to 7 per cent., in the Bank of Belgium rate was generally construed as another indication of Belgium's intention to return to the gold standard.

Outside the stock market, chief speculative interest centered in the shark rally of French francs and the announcement of higher gasoline prices in New England.

Commodity markets were irregular, wheat closing higher and cotton lower on the day.

Railroad shares displayed a relatively firm undertone with special buying apparent in some of the so-called "merger roads." Kansas City Southern was bid up nearly five points to a new record high at 48 3-4 on reports of a definite announcement this week regarding the southwestern rail merger, of which it is the main link. The preferred touched a new top at 68 1-2. Wheeling and Lake Erie common and preferred each advanced about 4 points to new high records at 30 5-8 and 52 respectively.

Atlantic Coast Line jumped 6 points to a new top at 235 on a relatively small turnover. Net gains of 1 to 3 1-2 points were recorded by Chesapeake and Ohio, Delaware and Hudson, Frisco, Louisville and Nashville, Pere Marquette, Western Maryland and Western Pacific. Michigan Central, on one sale of 10 shares, attained a new record price at 750, or 90 points above the previous sale.

Standard industrials showed mixed changes. United States Steel common closed nearly a point lower at 128 1-2, while American Can and Baldwin showed fractional improvement. Motors experienced another sinking spell although most of them closed above the low figures of the day. Mack Trucks showed a net loss of 4 points at 211 after having sold down to 209 1-2; General Motors was off 1 7-8 at 114 after having been down to 112 3-4 and, White, Hudson, Chrysler and Pierce Arrow common and preferred showed recessions of 1 to 3 points.

Among the specialties, International Combustion Engineering stood out with a gain of 3 5-8 at 64 7-8, a new high record. New peak prices also were attained by Air Reduction, American Sugar, Consolidated Cigar, Devoe and Reynolds and Gimbel Brothers common and preferred. Other outstanding strong spots included American Agricultural Chemical common and preferred, American Water Works, Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies common and preferred, Consoleum, Eureka Vacuum, Federal Mining and Smelting, General Asphalt, Oppenheim Collins and Ward Baking B.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent., and then advanced to 5 1-2 when banks called about $15,000,000. In loans. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

French francs rallied about 12 points to around 4.00 cents in reflection of a similar advance in the London market before the New York banks opened. Other European exchanges moved within rather narrow and irregular limits with the exception of Polish zlotys, which broke 10 points to a new low record at 13.00 cents. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.84 3-16.

TAFTVILLE

Word has been received in the village of the death of Mrs. John Brown of Springfield, after a short illness of pneumonia. Mrs. Brown resided in Taftville for a number of years, the family making its home on North B street. They removed to Springfield in 1912. She is survived by her husband, who is employed at the government arsenal in Springfield, a son, Robert Brown and a granddaughter. Mrs. Brown had many friends in the village who were grieved to learn of her death. The funeral was held Monday, with a number of Taftville people attending.

Mrs. Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue has returned from Hartford where she has been the guest for the past few days of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Parish and family.

Edwin Pollard has returned to his home in Boston, Mass., after spending the holidays at the home of his father, William Pollard and family of South Second avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Hindle and son, Edmund of North Third avenue have returned from Providence, where they have been spending several days.

Miss Helen Allard was hostess Wednesday when she entertained a number of friends at her home on South B street. Whist was played until 10 o'clock. The ladies' first prize was won by Miss Blanche Lucier and the consolation by Miss Annette Suprenant. The gentlemen's first prize went to Noe Lucier and the consolation to Mike Carroll. After cards, a buffet lunch was served by Mrs. Arthur Allard, the hostess' mother, and there were games and ukelele solos by George Roberge. The guests included Miss Annette Suprenant, Miss Blanche Lucier, Miss Loretta Gregory, Miss Margarette Benoit, Miss Susette Mentaz, Raymond Whittaker, George Roberge, Bruno Budzik, Edward Ferguson, Walter Crone, Mike Carroll, Frank Prodell and Noe Lucier.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Crowell have returned to their home in Edgewood, R. I. after spending a short time this week with Mr. and Mrs. Earle M. Wood and family of North Third avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Belval of Riverside Grove and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Belval of North B street have returned from a holiday visit in Brockton, Mass.

Mrs. Edna Durato and family have given up their house on Norwich avenue.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad have closed the station at Tafts. This leaves the village without a railroad depot, but for the past few years there has been very little business transacted at the station, and it will probably not be missed very much by the traveling public, who now go by bus and automobile.

Allen B. Lincoln of Hartford was a caller in the village Monday.

TWO-THIRDS OF NORWICH PUPILS IN SCHOOL SAVING STAMPS SYSTEM

Now that the holiday recess is over, Miss Katherine D. Smith, of Norwich Savings society, will resume her visits to the 24 schools—public and parochial—of the town of Norwich, continuing her systematic instruction in the gospel of thrift.

This system of school saving instruction was begun four years ago, in January, 1922. The project had the hearty endorsement of the president of the Savings society, the late Arthur H. Brewer. At an earlier date, Mr. Brewer, to encourage the children of Norwich and vicinity to save, had generously set aside the sum of $1,000, his personal gift, with the announcement that each child visiting the banking house to start an account by the deposit of $1 would be given a dollar from the fund, to match his own. Many girls and boys took advantage of this liberal proffer, then and there beginning the habit of practical saving and banking.

To further stimulate the thrift habit, the Savings society placed in each school of the town the automatic teller system, or stamp machines. These devices yield stamps of one cent, five cents, ten and twenty-five cent denomination, as the pupil deposits the corresponding coin.

Each child wishing to save is provided a stamp card, to which he affixes the stamps which he buys. When these total one dollar, he opens a real bank account with the Savings society.

The system here was inaugurated by Secretary-Treasurer Guy B. Dolbeare, who took charge of installing the machines in each school building of the town, which means schools in the city of Norwich, in Taftville, Occum, Norwich Town and Yantic. From the first, Mr. Dolbeare met the most cordial co-operation on the part of the different teachers, who, far from considering the stamp system but another task imposed upon them in the line of their daily duties and responsibilities took up the project with great enthusiasm. The bank officials feel that much of the gratifying success of the work may be attributed to the hearty assistance lent by the various principals and their assistant teachers.

When Mr. Dolbeare was obliged to give up his school visits because of the press of work in the banking-house, Miss Katherine D. Smith was delegated to have charge of the school saving department. Miss Smith visits each school room once every term; to give the pupils a talk on thrift.

This plan she carries out with exceptional success, impressing her young listeners with the value of the habit of saving money, of spending it wisely, and only for necessary things. Miss Smith sets near the hearts of the girls and boys by encouraging them to confide to her just why they are saving, listening to their ambitions and hopes with real sympathy.

As a rule, the children are eager to tell why they are putting away their pennies and nickels, or dimes.

Often a boy is banking his small capital with the ambition of some day accumulating enough to buy a watch, one boy saved to buy a violin. A little girl astonished the visitor by announcing that she was hoarding her pennies to go to Wales, to visit her grandmother. It is pleasant to know that the child actually did go, although, of course, her small board was merely a drop in the ocean to what it cost her mother to take her.

Often the children will explain that they are saving to buy a Christmas gift for their parents, or brothers or sisters. Possibly the motive may be a summer vacation visit, or they may save toward new clothes, or shoes.

It is an interesting fact that the best savers are in the lower grades of all the schools—first, second and third. Also those pupils farthest from the temptation of candy, ice cream cones, theatre matinees and the like make the steadiest depositors.

Still, even with such temptations to fritter away the embryo bank account, there are in the town of Norwich sixteen schools which are 100 per cent. savers—that is, every pupil in every room has started a savings account. As an incentive to this, a schoolroom with such a record gets a coveted Thrift Banner—and has the additional honor of affixing a gold star to this pennant, if all the pupils are 100 per cent. saving.

Pupils often entertain Miss Smith, during her visits, by describing how they are earning money to add to their small accounts and this is particularly true before the holidays. They have their little games and songs pertaining to thrift and the wisdom of starting and increasing a bank account. One little girl in the first grade of Sacred Heart school, Taftville, whose ambition it is to save to study music, already plays the piano accompaniments for the school songs, although she is but six.

Once each month, Miss Smith visits the outside schools for collections and her visits are always full of interest to herself as well as to the pupils.

One one-hundred per cent. school building is that at East Great Plain, where there are two rooms. These were taught by Miss Lathrop and Miss Morrison when the report was made of each girl and boy being a saver.

The practical value of the system is understood when it is stated that of the 4,200 or more children of school age in the town, over 66 per cent. have begun saving through the system of stamp machines in the school buildings. Since Oct. 1st., the pupils have been doing unusually well in adding to their accounts, so that some children are credited with substantial sums accumulated in this way.

Connecticut as a state has not yet taken up the plan of requiring thrift instruction in the schools, making the idea educational as well as profitable; this is done in Ohio alone, so far.

Beginning the coming Jan. 17th., National Thrift week is to be observed, when it is expected the teachers will co-operate with banks and the different Chambers of Commerce and other public bodies in stressing the value of early inculcating the habit of saving. Doubtless the topic will be emphasized in Norwich schools as elsewhere throughout the country.

It is understood that during that special week, President Charles R Butts, of the Norwich Savings society, has a plan to help interest school pupils of all the grades in the idea of thrift, through some project of prize essays on this vital theme.

There are families all aout Norwich who realize the great value which the system is already proving, since some children lay aside a certain proportion of weekly allowance, or of money earned by doing errands, etc., that it may be exchanged for savings stamps in the particular school building to which each pupil belongs.

It is held by the banking officials that, having early acquired the saving habit, and incidentally the fortitude to choose economy instead of spending stray coins thoughtlessly and for unnecessary things, children will be likely to continue in this thrift policy. It is the aim of the bank to impress the wisdom and the value of denial of present inclination, for future gain.

FOOTBALL HOP OPENS STORRS SOCIAL SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Nov. 30—The football hop, the first formal dance of the year at the Connecticut Agricultural college, will be held Friday evening, Dec. 4. Ernest E. Spears '26 of Hartford, chairman of the hop committee stated here today that arrangements were already complete.

As in the past, the football hop officially closes the gridiron season at the State college, and this year the Aggies' '25 football squad will attend as guests of the athletic association. Carl B. Brink '26 of New Britain, captain of this year's eleven, will lead the grand march with Miss Phyllis Roberge of Willimantic. Members of the Aggie squad with their partners will follow. Chairman Speers with Miss Margaret Hutton of Winsted will lead the others attending the dance.

A special effort is being made this fall to have a large number of the Connecticut alumni return for this dance. Reports from the various fraternities at Storrs indicate that many more will return this year than ever before. Music for the dance will be furnished by the Middletown Melodians. On Saturday, the State College Players will present "Loyalties," one of Galsworthy's plays.

FOR SUPERIOR COURT ON FUR COAT THEFT CHARGE

Probable cause being found, Gladys Lorraine, alias Marie Boyd, 24, of Providence, was bound over to the criminal superior court on a charge of theft, by Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Monday morning. The Lorraine woman is charged with the theft of a $500 fur coat which she took recently from the store of J. B. Caron on Main street. The case had been several times continued by Judge Libby in order to give the woman and her attorneys sufficient time to prepare their side of the case. Attorneys for the accused waived examination for their client when the case came up Monday morning.

The original bond of $2,000 under which the accused has been at liberty, was increased to $2,500. As it was agreed between counsel for the accused and the court that the fur coat would not be needed further as evidence, Mr. Caron was allowed to take the coat back to his store. The coat has been sold to Miss Dora Couture of Pawtucket, R. I., and will be delivered to her within a day or two.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING HAD FINE MOVING PICTURE

The large gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A. was filled with an audience Sunday at the afternoon meeting. The meeting opened with the singing of the doxology followed by prayer. The large feature moving picture of nine reels, D. W. Griffith's production, "Isn't Life Wonderful" was shown on the screen much to the pleasure and profit of the large audience. The scene was laid in Germany after the world war, when large numbers from Poland flocked into Berlin. The picture dealt with such every day matters as love, courage, hope and potatoes, and the films were touching in pathos, showing as they did the great suffering caused by the ravages of war. From beginning to end there was manifest interest on the part of all present. Between the reels General Secretary Edwin Hill made very brief remarks, among other things reminding his audience of the great reason for all who live in America to be thankful to Almighty God for his bounteous care and for peace and plenty, while other countries are almost ruined and in some countries keen hunger is yet unsatisfied; he urged all to thank God often for his kindness and favor to America, and also to remember that we all should let our sympathy run out in practical ways to all in the world who have not the blessings we enjoy.

The service was brought to a close with a prayer for all who are suffering in this world from whatever cause. The music was furnished by Hugh Kinder who fitted his music splendidly to the needs of the wonderful picture. Gerald Payne operated the moving picture machine.

LESSONS FROM PENTECOST SHOP TALK TOPIC

Under Y. M. C. A. auspices the weekly noon meeting was held Monday at the plant of the Richmond Radiator Co., where a goodly number of the employes listened with real attention to the address given by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts who took for his topic, "Lessons from Pentecost". Mr. Ricketts stated that there were those extremists who tell us that there are no such things as miracles, and there are those on the opposite side who tell us that everything that happens is a miracle; I take the middle ground, said the speaker. Some things that were thought to be miracles in past years have been proven to be caused by natural causes hence not miracles. There are such things as miracles; if God chooses to work outside of the laws he has made to further his own desires who shall limit his power. The miracle of Pentecost was that the Galileans began to speak with varied tongues, and they all told the same story, namely that story of Jesus Christ. The people who saw and heard were amazed greatly. God works marvelously when men give him a chance. God works through what is called secondary agencies; he uses men in most wonderful ways. Peter who denied to a girl that he ever knew Jesus Christ, having been touched by God's power, was the means, by his preaching at Pentecost, of bringing thousands into the early church.

OLD LYME DAUGHTER-IN-LAW SCHLEY ESTATE BENEFICIARY

Dr. James Montfort Schley, who was the father-in-law of Edith Mary Schley of Old Lyme, Conn., left a net estate of $25,342.04 when he died on October 22, 1924, according to a transfer tax state appraisal of his property, on file in New York city with Surrogate John F. O'Brien.

Under his will, executed on February 27, 1918, this passes over equally among his daughter, Katherine Beckwith Schley Variell of 373 Park avenue New York city; his son, Henry Spaulding Schley of Garden City, L. I., and the daughter-in-law, Edith Mary Schley.

The gross value of the estate left by Dr. Schley amounted to $32,138.99. Expenses amounted to $6,796.95.

Dr. Schley, before his retirement from active practice more than 20 years ago, was one of the foremost physicians of New York, and lived at 375 Park avenue. He was 74 years old, a native of Savannah, Ga., and a son of an old southern family.

Margaret T. Schley, late wife of Dr. James Montfort Schley, left an estate approximately of $2,000,000.

GROTON SCHOOL CHILDREN SUFFERING FROM ITCH

A number of cases of the itch among school children and grown ups in the borough of Groton have claimed the attention of the health authorities for the past week. The disease has appeared in two varieties, scabies, caused by a germ which gets under the skin and produces a rash, and impetigo, which is also caused by a germ, but which becomes apparent with the development of open sores. The disease appeared in Groton during the summer, but was subdued in a short while. The recurrence of the epidemic has affected many more people, but efforts are being made to isolate the afflicted ones. The school nurse excluded from school all children showing symptoms. Those affected have been advised to obtain treatment from their physicians.

Relieved of pain in time to go to party

BACKACHE GIVEN QUICK RELIEF

Tried simple home treatment and pain stops

An aching back is often the result of tired, over-strained muscles, and can be given quick and complete relief with a very simple home treatment.

"I had such a backache I didn't know what to do," writes a New York woman. "I looked through my medicine cabinet to see if I could find something to help me—and there was a bottle of Sloan's Liniment. I used it, and in half an hour I was better. The next day I went to a big engagement party. Now, when anyone has a pain, I say 'use Sloan's.'"

The marvelous effectiveness of Sloan's is due to the stimulating effect that it has upon the circulation. Straight to the sick, aching tissues, it sends a healing tide of fresh new blood—clears out the trouble—kills the pain.

So pleasant and clean to use, too. You don't even have to rub. Just pat it on gently and you will get immediate results. All druggists—35 cents.

ADVISES BREEDING RATHER THAN BUYING COWS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Nov. 30—"Shall I Buy or Breed Cows" was the subject of a radio lecture given by John A. Simms from station WCAC, the Connecticut Agricultural college, here tonight. Mr. Simms is the animal husbandman of the State College Extension Service, and his lecture tonight was the seventh of a radio-correspondence course in dairying that is broadcasted weekly from Storrs.

Four reasons were outlined by Mr. Simms in explaining why Connecticut dairymen should breed and raise their own cows, rather than purchase them from others. These are first, reasonements cost less; second, disease is more easily controlled; third, most of the high producing herds in Connecticut are home raised; fourth, a shortage of cows in neighboring states is probable within five years.

Records obtained from twenty-seven herds containing 449 cows by the farm management department of the Connecticut Agricultural college showed conclusively that the cost of cow replacements were smaller in herds where most of the cows were home grown. The cost was considerably higher in the herds where replacement was made by purchasing from other farmers.

That disease must be controlled to insure uniform profits in dairy farming was emphasized by Mr. Simms. He said the great spread of disease among dairy cows in Connecticut during the past twenty years has been largely caused by the purchase of cows from other states. Disease will be much more easily eliminated and kept out when farmers begin growing their own cows for replacement, he said.

Mr. Simms outlined how herd testing for contagious abortion is being carried on by the Connecticut Agricultural college, with the result that some herds are now entirely free from this disease. He declared that approximately one third of the imported cattle which have been tested by the Experiment Station have been proved to be contagious abortion carriers. As a means of preventing this disease, Mr. Simms strongly recommended that Connecticut dairy farmers should rid their herds of the infected animals, after which all heifers should be raised in disease-free surroundings.

There is more tuberculosis in herds containing animals purchased from outside sources than in herds consisting of home grown animals, according to Mr. Simms. This was reason enough, he averred, why the Connecticut dairy farmer should try to raise his own stock. Over one third of the cattle tested in Connecticut were found to have tuberculosis, he said.

Connecticut's best grade herds are home raised. The Vermont, New York, or Wisconsni dairymen are no more likely to sell their best cows than the Connecticut farmer who has an occasional animal for sale. All dairymen are anxious to sell cows that go off in feed, are shy breeders, hard milkers, kickers, or have other faults. When the Vermont dairyman sells these culls the Connecticut dairyman is quite apt to buy them later.

Quoting figures that predict a serious shortage of cows within the next five years, Mr. Simms declared that the number of calves sold has increased greatly in the last three years. On the Brighton market along the largest cattle market in the east, the number of calves sold during the past three years has increased 300 per cent. This means that with so much young stock being slaughtered, the supply of milking cows four or five years hence will be materially reduced.

TWO-THIRDS OF NORWICH PUPILS IN SCHOOL SAVING STAMPS SYSTEM

Now that the holiday recess is over, Miss Katherine D. Smith, of Norwich Savings society, will resume her visits to the 24 schools—public and parochial—of the town of Norwich, continuing her systematic instruction in the gospel of thrift.

This system of school saving instruction was begun four years ago, in January, 1922. The project had the hearty endorsement of the president of the Savings society, the late Arthur H. Brewer. At an earlier date, Mr. Brewer, to encourage the children of Norwich and vicinity to save, had generously set aside the sum of $1,000, his personal gift, with the announcement that each child visiting the banking house to start an account by the deposit of $1 would be given a dollar from the fund, to match his own. Many girls and boys took advantage of this liberal proffer, then and there beginning the habit of practical saving and banking.

To further stimulate the thrift habit the Savings society placed in each school of the town the automatic teller system, or stamp machines. These devices yield stamps of one cent, five cents, ten and twenty-five cent denomination, as the pupil deposits the corresponding coin.

Each child wishing to save is provided a stamp card, to which he affixes the stamps which he buys. When these total one dollar, he opens a real bank account with the Savings society.

The system here was inaugurated by Secretary-Treasurer Guy B. Dolbeare, who took charge of installing the machines in each school building of the town, which means schools in the city of Norwich, in Taftville, Occum, Norwich Town and Yantic. From the first, Mr. Dolbeare met the most cordial co-operation on the part of the different teachers, who, far from considering the stamp system but another task imposed upon them in the line of their daily duties and responsibilities took up the project with great enthusiasm. The bank officials feel that much of the gratifying success of the work may be attributed to the hearty assistance lent by the various principals and their assistant teachers.

When Mr. Dolbeare was obliged to give up his school visits because of the press of work in the banking-house, Miss Katherine D. Smith was delegated to have charge of the school saving department. Miss Smith visits each school room once every term, to give the pupils a talk on thrift.

This plan she carries out with exceptional success, impressing her young listeners with the value of the habit of saving money, of spending it wisely, and only for necessary things. Miss Smith gets near the hearts of the girls and boys by encouraging them to confide to her just why they are saving, listening to their ambitions and hopes with real sympathy.

As a rule, the children are eager to tell why they are putting away their pennies and nickels, or dimes.

Often a boy is banking his small capital with the ambition of some day accumulating enough to buy a watch, one boy saved to buy a violin. A little girl astonished the visitor by announcing that she was hoarding her pennies to go to Wales, to visit her grandmother. It is pleasant to know that the child actually did go, although, of course, her small hoard was merely a drop in the ocean to what it cost her mother to take her.

Often the children will explain that they are saving to buy a Christmas gift for their parents, or brothers or sisters. Possibly the motive may be a summer vacation visit, or they may save toward new clothes, or shoes.

It is an interesting fact that the best savers are in the lower grades of all the schools—first, second and third. Also those pupils farthest from the temptation of candy, ice cream cones, theatre matinees and the like make the steadiest depositors.

Still, even with such temptations to fritter away the embroyo bank account, there are in the town of Norwich sixteen schools which are 100 per cent. savers—that is, every pupil in every room has started a savings account. As an incentive to this, a schoolroom with such a record gets a coveted Thrift Banner—and has the additional honor of affixing a gold star to this pennant, if all the pupils are 100 per cent. saving.

Pupils often entertain Miss Smith during her visits, by describing how they are earning money to add to their small accounts and this is particularly true before the holidays. They have their little games and songs pertaining to thrift and the wisdom of starting and increasing a bank account. One little girl in the first grade of Sacred Heart school, Taftville, whose ambition it is to save to study music, already plays the piano accompaniments for the school songs, although she is but six.

Once each month, Miss Smith visits the outside schools for collections and her visits are always full of interest to herself as well as to the pupils.

One one-hundred per cent. school building is that at East Great Plain, where there are two rooms. These were taught by Miss Lathrop and Miss Morrison when the report was made of each girl and boy being a saver.

The practical value of the system is understood when it is stated that of the 4,200 or more children of school age in the town, over 66 per cent. have begun saving through the system of stamp machines in the school buildings. Since Oct. 1st., the pupils have been doing unusually well in adding to their accounts, so that some children are credited with substantial sums accumulated in this way.

Connecticut as a state has not yet taken up the plan of requiring thrift instruction in the schools, making the idea educational as well as profitable; this is done in Ohio alone, so far.

Beginning the coming Jan. 17th., National Thrift week is to be observed, when it is expected the teachers will co-operate with banks and the different Chambers of Commerce and other public bodies in stressing the value of early inculcating the habit of saving. Doubtless the topic will be emphasized in Norwich schools, as elsewhere throughout the country.

It is understood that during that special week, President Charles R. Butts, of the Norwich Savings society, has a plan to help interest school pupils of all the grades in the idea of thrift, through some project of prize essays on this vital theme.

There are families all about Norwich who realize the great value which the system is already proving, since some children lay aside a certain proportion of weekly allowance, or of money earned by doing errands, etc., that it may be exchanged for savings stamps in the particular school building to which each pupil belongs.

It is held by the banking officials that, having early acquired the saving habit, and incidentally the fortitude to choose economy instead of spending stray coins thoughtlessly and for unnecessary things, children will be likely to continue in this thrift policy. It is the aim of the bank to impress the wisdom and the value of denial of present inclination, for future gain.

FOOTBALL HOP OPENS STORRS SOCIAL SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Nov. 30—The football hop, the first formal dance of the year at the Connecticut Agricultural college, will be held Friday evening, Dec. 4. Ernest E. Spears '26 of Hartford, chairman of the hop committee stated here today that arrangements were already complete.

Chairman Speers with Miss Margaret Hutton of Winsted will lead the others attending the dance.

A special effort is being made this fall to have a large number of the Connecticut alumni return for this dance. Reports from the various fraternities at Storrs indicate that many more will return this year than ever before. Music for the dance will be furnished by the Middletown Melodians. On Saturday, the State College Players will present "Loyalties," one of Galsworthy's plays.

FOR SUPERIOR COURT ON FUR COAT THEFT CHARGE

Probable cause being found, Gladys Lorraine, alias Marie Boyd, 24, of Providence, was bound over to the criminal superior court on a charge of theft, by Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Monday morning. The Lorraine woman is charged with the theft of a $500 fur coat which she took recently from the store of J. B. Caron on Main street. The case had been several times continued by Judge Libby in order to give the woman and her attorneys sufficient time to prepare their side of the case. Attorneys for the accused waived examination for their client when the case came up Monday morning.

The original bond of $2,000 under which the accused has been at liberty, was increased to $2,500. As it was agreed betwen counsel for the accused and the court that the fur coat would not be needed further as evidence, Mr. Caron was allowed to take the coat back to his store. The coat has been sold to Miss Dora Couture of Pawtucket, R. I., and will be delivered to her within a day or two.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING HAD FINE MOVING PICTURE

The large gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A. was filled with an audience Sunday at the afternoon meeting. The meeting opened with the singing of the doxology followed by prayer. The large feature moving picture of nine reels, D. W. Griffith's production, "Isn't Life Wonderful" was shown on the screen much to the pleasure and profit of the large audience. The scene was laid in Germany after the world war, when large numbers from Poland flocked into Berlin. The picture dealt with such every day matters as love, courage, hope and potatoes, and the films were touching in pathos, showing as they did the great suffering caused by the ravages of war. From beginning to end there was manifest interest on the part of all present. Between the reels General Secretary Edwin Hill made very brief remarks, among other things reminding his audience of the great reason for all who live in America to be thankful to Almighty God for his bounteous care and for peace and plenty, while other countries are almost ruined and in some countries keen hunger is yet unsatisfied; he urged all to thank God often for his kindness and favor to America, and also to remember that we all should let our sympathy run out in practical ways to all in the world who have not the blessings we enjoy.

The service was brought to a close with a prayer for all who are suffering in this world from whatever cause. The music was furnished by Hugh Kinder who fitted his music splendidly to the needs of the wonderful picture. Gerald Payne operated the moving picture machine.

BOY SCOUT EXECUTIVES TO MEET IN NEW HAVEN

Completed plans for the meeting of Boy Scout officials of the state at New Haven next Saturday afternoon show it to be the largest and most elaborate since before the World war. It is estimated by Carl E. Northrup, scout executive for New Haven and chairman of the program committee, that about 300 would be present. Attendance does not include the scout boys but the scout council members, troop committeemen and the scout commissioned officers of the state.

The sessions will begin about 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon in Dwight Hall, Yale university, and continue until about 8 o'clock, about an hour being spent in enjoying a banquet served in the refectory of Dwight Hall. F. C. Hill, scout executive of Hartford, will preside at the first session of the program and the address will be given by Jack Goddard, scoutmaster of Troop 1, Cheshire, on "Starting and Keeping the New Scout." LESSONS FROM PENTECOST SHOP TALK TOPIC

Under Y. M. C. A. auspices the weekly noon meeting was held Monday at the plant of the Richmond Radiator Co., where a goodly number of the employes listened with real attention to the address given by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts who took for his topic, "Lessons from Pentecost". Mr. Ricketts stated that there were those extremists who tell us that there are no such things as miracles, and there are those on the opposite side who tell us that everything that happens is a miracle; I take the middle ground, said the speaker. Some things that were thought to be miracles in past years have been proven to be caused by natural causes hence not miracles. There are such things as miracles; if God chooses to work outside of the laws he has made to further his own desires who shall limit his power. The miracle of Pentecost was that the Galileans began to speak with varied tongues, and they all told the same story, namely that story of Jesus Christ. The people who saw and heard were amazed greatly. God works marvelously when men give him a chance. God works through what is called secondary agencies; he uses men in most wonderful ways. Peter who denied to a girl that he ever knew Jesus Christ, having been touched by God's power, was the means, by his preaching at Pentecost, of bringing thousands into the early church.

GROTON SCHOOL CHILDREN SUFFERING FROM ITCH

A number of cases of the itch among school children and grown ups in the borough of Groton have claimed the attention of the health authorities for the past week. The disease has appeared in two varieties, scabies, caused by a germ which gets under the skin and produces a rash, and impetigo, which is also caused by a germ, but which becomes apparent with the development of open sores. The disease appeared in Groton during the summer, but was subdued in a short while. The recurrence of the epidemic has affected many more people, but efforts are being made to isolate the afflicted ones. The school nurse excluded from school all children showing symptoms. Those affected have been advised to obtain treatment from their physicians.

Relieved of pain in time to go to party

BACKACHE GIVEN QUICK RELIEF

Tried simple home treatment and pain stops

An aching back is often the result of tired, over-strained muscles, and can be given quick and complete relief with a very simple home treatment.

"I had such a backache I didn't know what to do," writes a New York woman. "I looked through my medicine cabinet to see if I could find something to help me—and there was a bottle of Sloan's Liniment. I used it, and in half an hour I was better. The next day I went to a big engagement party. Now, when anyone has a pain, I say 'use Sloan's.'"

The marvelous effectiveness of Sloan's is due to the stimulating effect that it has upon the circulation. Straight to the sick, aching tissues, it sends a healing tide of fresh new blood—clears out the trouble—kills the pain.

So pleasant and clean to use, too. You don't even have to rub. Just pat it on gently and you will get immediate results. All druggists—35 cents.

ADVISES BREEDING RATHER THAN BUYING COWS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Nov. 30—"Shall I Buy or Breed Cows" was the subject of a radio lecture given by John A. Simms from station WCAC, the Connecticut Agricultural college, here tonight. Mr. Simms is the animal husbandman of the State College Extension Service, and his lecture tonight was the seventh of a radio-correspondence course in dairying that is broadcasted weekly from Storrs.

Four reasons were outlined by Mr. Simms in explaining why Connecticut dairymen should breed and raise their own cows, rather than purchase them from others. These are first, replacements cost less; second, disease is more easily controlled; third, most of the high producing herds in Connecticut are home raised; fourth, a shortage of cows in neighboring states is probable within five years.

Records obtained from twenty-seven herds containing 449 cows by the farm management department of the Connecticut Agricultura, college showed conclusively that the cost of cow replacements were smaller in herds where most of the cows were home grown. The cost was considerably higher in the herds where replacement was made by purchasing from other farmers.

That disease must be controlled to insure uniform profits in dairy farming was emphasized by Mr. Simms. He said the great spread of disease among dairy cows in Connecticut during the past twenty years has been largely caused by the purchase of cows from other states. Disease will be much more easily eliminated and kept out when farmers begin growing their own cows for replacement, he said.

Mr. Simms outlined how herd testing for contagious abortion is being carried on by the Connecticut Agricultural college, with the result that some herds are now entirely free from this disease. He declared that approximately one third of the imported cattle which have been tested by the Experiment Station have been proved to be contagious abortion carriers. As a means of preventing this disease, Mr. Simms strongly recommended that Connecticut dairy farmers should rid their herds of the infected animals, after which all heifers should be raised in disease-free surroundings.

There is more tuberculosis in herds containing animals purchased from outside sources than in herds consisting of home grown animals, according to Mr. Simms. This was reason enough, he averred, why the Connecticut dairy farmer should try to raise his own stock. Over one third of the cattle tested in Connecticut were found to have tuberculosis he said.

Connecticut's best grade herds are home raised. The Vermont, New York, or Wisconsni dairymen are no more likely to sell their best cows than the Connecticut farmer who has an occasional animal for sale. All dairymen are anxious to sell cows that go off in feed, are shy breeders, hard milkers, kickers, or have other faults. When the Vermont dairyman sells these culls the Connecticut dairyman is quite apt to buy them later.

Quoting figures that predict a serious shortage of cows within the next five years, Mr. Simms declared that the number of calves sold has increased greatly in the last three years. On the Brighton market along the largest cattle market in the east, the number of calves sold during the past three years has increased 300 per cent. This means that with so much young stock being slaughtered, the supply of milking cows four or five years hence will be materially reduced.

OLYMPIA MACRI TELLS OF RELATIONS WITH BAGNANO

Miss Macri Broke Down Immediately After She Was Sworn—Later, Without Betraying Any Great Strain, the Accused Girl Related Incidents of Her Companionship With Bagnano—Told of Bagnano's Repeated Attempts to Get Her to Go Out With Him; of Two Occasions on Which He Proposed Marriage; of Becoming Unconscious After Eating a Fig He Had Given Her, And of Threat to Kill Her if She Told Her Mother—Testimony Will Be Continued Today.

LITCHFIELD, Dec. 1—(A. P.)—The direct examination of Olympia Macri, who took the stand in her own defense in superior court here this morning, was still uncompleted when court adjourned for the day at 4:39 o'clock this afternoon. Olympia, who is charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of John Bagnano in the lobby of the Palace theatre at New Haven on February 26, 1925, was sworn as a witness at 12:10 o'clock and her testimony occupied the rest of the court day, except for a brief period this afternoon devoted to that of Miss Mary J. Riccitelli, a nurse at St. Raphael's hospital. Miss Riccitelli told the jury that Olympia's reputation for being "upright, moral and [illegible]" and for being "a peaceable, [illegible] and law-abiding citizen," was "very good."

Judge George E. Hinman cleared the court room of spectators, at Attorney Joseph Koletsky's request, before Olympia took the stand. The girl broke down immediately after she was sworn, and a short recess was ordered to enable her to regain her composure.

Her testimony before the noon recess, which was declared a few minutes after one o'clock, dealt chiefly with her leaving school to go to work, and her first meeting with John Bagnano, which she told the court occurred on Christmas eve four years ago. She told of repeated attempts on his part to get her to go out with him, and of two occasions on which he proposed marriage.

When she came into the courtroom for the afternoon session, she was apparently suffering under a great strain. She showed no further indications of breaking down, however. Mrs. Koletsky and Mrs. Mary Todd, the jail matron, sat beside her and talked with her, in low tones. Attorney Koletsky joined them. When he came back with a box of cough drops after a brief absence, a smile played over Olympia's face for a moment.

When she took the stand again, she testified to having entered the employ of a New Haven department store at about Christmas time, 1922. She said that after John and Carrie Bagnano were married, she had the same friendly feeling toward John she had always had. She told of how she had met Marion Bagnano, his cousin, with Carrie in front of the Palace theatre.

After that she testified, when she and Carrie met on the street they always greeted each other.

She testified that she often met John on the street after his marriage, and that they always said "hello" to each other. She testified that he often invited her to ride home in his car, but that she always refused. Once she said, John came to her counter at the store to ask her where he could find some cheese cloth, and gave her some chewing gum before he left. During all this time, she testified, she was never out in a car with any man.

She said that Carrie and Marion came to her counter about a month after the Bagnano baby came. She said she went outside with them to see the baby when her work was done, and that it was crying, so she put its bottle in its mouth. She said she told Carrie it was a very pretty baby, and "wished her good luck."

She said that John had told her he was going (to be married, when they

EPISCOPALIANS TO MAKE PILGRIMAGE TO HOLY LAND

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 1—Arrangements are now being made for the first pilgrimage to the Holy Land under the auspices of the Episcopal church in America, it was announced here today. The trip will take three months from April 8, 1926, to July 8, 1926, and will combine the sight-seeing features of the regular Mediterranean trip with a visit to all of the places made famous in bible history.

The trip will be made on the Steamship Megantic, a new steamer of 16,300 tons. While the pilgrimage is under the auspices of the Episcopal church in America, the trip is open to all persons interested in a trip to the Holy Land. It will offer many unique features in that pilgrims, under the guidance of Bishop Ernest V. Shayler, of Nebraska will have an opportunity to visit many of the great scenes in the life of Christ.

A night will be spent on the star-lit waters of the Sea of Galilee, with a sail the next morning down to the ancient city of Capernaum. There will also be an open air service on the hills overlooking the lake, where Christ preached his sermon on the Mount.

A special service for the pilgrims will be held in the Cathedral at Alexandria, in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and in the Basilica at Bethlehem, built by Constantina to mark the spot where Christ was born.

Jerusalem will be reached on April 29 and five days are to be spent there and in the vicinity. Visits will be made to Bethlehem, the Jordan valley, Jericho and the Mount of Olives. Then Nazareth will be visited, with a celebration of the Eucharist at dawn on the hills overlooking the Galilee. Damascus also will be visited.

TROLLEY WAGE HEARING HAS BEEN COMPLETED

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 1—The trolley wage arbitration hearing presided over by Compensation Commissioner Charles Kleiner, came to a close here today, both the Connecticut company and its motormen and conductors agreeing to submit briefs before Dec. 14.

Conferences were held this morning and again this afternoon, the chief points at issue, aside from the wage question, being that of seniority rights and the standard nine hour day, it was said.

The operation of bus lines is another point in the proposed agreement that the Connecticut company and its employes have not been able to agree upon.

James H. Vahey, of Boston, representing the trolleymen, said in addressing the board today that there are about 200 bus drivers in the employ of the Connecticut company and since the busses came into the trolley company's service three or four years ago, there have been two groups of men operating them.

One group, Mr. Vahey said, are men who never operated trolley cars and are new in the transportation business and the other group are men who have run trolley cars at some time in the past. The question of seniority rights has therefore arisen, he said.

REV. K. B. BIRKELAND WAS FOUND DEAD IN MINNEAPOLIS

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 1—(A. P.)—The Rev. K. B. Birkeland, former president of the Augsburg Seminary board of trustees and a prominent Lutheran churchman, missing since November 24, was found dead in an apartment here today. The cause of his death, or the circumstances were not immediately determined.

He was lying fully clothed in a room where two new tables, covered with sheets and pillows, formed an improvised bier. The apartment had been rented four days before the clergyman's disappearance by a woman giving the name of Reynolds.

TWO MEN WERE KILLED BY EXPLOSION IN OIL TANK

BRAINTREE, Mass., Dec. 1.—(A. P.)—Two men were killed today, another badly burned and several firemen were overcome by smoke and gas as the result of an explosion of oil on board the American tanker Phoenix while she was unloading a cargo of petroleum at a dock in East Braintree.

Searchers found the body of one man and early tonight were still hunting in the gas-filled hold for the body of the second victim. The names of those killed had not been learned.

Captain Bengt Larson, of East Dedham was in the forward pump room with several of the crew when one or more tanks of oil caught fire and exploded. A column of smoke shot thirty feet in the air, the hatches and ventilators and a part of the forward mast were blown down. Hurry calls to Boston brought a fireboat and a "foamite" chemical boat to the scene, and the firemen and sailors managed to confine the flames to the forward part of the vessel.

Rescuers rushed to the pump room and managed to pull most of the men to safety, but a check-up showed that two had been killed in the blast. Captain Larson suffered serious burns about the face and was taken to the Quincy hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list.

The petroleum was destined for the City Service Refining company here, and for other refining companies in this vicinity and Boston. It was the second mishap to the Phoenix within a month, for early in November she reported herself out of fuel and in need of assistance, 200 miles east of Nantucket, and was towed into Narragansett Bay by a coast guard destroyer.

FITZHENRY REPLIES TO ATTACK BY SPELLACY

WATERBURY, Dec. 1.—(A. P.)—"The democrats of Connecticut are clamoring for a change in their state organization. The only way they can get this change is to go outside the present organization. It cannot come by leaving the present organization in power and shifting the nominal leadership from one organization to another. The majority of the democrats of the state want a change and the only ones seeking the removal of my candidacy yesterday were members of the present organization. I didn't see any good reason why I should resign so as to leave the machine still in power and consequently I didn't resign. If I resigned it would not constitute a compromise. It would be a clear victory for the present organization and I would be deserting the large number of democrats in the state who want a change."

This was the reply today of Comptroller Peter FitzHenry of this city to the attack made upon him by Thomas J. Spellacy in a statement given out last night.

GILPATRIC PROPERTY BROUGHT $22,350 AT AUCTION

HARTFORD, Dec. 1—(A. P.)—Property of G. Harold Gilpatric, former cashier of the Putnam National bank, and former state treasurer, located in Elmwood and on Fern street, Hartford, brought $22,350 today at auction. This money will be turned in towards the more than half a million debt of the estate of the former state treasurer.

The property at 91 Fern street, which includes a large brick house and brick garage was bought by Edward Bode for $18,750. Michael W. Delaney bought the large lot on the Newington road, which is approximately 150 by 1,250 feet, for $3,600.

On petition of Arthur E. Howard, Jr., trustee, the referee in bankruptcy ordered the property sold free of liens.

Rumania Accepts U.S. Debt Funding Offer

The Debt Aggregates $44,590,000 Principal and Accrued Interest—62 Years Contract.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—(A. P.)—The American and Rumanian debt commission today reached an agreement for funding the Rumanian debt and the arrangement, the eleventh completed, has been approved by the president. Formal signatures will be attached to the pact later in the week.

The agreement was based on $44,590,000 as against a recorded indebtedness of $46,508,000, carried by the treasury books. In arriving at the terms of the settlement, which follow the British agreement on general lines, interest accrued since the advances were made was recalculated, as has been the case with other debts, and this accounted for the reduction of the treasury's total.

Rumania was accorded lenient payments over the earlier years of the agreement, which extended for sixty-two years. While the interest rate is fixed at three per cent., for the first ten years and three and one-half per cent. thereafter—as in the settlement with Great Britain—the payments start with $20,000 next June 15, and increase at the rate of $100,000 a year until 1933, when an annual increase of $200,000 is provided until the payment of June 15, 1939, reaches $2,200,000. It was calculated by experts that the total of interest and principle which Rumania will pay in liquidating the debt will aggregate $107,000,000.

HACKED HIS 19-YEAR-OLD CHUM TO DEATH WITH AN AXE

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(A. P.)—Gordon Pirie, a pink-cheeked boy of 20 who calmly confessed early today that he had hacked his 19-year-old chum, George Nye, Jr., to death with an axe because of an "irresistible impluse," broke down tonight and weepingly admitted that the impulse was jealousy because of a woman. During the day he was arraigned in Morrisania police court and remanded without bail for hearing Friday.

The murder of young Nye was discovered Sunday night by Margaret Pirie, sister of Gordon, when she found Nye's body under her bed on returning to the apartment she shared with her brother.

A police search was immediately started for young Pirie, who was the last person known to have been with Nye. The search ended early this morning when Pirie strolled into Morrisania police station and calmly confessed that he had chopped his friend to death while the younger boy was asleep in bed.

Pirie told police that he then shoved the body under his sister's bed where it was later found and fled from the apartment. Between the time of the murder and the time when he surrendered he said that he had been riding about the city and taking a girl to the movies with money he had stolen from his chum's clothing after the murder. He said that the only motive for his act was an "irresistible impulse" which he could not explain.

His calm demeanor both during the confession and the court arraignment led District Attorney McGeehan of the Bronx to picture his crime as akin to those of Leopold and Loeb, Harrison Noel and Philip Knapp, the modern gallery of "thrill slayers." McGeehan called him the "coldest character in his experience and made a statement terming the murder a "sad commentary" on modern youth.

GOV. TRUMBULL EXPLAINS REPRIEVE FOR CHAPMAN

HARTFORD, Dec. 1.—(A. P.)—Following the receipt of several letters criticising him, and others commending him for granting a second reprieve to Gerald Chapman, Governor Trumbull declared today that it was emphatically not because he had any sympathy for the convicted slayer that he stayed the execution which was to have taken place at the state prison after midnight tonight.

"When counsel for Chapman broached to me the subject of another reprieve, for him," said the governor, "I told him that the state's attorney would have to request it before I would even consider the proposal. Mr. Alcorn was the state's chief representative in the trial of this man for first degree murder. His purpose is plainly to have Chapman pay the death penalty for the murder. In the instances of both reprieves issued by me for Chapman, the state's attorney informed me that certain court action instituted in Chapman's name could not be completed by the time set for his execution and asked me to order a delay in the execution of the death penalty."

TO TRAVEL IN STATE AND FIDDLE FOR FORD

NORWAY, Me., Dec. 1.—(A. P.)—"Mellie" (A. M.) Dunham, Maine's champion fiddler, and his wife, will travel in state to play for Henry Ford. The manufacturer, who heard of the aged man's prowess with the bow and asked him to come to Dearnborn, Mich., and fiddle for him, played benefactor, and the local Ford dealer today received two railway tickets from Norway to Detroit, with instructions to deliver them to Dunham

Not only that, but Mr. Ford enclosed a pair of parlor car tickets good from here to Montreal, and two Pullman coupons from the Canadian city to Detroit.

"Mellie" if he agrees with the plans made for him, will leave here next Monday morning and arrive in Detroit Tuesday afternoon.

When Dunham learned the good tidings he exclaimed:

"I've lived right here on this farm for seventy years, and now this has happened to me!"

PRICE OF FLOUR GOES UP 15 TO 25 CENTS A BARREL

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(A. P.)—An advance of 25 to 35 cents a barrel in the price of flour today accompanied the sharp rise in wheat prices. Quotations for spring wheat patent flour reached $9.00 to $9.25 a barrel, virtually the high level for the season and 75 cents above that of a month ago. Having resisted the rising trend in the market for several weeks, jobbers found their stocks at low ebb and bought on a fairly large scale.

Counsel Wrangling In Mitchell Trial

Counsel For Mitchell Sought to Have General Graves Removed From the Tribunal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—Scenes unparalleled even in the stormiest of its sessions to date were unfolded by the Mitchell courtmartial today with startling rapidity.

The court found it necessary three times to move behind closed doors to unravel its tangles. The first move of the sort followed a flare-up between Representative Frank R. Reid of Illinois, chief defense counsel, and Major General William S. Graves, a member of the tribunal.

Mr. Reid charged General Graves with interfering and interrupting his examination of Captain H. E. Yarnell, a navy witness testifying for the prosecution. General Graves declared he had done nothing of the kind, and in the argument that ensued, order and other semblances of peaceful procedure disappeared for the time, and the court retired to its private chamber for consultation.

No sooner had it returned and ordered the trial to continue than the second interruption developed, Mr. Reid challenging General Graves' right to continue as a member of the court. The general, he charged, had "repeatedly interfered by his conduct with my cross-examination of witnesses" and "should no longer be permitted to sit as a member of this court."

That provoked the tribunal to close the doors and move again in executive session to restore peace. General Graves kept his seat at the bench while his colleagues conferred in another room. When they returned, having voted in secret to disregard the challenge against him, he sought permission to make a statement in reply to the challenge.

Objections to such a procedure at once were raised, and again the court moved into other and cooler quarters to determine what it should do. General Graves accompanied his fellow members on this occasion and apparently heeded counsel not to disturb the already troubled waters further, for when the court returned it was announced that he had withdrawn his request to speak.

Meanwhile, however, the general had spoken loudly in defense of his right to comment on the court's procedure, expressing with emphasis belief in his ability to continue on the court and reach a "proper and impartial conclusion." He insisted that the remark he made to Colonel Blanton Winship, law member of the court, and which was overheard by Mr. Reid, was that the dignity of the tribunal would be better preserved if both counsel for the defense and the prosecution stopped their "wrangling and bickering."

Finally, when the trial got under way, Major General Robert L. Howze, president, admonished the opposing counsel to discontinue the wrangling and bickering between them and address their remarks to the court rather than to one another.

ENCOURAGING PREDICTIONS FOR BUSINESS NEXT YEAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—"Any one who sells 1926 short is going to lose money," says Samuel Vauclain, president of Baldwin Locomotive Works, who considers general business very good and looks forward confidently to the new year. The company experienced its best busines sin November for any month since February, 1923, orders having been taken for 135 steam and electric locomotives, October's total was 71.

LONDON CROWDS WELCOMED THE GERMAN DELEGATES

Disarmament Spirit Was in the Air Following the Signing of the Locarno Treaties—The Documents Were Signed in the Reception Room of the British Foreign Office With Only Three Hundred Persons Present.

LONDON, Dec. 1—Germany really got back into the European family today when Chancellor Luther and the German foreign minister, Gustav Stresemann, signed the Locarno pact.

It was a pleasant little family party in the reception room of the British foreign office, with only three hundred persons there in all, the Duke and Duchess of Italy, Chamberlain, Mrs. Stanley Baldwin and the other ladies who attended supplanting the loss which Great Britain has just suffered in the death of the Queen Mother Alexandra and which made it unadvisable to have a more ostentatious display.

But it was better so, and the London crowds welcomed the German delegates [illegible] with enthusiasm.

There was no [illegible] cheer for Russia, but the absence of the soviet government from such a European gathering was also noted informally by many of the delegates, and M. Briand expressed the hope that Russia might soon decide to enter the league of nations and speed Europe in the restoration of normal economic and political conditions.

The nations affixing their signatures and their representatives were: Great Britain, Austen Chamberlain and Stanley Baldwin; Germany, Chancellor Luther and Gustav Stresemann; Belgium, Emile Vandervelde; France, Aristide Briand; Italy, Vittorio Scialoia; Poland, Count Skrzynski; Czechoslovakia, Eduard Benes.

Only the nations signatory to the Locarno pact attended the signing; consequently the United States was not represented. But Alanson B. Houghton, it was thought, might appropriately have had a seat beside Lord D'Abernon, as they two, in the capacity of ambassadors in the German capital, had greatly influenced the German government in the negotiations which led to a compromise on the reparation problems and made possible the adoption of the Dawes plan.

The disarmament spirit was in the air and there seemed to be a general feeling that a disarmament conference must be held shortly, in order to lessen Europe's staggering military and naval burdens.

After the signing the principal delegates attended informally with Sir Austen and Lady Chamberlain at No. 11 Downing street, with Mrs. Baldwin [illegible] the occasion, and Lady Astor and a number of other prominent women were present. Later this party [illegible] to the afternoon tea given [illegible] at Buckingham palace by King George, which gave the last official approval necessary for the readmission of Germany, the prodigal son, back to the family of nations.

Then the German chancellor and Dr. Stresemann had an informal conference with M. Briand, in which they discussed at length the changed problems which will arise in the Rhineland control and the relations generally between the two nations since the Locarno pact has become a fact. Disarmament, possible reduction of the limitation of German aviation, the admission of Germany to membership in the Rhineland control commission and the evacuation of German territory by allied troops were discussed.

The conference was all-friendly, and M. Briand said at its conclusion that no decisions were reached, but that the Locarno spirit prevailed throughout.

Sir Austen and Lady Chamberlain entertained all the members of the delegations at dinner at Lancaster house tonight. The American ambassador and many other representatives of the powers not signatory to the Locarno pacts were present. The prime minister and Mrs. Baldwin will entertain the delegates at dinner tomorrow night, and most of them will leave London Thursday.

SUMMING UP IN THE RHINELANDER CASE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 1—Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for Mrs. Alice Beatrice Jones Rhinelander, whose wealthy husband is suing her for annulment of marriage, completed his summing up to the jury today. Court then adjourned until tomorrow morning, when Isaac N. Mills, chief counsel for Leonard Kip Rhinelander, the plaintiff, will commence summing up his case immediately after court convenes. He has indicated that he will speak for several hours, and opinion today was divided whether the case will go to the jury before Thursday.

Almost for the first time since the case started more than three weeks ago, the sessions today were without sensation, except for the laughter and tears, wrung, by turns, from the crowded court room by the practiced oratory of defense counsel.

Davis' summation today continued along the lines of his address yesterday. He attacked plaintiff counsel for the manner of conducting the case, and especially for reading Alice's letters into the record. Again he appealed to the white men who make up the jury to lay aside race prejudice and judge the testimony on its merits. He challenged plaintiff counsel to justify the conduct of the case.

After stating that the plaintiff had "stripped Alice of every scrap of respectability a woman loves most," Davis said that the defendant would leave the court room a wreck, "shunned alike by the white race and the black." He said the defense would not ask for a verdict to compel Rhinelander to live again with his bride. Because it was apparent that they never would live together again after what had passed in the court room. He said he had defended Alice solely that she might retain her honor, and not in the hope that she would be able to get her husband back.

Throughout the day both Alice and young Rhinelander sat unmoved by the oratory. Mrs. George Jones, mother of Alice, wept for a time when Davis referred to the action of the plaintiff in uncovering an indiscretion in her early life.

When Davis completed his summation Mr. Mills congratulated him and the two shook hands. Davis had just stated that the two things he feared most in the trial were race prejudice and Mills' oratory.

STORM CAUSED FIVE DEATHS NEAR TAMPA, FLA.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 1—(A. P.)—While the west coast of Florida was still in the grip of a receding storm, on the east coast, storm warnings had been hauled down, and work of repairing the damage done was started.

Tampa, hardest hit of Florida cities, was being swept tonight by a 30 mile wind and a drizzling rain and off the coast steamers reported to local wireless station that stiff breezes in the gulf were causing high seas.

The toll in the vicinity of Tampa stood at five known dead, four missing and 15 more or less seriously injured with the property loss expected to run into millions of dollars.

The tempest temporarily paralyzed tropical shipping, but only one steamer sent out a call for assistance. The Munson steamer "Red Bird" bound for Havana, ran into trouble in the high seas and with the shipping board steamer West Chalata standing by, made the government out at Miami and dropped anchor to await an opportunity to enter.

Three planes were swept out to sea at Daytona Beach, but no one was injured in the mishap. The planes landed there Sunday morning.

GOV. FERGUSON PLANTS ROSES AS POLITICAL POT BOILS

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 1—(A. P.)—The center of the Texas political highway-liquor controversy today gravitated slightly toward Temple, Texas, when the personality of chief interest, Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, went on a visit leaving her husband to face a turbulent situation in the capital, while courts ground out highway judgments and received the financial fruits of Attorney General Dan Moody's first highway victory.

The high spots in the situation were these:

Mrs. Ferguson suddenly left the capital, for her former home in Temple where she planted some rose bushes and did some Christmas shopping.

James E. Ferguson, the governor's husband, stated that the governor had made no formal announcement of her stand on the demand for a special session made by 50 members of the legislature.

The Travis county district court entered judgment against the American Road company, which the attorney general sued for excess profits on highway contracts. The court, in entering the judgment said that 30 cents a square yard for highway topping was "an excessive and an unreasonable price." This was the contract price awarded by the highway commission.

The American Road company presented a check for $286,025 to the clerk of the court as partial satisfaction of the judgment. Cancelled claims will constitute the remainder of the judgment.

Among Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth Star Telegram declined to accede to the governor's demand for his resignation from the board of regents of West Texas Technological college charging that the demand was "a smoke screen to divert attention from the highway revelations."

Employes of the highway department, including 1,800 road laborers were left without a payday because the highway commission could not function with only one member.

Mrs. Edith E. Wilmans, of Dallas, candidate for governor sent Governor Ferguson a message of greeting in which she said "Don't let them bluff you," she said, "Moody's hasn't fooled the public."

While the swirling cross currents rocked the ship of state, the captain was working among her flowers in the quiet town of Temple.

CUT IN LIGHTING RATES EFFECTIVE WITH NEW YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 1.—The Rockville-Willimantic Lighting Company made the announcement Tuesday of another cut in its rates to become effective January 1st, 1926. This reduction in rates comes in spite of the fact that living costs have increased 62 per cent. since 1913 and the cut in rates is the third made by the company since 1922. The new form of rates put into effect in May, 1922, allowed the use of such electrical labor saving devices as washing machines, vacuum cleaners, irons, percolators, etc., by residential customers at a reduced and remarkably low rate. The merchant benefited by better and additional lighting in his store. Tuesday, workmen of the company installed 1,000-candle power lights to replace those that have been previously installed in the arc lights along Main street. The sudden appearance of these powerful lights along the main thoroughfare, came as a gratifying surprise to the populace. Relative to the low rate as it affects the residential customer the fact that the opportunity has been appreciated is shown in a statement of figures given Tuesday by John F. Ahern, local manager and assistant secretary of the R. W. L. company. For the twelve months ending October 31 of 1923, 1924 and 1925 the following KWHs were sold at the low rate: 1923—292897 KWH, 1924—439143 KWH, 1925—577946 KWH. The 1925 figure shows an increase of 96 per cent. over 1923, or practically double the amount. The new rate, about to go into effect provides for a further step to a 3 cent rate which will be most attractive to those who may be inclined toward electrical refrigeration or cooking.

Shea, Post No. 19, American Legion, was adopted for the display of the national colors from standards on the sidewalks. INCREASE IN SIX SARLARIES VOTED BY COMMON COUNCIL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 1—The final meeting of the 1925 Common Council was held Tuesday evening, Mayor George W. Hickey presiding. The outgoing officials bade adieu to the board In addition to City Clerk James S. Donohue, three of the five aldermen present are seeking re-election, Alderman W. A. Buck, democrat, Charles H. Beebe and William E. Jackson, republicans. Others present were Aldermen Louis J. Flynn, and D. J. Laramee. Eugene B. Lewis and James J. Lee were automatically dropped from the board some time ago, upon changing their residence.

The budget for the year ensuing, totaling $179,955 and the salaries of the city officials, six of which were increased, were adopted by the board and are now subject to ratification by the citizens' special meeting. The makeup of the budget differs but slightly from that in 1925. In total it is $1,300 lower, but this fact it is explained, inasmuch as last year the $5,000 road roller was purchased and another extraordinary expense of $3,000 was incurred for repairs at the Bank street fire house. A decrease of $2,500, is made possible on the next budget on the item of interest, which is automatically reduced by that amount as a result of paying off the municipal indebtedness of $100,000. An increase of $1,000 is made in the police department, and $1,000 in the street department.

Again this year $10,000 is appropriated for furthering the worthy plan of permanent street improvement, which was started last year, with the resurfacing of Church street. Under the heading of fire truck, the appropriation is increased from $1,500 to $4,000. Other increases are $1,000 in the library appropriation, $1,000 for garbage collecting, $2,000 for tax collecting. The outstanding increase in salaries is one of $450 annually in the combined office of city clerk and treasurer. The salaries as they are in 1925 and the amount of increases are: Librarian, $900 to $1,200; assistant librarian, $520 to $780; city clerk, $900 to $1,000; city treasurer, $750 to $1,000; superintendent of public station, $1,000 to $1,200; superintendent of water works, $35 to $45 per week. This increase places that salary on a par with that of superintendent of streets, who receives $35 for that position and $10 as superintendent of sewers.

The principal business of the meeting, other than the annual financial transactions, was the adoption of a resolution authorizing County Detective William E. Jackson to conduct an investigation into the shortage in the accounts of A. J. Lariviere, city tax collector on the list of 1923. The recommendation of the committee that Willard street from Pleasant to Hayden streets be adopted by the city was accepted. On motion of Alderman Laramee, it was voted to pay the claim of $148 to Mrs. John Mulligan, of Chapman street, for injuries sustained in a fall on the sidewalk. The salary of Edward J. Moran, janitor at the Montgomery Hose company, Jackson street, was voted increased $5 weekly.

Street ordinances introduced by Alderman Flynn making Walnut street a one-way thoroughfare to Valley street going north and restoring Temple street as a one-way street going south, were adopted. On motion of Alderman Jackson City Engineer Robert E. Mitchell was authorized to cause temporary relief of the poor drainage conditions at Bridge street where the yard and basement of the Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing company were flooded in a recent storm. Adjournment was taken at 9:30 o'clock.

IN A RACE WITH A FOX JOHN BARROWS WON OUT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 1.—John Barrows, of Mansfield Center, holds the remarkable record not only of out-running but also of out-witting the proverbially sly fox. While he was working in the woods Barrows saw a red-pelted reynard glide past and visualizing the gold pieces which the fox would bring to his coffers, he gave chase. Over hill and dale the fox and Barrows raced, until finally the animal was trapped in a garage owned by Rexford Crapo. Barrows secured a gun from a neighbor and today the fine red pelt adorns the home of the agile Mansfied trapper.

JOHN M. WADHAMS TALKS ON STATE'S BIG BUSINESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 1—John M. Wadhams, of Torrington, chairman of the state board of finance, gave an instructive summary of the taxations and expenditures of the state, at the December meeting of the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night. A substantial bean and salad supper served at 6:30 o'clock by the Woman's Relief corps was followed by group singing, under the leadership of John S. Ahearn. A brief business session was held. With President A. Linn Weatherhead in charge, Secretary Channing H. Morrill read the minutes and D. D. Cavanaugh, of South Chaplin, a prominent member of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association announced the show and exhibition to be held by that organization at the state armory here and asked for support. Judge Otto B. Robinson, chairman of the entertainment committee, was then handed the gavel and he presented the speaker. Mr. Wadhams clearly defined the outstanding features of the immense problem of taxation and expenditures with which state officials have to compete.

"We can take the state of Connecticut as a corporation of 11,000 stockholders," he said. "One of the principal items is extracting taxes without allowing the taxpayer to realize what he is paying: To this end this state succeeded considerably. Connecticut spent $65,000,000 a year and $45,000,000 of which is for municipal affairs and the remainder $200,000, for transacting state business and maintenance of state institutions and departments. Real estate bears a burden of 65 per cent. of the grand total taxed. The receipt of taxes is derived from a variety of sources and aims to alleviate the burden on the individual.

The matter of taxes, however, is secondary, and more and more thought is being laid on the expenditures and how to lower these. In spite of the fact that the state is gradually taking on additional work and expenses once not incurred by townships, the expenses have not increased enormously, due to careful management. Although the margin is close the state has succeeded in being clear of debt at present. Every legislature is bringing about more centralized power to the state, although every citizen is opposed to this method, in theory. Schools, highways and the care of dependents have been placed in the charge of the state. To meet this added burden and expense the timely budget system advocated by Marcus B. Holcomb was adopted and is working out to great advantage. By allowing the state to conduct more business, much money is saved some municipalities, which were operating on an unscientific basis and had previously known of no contact of relationship between receipts and expenses.

The purpose of the state so-called budget system is to keep within the estimated receipts for the ensuing two years, in maintaining present institutions and reasonably extending new activities.

Notable items of income are taxes on corporations, known as the 2 per cent. profit tax, the gasoline tax, inheritance tax, Savings banks taxes, railroads and trolley campany's taxes, etc. The gasoline tax was adopted for the purpose of lowering the automobile registration fees, on the grounds that the man who wore out the highway was the man who burned gasoline, but by some oversight the lower fees never materialised.

The high light items under expenses are: Courts, military, education, departments, highways, institutions Connecticut Agricultural college represents an expense of $300,000 annually. Two million is spent for trunk lines, $1,000,000 for departments, in addition to fees received, $2,500,000 for education, $1,000,000 for courts, $400,000 for bovine tuberculosis work, etc."

The speaker concluded with a review of the five state penal institutions and their cost of operation. He was accorded a rising vote of thanks, at the conclusion of his talk.

The meeting adjourned at 9:43 o'clock.

JEWETT CITY

FIRST DAY OF BUS SERVICE AS AN EXPERIMENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 1—The first day for the motor coaches must have been a nerve-racking one for the motormen. Rain, snow and cold were enough to make slippery driving; but they ran fairly on schedule, most of the day. But people who had to stand out doors under these conditions and wait for the coaches, found a difference between a warm waiting room and cold, wet street corners. Eighty school children will have to wait every morning on the streets. The postoffice cannot be used as a waiting room, for it is against the law. The coaches start from the railroad stations in Norwich, Dayville, Putnam and Central Village and it would be much more for the convenience of the majority of passengers here, if the station could be a stopping place, as a waiting room in Jewett City. This would not interfere with picking up passengers all the way along the line but would be much pleasanter and safer, for many people who must patronize the coaches, especially the High school children. The academy children not only have to wait outdoors here, but reach the academy an hour before school opens. If their special coach could leave a half or three-quarters of an hour later it would be better accommodation for them they state. It takes time to adjust a new scheme always, as conditions arise unthoughtful of at first. The hourly service will be greatly appreciated.

Postmaster William T. Crumb has taken steps to enforce the following law:

Section 318 postal laws and regulations

Postoffices shall not be allowed to become a place for loiterers. Whenever necessary, postmasters should call on the civil authorities, and if they fail or refuse to keep lobby free of loiterers the office may be closed.

For a long time, especially in cold weather, the public school children have been accustomed to fill the lobby half an hour or more before school waiting until the bell rings. They make themselves a nuisance, interfering with the boxes and patrons of the office in many ways. This will not be allowed any longer. Older people have taken to making the lobby a loitering place, and lately ringing the public telephone as a joke on Central. Postmaster Crumb feels that he has been lenient to the limit, and remonstrances have been of no avail. He intends now to have the law enforced by the police, if necessary.

Mrs. Mary B. Hoxie, who has been spending the summer at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James E. Crary and visiting other relatives and friends has returned to Waterbury. Sunday, Mrs. S. F. Edmond and son, John, motored down for her, as it has been her custom to spend the winters with her daughter, Mrs. Edmond, for several years.

Names to be added to the Red Cross roll call are: Mrs. Laura Barber and Benjamin Schleifer, in Jewett City. Mr. and Mrs. Aimie Woods, George Semervsky, O. Silverlieb, H. Allen and son, Mary Kaminsky, Harry Rosenberg, Harry Greenstein, of Lisbon.

Miss Delia Finn, not Shea, was one of the attendants at the Doyle-Harvey wedding, Monday.

Strenuous rehearsing is in progress of the play which the Quinebaug Camp association is preparing to present. If it proves as good as the play they gave last year they will be assured of success.

Mrs. Annette Wilcox is spending the winter with her cousin, Mrs. Edwin Gray, at West Dennis, Mass. She has been on Cape Cod since the first of September.

The two typhoid patients in town are recovering and no new cases have developed.

met at a dance given by St. Anthony's church, and that he showed her his prospective bride's picture.

"Did you bid him good night that night?" Attorney Koletsky asked.

"Yes sir."

A little later, when her counsel asked her if she was "ever at all jealous of Carrie at this time," she replied, "I don't know why I should be."

While she was working at the department store, she testified, she was standing at Church and Chapel streets in New Haven at 11 o'clock one rainy morning, waiting for a trolley car when she saw John's car stop in front of her. Later in her testimony, she fixed the time as the last of November or first of December, 1922.

He invited her into his car, she testified and told her he would take her home. She testified that it required considerable entreaty on his part to get her to enter the machine He was eating figs, she testified, and gave her one. At the corner of Crown and Church streets, she said, he turned up Crown street, explaining that he did so "to get out of traffic." He gave her another fig, she testified, and she ate it. When they were opposite the hospital on Davenport avenue, she testified, she felt her stomach burn and her head become dizzy.

She asked him to hurry and take her home, she said.

"I'll give you some air," she testified he said, "it'll do you good."

She testified that he drove into the country, stopped and ordered her to get in the back seat. She said that a struggle ensued. "Finally I saw him put a gun to my face," she went on. "After I saw the gun I became unconscious."

"After she regained consciousness, Miss Macri testified, she threatened to tell her mother what had occurred and Bagnano replies: 'If you tell your mother I'll kill you.'"

"He said I've got my satisfaction out of you'," she testified a little later.

"Do you remember seeing the revolver again?" she was asked.

"He showed it to me while we were driving home. He said if I went home and told, he'd blow my brains out."

"During all this time what were you doing?"

"I was crying."

"He left me about half a block from the house," she testified. "Before I got out, he told me if I told my people he wouldn't let me out of the car. So I told him I'd suffer by myself."

She said she met John at Crown and Church streets about a month later and that he asked her if she had told anyone. When she said she had not, she continued, he said, "you'd better not or I'll kill you."

"He started to laugh," she went on, "I was crying."

She testified that she met him next on Congress avenue and that he wanted to give her a bottle of medicine, but she told him she would not take it. The next time he wanted to speak to her, she said, he asked her to get into his car. She testified that she refused.

"He was mad," she went on. "That was the time he stabbed me with a knife on my right side. I was just then turning around to go away. He said 'that's what you get for not doing as I said.' x x x x When I got home, I cured it myself."

She testified that she did not tell anyone about the assault until the day her baby was born.

She said that when she passed him in front of the Palace theatre after the assault, "he'd laugh at me and point me out to fellows."

During all this time, she said, she was "almost crazy."

She testified that he went to her counter at the store two or three weeks before the baby came and wanted her to meet him at eight o'clock that night, but that she refused to do so.

She testified that the next time she met him was six months after the baby came.

Owing to the slippery condition of the sidewalks and streets, Judge George E. Hinman adjourned court at 4:29. The snow which had been falling since 2 o'clock this morning turned to sleet early in the afternoon. Judge Hinman warned the jurors to exercise particular caution in getting to the court house in the morning.

The worst disappointment you can experience is disappointment in yourself.

DANIELSON

RABBIT HUNTING EASY UNDER SOME CONDITIONS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 1—Everett T. Tillinghast rates to date as the premier rabbit hunter of Windham county. If what is to be related here does not convince one of that fact, this column is open to the recounting of other unusual happenings pertaining to the art of getting bunny into the hunter's bag.

Mr. Tillinghast is not primarily a rabbit hunter. More important things than the quest of this sort of game constantly hold his attention. But he has the instinct. So when he was in a woodlot near the Mazzarelli place, two miles east of here, and a wandering dog started a big white rabbit out of a brush heap, Mr. Tillinghast was all interest. The rabbit got away on high, but had not gone far before he plunged headlong into an obstruction and was knocked half senseless and kicking. Quick to act in this emergency, Mr. Tillinghast rushed over, picked up the rabbit by the hind legs and "dinged" the furry one's head as the saying goes. This is rabbit hunting de luxe—no preparation, no bother, no shooting or anything. Just a matter of being around at the opportune time. Incidentally, it is of interest to note that white rabbits are to be found so near to Danielson.

There is nothing particularly interesting to relate about the coming of motor coach service to Danielson and all the territory hereabouts, as a substitute for trolley service. The coaches picked up the transportation service Tuesday morning where the trolleys left it off late Monday night and functioned with satisfying precision throughout the day. The coaches ran along on time, were smoothly and carefully operated and appeared to be entirely satisfying to the patrons of the service. It was noted by the patrons that the coach drivers wore the uniforms with which people here have long been familiar on employes of the Connecticut company. Approximately the same system of collecting fares prevails as was in vogue on the trolley line. The rates are the same. Riding was not particularly heavy during Tuesday. Bad weather kept many at home who otherwise might have been out on one errand or another.

The program arranged to be played here by Diggitt's Popular band, of Goodyear, is as follows: March, Canton Halifax (R. B. Hall); song, Ukelele Lady, If You Knew Susie (Kahn and Deryha); overture, Enchantress (C. W. Dalbey); song, Oh, How I Miss You Tonight, Let Me Call You Sweetheart (Benny Davis); cornet solo, Adah Polka, Joseph Diggitt; march, Columbus (Paul Lambert); song, Yes sir, That's My Zaby, Don't Bring Lulu (Kahn and Brown); overture, War songs (M. Bayer); song, Show Me The Way To Go Home (Rose Brown); march, Bill Board (J. W. Blohr). Diggitt's quartet, all members of the band, will present the vocal numbers on the program.

The football season just closed has given a variety of thrills, including the interesting one that came to a Danielson fan who tuned in on a radio set after it was pitch dark here, between five and six o'clock last Saturday evening and was amazed to get a station from which a voice was relating that ——"has the ball on the 14-yard line." Now football is not played in the east after dark—not as a general practice, in any event. Obviously, this voice was coming from a western broadcasting station in country where the sun had not yet set behind the western hills and where there is a considerable difference from the eastern standard time by which things are regulated here. Patience in listening brought the information that the game being broadcast was the Nebraska-Notre Dame contest at Lincoln.

The long-drawn-out coal strike is having an inevitable effect in Danielson, where a great quantity of wood is being used for fuel. Holders of cord wood are beginning to step up the price to the consumer.

Of interest is that fact that Judge James N. Tucker, of East Killingly, has kept a weather diary for years. He is recognized as so responsible and so accurate that there are times, as at present, when he is asked to testify in court as to the weather on some particular day long since passed.

There are inquiring souls who see a dollar long before it comes before the average vision who are wondering at what price they can buy the rails, ties, poles and overhead wires on the now abandoned lines of the Connecticut company through this territory. And others are wondering if this equipment is for sale.

The Spark Club class of the Baptist church held its Christmas sale at the church Tuesday and disposed of beautiful and useful articles, many of which will go for Christmas gifts. A supper was a feature that, in the evening, followed the sale.

The meeting of Killingly Woman's club this (Wednesday) afternoon promises to be one of the most interesting in the year's program. Miss Alice A. Kretschman of Boston, will speak on, Pottery—Old and New. The lecture is to be illustrated by an exhibit.

Don't forget the band concert at the Orpheum theatre Thursday night by Diggitt's Popular band. Splendid program, Feature picture "The Goose Woman."—adv.

Within a few days the Danielson organization that has had the matter in charge for a number of years will put out receptacles in which donations to provide Christmas cheer for the needy of Danielson may be deposited. This is one of the many good works in which charitable Danielson people delight to share each year, an expression of their sympathy for the unfortunate.

With its industrial plants uniformly busy, the town of Killingly looks forward to a prosperous Christmas season and a full winter of activity. New ngland may not be as prosperous, if one believes all that is printed, as it might be, but Killingly most certainly has a great deal for which to return thanks.

At Dayville, Patrick Riley is renovating the exterior of the LaBelle block which he purchased during the early fall season.

Colonel William Beach, father of Rex Beach, famous novelist, was at one time a resident of Danielson, living at what is known as the Waldo house on Academy street, something more than a decade ago. During the colonel's residence here his son, Rex, was a visitor with him. Colonel Beach's residence here is recalled at this time by the showing here of motion picture film based on his writings.

Mrs. Jessie Burns 73, widow of Michael Burns, died Monday at Wauregan, where members of the family have been resident for many years. Mrs. Burns was a native of Plainfield a daughter of Archibald and Margaret Tobbe Boyd. Her husband died several years ago.

Personal taxes are now due and Attorney L. A. Woisard is receiving payments daily from many who want this little account cleared up as promptly as possible.

J. Carl Witter was at Blue Hills avenue, in Hartford, to conduct an auction sale.

Arthur C. Loftus, of New Haven, was a visitor with friends in Danielson Tuesday.

December introduced itself with a little snowfall, followed by rain. The month was not so rough for an opener.

Anticipation is that the new bridge over the Assawaga river in Main street will be open for travel in about two weeks, doing away with the detour now required through Water and Franklin streets for east and west bound travel.

Deposits made in our savings department on or before December 5th, will draw interest from December 1st. The Danielson Trust company.—adv.

Final banking statements in Danielson for the year, it is now indicated, will show the continued growth of the borough's financial institutions during 1925, making these banks stronger than ever before. The growth the past ten years has been little less than amazing.

A blast from the fire alarm siren shortly before noon Tuesday had everyone set to listen for a box alarm, but nothing like that developed. There was no fire.

Six-room apartment with bath and steam heat to rent at 13 Hawkins St. Apply on the premises.—adv.

There are 19 basketball games on the schedule of the Killingly High school team for the season that will open here December 18, with the team of the Mechanicsville Boys' club furnishing the opposition.

After a lengthy layoff from business, there was a session of the town court Tuesday morning. The cases of minor interest were considered and disposed of. Judge W. Fenner Woodward presided.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Reed left Tuesday for a brief visit in New York.

Postmaster E. H. Keach is urging early mailing of Christmas packages for distant points. This is really essential in a year that promises the greatest rush ever of holiday mail.

FRANK WILLIAMS INJURED IN A PECULIAR MANNER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 1—Frank Williams, who has been employed here by John Flood, was due to be in Hartford Tuesday, to submit to an examination intended to disclose the nature of injuries he received about a fortnight ago, in a peculiar accident. Mr. Williams was engaged in operating a hydraulic jack being used to raise a boiler belonging to sawmill equipment of E. T. Tillinghast.

It would appear from what has been learned about the accident that the jack did not "mesh" as the handle was pressed down after a hard lift and flew back catching Williams under the chin and knocking him over on his back. The force of the blow Williams received was terrific. It knocked out some of his teeth and so injured his head that he has suffered the consequences ever since the happening. Just what the nature of his injuries are will be determined, it is hoped, by the examination to which he is to submit at Hartford.

PLAINFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Amadee Bouley, who have recently returned from their honeymoon trip were given a reception at the community house. Besides the large attendance of local relatives and friends there were a great many from New Bedford, Centreville, West Warwick, Jewett City, and Taftville. Dancing and an elaborate entertainment were enjoyed as were several musical numbers rendered by some of the guests. A clog dance was given by Emile Bouley, recitation by Ferdinand Bouley, piano selections by Miss Royed, violin duet by Paul and George Cayouette. The couple are residing with the bride's mother at 60 Second street. Beautiful gifts were received including cut glass, silverware, linen and other useful gifts, these being presented during the evening.

The electric trolley cars, which have been in operation continously for the past 17 years, between Central Village and Norwich, ceased running Monday night, to be supplemented by a motor coach service. The schedule for the new busses will be: Southbound 6.40 a. m., 8.40 a. m. and hourly until 8.40 p. m. and northbound 6.35 a. m. 8.35 a.m. and hourly until 8.35 p. m. The stopping place will be at the junction of Plainfield street and Railroad avenue, known locally as the top of post office hill. The schedule from Central Village will be 10 minutes earlier leaving for the south run and arriving 10 minutes later on the trip north, than the time scheduled at Plainfield.

A large bazaar is to be held this week at the Moosup Methodist church and many Plainfield people are planning to attend.

The Women's guild is planning to send a box of clothing to the Tougaloo college, Tougaloo, Miss. The articles of clothing are to be sold to the students at a low price and the money raised in this manner will be used to better the living conditions at the college. People in town are being asked to leave their marked packages at the vestry of the Congregational church.

Today (Wednesday) the Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church is to hold a regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Samuel Baldwin, to complete plans for the December sale of women's work, at which time a supper and entertainment is to be held. The Juniors of the church will hold a package social in the vestry, with special invitations to parents. A program has been planned, which will consist of reading, music and pictures. Games will be played as arranged by the committee. Frances Mathewson, Marion Wilcox and Lena Butler.

Carl Veit and George Axelson were recent visitors at Worcester, Mass., with Mr. Axelson's brother, Albert, who was formerly of Plainfield.

POTTER AGAIN NEGLECTS AND STARVES ANIMALS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 1—Henry Potter who lives just beyond the Putnam line in Woodstock is again in trouble over his animals. Neighbors of Potter complained to the authorities of the condition of a horse lying in a lot near Potter's barn. Dr. Loveland with Sergeant Laird of the Putnam police force and a constable from Woodstock made an investigation. They found the horse in such a pitiable condition, due to neglect and starvation, that the animal was immediately killed.

Potter has been under surveillance for several years because of his treatment of his animals. His last appearance in the Putnam City court was for selling milk from cows in a barn where the carcass of a cow had been allowed to remain until he was forced to remove it by officers. At that time he was treated leniently upon his promise to sell no more milk.

According to an official of the State Humane society, some action will be taken to prevent Potter from keeping any stock on his farm. At present he has a herd from ten to twelve cows which, it is claimed he mistreats. Just what action will be taken against him has not been determined.

THE OPERATORS' REFUSAL

From time to time coal strikes have been compromised with the point in view of bringing about the resumption of mining. It has been at the expense of the coal consumer. Each side has continued to get as good as it was getting before or better. The consumer has felt the pinch. Through such a policy of adjustment there has been no definite settlement, or any agreement that has insured production of coal while future disputes were being negotiated. These periodic holdups have not pleased the consumer who has paid, and paid, and paid.

The operators may not have any more tender spot in their hearts for the consumer than the miners, but when they insist upon an agreement that production of coal will not cease while adjustments are being made it must be realized that it means much to the person who depends upon anthracite for fuel and it operates against a shortage. It is a move to prevent the frequent throttling of the public in order to wring something from the operators.

Thus when the operators point out that their endeavors to obtain arbitration have been persistently turned down by the miners, and that the Pinchot proposition is a grossly unfair one, because it does not offer full arbitration and ties the hands of the board of investigation, it must be regarded as a stand in the interest of those conditions in the coal fields which give some consideration to the ones who make a market for the product—the consumers.

Naturally the operators are not going to agree to any proposition that unfairly ties the hands of those who would be called upon to deal with future disputes. Because the miners are willing to accept something which is decidedly in their favor places no blame upon the operators for not accepting it. When the operators point out that if at any time it should be found that profits were too large and wages right, that the readjustment should go toward reduced prices rather than to increased wages the coal consumer will be disposed to agree in view of what coal has been costing for a number of years.

The Pinchot proposition seems to be fair to only those who view it from the position of those who stand in a way to profit by it.

ILLEGAL ENTRANTS

For the purpose of placing a restriction upon immigration and keeping out the undesirables, this country has put up the bars to free immigration and set forth what is required of those who would enter this country. There are those who have been unable to meet the requirements and others who could not enter because the quota had been filled. This has led to the smuggling of aliens into the United States until it has gotten to the point where Secretary Davis of the department of commerce is recommending the registration or enrollment of aliens.

Such a move is needed for the good of the country, for better respect for our laws, in behalf of Americanization and as a help to better citizenship. It is pointed out that half of the 14,000,000 aliens in this country are not naturalized. Forced naturalization is impossible but the secretary points out many reasons why it would be a benefit to the individual and country if the aliens were encouraged to get in touch with things American through enrollment.

As it is now those who get across the border, those who are illegally landed on our shores and those alien seamen who leave their ships and do not return are getting into the country by breaking a law. Their first step is against a requirement which others are expected to meet and respect. Their impression is turned in the wrong direction, whether they are as a matter of fact desirable or undesirable.

If all aliens were enrolled the situation would be overcome, for as they were found out they could be deported as soon as it became apparent that smuggled aliens stood slight chance of remaining there would be less interest in such entrance. The recommended action is in the interest of a proper enforcement of the law which congress considered desirable and it deserves considerate attention from congress.

MARKING THE ROADS

Highway dangers and the menace to humanity in the public highways cannot fail to have received the recognition of those who deal with highway problems. They cry for attention in connection with the effort to provide more and better highways of travel.

In connection with this attention the American Association of State Highway Officials points out that "Probably there is no single item which shows the value of federal and state cooperation in this labor in a more vivid way than the recently approved work of the joint board composed of officials of the state highway department and the bureau of public roads in the selection of a limited system of roads to receive national numbers, so that people may travel across the continent following the same number. The approval of safety devices and directional signs has been secured in the same manner. These things would not have been done but for the governmental organizations as they now can do through the federal aid and state laws under which they operate."

It will be appreciated by those who are traveling across the country that they have been provided with such assistance. The route markers and the danger, crossing and caution signs are highly valuable. They serve an admirable purpose and should be appreciated.

But isn't there a part of this plan which ought to be adopted in every state and every town. Not all are traveling on these transcontinental highways and not all will have the benefits of these markers and signs. There are, however, great numbers who are traveling the state highways and the endeavoring by them to reach certain destinations. The main arteries of travel may be marked and those whose destination lies thereon is accommodated; but those who must take a branch road, possibly a country road to get to their destination are lost.

A little of that cooperation, which the American association refers to would be a great thing. The chance for the towns and the state to work together in this respect is wide open. It would be a great help if all cross roads and all branch roads, except those which go into woodlots and the like, were marked to indicate where they go. Someone is always seeking information about just what could be placed on a signboard.

RUMANIA PAYS

Gradually the list of nations which have not arranged to fund their debts to this country is being decreased. Rumania is the last to come to an understanding by which it will meet its obligation of $44,590,000, a small sum as war debts go and in comparison with others, but one which that country should have no difficulty in meeting out of its many resources. Financial conditions at the present time in Rumania may not be of the best but it is a rich country in natural resources and industrially.

Rumania delayed repeatedly after its debt funding commission was appointed. It was apparently influenced by France for a long time, and yet it gives evidence of having profited by what France failed to accomplish. In the latter country now there is appreciation of the mistake that was made by the French commission in failing to come to terms with this country regarding its debt, and the new cabinet is at once turning its attention to the adjustment of that matter.

Rumania no doubt reflects that sentiment in regard to its own situation and likewise improves its own position creditwise by the successful outcome of the negotiations. Thus the number of nations which have failed to come to terms is reduced by one more.

CHRISTMAS GREENS

In the appeal which is being made by the National Wild Flower Preservation society for the preservation of Christmas greens is to be recognized the concern that is manifested among those who know the situation for the saving of a great number of wild flowers which are in danger of being exterminated through the manner in which they are utilized for various purposes without regard for the supply that is available and with no thought as to the future.

It may be perfectly natural to raid the fields and hillsides of pretty flowers and attractive greens for decorative purposes. Too many do so without giving any consideration to whether their action will cause a decrease in the available amount another season. Too many are not satisfied unless they have uprooted flowers and vines and thus stopped reproduction. Too many are thinking only of the immediate objective.

For the purpose of checking such conduct and getting thought about such matter in the right channel the national society is giving thought to the prevention of the time when many of the wild flowers and much of the Christmas greenery will not be available. The effort is certainly worth while and should receive that cooperation which is being widely sought. Wasteful practices in every direction should be stopped before it is too late.

RESPONSE

The one small vacant lot in the block had been vacant so long that most people considered it part of the far end of the Woodward's beautiful place. On the other side there were the Brownes with their sunken garden and across the street a succession of homes that spelled money, bowered in beauty all summer. When suddenly a pile of foundation stone was dumped on the vacant lot and excavating began everybody asked everybody else who had bought that lot.

And when the little cottage was done and the Armonys had moved in and planted a red geranium bed in the middle of the front lawn, which is next to setting up an iron deer, and Armony innocently sat out in his shirtsleeves enjoying the cool of the evening and sometimes tipped back his chair and put up his feet against the porch rail, and when Mrs. Armony, heavy and placid, with the assistance of the stepladder, washed the outside of her windows and brought home her groceries in a black shoestring bag—well, the neighborhood felt it very deeply.

So far as it was humanly possible the women of the neighborhood simply did not see the cottage. They bore Mrs. Armony no ill-will, but it was tacitly acknowledged that it was a pity for her sake that she had not built a home in a spot where she would have found friends.

Mrs. Armony, dusting her shining oak furniture and straightening her starched lace window curtains anxiously, keeping things speckless in readiness for callers, wondered a bit. Nobody was rude to her—it was worse.

"Well, we got a nice house and a nice neighborhood." Armony would say with satisfaction when he came in late from the yard in the evening knocking the ashes from his pipe. "Huh?"

"Yeah," Mrs. Armony would agree, soberly, "it is a grand neighborhood!" She was busy thinking about their boy, who wrote that the Sunshine Sandwich Spread business was going poor and that he was working hard. She knew that John was worried and discouraged. Since he had come out of the hospital after the war he had had poor luck—and he worked so faithfully and was so good!

Each letter inclosed a bit of his salary for her and since commissions were fewer the bit had been smaller. If he failed in his job, she felt that his discouragement would be vital. So when he wrote that he would be in town demonstrating at Hone's grocery store on the second Mrs. Armony came to a resolve. For John she would do what it never would have occurred to her to do for herself.

In a fresh checked gingham dress, her hair smooth and shining, Mrs. Armony went out to call on her neighbors. She found them reading in their gardens or having luncheon on the sheltered porches, silken, leisurely, cooly impersonal, a trifle amazed when she announced herself breathlessly.

To each she said the same—would they please on next Friday go to Hone's grocery store and try the Sunshine Sandwich Spread and maybe order some? It was very good on bread to eat with tea and it was her boy who was selling it. John—at the very name something came into her honest, kindly face, shone her thick fingers trembling as they opened and shut on her clean ball of a handkerchief with a lace edge. He had been in the hospital such a long time—yes, he had been in the great war and was only 19 when he went—and she did not know what would happen to him if he failed in this business on which he had staked so much. If they would only just look at the large picture of John she had at home they would know at once what a fine boy he was. She would like to show them that picture.

Hone, the grocer, never could understand the amazing success the agent for the Sandwich Spread had the day he spent at Hone's store. It seemed as though every woman for five miles around came in, smiled at the eager and respectful young man, tasted and ordered by the dozen. They knew him right away, for there had been a procession of them dropping in at the Armony cottage to look at the picture his mother dusted off a dozen times a day in her pride. And the callers didn't notice the golden oak furniture much, they were so interested watching the glow on Mrs. Armony's face whenever she mentioned her son.

Oh, it isn't such a bad old world even if some of us do live in fifteen-room homes and some of us in little cottages with red geranium beds out in front!—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Professor Abraham Joffe, who is about to pay a visit to America, is a celebrated Russian physicist at present connected with the All-Union Academy of Natural Sciences in Leningrad. During the past decade or so the name of Professor Joffe has more than once come before the public attention in connection with interesting discoveries or inventions in the realm of science. The most recent of his reported inventions is one which will permit the accumulation of a vast quantity of electrical energy within a very small compass. A vest-pocket container, according to the claims of the inventor, can be made to hold a quantity of electrical energy sufficient to feed a powerful motorcar for a week or longer. In the course of the next year Professor Joffe hopes to achieve definite results in the application of this important discovery to industrial uses.

From Small Beginnings

John Greenleaf Whittier, the Poet of Freedom

On a Massachusetts farm in the first part of the Nineteenth Century there lived a tall, thin boy who helped his father in carrying on the farm work. In those days modern farm implements and equipment were unknown. It was hard work, and it exhausted the slender boy, but he was quiet and faithful, said nothing in the way of complaint and did his best to help his Quaker father. His eyes were bright and dark and spoke intelligence. At the little district school to which he went in the winter time when farm work did not call for him the teacher found young John Whittier a good student, and a conscientious worker. The teacher liked the boy and asked him if he wouldn't like to read a book of poems. Young Whittier eagerly assented, and took home the books—poems written by another farm boy like himself, Robert Burns. How those poems appealed to 15-year-old Whittier! In them he found the mirrored picture of a man who had lived like himself, who knew horses and sheep and country people; who knew them and loved them, and who wrote songs and poem-stories about them.

Why could he not do the same things in his Massachusetts home? It was an inspiration, and he set about the work. From day to day he read to his sister who was older than he, the poems that he had made. She, with sisterly love, found them beautiful because they were true, and one day she persuaded him to send a poem to a weekly paper that was published nearby. The editor, William Lloyd Garrison, hunted up the boy-poet, and urged him to go to school. The lad went, but he had to work hard to earn the money to pay for his board and tuition. From school young Whittier went up to Boston to work on newspapers, and a little later to work as an editor in Hartford, Conn. His strength was not sufficient for exacting indoor work and he went back to the old farm hills, where he remained until he died at 85.

Whittier's interest in public affairs was very great. He wrote so vigorously against slavery that he is called "The Poet of Freedom." He was a member of the Legislature of Massachusetts for a time and was always active in doing good. Most of all, he wrote so tenderly of the country that he became "The American Burns." His poems such as "Barbara Frietchie," and "Snow Bound" are household poems. Whittier was always the farmer and the Quaker, devoted to country life and to righteous causes.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Triumphant Above Every Shock

Mr. Editor: There are those people who think the Bible is in the same class as the Arabian Nights. My testimony is as good as lots of other—"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."—This is from our Salvation Army War Cry, Feb. 21, 1925; read it:—

Many books get out of date after 10 or 20 years, but the Bible lives on and keeps abreast of the profoundest thought of every age. Measured by its circulation, it is the most popular book in the world. Occasionally in our time a very successful book reaches a circulation of 100,000 copies, but the Bible has long since reached 500,000,000. It is therefore more popular than Homer, or Virgil, or Shakespeare, Milton, Dickens, or Carlyle—indeed than all of them combined! It has been outlawed, abused, cut to pieces, burned at the stake, yet each time when its foes thought it vanquished, the marvelous Book took a mighty leap into new life, amazing its enemies and chagrining all Hell! "In less than 100 years," said Voltaire, a couple of centuries ago, "Christianity will have been swept from existence, and will have passed into history." The hundred years passed, and so did Voltaire, and the printing press which published his prophecy was used to print the Word of God, and the very house where he lived is today packed with Bibles—a depot for "The Geneva Bible Society." The grand old Bible lifts itself in triumph after each shock as the rock emerges from the breakers when the ocean tide has spent its force! War Cry.

From one out of many who loves God and His Holy Bible.

Stories That Recall Others

Gobble-Gobble

They were gathered at the Thanksgiving table when it was noticed that Fred was doing a bit of thinking. He was devoting his whole attention to his dinner and his father asked him what he was thinking about while he was cutting his turkey.

"I was just thinking, dad, that this old bird gobbled yesterday, and I'm going to gobble today."

Sample of Civility

The rainy day prompted Jim to recall the time when it had rained intermittently for three days and three nights, so that most mortals had had quite enough of it and the well soaked earth could contain no more. Toward evening of the third day Jim boarded the car for home. As it gradually lost its patrons he was able to get a seat. It happened to be beside a tall, sour visaged man of middle age, who gazed dismally out of the window. The clouds had been lifting and Jim had scarcely seated himself when the sun broke through, and to his fellow passenger he remarked quite cheerfully, "Well, I guess it isn't going to rain any more." To which he of the sour visage replied: "It'd be a hell of a note if it didn't," and steadfastly continued to view the passing landscape. "There didn't seem to be any reply to that," declared Jim to his listeners, "so conversation was nipped in the bud, if I had any notion of trying to make any—which I didn't."

Smoking by College Girls

The question, "Shall College Girls Smoke?" has become an acute one in many of the leading colleges for women in the country, and it is one in which the public in general takes a keen interest, for what is done by the college girl has a wide-spread and determining influence on the habits of girlhood in general.

We note with surprise and disappointment that Bryn Mawr has set aside a room in each dormitory for the girls who wish to smoke. With far better judgment The Connecticut College for Women disapproves smoking altogether and Wellesley also bans it by a majority vote in the College Senate, the faculty members opposing and the student members approving. In this the faculty shows the most wisdom and gives these reasons:

"True progress demands that a college community should not follow doubtful social conventions, but should exert its influence to maintain high standards of living."

"College students should hold up before young students a conduct animated by a spirit of self-discipline rather than self-indulgence."

"No one has claimed that smoking in itself is beneficial and experiments tend to prove that the use of tobacco by late adolescents is detrimental to scholarship as well as health."

"To sanction smoking is contrary to the spirit and traditions of the college which are a valued possession of more than the present college generation."

That is an excellent and convincing presentation of the college faculty point of view, and a great many individuals would add to it the additional statements that by indulging in the practice of smoking womanhood voluntarily discards an idealism of great worth. Many of us, even though experience in life may have made us callous to many things, can never become accustomed to the depressing sight of a girl smoking. It is not a pretty one and there is nothing attractive or pleasant about it. Self-expression, independence, emancipation, whatever term is preferred, is a mighty poor exchange for the refinements of manner and personality and conduct that add so much to the delightful charms of womanhood.

We cannot sanction it. A cigarette is far more of a detraction than an adornment. The price for the "right" to its use is too great to pay.—Bristol Press.

BOZRAH SLANDER SUIT FOR $5,000 OVER BURNING OF BOTNICK STORE

Late Tuesday morning in the superior court here before Judge C. L. Avery and a jury, the trial was begun in the suit of Israel Botnick, of Bozrahville, against Nathan Gilman and his wife, Clara, also of Bozrahville, on the charge that they had slandered Botnick by saying that he had set fire to his store in Bozrahville, which was burned in the winter of 1919. Damages of $5000 are claimed.

Attorneys John H. Barnes and C. V. James are counsel for the plaintiff, C Hadlai Hull for the defendants. The jury on the case comprises: Wellington A. Miner, Frank W. Brewster, S Clinton Rogers, Norwich; Frank Ayer Preston; Samuel McDonald, Colchester; James T. Shea, Griswold; Clark H. Standish, Oscr D. Fuller, Lebanon; Christopher Hanson, Franklin; John Morrison, Sprague; Birdsey G. Palmer and George W. Hatch, Voluntown.

A general denial is made to the allegations of the complaint which are that on Dec. 8, 1919 and other dates Nathan Gilman and Clara Gilman said in the hearing of Arthur B. Chapman, Mary Master, John Wesley, Lewis S Burdick and P. Nemorsoski the following words concerning the plaintiff. "He set fire to and burned down our store and postoffice." These words, it is alleged were false and malicious and as a result has damaged the reputation of the plaintiff.

The plaintiff, Israel Botnick, was the first witness called. He said he had lived in the town of Bozrah since 1916 and had worked for ten years in the Gilman shoddy mill before he went into the store business, taking a lease from Mr. Gilman for the place he was to occupy as a store. In November, 1919, he said, there was a fire which destroyed his $2,500 stock and fixtures worth $500. Mr. Gilman conducted the postoffice in one part of the store building with a door that opened between them and was always open, he said.

Botnick said he got a telephone message telling him of the fire at his store and when he and his boy got there, the store was all on fire with nothing to be saved.

Botnick could not tell the date of the fire so that Attorney Barnes called the defendant, Mr. Gilman, to the stand to get that fixed. Mr. Gilman said it was Dec. 3, 1919.

The attorneys got into a lively legal skirmish when Botnick was recalled to the stand and was asked what Gilman had said to him on the night of the fire. The witness mentioned that Nathan Botnick was present and Attorney Hull raised objection to the testimony because Attorney Barnes had not included the name of Nathan Botnick in his more particular statement that had been filed in court. After the lawyers had argued the point, Attorney Barnes amended his more particular statement by adding the names of Nathan Botnick, Jacob Botnick, John McGrath and Jeremiah Sweeney.

The witness then said that Gilman accused him of setting fire to the store and the postoffice and said to him, "I'll see that you get no insurance and go to state prison."

The witness said he is a citizen of the United States, the father of eight children and has never been arrested in his life. The accusation by Mr. Gilman hurt his feelings and damaged his reputation and he could not go into business again because people called him "the firebug." He said he was doing a business of $500 to $600 a week before the fire and he denied that he set the fire. He said that he went to New York for about a year after the fire but his family stayed in Bozrahville.

On cross-examination, he said that his son, Nathan was the only one present on the night of the fire, who heard Gilman accuse him of setting fire to the store and postomice. Mr. Botnick said that Mrs. Gilman was not present. Mr. Botnick said that Mr. Gilman was called as a witness, when he (Botnick) was trying to get his citizen papers, as Gilman gave testimony which was not in his favor. After that Botnick said, he brought this suit. About a year and a half after his store had burned he started another store outside the village, where he now conducts a store.

Nathan Botnick, a son of the plaintiff, was next called to the stand. He gave testimony largely corroborative of what his father had said, and was followed by Jack Botnick another son of the plaintiff. He said that he was employed in a garage in Hartford at the time of the fire, but he came to Bozrah two or three days after the fire and as he was going along the main street, Mr. Gilman saw him and said, "There goes the firebug. His father burnt the store and the postoffice." That was the first time that Gilman had met him after the fire.

On cross examination he said he had worked in his father's store for several years before the fire and got $20 a week. He went to Hartford about two months before the fire and worked in a garage for $35 a week. He went to Hartford, he said, because he had a sweetheart there. She is his sweetheart yet.

Both sons denied on cross examination that their father had ever sold any liquor at the store and both said they knew of no reason why their names had not been included in the complaint drawn in the case.

John A. McGrath of Bozrah testified that he heard Mrs. Gilman say on the morning of the fire that Botnick had burned the stove. He also heard Mr. Gilman make a similar statement.

On cross examination Attorney Hull asked the witness if he had not been in the criminal superior court in September, 1912, accused of a crime. The court records were produced and an answer to the question was dropped for the time being. It was brought out that it was in 1920 when the witness heard Mr. Gilman make the statement, and the court directed that this testimony go out. The witness said that Mrs. Shipman and Mrs. Murphy were in hearing at the time Mrs. Gilman made the statement, but he did not think either was now in Bozrah.

Jeremiah Sweeney, formerly of Bozrah, now of Norwich, and foreman of the fire company, testified that the stove was about all burned by the time the firemen got there. He saw Mr. Gilman there. Gilman asked him to go down and watch Mr. Botnick's house to see if anything was taken away. The witness said he stayed till 7 o'clock in the morning.

At this point the plaintiff rested. Nathan Gilman, defendant in the suit, was first called to the stand in opening the defense. He testified he had been running a shoddy mill in Bozrah for 23 years and also owns the village. He ran the post office in the same building as the Botnick store. There was no way of getting from the store into the postoffice. The witness said he had had a dispute with Botnick over the latter selling liquor to the mill help, this happening about a year after Botnick had been in the store. The witness denied that there had been any dispute over the rent, as this had been fixed by the lease. Mr. Gilman denied that Botnick was doing $500 or $600 a week business and was sure that he did not have $2,500 stock in the store before the fire.

The testimony of Mr. Gilman was interrupted in order to put on the stand Goldstein of Colchester, living formerly in Bozrah. He knew Botnick at the time of the fire, he said, having come from the same part of Russia. About a week before the fire, the witness said he was in the Botnick store where Botnick talked of some trouble with Mr. Gilman.

At this point, Harry Nadelson was called in as interpreter. Through him the witness said he asked Botnick why he didn't settle with Mr. Gilman to which Botnick's response was "I won't have anything and he won't have anything. I'll help myself." The witness said he knew there was trouble between Botnick and Gilman but he didn't know what the trouble was.

Mr. Gilman resumed his place on the stand and testified that it was about 3 o'clock in the morning when he first knew of the fire. He lives next door to the Botnick store building. The fire was in one end of the store occupied by Botnick. The witness said he made his way into the postoffice part and got some books out of the safe.

The witness denied that he said anything to Botnick upon first arriving at the fire and denied also that he spoke to Botnick that night. He denied that he spoke to Botnick, using the words used in the complaint. He denied also that he spoke to Jacob Botnick in Bozrahville or to Nathan Botnick or John McGrath, using the words which these witnesses had testified to. He admitted that he had asked Constable Sweeney to watch the Botnick house on the night of the fire. The witness said that he had never until today in court, heard that it was claimed he had made the alleged statements to the two Botnick boys or McGrath.

On cross examination by Attorney Barnes, Mr. Gilman declared it was about 3 o'clock in the morning when he got the alarm of fire, the mill watchman having discovered it. He admitted that he had told Attorney Barnes at one time in the attorney's office that the blaze could have been put out with a pail of water when he first saw it. Asked why he didn't use the water, he said they could n't get into the store until they smashed the door in and then the blaze spread all over fast. He denied that he had taken the matter of the fire up with the insurance company and told one of the officers not to pay Botnick. What he had taken it up with the company for, he said, was to find out how much insurance Botnick carried. He admitted he had taken up the matter of the fire with the state police.

On cross examination the witness said he gave the police to quit because the manager of a Norwich wholesale house had told him they had stopped Botnick's credit because they heard that Botnick was selling liquor. A Mr. Chapman had also told him that he had bought liquor at the Botnick store. Botnick denied that he was selling liquor the witness said.

Court adjourned at 4:30 to continue the trial the next day.

DESCRIBES WORK FOR CHILDREN NOT NORMAL

The November meeting of the Primary Council was held Tuesday evening at the Broadway school with a business session, supper served at 5:30 o'clock and a talk by Miss Ethel Odgers, who is teacher of the special class at the Bishop school.

The business meeting at which routine business was transacted was in charge of Miss Jennie Congdon, the president, and teachers who had visiting days reported what they had seen in the schools in other cities. Miss Hazel Anderson was the hostess at the supper.

Following the business meeting Miss Odgers told of the work that was being accomplished by the pupils of the special class at the Bishop school and explained about the different children who are not normal. There are those who are different physically, like cripples and blind, who have no place in the ordinary school room and children with speech defects, truants, incorrigibles and children who are psychopathic cases, who should not be placed with sub-normal children, but placed in special classes. There are sub-normal, normal and super-normal children with about as many super-normal as sub-normal children in the schools. The percentage is: 15 per cent. sub-normal; 70 per cent. normal; 15 per cent. super-normal. The revised standard Terman mental test is the surest way to tell what a child's mentality is, she said.

In the special class at the Bishop school most of the training is habit, character is developed and the children are taught to do the work well enough so that they may expect a reasonable pay when they leave school. They are also taught fair play and co-operation. The majority of the work is done by hand, although as much English, writing, reading and spelling is taught as possible. Simple arithmetic, such as making change and any other figuring that they may have actual use for, is also taught. Physical exercises and folk dancing are used to develop muscular control and grace.

There are many kinds of handwork that these children can learn to do very well, the younger the children are when they enter a special class the better it is for them. Samples of the work by the children were on exhibition and these articles displayed by the children are on sale. The sale of these things help to encourage the children to realize that their work is worth something, concluded the speaker.

The children at the school do work in weaving, caning chairs, carpentry, sewing, etc.

MAN IN HOSPITAL WITH MEMORY LOSS

Suffering from lapse of memory an unidentified man picked up somewhere in Norwich by Sergt. Mathew Delaney is a patient at the Backus hospital. The man was probably picked up in Greeneville and was brought in to police headquarters about 11 o'clock on Monday night by Sergt. Delaney but could not give any information as to who he was or of his past history.

The man told the police that he thought he stayed in Providence Sunday night but could not remember where. He said he came here on a train Monday night and remembered passing Jewett City. First Selectman William S. Murray and Dr. D. D. Driscoll were called in on the case and the man was sent to the hospital. The man stated that he was a steam fitter by trade but couldn't remember for whom he worked or in what city he worked last.

There was an envelope in his pocket bearing the name of Mrs. Gertrude A. Smith, No. 206 Lynn street, Peabody, Mass. The Peabody police were called by telephone and they interviewed Mrs. Smith. She said she had a brother named Alfred Handy whose address was in Royal Oak, Mich., but when asked at the hospital if his name was Handy the man said it was not.

The man is about 5 ft. 10 inches in height, of slim build, weighs about 150 pounds, has light hair, light complexion, wears gold rimmed eye glasses, dark grey mixture suit, brown overcoat, brown hat, and is neatly dressed. He appears to be about 30 years of age.

FORWARD PASS WAS EFFECTIVE MEANS OF SCORING DURING THE PAST SEASON

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(By the Associated Press)—Development of the forward pass to a high degree of effectiveness, particularly by such outstanding teams as Dartmouth, Michigan and Princeton, has been reflected in a slight but significant upward trend in scoring power on the collegiate gridiron after marked slumps during the seasons of 1923 and 1924.

Statistics reveal that 108 elevens this year posted a total of 13,150 points in 895 games, an average of approximately 122 points for each team during the season and of 14.7 per game. While this is only two-tenths of a point higher than the average of 1924, it was considered important by football men as indicating a check in the downward trend of scoring from the average of 19 points per game in 1922 and 15.5 in 1923.

In spite of the fact that scores throughout the country have been indicative of generally improved play, the increase appears largely due to high scoring power displayed by leading aggregations. Sixteen major elevens exceeded the 200 point mark, with the powerful Washington team of the Pacific coast establishing a season's record of 459, for eleven games.

With this figure the Golden Bears have the best total since California's staggering tally of 510 in 1920. They replace as scoring champions the Alabama team of last year, which turned in 290 points, while the mark of the coast players is over 139 points better than that of Cornell, the leader in 1923. California topped the list in 1922 with 398.

Southern California, also playing eleven games, ranks second to Washington with 416, while Dartmouth, in third place with 340 points, has the best average of any team with 42.5 for eight games as compared with 41.7 for the Golden Bears.

Alabama, Columbia, Cornell, Fordham, Georgetown, Tulane, Colgate, Brown, Michigan, Holy Cross, Notre Dame, Syracuse, and Stanford were other elevens in the 300 class.

In spite of this impressive display of offensive strength, however, some notable defensive achievements were posted, chief of which has been the record of Yost's great Michigan eleven—the only team of the year whose goal line has not been crossed. Three points, representing a field goal by which Northwestern triumphed unexpectedly at 3 to 2 over the Wolverines in unfavorable weather, constituted the extent of scoring liberties permitted the opposition by Michigan.

Alabama, yielding seven points to Birmingham, was only four points above the defensive mark of Michigan, North Carolina with 17 and West Virginia with 18 points were other elevens which were seldom pushed back over their own goal lines.

There was perceptible improvement in the scoring of many of the smaller college teams, no eleven, of the field reviewed, was shut out, the low scoring niche being held by New York Aggies and Trinity with 22 points each. The fates were generally kind to the underdog, and many teams which began poorly closed with unexpected victories.

Rochester, defeated six times and limited to six points, came back to upset Alfred. Rutgers lost seven games straight, only to close with a win over N. Y. U., 7 to 6. New York Aggies, beaten five times in a row and shut out four times, closed with victory against Cooper Union, 15 to 0.

In spite of the fact that the eleven won four of its eight games, Haverford was one of two teams against which more than 300 points were made. Manhattan college, winning only one game, was scored upon more than any other outfit among those figured in the statistics, permitting 316 points—seven more than Haverford.

There was a decrease this year in the number of drawn games, thirty-three contests ending in ties compared with 44 in both 1923 and 1924. Fourteen games this season were scoreless, including a battle between Notre Dame and Penn State.

Williams and Union both had the experience of playing in three deadlocks each, the Massachusetts eleven battling Bowdoin, St. Stephens and Union to even terms. Hamilton and St. Lawrence in addition to Union were the teams which drew with Schenectady, N. Y., aggregation.

EASTERN CONN BOYS OUT FOR BASKETBALL AT C. A. C.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., Dec. 1.—With a squad of thirty-five answering Coach L. A. Alexander's first call for freshman basketball practice, prospects for a fast yearling five at the Connecticut Aggies look good this season. In their first workout today, the freshman squad made a good impression, and with several former prep and high school stars numbered among the candidates, Alexander has the material for a strong five.

This will be the third year that freshman teams have been organized at Connecticut, and the material in the present squad looks better on the whole than that reporting for the first two seasons.

High schools throughout Connecticut are represented on the yearling's squad, as well as several schools in Massachusetts. Five candidates captained their high school, or town teams.

Bernard Hewitt, former Chapman Tech player of New London, is a candidate for center. He has played four years of scholastic basketball, and is expected to put up a strong battle for a regular position. Callahan, who captained the Revere, Mass., high school five last year is also out for center, as are Dodge and Usher, both of whom played the pivot position for Windham high of Willimantic last season, Schildgren of Naugatuck and several others less experienced men.

Alexander has a wealth of material from which to pick his forecourt performers. White and Croze, who played together four years for Bristol High are working hard for forward berths. White captained the Bristol quintet last year. Leo Brewer of New London, former Chapman Tech star and captain of the New London Acme team last year is a candidate.

In the backcourt, Alexander has another large group of candidates. These include Sabagian, who captained the Worcester (Mass.) North High school last year, and a veteran for four seasons; Sullivan, who played for East Hartford High two years; Armington, regular last year on the Killingly High five of Danielson; Metcalf of West Hartford High; Calicuclo of Stratford; Williams of Willimantic; Wilson of the Springfield (Mass.) Tech High school; Squires of Booth Prep, New Haven; and others.

TAFTVILLE WINS EASILY FROM WILLIMANTIC FIVE

Before a very small crowd at Parish hall on Tuesday evening the Taftville Five won easily from the West Ends of Willimantic, 33 to 24. The local boys launched a brilliant passing game that completely bewildered the visitors who were unable to put up a consistent defense. George Coleman shared the scoring honors of the evening with Caillouitt of the visitors, Coleman caging 5 baskets and the Willimantic center 6. In the preliminary game the Celtics won another close game from the Ramblers of the West Side 38 to 32. The summary:

NEW RULES WILL SLOW UP THE BOXING GAME

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(A. P.)—The state athletic commission refused today to alter its recent decision to have fights judged by rounds won and lost instead of on points, despite a plea by referees and judges in the metropolitan area.

Voicing the opinion that the new ruling works an injustice on them, the officials told members of the commission that the change would lead to even more unsatisfactory decisions than were experienced under the old plan of judging the merits of two contestants on the basis of a complete contest, without regard to the standing by rounds.

"Supposing a six round fight, a boxer wins the first four rounds—he can then sit back and stall with assurance that he has the fight won, unless his opponent scores a knockout," pointed out one of the petitioners. "This new rule will encourage defensive fighting in the latter rounds and will tend to slow up bouts rather than improve them, while the officials will come in for much criticism."

STEAMROLLERS TO PLAY GRANGE'S TEAM AT BOSTON

BALTIC TO HAVE FAST BASKETBALL FIVE THIS YEAR

Baltic will be represented on the basketball court this year by one of the best teams that the village has produced in many moons. The team has the backing of the business men of Baltic and St. Jean's hall has been secured for the games. This hall is capable of seating 300 or 400 people with ease and fans of eastern Connecticut can expect to see some fast games this year.

The first game of the season takes place on Friday evening between the Baltic Five and the New London Leather Pushers, one of the leading fives of the Whaling City. The Baltic team will be chosen from the following: Robertaille brothers, Coady, Simineau, Red Charron, Provencher and "Rags" Swanson. These boys all played last year and acquitted themselves with credit in a large number of games. They have, in fact, been playing basketball together for the past six or seven years and now they step out as a well rounded team with a specialty of fine passwork.

BASKETBALL OFFICIALS BOARD IS FORMED AT NEW LONDON

On Tuesday evening at the New London Y. M. C. EDWARD BREWER IS ELECTED CAPTAIN OF ACADEMY 1926 FOOTBALL TEAM

Edward Brewer, class of 1927, was elected captain of the Academy football team at a meeting of the team held Tuesday afternoon. Brewer's choice for captain was unanimous and comes as a fitting climax to a season of one of the most successful teams that has represented the Academy in recent years. The selection of Brewer is especially pleasing because it confers upon him an honor that he is deserving of.

Eddie Brewer, "Radio Ed" as he is called at school, has been one of the most dependable and consistent players on the Academy team this season. Although not a spectacular player his work has been such that it has attracted favorable attention of spectators and football critics. Brewer has shown remarkable improvement as the season has progressed and now he stands out as one of the best, if not the best, linepluinging back in the Interscholastic league. Brewer's consistent ground gaining through the line has been noteworthy and it has been few times that he has failed to gain his distance when sent through the opposing defense.

His defensive game this season has been one of the outstanding features of the Academy team. His natural football sense has followed every play of the opposition and it is seldom that he is tricked and is put out by the opposing interference. His tackling has been hard and clean. One of the characteristics of Eddie's play this year has been the determined effort that he has put into his work on the gridiron. Whether it has been in practice or in a scheduled game he has played hard and well. He has assimilated the teachings of Coach Whitney in a way that marks him as a player who will go far in the gridiron game.

Brewer is popular at the Academy and his election was hailed with delight by the student body. He has every qualification for a leader and it is expected that with the groundwork laid this year Brewer will be one of the outstanding stars of the state next season.

FIRPO ANXIOUS TO FIGHT DEMPSEY AGAIN

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 1—(A. P.)—Luis Angel Firpo the Argentine heavyweight champion, is about to stage a return to the pugilistic arena in the United States.

"I will soon go back to the United States and re-enter the boxing game, ready to fight any adversary who may present himself until I have once more clinched a bout with Jack Dempsey," said Firpo.

Firpo has demonstrated frequently that he is not satisfied to stay in retirement. His fighting blood, kept at the boiling point as he remembers his ill-starred battle with Dempsey, gives him no peace. It is his ambition to have another tilt with the champion. Many times since he was beaten by Dempsey at the Polo Grounds in New York Firpo had said he was not convinced that Dempsey is a better man than he, as there were many factors in the fight which seemed to work against him. This is why, he declares, he is so anxious to mix again with the champion.

"The brave bull of the Pampas," as Firpo is known here, is utilizing most of his time in selling American automobiles and accessories. Just now, he is engaged in portraying the hero in a motion picture which is being filmed in Buenos Aires. His business activities have kept him so busy that he has rejected all offers to fight, notwithstanding tempting purses. He has received offers from the United States, Europe and Argentina. He has continued methodical training during his spare time.

According to present plans Firpo intends to leave Argentine next March. He will go first to London and take on all-comers. He then will go to Canada, where he purposes to fulfill a long-standing engagement. After Canada he will go to the United States, the country which gave him his first real start toward the pugilistic hall of fame.

Firpo's announcement that he is going to sail forth again with a will to do battle has created excellent impression among the sport devotees here. He has been requested to take part in a farewell bout here and says he is perfectly willing to do so provided a worthy opponent is found.

A despatch received in New York from Los Angeles says that Jack Dempsey is willing to give Firpo another fight with Los Angeles the battleground. Dempsey said the fight could take place before he meets Harry Wills in July. The champion added that he was ready to meet Firpo or any other opponent, as he felt that perhaps the public desired him to fight more frequently. A match in Los Angeles could be for ten rounds with a decision or twelve rounds without a decision.

BLOOD APPOINTED COACH OF ARMY BASKETBALL

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Ernest A. Blood, basketball coach of the famous Passaic, N. J., high school teams for several seasons, has been engaged as head coach for the Army basketball squad, it was announced today.

Blood developed, among others, John Roosma, Army court star, who was a student at Passaic high before coming here. Roosma is the captain of this year's Army five.

Coach Blood will report here for duty December 4. He succeeds Harry A. Fisher as head coach at West Point.

MANNING PLAYS WHOLE SEASON WITH BROKEN BONE

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Joe Manning of Springfield, Mass., captain of the Fordham university football team, played through the season with a fractured bone in his left shoulder.

Despite the injury, which occurred in scrimmage, he defeated Providence almost single-handed scoring two touchdowns in the last few minutes of play. In the contest with Georgetown, after the wound had almost healed, the same bone was fractured on the second play and he had to retire soon afterward.

Manning is captain of the basketball team for the second time, Leary, Delaney and Zakzewski of the football team also are members of the basketball squad.

Next comes Birmingham, Ala., and so across the south and southwest, to a California series starting at the huge coast league stadium in Los Angeles and lasting probably until March 1. Sporting authorities estimate Red's share of the gate receipts on the winter's tour may reach $100,000.

MULLIGAN CHALLENGES STEAMROLLERS FOR TITLE GAME

WATERBURY, Conn., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Manager George F. Mulligan of the Hartford Blues today wired a challenge to the Providence Steam Rollers for a series of two games to decide the New England professional football championship. SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Czecho-Slovakia has become famous for its women athletes.

The Winter race meeting at Miami, Fla., will get under way early in January.

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien still has a very effective right hook. It ended the flight of a robber fleeing a store.

Two backfield men have been named to lead Harvard and the Army next season, Clem Coady of the Crimson and Tiny Hewett of the soldiers.

Entries for the Saratoga stakes in next summer's meeting closed Monday.

Washington & Jefferson, which saw its stands collapse during a game this season, will use Franklin field for at least one of its contests next fall.

Chicago will come east again to meet Pennsylvania as a part of the Susquehanna celebration. The Quakers will go west in 1927 and 1928.

Cathedral College opened its basketball season Monday night by defeating Maxwell College of Brooklyn, 18 to 7.

The first international league made up of professional baseball clubs in the United States and Canada was organized in 1877.

Princeton's outlook for winter sports is said to be anything but bright, since the hockey, basketball and swimming teams must gain championships to keep pace with football.

December 9th is the date fixed for the ten-round contest between Mike Ballerino and Tod Morgan, to be held at Jack Root's club in Los Angeles.

Fifty years ago the brightest stars in the billiard firmament were William Sexton, George F. Slosson, A. P. Rudolphe, Albert Garnier, and the two Dion brothers.

Judging by the suspicious manner in which winter racing has been inaugurated at New Orleans and Tia Juana the sport seems booked up for a prosperous season.

A proposal is under consideration at St. John, N. B., to hold a big bonspiel in connection with the international speed skating championships to be held there during the latter part of January.

The action of Northwestern University in surrounding all claim to the "Big Ten" football championship in favor of Michigan will certainly go down in gridiron history as "a splendid example of sportsmanship."

The next championship meet of the Athletic Conference of American College Women is to be held at Cornell University in 1927. The national meets are held once in every three years, with sectional meets in the intervening years.

The Georgia-Florida Golf league, made up of Moultrie, Valdosta, Bainbridge, Quitman and Thomasville in Georgia and Tallahassee, Florida, has the distinction of being the oldest regularly organized "golf league" in the United States.

Jacobson, Williams and Tobin remain in the .300 class of hitters in the American League. The trio has been outstanding for its accomplishments with the bat for some years but this season Tobin just managed to continue the record with a mark of .301.

The custom of picking All-American football teams, in the words of the Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily, "is the last stage of that cheap aggrandizement through newspaper publicity which tends to create in students' minds a false sense of values."

Out of the confusion of one of the indecisive football seasons on record the task of picking the champions and ranking the elevens in different sections of the country has proved to be anything but a happy, joyous parlor amusement.

Syracuse, the winner of this year's event, is the only college besides Cornell which has won more than one eastern intercollegiate cross-country championship. It has had four winning teams. Cornell has won the premier honors 17 times, including a run of ten straight victories.

With the annual meetings of the two major leagues close at hand, the baseball fans have their ears to the ground awaiting some news of interest. It is regarded as not improbable that some important trades may be put through at the conclaves of the club magnates, as it is known that several star players are anxious to change their club affiliations and it is possible the magnates may find some way of accommodating them.

NEW REGULATIONS FOR SACRAMENTAL WINE ISSUED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—(A. P.)—The treasury tonight promulgated its new regulations governing the withdrawal and distribution of wine for sacramental or religious purposes and Assistant Secretary Andrews expressed the belief that they would bring about a sharp reduction in the quantity released from government bond.

The regulations, intended to stop leaks of sacramental wines into illegal channels, fixed a maximum of one gallon a year for each adult member of a family, with five gallons the limit for a family living together, and also placed upon the rabbi or minister entitled to dispense the wine responsibility for knowing that it will be delivered to persons entitled to receive it.

WOMAN CHARGED WITH HAVING THREE HUSBANDS

HARTFORD, Dec. 1—(A. P.)—Three husbands were charged up to Mary Nebo, alias Mary Howard, when her third husband asked for a divorce from her in the superior court today.

Marriage certificates, corroborated by the testimony of Mrs. Nebo's sister, Ellen Collins, of Kensington, showed that she had been married as follows:

On March 16, 1909 she was married to William Penfield, of Portland.

On September 5, 1911, she was married to Charles F. Walker, of Vernon.

On October 6, 1916, she was married to Carl Nebo, of New Britain.

Nebo was not given a divorce because Judge Marvin, who heard the case, said he should have asked for an annulment rather than a divorce and gave him permission to amend his papers. Nebo was represented by Neis and Nair. Mrs. Nebo, who did not appear, was represented by Dennis P. O'Connor.

His satanical majesty never wearies of jollying people who boast of being self-made.

WESTERLY

SALE OF CHRISTMAS STAMPS IN CHARGE OF MISS DAMEREL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Dec. 1. — Beginning Tuesday the sale started of the anti-tuberculosis seals or Christmas stamps, "Merry Christmas and Good Health," following the placing of thousands of the stamps in the public schools of Westerly for disposal by the school children under the supervision of their teachers. Miss Mary H. Dameral is director of the stamp distribution this year. For assistants she has named Mrs. Charles S. Fowler, Mrs. Wilfred B. Utter, Mrs. Thomas Moore, Miss Eleanor Moore, Mrs. David Novogrod and Miss Mary C. Wilcox. Points of distribution have been established at the Westerly Memorial and Public Library, Clark's Music store and on next week, as in years past, they can be obtained from a desk in the lobby of Westerly post office.

Connecticut travelers who drive through Westerly or elsewhere in Rhode Island will do well to heed the following:

A warning to drivers of horse-drawn vehicles and bicyclists who fail to light their vehicles properly is sounded in a statement issued Tuesday by the Rhode Island Mounted Police respecting the lighting of vehicles.

The statement follows:

"The department wishes to call attention to the fact that days of fair weather go by with few or no motor accidents reported, but that as soon as rain, fog and wet pavements come the troopers are called for duty at accident after accident. Every driver of a motor vehicle may well bear this in mind, as he goes out to drive on wet pavements.

"Attention should also be directed to the fact that some accidents have occurred through neglect to show light on horse drawn vehicles. Section 16, Chapter 99, of the General Laws, provides that vehicles, other than motor vehicles, shall carry one or more lights, visible both front and rear when on the public highway between one hour after sunset and one hour before sunrise.

"Protection of the driving public requires the enforcement of this law by prosecution in case of its violation."

The death of Charles Forest Anderson, 73, a resident of Westerly occurred Tuesday morning at his home, 98 Oak street, after an illness of about three months. He was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, May 22, 1852. He came to Westerly when about 21. On Feb. 24, 1875, he was united in marriage with Mary Anna Norman of this town, who survives him. He was a paving cutter and worked for many years at local quarries. For the past eight years he was employed at the Bradford Dyeing association and gave up work there Aug. 25 because of ill health. Besides being a member of Franklin lodge, No. 30, F. and A. M., which he joined over 50 years ago, he was a member of Granite council, No. 17, Royal Arcanum. He was a member of the Broad Street Christian church.

Besides his wife he is survived by three children, John Forest Anderson of Kearney, N. J., Mrs. John Nichols of Westerly, and Charles Denison Anderson of Brooklyn, a brother John C. Anderson of Westerly, a sister, Mrs. Amos Brewer of Westerly, and three grandchildren.

A very interesting address was given by the Rev. Father Vincent, chaplain of th ecircle, followed by remarks by State Deputy Mary Condon, also Sister Gallant, regent of Nina council of Stonington, and Past Regent Sister Mary Farrell.

A pleasing musical programme was rendered by Sophia Canavan and Rose Bannon, after which chicken salad, rolls, pickles, ice cream, cake and coffee was served.

D. Alva Crandall of Hopkinton sold to Victor Gervasini of Bradford, a tract of land on th enorth side of the freight yard at Bradford, R. I., with right of way over a footpath to the same.

In the interests of the American Society of the Red Cross and for the Westerly chapter, Samuel H. Davis of Westerly spoke from the platform of the Central theatre on West Broad street, Pawcatuck, Monday evening, preceding the regular programme of moving pictures. Mr. Davis told of the society's activities in Rhode Island, when he recalled the aid furnished by the Red Cross to the sufferers in the steamboat Mackinac disaster in Newport harbor, where the craft blew up last August, injuring many of the passengers and crew. In Westerly, said Mr. Davis, Executive Secretary Miss Lucy M. Crowley of the Westerly chapter of the American Red Cross, is daily doing very efficient work in caring for local and needy cases. At the present time the wants of ex-service men have received much consideration. Following Mr. Davis' remarks, James M. Pendleton, Thomas McKenzie and Lewis Stanton passed through the large audience and took up a collection for the Red Cross which amounted to over $42.

Miss Crowley recently expressed her appreciation of results obtained from her notice printed in The Bulletin that wool for war-time knitters to make into sweaters could be obtained at the Westerly chapter headquarters; she stated that requests have come to her from many distant points. The sweaters were to be sent to former soldiers.

An amazing shaving cream

Palmolive Shaving Cream, as you know, is a unique creation—an amazing shaving cream.

Men have welcomed it as they have never welcomed anything in this field. Millions have changed from old-type shaving creams. 80% of the men who use it were won from rival makes. Palmolive Shaving Cream, in a few years, has become the leader of the world.

5 Unique Features

1—It multiplies itself in lather 250 times.
2—It softens the beard in one minute.
3—The lather maintains its creamy fullness for 10 minutes on the face.
4—Extra-strong bubbles that support the hairs for cutting, where weak bubbles let them fall down.
5—Olive and palm oil content has a lotion-like effect on the skin.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peters Sees the Builders at Work

Most things have a way of being Better understood for seeing.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit has a wholesome respect for the soft-footedness of Yowler the Bob Cat, together with a great fear of that usually hungry person. So, when Peter suspects that Yowler is about, he has a habit of lying low, as the saying is.

"If you know where an enemy isn't, but don't know where he is, it is wisest to stay in the former place," says Peter. "It is the safest thing to do."

So Peter remained all night close to the hollow log in the alder swamp near the place where a new dam had been begun. He not only remained all night, but continued to remain after jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun had begun his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky. Little Mrs. Peter would have to get along by herself as best she could over in the dear Old Briar-patch that day. Truth to tell, she could get along very nicely without Peter. It wouldn't have flattered Peter at all to have known how very nicely she could get along without him. But the fact is, Peter did not dare leave that hollow log. Not even after daylight did he dare leave, for then, though he did not fear Yowler so much, he did fear Reddy Fox. A wandering Merry Little Breeze had brought to him the scent of Reddy, whereby he knew that Reddy was somewhere near.

However, as you so well know, Peter isn't one to waste much time worrying over such a matter as not being able to get home to the dear Old Briar-patch on time. It was enough for him to know that he was safe where he was. It was a good place to take a nap in, and after all there was no particular reason why he shouldn't remain there. So Peter crept inside the hollow log for a nap.

It was quite late in the morning when Peter was awakened. At first he couldn't think what had awakened him. He had a feeling that it was a noise of some kind. So he almost held his breath as he listened with all his might. At first he heard nothing unusual. Then he heard the sound of something being dragged right past that old log in which he was hidden. Very cautiously Peter peeped out. Paddy the Beaver was dragging a freshly cut young alder over to that newly begun dam. Peter almost doubted his eyes. There he had been all the night before watching and waiting for Paddy, and Paddy hadn't appeared at all. Now, here in broad daylight, was Paddy working as only he or a member of his family can work.

Peter poked his head out. There was the sound of another small alder falling. He looked in the direction of the sound and there he saw Mrs. Paddy. A few minutes later he discovered one of the young beavers dragging some brush. Peter scrambled out of that hollow log. "Hi, Paddy!" he cried. "What are you doing over here in broad daylight?"

"Hi, Paddy!" he cried. "What are you doing over here in broad daylight?"

Paddy, having placed the young alder on the new dam just to suit him, and seen to it that it was firmly held, grinned at Peter. "I might ask the same thing of you, Peter Rabbit," said he.

Peter grinned. "That is true," said he. "I am here because I didn't dare go home. I was here all night, and when light came I thought the wisest thing and the safest thing to do would be to stay right here, so here I am. But I thought you worked only at night. You didn't work last night. At least you didn't work over here, for I was keeping watch. Why didn't you? And why are you here in daylight when you should be at home?"

"Why should I be at home?" Paddy asked.

"Well, because you should," replied Peter rather lamely. It was, you will admit, no answer at all.

"Why should I?" persisted Paddy.

"Because you're afraid to be out in the daytime. At least that is what I always have understood," replied Peter.

Paddy chuckled. "A lot of people understand the same thing," said he. "Perhaps it is just as well they do. Some folks have an idea that we Beavers cannot see very well in daylight and that is why we work at night. I hope they will keep on thinking so. A mistake like that is a good thing for us, for it makes it easier to get our work done. We can see just as well in daylight as at night, and we like to work by day, when there are none of our worst enemies about, those two-legged creatures called men. It is to keep out of their sight that we work so much at night. Did you see Yowler the Bob Cat last night?"

POETRY

New England to a Transit Lover

The gray November streams is still;
The russet woods you used to know
Await upon their tranquil hill
The silent promise of the snow;
And you whose younger pulses beat
At my shy favors, dear and few
Have gone your later lovers to meet.
Am I not still enough for you?

Far in the country of the sun,
Where never winter tempest blows,
Quicker your blood has learned to run
In stirs of never-fading roses;
The gardens of your newer love,
Beyond their walls of mountain bue,
Lie fair her magic seas above.

But am I not enough for you?
Not one alone, nor two nor three,
But many a man and not in vain,
Content with hardness and with me
Has made his loss his endless gain;
Has better loved one ardent day
Close to my heart lived madly through
Than sluggish ages far away.
Is not that day enough for you?

I gave you life and gave you breath;
I spun the thread you waste today;
Why grudge a year or two of death
If what I give I take away?
Choose if you will the palm and vine,
Leave me for all the South can do,
Yet I am yours and you are mine,
And is that not enough for you?

—Edward E. Hale.

Gifts

I lift my head when taking gifts from you;
This lace spun of a convent's quiet art,
Persian enamels of disturbing blue,
Strange little stones that goldsmiths set apart,
Fruits you have chosen for their tropic hue,—
And I accept them, dear, with all my heart.

But could you never think to come to me
Bearing the witless gifts I'd treasure so?
A bit of glass smooth-polished by the sea,
Milkweed at night, with fire-flies aglow,
Oh, bring me apples from some twisted tree,
Or just a handful of new-fallen snow!

—By Cornelia Otis Skinner in Scribner's.

An Old-Fashioned Beauty Recipe

The old-time application of Buttermilk and Cream to whiten and preserve the skin and remove harsh little wrinkles and ugly sallowness is grandmother's recipe and women throughout the country are again using it to ensure a beautiful complexion and snow-white hands and arms.

GUS OLSEN IS FATALLY INJURED IN FALL FROM NEW LONDON VERANDA

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 1—Gus Olsen, about 40, residing at 12 Pearl street, died at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital late this afternoon as a result of injuries he sustained last night when he fell from the rear veranda of the residence of Mrs. Emily Chesbro, 6 Union street, whose apartment Olsen was endeavoring to reach when he fell a distance of about 20 feet to the ground.

Olsen, who had been employed some time at the plant of the New London Ship & Engine company, engaged in a quarrel with his foreman Monday and quit work. He was about the city later in the day drinking and last night about 9 o'clock he went to the Union street house, a three story brick block, formerly known as the Mussell block, for the purpose of visiting Mrs. Chesbro, a widow. Olsen reached the flight of steps leading from the north side of the structure to the basement, and then proceeded to the rear of the house where he ascended the stairs leading to the apartments above. He reached the veranda in safety, but in moving about undoubtedly lost his balance and fell against the railing with such force as to cause his body to be precipitated over the rail, for a few minutes after he was seen to enter the yard his limp body was found on the frozen ground below by a young girl residing in the block. The girl made known her find and when assistance reached Olsen he declared that he had fallen from the veranda. That he was seriously injured was plain and medical assistance being summoned, Olsen was ordered taken to the hospital. His condition at the institution was recognized as serious. Olsen lingered until shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon, when he expired.

Olsen had undoubtedly fallen before reaching the veranda for his hat was found in the yard near the stone steps which he had descended in order to reach the yard.

When his body was found a pint of liquor was found in one of his pockets. At his lodging place it was stated that Olsen had been drinking during the day, but that he had planned to go to his work.

The funeral of Grace Feeley, wife of John S. Brown, 36 Howard street, was held this morning with services at 9 o'clock, at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, attended by a large gathering of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. At the conclusion of the mass Edward F. Murray sang "At the Foot of the Cross." The bearers were Arthur Feeley, Dennis Keenan, George Hendry, James Feeley, John McLaughlin and Francis Keenan. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Annie Sherb has sold a house and lot, 3-5 Colt street, to Bertram Bruce.

Frederick N. Elliott has sold to Levi Q. Raymond a building lot on Raymond street.

William D. and Harriet Seagrave have sold the dwelling, 7 Konomoc street, to Samuel R. and Hazel C. Rogers.

William H. Slocum has sold a parcel of land on Dell avenue to Levi Q. Raymond.

Frank H. Comstock has sold a building lot on Williams street to Raymond H. Stearns.

The New London police today were requested by the Hartford authorities to be on the lookout for Albert James R McLeary, 15, who ran away from Hartford Nov. 12, as it was believed that the youth might come to this city.

Mrs. Clara Crandall, of Gales Ferry, and Thomas Crocker, 3 Peninsula avenue, Ocean Beach, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

New London got a pretty good drenching today for the rainfall was incessant from mid-forenoon. The storm was of tropical origin and from the northeast rain was sent to this section in abundant quantity. The reservoirs did not need it, but the claim is made that the streams and brooks hereabouts were by no means full, up to the beginning of the storm today.

Salvatore DiMaggio, 435 Montauk avenue, is confined to his home seriously ill. Mr. DiMaggio, who is about 6, lost his wife by death about two weeks ago and since that time his health has noticeably declined.

Arthur Page and Carl Albano each paid a fine, for violation of traffic rules.

There was some lively boxing in a match at the base this evening that attracted many from this city.

Councilor James A. May, the youngest member of the council in years as well as in length of service, seems to be making business for the older and more seasoned members. He has displayed the courage of conviction in his acts and his words that commends him to the confidence of the people. He is aggressive and his ideas are constructive, and if he is followed he will prove to have a conception of matters that is admirable. With some advice from older heads Mr. May will prove to be an able member of the city government, in fact one of its ablest members.

The idea of extending Green street through to Tilly street is getting an endorsement that it did not receive at the beginning of the agitation for this improvement to relieve Bank and State streets of the congestion of automobile travel. The city council is understood to be giving the matter the attention it deserves and in a short time will bring the matter forward in a form that will make it ready for action. Washington street must sooner or later be treated in the same way for in these two streets lies the key to the whole situation for the relief of Bank and State streets. A map of the city discloses how easy of accomplishment would be the whole matter and that map has been consulted by thoughtful people since the subject was agitated, a short time ago. The expense would be so small in comparison with what the widening of Bank street would be that the opening of Green street and Washington is favored by all who give the subject even the most cursory consideration.

Miss Hazel Fairbanks of Bank street was admitted to Lawrence hospital today as a medical patient. Miss Fairbanks will undergo an operation for appendicitis.

James F. O'Leary has returned to New London and has resumed the management of his business, having spent two months at the farm of his brother, Patrick J. O'Leary in Manchester.

Nameaug Engine company is to hold a fair this year for the first time in its seventy-five years of existence. It is easy to guess what the old-time members of that organization would say if they were here to see the company arranging for a fair in order to increase its treasury funds.

Work has been started on excavation that will bring a new building to the lot on Bank street so long occupied by Simon Siebler as a shoemaker's shop. The change will wipe out the building now used as a Firemen's lunch. J. W. Miller, was the first owner of that lunching place. He found time to contribute to the newspapers, while he was there and brought some quaint sayings into the articles of which he was the author.

The rain of today has left many of the sidewalks in a slippery condition because of the mud that is tracked upon them and the oil and grease brought to the walks by feet that go over the crossings. If the city should take a notion to apply the hose to the walks, now that there is such an abundance of water, the work would be appreciated by everyone.

Lake's Pond, which furnishes New London its water supply is full to overflowing again, the rain of today having added largely to the volume of water in the lake. The abundance of water now in storage makes certain that Miller's pond will not be bought by the city the present year, though it is by no means certain that Miller's will not be acquired later. Certain it is, the pond will never be possible for the city to acquire at less cost than at present, and its acquisition would make a shortage of water for the city out of the range of possibilities for many years to come.

The contract for the operation of the ferryboat Mohican between New London and Groton was signed this afternoon when the lessees, Captain George Crandall and David Sheehan affixed their signatures to the instrument at the municipal building as did City Manager William A. Holt representing the city of New London and Selectmen Whaley, Marquardt and Latham, representing the town of Groton. The lessees will be the city of New London paying $4750 during the year and the town of Groton will also contribute its proportionate share for the operation of the boat.

Peter Bernitsky, 68 Cedar Grove avenue complained Sunday to the police because of youths smashing electric light bulbs used for illuminating Cedar Grove avenue and furnished the authorities with the names of two of the alleged mischief-makers. Today the annoyance was more than Bernitsky could stand for this afternoon his little daughter, about 6, while in the vicinity of her home, was set upon by four of the youths who have been annoying Bernitsky and who beat the child so terribly that when she reached her home, Mrs. Bernitsky was compelled to summon a physician to dress the wounds. The child's face and body was a mass of bruises. Shortly after 4 o'clock Sergeant Samuel Hick went to the home of the child and from her ascertained the identity of some of the boys who had attacked her and from those youths Sergeant Hick was able to determine the identity of the others. Sergeant Hick notified the parents of the several youths to cause the boys to appear at the police station tomorrow morning for appearance in the police court.

Mrs. Nelson H. Bliven is confined to her residence, Willetts avenue, on account of illness.

Mrs. B. W. Nichols has returned to her home in Hartford, having spent a fortnight as the guest of Levi Q. Raymond and family of Montauk avenue.

FLOYD MITCHELL APPEALS AND FURNISHED BOND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 1—Floyd Mitchell was born with a full share of good luck coming to him. He is said to have fired two shots from a revolver that carried .45 calibre shells loaded with powder and leaden bullets, at Ben Hankins, a sporty Hebrew of immaculate dress, last Thursday morning at 7:30, after a night at stud poker, and not to have hit the mark. Mitchell was charged with assault to kill and was in the police court this morning. After a hearing of the testimony he escaped with a fine of $200 and was ordered to serve a term of six months in the county jail at New London. Hankins' testimony was of the slipperiest sort. He couldn't remember what he had related to Police Sergeants Smith and Cavanaugh, just after the occurrence, and what he didn't know piled up above what he was certain of. He would not say whether he was inside the outer door of the Mitchell place when the shots were fired, though he did admit that he looked up the stairway and saw Mitchell standing there with a gun in his hand. There was so much that Hankins was uncertain about that the case did not go the limit.

Jim Suggs, colored and Pinkey Burns and his brother were the most positive of the witnesses, but they were not able to tell of the actual shooting. They didn't see it. They saw Mitchell get up from the poker table and go to a closet and later heard the shots and Jack Halpern saw the gun in the hands of Mitchell. There was a dispute over the size of a pot which represented the money at stake in the poker game, when Pinkey Burns, a pugilist, had the second best hand and he wanted what was coming to him, Hankins, the sport, spoke to Pinkey in Yiddish, telling him he should have the money. This angered Mitchell so he told Hankins that he must leave the place. He ordered him to "keep out of the pot," and soon was on his feet and on the way to get what proved to be a gun. Hankins was advised to get out and he accepted that advice as wise, so he left. Then was the time, it was represented, that Mitchell fired the shots at Hankins, while he was in the hallway trying to get to the street. "Rattlesnake Pete" consoled Hankins by telling him, "you sure was a lucky man." Halpern admitted that Rattlesnake was a philosopher and wanted to shake hands with himself on his good fortune. It is possible that if he went into a poker game then with that sort of luck he might have come out a winner and have escaped the experience he had.

After it became apparent that Hankins was disposed to conceal facts Judge Prince ordered a recess and held a conference with the attorneys in the case. Then the court decided that the charge should be amended and that Mitchell should be informed against for assault. This was done and he was found guilty and judgment rendered as stated. Mitchell appealed from the judgment and gave a bond of $2,500 for appearance in the common pleas court.

Seven men who were in the Mitchell place when the trouble occurred were held in bonds of $250 each for appearance to testify when the case gets before Judge Waller. They are all at liberty as they secured bonds. They are William McKee, Rattlesnake Pete Charles Smoky, Enrique Blanco, Jim Suggs, George Wesley, Charles Nathan and Ben Hankins, alias Hoffman.

Among the drunks prosecuted today were a sailor and a soldier, the latter a fresh Johnny who undertook to kid the police over the telephone. An officer from the command under which the soldier is serving appealed for him, on the ground that the fellow received but $21 a month and could not pay a fine. He was due for discipline at his station. He was permitted to return to the army. The sailor asked for leniency, on the score that he was married and had no means. He was turned over to the steamer Ericsson.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Grotto Circus Something New

An enthusiastic meeting of the committee in charge of the circus and freak city to be put on at the armory, next week, was held Sunday afternoon at Nemrod Grotto hall. All committees were present, also Fred H. Graves and Mrs. E. Stone, who are managers of this circus and freak city and are assisting the Norwich prophets in putting on this gigantic show. Everything points toward a highly successful affair this coming week.

By next Monday night, December 7, the armory on McKinley avenue will be transformed into one big circus lot. All the sideshow tents, concession booths, ticket offices, etc., will have been put in place and the barkers and other circus attendants will receive their final instructions from Manager Graves.

A. E. FOWLER
Chairman Advertising Committee

The show will open at 2 and close at 11, affording all patrons of the big show, three solid hours of entertainment.

A glance over the program will convince the reader that it will be a rip tearing circus. There will be freaks galore, varying from the "bearded lady," the "rubber skin man," the "human question mark" half man, half beast, "Ko Ko, the bird girl," and "Zip," the famous "What-is-it", of the historic collection of the late P. T. Barnum.

Every freak is a bona-fide freak and oddity of nature, not some local individual playing the role. There are 18 freaks in all and every one is positively original.

The program also calls for the staging of vaudeville shows, featuring three stellar acts. There will be the usual concessions found at any circus, nothing has been eliminated which tends to make it a big show. Schwartz Bros. has kindly loaned the use of one of their large show windows for the exhibition of "Neva" the sleeping beauty. This young lady who is a puzzle to physicians will be on exhibition next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, Dec. 7, 8, 9, 10 in Schwartz Bros. window and at the armory in the evenings.

There will be a big street parade the opening night. The line of march will be published later.

Admission to this great circus is only a dime, tickets may be had from any Nemrod prophet or at the armory on McKinley avenue, December 7, 8, 9, 10. Doors open 7:30, show starts 8 o'clock sharp.

BENJ. F. ROGERS, DEAD AT 88, WAS PIONEER ICE DEALER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 1—Benjamin F. Rogers, 88, one of the oldest ice dealers and best known citizens of New London, died today at his residence, 356 Williams street, from infirmities attending his advanced years. Mr. Rogers had been in failing health two years or more. He is survived by his wife, a son, Philip A. Rogers, a half-brother, Albert W. Rogers, both of this city and a niece, Mrs. G. H. Lyttle of Methuen, Mass. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, being one of its oldest members and had served the church in various capacities. Mr. Rogers was born in New London May 19, 1837, the son of the late President M. and Rebecca Hancock Rogers. He and his half-brother, Albert W. Rogers conducted for many years a wholesale ice business and amassed a small fortune. During the years that the Messrs. Rogers were in the ice business they wned a pond on Rogers street, which still bears the name of Rogers pond. Also a large pond that formerly existed on the block bounded by Jefferson Garfield, Lincoln and Connecticut avenues and which is now used as a residential and business site, the water having been drawn from the pond and made soil placed there.

ABRAHAM LEVINE'S CAR SAID TO HAVE BUMPED TAXI

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 1—Harold Taylor, proprietor of the Lyceum Taxi company, complained to the police late this afternoon that the driver of an automobile bearing Connecticut registration, 33928 collided with a taxicab, driven by Clifford Shields, on Broad street earlier in the day and that the taxicab was damaged. According to Taylor his driver requested the operator of the colliding car to reveal his identity, but the request was denied and the colliding driver operated his machine away without revealing his identity. The New London police ascertained that the colliding car is registered in the name of Abraham Levine, 13 Julian street Norwich and the police of that city were requested to order the driver of the auto to appear in the police court here tomorrow morning and answer to a charge of evasion of responsibility. It is understood that the colliding car was operated by Levine's brother, Samuel Levine, formerly of New London, who is now making his home in Norwich.

Connecticut College Concert

Those who are fortunate enough to attend the second of the current season's musical offerings by Connecticut college at the New London state armory next Monday night, will witness and listen to the greatest presentation of pianoforte music ever given in this locality. Harold Bauer and Ossip Gabrilowitsch are each tremendous drawing cards when playing singly. Together, in the recital for two pianos, playing music composed or arranged to be played on two pianos simultaneously, they will surely draw a capacity audience.

Broadway Theatre

The last half of this week will bring to the Broadway Theatre, the funniest comedy quartette that has ever appeared in this city. If there ever was an act worth raving about it will be Brews-Fitz & Murphy Bros in "Just in Fun." Fun is provided in abundance with a laught in every line of their patter and their songs are sung with humorous intent.

As a reminder there will be four other Keith acts worth talking about.

Romance and thrills abound in "The Fighting Cub," Phil Goldstone's melodrama of newspaper life which comes to the Broadway theatre on Thursday as the screen feature.

The picture is one that provides a wealth of excitement, with the story woven around the exploits of a dashing young reporter who discovers and captures a band of gem thieves after the latter had eluded the police for many months. The youth is materially aided by the city editor of the paper and the two battle every obstacle placed in their path, and finally secure a scoop for the paper.

An exceptionally fine cast has been assembled for "The Fighting Cub," headed by Pat O'Malley, Mary Carr, Wesley Barry, and Mildred Harris. The balance of prominent players include George Fawcett, Walter Long, Ann May, Stuart Holmes, Otto Lederer and George Kuwa.

Bread Theatre

One of the world's most famous automobile race tracks—the Altoona Speedway—was turned into a motion picture location during the filming of the most stirring scenes in First National's "The Pace That Thrills," in which Ben Lyon and Mary Astor will be cofeatured today and Thursday, at the Breed Theatre.

Not only was the track turned over to the company, but a group of the most noted automobile drivers spent an entire day coaching Ben Lyon in the art of automobile racing and in assisting in making the picture a success.

Peter de Paola, Earl Cooper, Harry Hartz, Jerry Wonderlich, Leon Duray, Wade Morton, Frank Elliott, Davie Lewis, Dr. Shattuc—these were among the racing drivers who taught Ben some of their tricks. And all of them took part in a special automobile race staged for the picture the day after the recent annual spring races at the speedway.

"The Pace That Thrills" is a picture, in which Lyon appears as a movie hero. The biggest thrill proves his nerve by driving madly against professional drivers, ending his race when his car crashes through a section of the track that has caved in.

All of the automobile speed kings were anxious to have Ben drive their car, but the honor fell to Harry Hartz, and when "The Pace That Thrills" is thrown on the Breed's screen Ben will be seen riding in Hartz's car.

"Ben should have been an automobile racer," declared Paola. "I am going to watch for 'The Pace That Thrills' and see how the race looks on the screen."

Palace Theatre

The spirit and romance of Spain glow in Douglas Fairbanks' new photoplay, "Don Q, Son of Zorro," now holding the screen at the Palace theatre. This story is the dramatization of the old adage, "Truth crushed to earth shall rise again."

The hero, a dashing young Spanish Californian, is sent to Spain by his father to complete his education. It is soon demonstrated that he is an expert with the type of stock whip used at that time in California. While illustrating his ability with one of these whips, he gets into trouble that leads to a duel.

A bull, rushing in while the fight is on ends the combat and results in the hero saving his opponent's life. His reward for this is informal presentation at court, where he discovers many friends of his father. This does not take place, however, until after he has leaped a high garden wall to escape the plaudits of the crowd, and discovered in the garden a charming lady with whom he falls in love.

The picture is a rush of romance and action from start to finish. Among the prominent players are Mary Astor in the leading feminine role, Donald Crisp, who directs and also plays an important part; Jean Hersholt, Warner Oland, Stella de Lanti, Lottie Pickford Forrest, and Jack McDonald.

There is undoubtedly such a thing as sympathetic suffering. Many a poor man suffers when his wife has a raging headache.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE.

New York.

Stocks strong; southern and southwestern rails at new high.

Bonds irregular; convertible rails active.

Foreign exchanges; lower; French francs react.

Cotton steady; heavy exports.

Sugar higher; lower Cuban crop estimate.

Coffee firm; unfavorable crop report.

Chicago.

Wheat strong; bullish cables.
Corn easy; heavy receipts.
Cattle; weak.
Hogs; lower and active.

MARKET WAS STRONG.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(By The A. P.)—Stock prices displayed a distinctly better tone in today's market, which was featured by a resumption of bullish operations in a number of rails, oils and selected specialties. Call money rates held firm at 5 per cent., but this relatively stiff rate was regarded as temporary, and failed to dampen bullish enthusiasm. Trading again ran close to the two million share mark, with commission houses representing a reawakening of public interest in the market. Wheat prices advanced in all the leading markets of the world in reflection of lower Russian crop estimates and reports of unfavorable weather in Argentina. Cotton prices fluctuated within rather narrow and irregular limits.

Speculative belief that legislation of a constructive character bearing on railroad consolidation will be enacted by congress, which convenes next week, stimulated the demand for the carriers. New peak prices for a year, or longer, were attained by Atlantic Coast Line, Chesapeake and Ohio preferred, Louisville and Nashville, New Haven, Western Pacific and Wheeling and Lake Erie common and preferred.

Oils began making a belated response to the recent stiffening of crude oil and gasoline prices, Marland touched 59 1-2, the highest price in two years, and the Pan-American issues each closed over a point higher.

Steels appeared to be discounting reports of steadily increasing orders. Sloss Sheffield jumped seven points to a new high record for all time at 140 1-2 and then slipped back to 136. United States Steel common showed a net gain of 1 1-2 points at 130 and Gulf States advanced over a point to 89. Activity and strength of Penn Seaboard was based on reports that the last quarter would show a profit for the first time this year.

Buoyancy of high priced industrial specialties revived rumors of forthcoming capital split ups. American Can jumped over 10 points to 259, or within four points of its record high, and then eased to 258. Commercial Solvents A and B, General Electric, Midland Steel Products preferred, Nash Motors, United Drug and Woolworth closed about 4 to 8 points higher.

Among the specialties which broke through their previous maximum prices were Artloom, American Water Works, American Agricultural Chemical preferred, Air Reduction, Columbia Carbon, Consolidated Cigar, Federal Mining and Smelting common and preferred, Gimbel Brothers, Liggett and Myers, Mathieson, Alkali, United Cigar Stores preferred and Weber and Heilbroner.

Further weakness cropped out, however, in the motors. Chrysler showed a net loss of 2 3-8 at 136 1-4, after fluctuating between 184 and 189 1-4, and Mack Trucks, Willys-Overland preferred, Stromberg Carburetor and Hudson closed 1 to 2 1-2 points lower. Chandler showed independent strength. Heaviness also was apparent in Fisher Body, General Railway Signal, International Combustion Engineering and U. S. Rubber.

Time money ruled unchanged at 4 7-8 to 5 per cent. Prime commercial paper continued firm at 4 3-4 per cent.

Foreign exchanges displayed a reactionary tone. French francs broke about 10 points to 3.90 cents on selling inspired by the announcement of the new fiscal programme of the Briand cabinet. Polish sixty broke 3 cents to a new low record at 10.0 cents. Other European rates showed nominal recessions.

TAFTVILLE

In spite of the inclement weather, Ponemah hall was packed to the doors Tuesday evening to see the Dramatic club present "Stung" a comedy in three acts, for the opening night of the annual fair of the Taftville Congregational church. The play was full of interest from the time the curtain rose until it dropped and the efforts of those taking part were appreciated by the audience, which was generous in its applause. The manner in which the production was staged showed the amount of work put into the play. Oscar Mathewson, Jr. whose popularity in amateur theatricals dates back to "Contents Unknown" was very much at home in the part of John Channing, and the part of Clara Channing was professionally enacted by Miss Flossie Meyer. The difficult role of Mrs. Bennett, was ably handled by Miss Elsie Heap, and Walter Bennett, her husband was excellently done by Harold E. Linderson. Miss Bertha Monty made a petite and charming maid. The part of Mrs. Freeman was carried admirably by Miss Gertrude M. Young, who, although she has been directress of the club productions in the past few years, has not been before the footlights for some time. Her acting was flawless and contributed greatly to the success of the comedy. Robert Cooper as Mr. Conrad and Fred Knowles as Mr. Denning were both very good in their parts.

Before and after the play, the booths which were very tastefully decorated and in charge of the various parish societies, reported doing a brisk business. The fancy work table was in charge of the Ladies' Benevolent society and the committee in charge was Mrs. Alberto E. Pingree, chairman; Mrs. Charles T. Webster, Mrs. John Douglas Sharples, Mrs. Richard B. Snow and Miss Anna M. Beardow. At the apron table were Mrs. Elsie K. Pingree and Mrs. Harold E. Linderson.

The home cooking booth which is always the center of attraction at the annual church fair was in charge of Mrs. Walter S. Grant, Mrs. James Edwards, Mrs. Albert J. Aberg, Mrs. Carles R. Adams and Mrs. Allan Bogie. The O. J. S. Girls in charge of Mrs. Edwin Gordon Crowdis sold home made candy at a very attractive booth, and the ice cream table in the rear of the hall was operated by the A-o-wa-ki-ya Camp Fire girls under the direction of their guardian, Mrs. Eugene M. Monty. Candy bars were sold by the Ocowasin Camp Fire girls and the quick lunch counter was in charge of some of the members of Troop 3, Boy Scouts.

By the large attendance on the opening night and the liberal patronage the booths enjoyed, it is safe to predict that the affair will be one of the most successful events ever given by the church. The general chairman of the fair committee is Allan Bogie and the treasurer, Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis.

Miss Anna A. Hasler, student at Keene Normal school, Keene, N. H., is spending the holiday recess at the home of her father, Bernard Hasler and family of Providence street.

Miss Eva Bedard has returned to her home in New York city after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bedard of Providence street for the past week.

Miss Catherine Hasler has returned to her home on Providence street after spending the past five months as the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George Brown of New Orleans, La.

Christopher Krauss has returned to his work at Ponemah mills after enjoying a vacation of several weeks, part of which he spent in Brooklyn, N. Y.

START COMMUNITY THRIFT PLAN TO BE CARRIED OUT IN NORWICH

Twenty-five representatives of local banking, mercantile, and industrial circles, and prominent civic organizations, at a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. building late Tuesday afternoon, voted to organize a city thrift committee as a means of putting over the local observance of National Thrift Week next month. The vote to organize a local thrift committee followed a clear cut, concise explanation of the thrift week idea by William H. Ball of New York city, a member of the national thrift committee which is fostered by the Y. M. C. A., and endorsed by 47 of the leading industrial, religious and educational organizations of the country.

The local gathering Tuesday afternoon was held under the auspices of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. as a means of getting the thrift movement started in Norwich. As soon as the local thrift committee is named and organized the movement will be directed wholly by the committee.

At 5 o'clock James C. Macpherson, president of the Y. M. C. A., called the meeting to order. After explaining that the Y. M. C. A. is following the lead set by President Coolidge and Secretary Herbert Hoover in economy and thrift, Mr. Macpherson said that the subject of thrift is one of the most vital in our economic life that we could mention. Mr. Macpherson then introduced Mr. Ball who explained, briefly but in concise language, just what the national thrift committee is endeavoring to accomplish.

Mr. Ball made reference to the fact that New London is the pioneer city in Connecticut as regards the annual observance of thrift week. New London held its first observance of thrift week eight years ago and it is an annual event in that city now. Mr. Ball named other Connecticut cities, including Hartford and New Haven, which have thrift week observances each year.

The national thrift committee, he said, is a creation of the Y. M. C. A. and on it are serving many well known and prominent men of the country, who are giving of their time and effort in promoting the thrift idea throughout the United States. The fact that the United States is the wealthiest nation in the world simply increases the necessity for national thrift. The Y. M. C. A. is interested in this movement because we have discovered that one of the vital factors in success and happiness is thrift; thrift in money matters, time, health, strength and in life itself.

The way a local thrift movement is put across, Mr. Ball said, is that the Y. M. C. A. calls a meeting of this kind, places the idea before those at the meeting and then asks those present if the idea is worthy of their support, money and effort.

Speaking to those present Mr. Ball asked them if they were ready to form a city thrift committee for Norwich. He said that the local activities would be wholly directed by the committee itself. This is an educational idea, he said.

Outlining briefly the various phases of thrift week, which comes January 17th to 24th, Mr. Ball said the first day of the week, Sunday, is church day. Here is where the churches, Sunday schools, etc., get across a message relating to stewardship. Monday is thrift day, Tuesday own your own home day, Wednesday is insurance day, Thursday, budget your income and expenditures day, Friday is safe investment day and Saturday, pay your bills promptly day.

The aim of the committee is to develop a programme and get all these ideas across to the residents of the city. Today he said, our children are handling money more freely and with more abandon than we ever dreamed of. We believe in thrift and we want everyone to practice it.

At the close of his talk Mr. Ball exhibited some of the literature that is distributed during the week and answered questions regarding literature supplies, posters, thrift messages for schools and at shop meetings, etc.

Following Mr. Ball's talk it was voted that a local committee be named. President Macpherson named John B. Rogers, Guy B. Dolbeare and John M. Lee, a nominating committee to bring in the name of a chairman and to nominate a committee of nine. The meeting then adjourned, subject to the call of the nominating committee who will at that time present their report.

The members of the national thrift committee are as follows:

Adolph Lewisohn, chairman, New York city; Henry J. Allen, Wichita, Kansas; W. W. Bowman, Topeka, Kansas; E. C. Delafield, New York city; John Clyde Oswald, New York city; B. H. Fancher, New York city; Homer L. Ferguson, Newport News, Va.; Walter W. Head, Omaha, Nebraska; Herbert S. Houston, New York city; Clarence Howard, St. Louis, Missouri; Sam A. Lewisohn, New York city; Harry S. New, Washington, D. C.; C. J. Obermayer, Brooklyn, N. Y.; W. C. Potter, New York city; Judson G. Rosebush, Appleton, Wisconsin; H. C. Richards, New York city; Winslow Russell, Hartford, Connecticut; Ernest T. Trigg, Philadelphia, Pa.; Edwin Bird Wilson, New York city; A. S. Van Winkle, New York city; C. N. Wonacott, Portland, Oregon; Edward A. Woods, Pittsburgh, Pa.; John A. Goodell, secretary.

COLLEGE GLEE CLUB TO SING OVER RADIO

The Connecticut College Glee club will appear before the microphone from Station WTIC, Hartford this (Wednesday) evening. The programme will start at 8.30 o'clock and continue for one hour. Included among the features will be a whistling solo by Miss Margaret Elliott of New York city and a soprano solo by Miss Louise Macleod of Boston.

Students at the college have installed two radio receivers in the gymnasium where a mass meeting will be held to receive the programme from the Hartford station. The mass meeting is to take the form of a rally for the $500,000 endowment effort which is being launched throughout the state.

The glee club comprising thirty-three persons is under the direction of Professor Frederick Weld, former baritone soloist with the New York Philharmonic, the New York Symphony and the Boston Symphony orchestras. Miss Marion Cogswell of Derry, N. H., is student conductor.

The girls will be entertained at a dinner party at 6 o'clock in Hartford and then will be taken on a tour of inspection of the broadcasting station.

The programme to be presented includes: "College Hymn," "Murmuring Zephyrs," "In the Boat," "The Snow," whistling solo, "Minuet"; "Maiden Remember," "When Love Comes to Stay," "On Wings of Music," soprano, solo, "Carmena," "Great is Thy Glory, O God," "Alma Mater."

WORCESTER SHOP LIFTING CHARGE AGAINST WOMAN

It developed Tuesday that Gladys Lorraine, 24, Providence, who was bound over to the criminal superior court in this city, Monday morning on a charge of theft, is at the present time out on bail of $500 from the Worcester, Mass., court on a charge of shop lifting. A picture forwarded to Chief George Linton corresponds to the likeness of the Lorraine girl. It is said that she is known under the alias of Marie Boyd.

The woman is in jail awaiting her trial in the superior court for this county as she was unable to raise the bond of $2,500 named Monday morning by Judge Arthur P. Libby in the city court. She is charged with the theft of a $500 fur coat from the store of J. B. Caron, Main street.

STATE POLICE AGAIN WATCHING AUTO EQUIPMENT

Following a period of comparative inactivity the state police at the Groton barracks were ordered out Monday night to be on the lookout for violators of the motor laws, particularly defective brakes and defective headlights. Automobiles were stopped at the state highway bridge over the Thames and other points where traffic is heavy. As far as could be learned the police found all they examined within the law. Meanwhile they are still working on a number of breaks which have been perpetrated during the past few weeks at the summer houses at Bushy Point and Eastern Point.

Fanning Park's Successful Season

The final work for this season at the Fanning Park dahlia gardens, was completed last week, when all things were stored for the winter. This includes several thousand dahlia tubers from the more than 4,000 hills planted in the spring, as well as about 20,000 gladioli bulbs. Although the spring season was backward and frosts came exceptionally early this fall, Mrs. Roswell J. Brown, who grows these selected specimens, which rank among the world's choicest and best, has had a most prosperous season, as in former years.

Manager In New York.

R. B. Tracy, who formerly resided in this city, and at one time was manager of the New York branch of the Henderson Tire and Rubber Co., Columbus, Ohio, but lately acting as factory representative, has returned to New York city as manager.

SISTER SHIP TO AID IN RECOVERING S-51

Bound for Block Island and the grave of the ill-fated submarine S-51, sister ship, has left the Submarine Base, provisioned and equipped for what is believed to be the final effort to wrest the submersible from the sandy tentacles of the Atlantic and to learn definitely the manner in which 33 sailors met their death.

Ten pontoons are in position to be lowered and attached to the submarine; the water out of the craft and all holes have been patched, salvage ships and salvage crews are ready, and all that is needed to put the machinery in motion in the attempt to lift the battered hulk, is favorable weather.

The point, 14 miles off Sandy Point, Block Island, where the S-51 went down, mortally wounded by the stabbing steel prow of the steamer City of Rome; is one of the most exposed on the New England coast, and at this season of the year is almost constantly swept by storms and gales. Since the rescue operations at the scene of the disaster ceased, and salvage operations were begun, storm after storm has interfered with the work, driving salvaging ships to shelter, tearing loose pontoons, snarling the undersea buoy lines, and otherwise hampering the navy's effort to recover its lost submarine. Divers can operate only in calm water and calm seas have prevailed off Block Island on only a few days since the salvage operations were started. Heavy seas prevent the underwater workers from going over the side, inasmuch as they would be dashed to their deaths against the sides of the very ship from which they operate.

Each delay serves to render the chances of raising the submarine this season more remote for the weather from now on will be getting worse, and if storms continue to sweep the coast for the next few weeks, as they have during the past several, it is a foregone conclusion that the S-51 will be abandoned to the ravages of the sea until next spring at least. The navy department still has hopes of lifting the ship to the surface within the next week or so, but in the opinion of most civilian experts, the task is hopeless under present sea and weather conditions and it is probable that it will have to be postponed until after the winter season has passed.

CUTTER MOJAVE WITHDRAWN FROM RUM PATROL

The Coast Guard cutter Mojave, for the past five months flagship of the destroyer forces, operating from New London against the rum running fleet at sea, under orders from Washington ceased her rum patrol connection on Tuesday and prepared to start on her regular winter patrol. It is expected, for the time being at least, the Mojave will use New London as her home station, and although the primary efforts of the cutter will be directed toward the relief of vessels in distress at sea, as a Coast Guard craft she will, of course, be authorized to pick up and bring in any rum runners that might be located.

The Mojave was ordered to New London last July, succeeding as destroyer fleet flagship, the cutter Red Wing, which went to Woods Hole. Commander H. G. Hamlet, commanding the destroyer forces, will, within a day or two, remove his flag to one of the destroyers.

Beginning this week most of the other cutters on duty in the Atlantic coast waters will go back to their regular sea patrol areas. With the coming of the winter storms the Coast Guard finds it necessary to maintain a constant vigil along the main lines of shipping, and the cutter type vessels are considered by the service to be the best fitted for the work.

THINK REVENGE MOTIVE FOR HICKEY CAR THEFT

Because of the manner in which the car had been turned loose at the top of the old Golf hill, off East Center street, Manchester, police there incline to the belief that the person who stole the automobile of County Detective Edward J. Hickey, sought revenge through wrecking the machine. The car was found in the brook which runs through the old Golf grounds. Police express the opinion that in addition to being steered off the sharp incline the motor was running and in gear when the car started its uncontrolled trip. At a garage to which the machine was towed, it was estimated that repairs would cost about $400. It is thought that the guilty parties were acquainted with the layout of the old Golf grounds and with this as a possible clue both local and county officials are working on the case.

Suit or Note Withdrawn

The suit on the Bankers Trust company of this city for $4,500 against James Graham of Lisbon, returnable before the superior court, in December, has been withdrawn, a demand note given the plaintiff on May 8, 1923, having been paid by the defendant in full on Saturday.

To Present Church Budget

The budget of the Central Baptist church for 1926 is to be presented by the finance committee at the midweek gathering of the church on Thursday evening. A number of new items appear in the budget this year and it is expected that every member of the church can be present Thursday evening to hear the explanation and discussion of the budget. This will be one of the most import ut gatherings of the year and will largely influence the effectiveness of the service which the church will be able to render during 1926.

Ledyard Health Officer

Mrs. Billings T. Avery, of Ledyard has been appointed by County Health Officer Hibbard R. Norman, health officer of Ledyard. Mrs. Avery succeeds Charles A. Gray, who resigned. Mrs. Avery being appointed to fill the vacancy. Her term expires the first Monday of October, 1928.

MISS MACRI REACHES POINT OF SHOOTING OF BAGNANO

Relates Incidents of Alleged Perfidious Treatment Leading Up to the Slaying of Bagnano—Tells of Being Driven From Home, Following the Birth of Her Baby and the Refusal of Bagnano to Sign For the Baby so It Could Be Kept in an Institution.

LITCHFIELD, Dec. 2.—(A. P.)—Olympia Macri, charged with murder as the result of the killing of John Bagnano in the lobby of the Palace theatre at New Haven, on February 26, 1925, had brought her story down through the actual shooting when court adjourned for the day at 4.30 o'clock this afternoon. She had been on the witness stand nearly nine court hours, and her direct examination was still uncompleted. Toward the close of the afternoon she appeared weary; she yawned several times. When her attorney, Joseph Koletsky, asked her to describe the actual shooting, she burst into tears.

After telling how she had been driven from home and disowned by her family, following the birth of her child, Olympia testified to her efforts to obtain aid from John Bognano and his family.

"Did you at any time tell Marion Bagnano you were going to kill John?" asked Attorney Koletsky.

"No sir."

"Did Carrie (John Bagnano's wife) ever offer to take your baby?" Her counsel asked.

"No, sir." Later, she testified, Carrie said to her, "How can he (John Bagnano) help your baby when I'm starving myself and can't get anything for my baby?"

Olympia testified to repeated unsuccessful efforts to get John to sign for the baby so it could be kept in an institution. She testified that once when she broached the subject to his brother, John (Fat) Bagnano, he said, "my brother's not going to carry that baby on his shoulders all his life. You'd better not bother him." She testified that he suggested that she give the baby to a woman, whereupon "I said I wouldn't give my baby to anyone."

Olympia testified that once when she was walking on Center street on her way home, John passed in an automobile with a lot of other fellows. "He started to laugh," she went on. "He pointed me out to the other fellows and they started to laugh. I turned my face and started to cry."

She testified that on one occasion he got her to walk to the station with him telling her a man was going to give him some money and he would give her ten dollars. She said he left her waiting outside and failed to return.

She testified that during all this time, she and Carrie Bagnano, John's wife, were good friends. Once, she said, Carrie told her John was "out late" and "out with girls every night."

"I told her if she ever needed anything, to go to my brother's store and he'd let her have it cheap," Olympia testied. She denied that she ever said anything to Carrie about going out with her brother.

One night, she testified, she met John by appointment on Center street. She asked him if he was going to sing for the baby, she said, and he told her to "come on over. I want to tell my mother." At Crown street, she testified, he slapped her face and said, "you're always bothering me." On the Wooster street bridge, she testified, he threw her down and kicked her. She cried out, she said and three boys came. When they approached, she added, he drew a revolver and told them to "keep away." He scratched her on the neck and arms and bit her hand, she testified. Later, she continued, Carrie said to John, "Johnny, why don't you leave her alone?"

"I said to her (Carrie) 'Johnny's got a revolver in his pocket,'" she testified, "and he said to me 'Oh, don't be afraid. He won't do anything to you.'"

She testified that before the bridge incident, "Fat" Bagnano said to her, "Keep away from my brother. I gave him a revolver."

She testified that all her bills resulting from the birth of her child, Lucy, were unpaid. She wanted to kill herself, she said, and "I went to my father's house to get a gun. 'Twas late at night." She said she found it "in my father's drawer. Downstairs."

"Why didn't you kill yourself?" Attorney Koletsky asked her. States Attorney Aaron A. Alling objected, but the objection was overruled.

"I didn't have enough courage," replied Olympia.

She testified that when she met John Bagnano at the Palace theatre building on February 26, he began to taunt her by playing on a ukelele and singing "It's a Man Every Time." She told him her aunt didn't want to keep the baby any more and needed money, she testified. He said, she added, "you'd better keep away from me because I use dope.

"When he said 'keep away from me,' he was pushing me with his hand," she said. "He tried to throw me downstairs. He left me several times. He went into Johnny Goggins' office."

When Olympia and John reached the foot of the stairs, she testified, he led her over past the candy counter. She said they talked about the baby.

"He pointed his finger at me," she testified, "and said he wanted to kill the baby. I said 'you're not going to kill the baby. I'd die myself before I'd see that baby killed.' He said ' we'll see about that.'"

When they got near the elevator, she testified, "I put my hands out. I said 'please help me. I have no place to go. * * * Please help me or I'll kill myself.' He said 'I'll kill you myself,' he turned around and went like this (Olympia put her hand to her hip). I noticed the gun in his pocket and I started shooting."

Asked by her counsel if there was any doubt in her mind but that her victim had a gun, she said:

"No, sir, I seen the gun."

"When he ran out of the lobby I thought that he was looking for a better place to shoot. I got frightened. I went out for help," she testified.

She said that she could not remember what happened after she rushed from the lobby of the theatre.

Court adjourned for the day at 4.30, and Judge Hinman again warned the jury to exercise caution in coming to the court house in the morning, on account of the condition of the walks.

QUARREL IN BRIDGEPORT RESULTED IN FATALITY

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 2—(A. FRAUD IN CONNECTION WITH GERMAN MARKS

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—(A. P.)—Warning against a new form of fraud in connection with trading in German marks was issued today by the commerce and marine commission of the American Bankers association. The warning was particularly against transactions based on a misrepresentation of the application of the German revaluation law to holdings of paper mark bonds, especially postwar bonds.

Certain firms in all parts of the country were said to be promoting sales of German securities by representing that both pre-war and postwar paper mark bonds can be revalued on the basis of 15 per cent., or more of their face value. The actual computation must be based on an infinitesmial fraction of this amount the association warned.

Chapman's Fate in Hands of U. S. Gov't

Decision to Be Handed Down by Judge Thomas Some Time Next Week.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 2.—(AP)—The fate of Gerald Chapman, convicted mail robber and murderer, rested tonight in the hands of the United States government, in the person of Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas, of Norwalk, Conn.

Judge Thomas' decision on Chapman's application for a writ of habeas corpus, due to be made public not earlier than the middle of next week, will determine whether the much-sought bandit will be returned to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta to complete a 25-year sentence for robbing the United States mails, or be hanged by the state of Connecticut for the murder of a policeman at New Britain in October, 1924.

After a day spent by both sides in lengthy presentation of arguments revolving about the right of the state to claim jurisdiction over a man still under sentence by the federal government, the attorneys completed their summations as darkness settled over the state prison walls. Another step in the effort to slip the noose from Chapman's neck has been taken.

If Judge Thomas decides against issuance of the writ, thus giving Connecticut the right to make Chapman pay with his own life for that of the policeman whom he killed, counsel for the convicted man are prepared immediately to carry the fight forward to the United States circuit court of appeals. Rejection of the appeal there, Frederick J. Groehl, senior counsel for Chapman, said tonight would result in a final appeal to the United States supreme court.

Both sides will be given until three p. m. Friday to file briefs with Judge Thomas.

Slumped down in his chair, encircled by four members of his legal staff, Chapman himself presented the unpicturesque figure of the occasion. Far from being the "romantic super-bandit" he often has been pictured, he was so much a part of the background of the scene that it was necessary even for persons near him to stand when they wished to observe his demeanor.

Contest in France Over Financial Policy

Chamber May Oppose Proposal to Raise the Limit of Issue of Paper Money.

PARIS, Dec. 2—(A. P.)—Premier Briand went before the chamber of deputies today with his ministerial declaration on the government policy with reference to restoration of financial stability.

The finance minister, M. Loucheur, introduced his bill providing for raising the limit of the issue of paper money from 51,000,000,000 to 53,500,000,000 francs, which was referred to the finance committee. Later the committee adopted the bill without modification.

The halo of Locarno peace and goodwill which M. Briand brought back from London did not appear to change the attitude of the political workers at home, and the cabinet's life after the ministerial declaration is still in jeopardy.

Inflation to the amount of 7,500,000,000 francs was the weapon with which the opposition assaulted the ministry. The bill was referred to the finance committee, which demanded a suspension of the session, and this was carried 451 to 154. Though the finance committee accepted the bill without modification later, the cabinet is certain to meet with a stubborn fight in the open chamber.

M. Briand seemed tired and dejected as he read the declaration. M. Loucheur's inflation bill, which followed immediately, caused the already frigid temperature in the chamber to go still lower.

An increase in taxes ranging from ten to one hundred per cent., as outlined in the bill, created consternation especially among the provincial representatives, inasmuch as the farmers will have to pay fifty per cent additional taxation.

The ministerial declaration, while non-committal on certain questions, took a decided stand on the settlement of interallied debts, and the naming of Senator Berenger to proceed to Washington is regarded as imminent.

M. Briand was taken by surprise after the enthusiastic welcome which greeted him at the station on his return from London, when he was faced by an antagonistic chamber in fighting mood, which contrasted sharply with the principles he advocated at Locarno.

M. Loucheur's financial plan is the bone of contention, inflation, which has already reached 17,500,000,000 francs since the 1924 elections may prove a hard obstacle for the Briand government.

In a modern paragraph in the ministerial declaration was a reference to the return to district, or arrondissement polling. This was received with silence by the chamber, but with an outburst of enthusiasm by the extremists.

ARE OPPOSED TO PROPOSALS ENDORSED BY COL. MITCHELL

Members of the Special Air Board Appointed by President Coolidge Are Emphatically Opposed to the Establishment of a Department of Defense or a Unified Air Service—A Number of Recommendations Have Been Made by the Board—All of Its Members Agree That Peace-Time Activities in the United States "Have Never Been Governed by Military Consideration"—Finds U. S. is Not in Danger From Air Attack; That Fear of Such an Attack is Without Reason.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—Expansion of military and naval aviation, but without drastic change in the present organization, was recommended today to President Coolidge by the special board appointed by him to investigate the condition of American air power.

The board's report, concurred in by all of the nine members, emphatically opposed establishment of a department of defense or a unified air service, proposals endorsed by Colonel William Mitchell, whose public criticisms of the war and navy department administration of aviation preceded the board's inquiry.

The board's recommendations included:

Creation of three additional assistant secretaryships to handle aviation problems.

Special representations of aviation on the army staff.

Representation for naval aviators in the office of the chief of naval operations and the bureau of navigation.

Designation of the army air service as the army air corps.

Adoption by the government of a continuing aviation policy to encourage better commercial aircraft development.

Elimination of governmental competition with civil industry in aircraft production.

Assistance to commercial aviation through the establishment of airways and air posts.

Provision for two more brigadier generals for the army air corps.

Continuation of flight pay for all aviators and the conferring of temporary rank upon air officers commensurate with the duties assigned them.

The report took cognizance of the aviation controversy that has gone on since the war," and asserted that the "conflict is between the old and the new, emphasized by the sharp adjustment required in a period immediately following a great war."

In opposing combination of the government's military and commercial air activities under one head, the board observed that peace-time activities in the United States "have never been governed by military considerations."

In presenting its recommendations, the board said "no solution at this time can be lasting," and thought it was most important to "lay emphasis upon the best method of achieving the desired result."

"To that end," it asserted, "we rely chiefly upon the appointment of an additional assistant secretary of war, assistant secretary of the navy and assistant secretary of commerce, to devote themselves under the direction of their respective heads, primarily to aviation and jointly to coordinate so far as may be practicable the activities of their three departments with respect to aviation."

The additional assistant secretary of commerce, it suggested, should be placed at the head of a bureau of civil aeronautics, which would supervise air ports, landing fields; airways, inspection of planes and licensing of pilots. Commercial aviation, it found, had been retarded by the lack of basic air laws, a fear of air hazards by prospective passengers, and the "excessive burden" placed upon private capital to pioneer in development of airways and other matters continxent to commercial air activities.

Divided into three parts, the report first answered questions raised during the inquiry, emphasizing the board's opinion that military and civil aviation "should remain distinctly separate." Referring further to civil aviation, it said:

"To organize its peace-time activities, or what it is thought may ultimately be one large branch of them under military control or on a military basis, would be to make the same mistake which, properly or improperly, the world believes Prussia to have made in the last generation. The union of civil and military air activities would breed distrust in every realon to which our commercial aviation extension.

The board also stated that it could not "see any force in the argument that the building up of a larger air power—partly military and partly civilian—would be a peace movement, adding:

Those who believe in the preponderating effect of air power, however are not talking of disarmament when they suggest the sacrifice of battleships. They are talking of discarding the weapon they think is becoming useless."

Discussing an "aviation policy for the United States," the report declared the United States "must at all times maintain an adequate defensive system, whether it be surface ships submarines, land armies, or air power.

"But let us not deceive ourselves," it said. "Armaments beget armaments. It has been our national policy heretofore to oppose competitive armaments, the coming to a new and a deadlier weapon must not result in any change in this policy.

"The belief that new and deadlier weapons will shorten future wars and prevent vast expenditures of lives and resources is a dangerous one which, if accepted, might well lead to a readier acceptance of war as a solution of international difficulties. The arrival of new weapons operating in an element hitherto unavailable to mankind will not necessarily change the ultimate character of war. The next war may well start in the air but in all probability will wind up, as did the last war, in the mud."

The United States is not in danger from an air attack by any potential enemy of 'menacing strength", the board found, because no airplane "capable of making a trans-oceanic flight to our country with a useful military load and of returning safely is now in existence."

"The fear of such an attack is without reason," it asserted.

NO HOPE FOR RESUMPTION OF ANTHRACITE MINING

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Activity in the anthracite suspension was confined today chiefly to the consuming public, one of the three most vitally interested parties. This activity, for the most part, was devoted to efforts to replenish rapidly diminishing supplies. In most cases the efforts met with failure, for the reserve supply is about exhausted. Only a few dealers in this section have any hard coal and what little they have is awaiting delivery on orders placed weeks ago.

Actual suffernig is reported from other sections of the anthracite consuming regions, where neither hard coal nor substitutes in sufficient quantities to meet the demand are available.

There have been no outward developments in the situation since the operators rejected Gov. Pinchot's peace proposals, which previously had been tentatively accepted by the miners. Leaders of both the miners and operators, who were gathered here and in Harrisburg, have returned to their homes, all indicating that they held no hope for an early resumption of mining.

MAN SLAIN IN MIAMI MAY BE OF SPRINGFIELD

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 2.—((AP)—An unidentified white man, wearing a suit purchased in Springfiled, Mass., was shot and killed here last night, supposedly by one of two men who attempted a holdup.

His body was found by two negroes, who told police they heard several men pass their house, all talking loudly and a moment later heard a single shot and the sound of running.

The only clues the police have of the man's identity is a laundry mark on his collar "WHH." on his coat is the trademark of the firm of Charles M. Lynch, Springfield, Mass. He is described by police as a man of five feet 10 inches tall, weighing 150 pounds, fair complexion, and gray eyes.

In the pocket of his clothing was found literature advertising the Admiral line steamer H. F. Alexander. Police are working on a clue that the dead man may have been a passenger on the H. F. Alexander, arriving here last Monday.

NEW DETAILS OF ATROCIOUS MURDER OF GEORGE NYE

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—(A. P.)—New details of the murder of 19 year old George Nye were revealed today by District Attorney McGeehan in support of his estimate of Gordon Pirie, Nye's 30 year old chum who is held for the crime, as the "coldest criminal in his experience."

Pirie has confessed to hacking his friend to death Sunday night with an axe because of a slurring remark about a woman. Pirie deliberately planned to sleep Monday night in the bed beneath which he had hidden the body of his murdered chum, and then to dispose of the body at his leisure, the district attorney said the youth had confessed to him. The unexpected return of Pirie's sister, Margaret, and her accidental discovery of the body spoiled this plan.

McGeehan said the boy told him of three detailed plans for disposing of the body. He spent Sunday, the day after the murder, at pool halls and with girls, and returned to find an ambulance before his door. Someone told him there had been a murder, and he went away, later surrendering to police.

The district attorney has carefully guarded the name of the girls involved. Today he privately interviewed at least one, and possibly more, girls at their homes.

Of Pirie's plans to dispose of the body Mr. McGeehan said. "One was to bury it in the back yard. Another was to cut it up and send it away in a packing case. The third was to take it to the roof of the apartment house, drag it over seven roofs to a small air shaft between an apartment house and St. Paul's Reform church and drop it down the shaft."

Don't dope YOUR COUGH

It is not wise to use remedies which depend upon "dope" such as narcotics, chloroform, cannabis or Bar products. They may stop your cough temporarily by numbing the tissues, but this is not enough. The inflamed air passages must be soothed naturally, the germ-laden mucus loosened and expelled in order to effect a lasting recovery.

PERTUSSIN attains these results in a remarkably short time—and it is absolutely harmless.

Sold by all druggists in large and small bottles.

ENFORCING ARMY LAWS IN THE MITCHELL TRIAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—The Mitchell court martial ended the sixth week of its existence today by employing army laws to preserve its dignity.

All parties to the trial were enjoined by Major General Robert L. Howze, court president, to "take notice" of the regulations, stop wrangling and bickering, and refrain from harsh and insulting treatment of witnesses.

When the ban was imposed, Representative Frank R. Reid, of Illinois, took exception to General Howze's pronouncement. Saying he believed it was a personal rebuke, the admonition, it was immediately explained, applied to all court attendants, defense and prosecution alike. From then on, only an occasional flurry marked the otherwise routine proceedings.

The prosecution continued presentation of evidence by naval officers. Commander Kenneth Whiting, its first witness today, testified that in general the United States "is ahead of Great Britain in naval aviation development," conceded that the present policy of the navy is not suited to bring out the best work of its personnel in aviation, and asserted that naval constructors were taking advantage of lessons learned in the bombing tests with the hull of the battleship Washington to make future capital ships better able to withstand bombs and torpedoes.

Commander R. D. Weyerbacher, aircraft engineer and constructor who had charge of the building of the dirigible Shenandoah, contradicted many of Colonel Mitchell's charges with respect to the ship.

Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, senior surviving officer of the Shenandoah, was called to the stand a few minutes before the court recessed for the day. He was qualified as an expert on mooring masts and declared a dirigible could attain a high degree of safety when so moored. Colonel Mitchell has charged that mooring a craft like the Shenandoah to a mast was an inefficient way to handle airships.

All of the thrills and excitement of a newspaper office are depicted in The Fighting Cub, Phil Goldstone's mighty melodrama which comes to the Broadway theater today.

Pat O'Malley, Mary Carr and Wesley Barry head the all star cast of The Fighting Cub with the balance of featured players including Mildred Harris, George Fawcett, Walter Long, Ann May, Stuart Holmes and Otto Lederer.

In the special report issued by the National Board of Review they gave the entertainment value of The Fighting Cub as very high—Dramatic interest of story—excellent. Photography— good. Technical handling—well-done scenic setting—fine. General comment—good newspaper story with excellent acting.

Palace Theatre

The Palace theatre offers another headliner show the last three days of this week.

Like the previous pictures in which Mr. Hines has appeared, this one also is a good farce-comedy. The action moves fast, causing the interest to be sustained. The story is the kind that arouses and holds the attention. There is also a lot of good comedy. Some of such comedy is caused by the star's acting, some by the ludicrous situations in which he is placed, and some by well-written subtitles. Some of the comedy situations are wellnigh side-splitting, most of these happening during the course of the hero's advertising compaign to revive his uncle's almost defunct pickle business. As one of this attention attracting, business booming stunts, he attaches a small baloon to the back hem of the skirt of a colored woman, who had just bought a new dress, which the salesman had assured her would make everybody stop and look at her.

Classics of 1925 head the vaudeville program, it will please all who like youth, beauty and beautiful costumes. It is one of the fastest song and dance revues that Norwich has seen for many months. Hazel Cotter, who looks like a million dollars will delight all that enjoy an act that has real novelty and variety. Jimmie and Eddie White dance like colored cyclones. They travel so fast that they seem to hardly touch the floor. Spankie Rice & Co., certainly have a little bit of everything. Brown & Holt are two singing, talking comedians who could make the Sphinx smile. Thursday night is merchants' nite when many gifts will be given that will surprise and delight the lucky persons.

Connecticut College Concert

Everybody knows the artistic standing of Harold Bauer and Ossip Gabrilowitsch at least by reputation, but it is not as generally known that they are warm personal friends. In their leisure moments they have studied extensively the music literature for two pianos, and have given an occasional recital together in New York. Last spring they placed themselves under the same management for the purpose of giving ten such concerts together through the country, and Connecticut college was among the first to be offered one of the dates. Since the inception of the college concerts five years ago, the musical map of the country has been redrawn to include New London. During the first year or two it was necessary to beg artists to come, now they solicit us to present them, being sure of a hearty greeting where the best in music is appreciated.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Coming to the Breed

A new and gigantic production of Quo Vadis has just been completed and is to be shown by First National at the Breed theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

For stupendous size, both in cast and and scenes; for super-thrills and for rare beauty of photography, this film version of the Sienkiewicz classic is proclaimed an unequaled masterpiece of screen artistry.

Emil Jannings, noted for his work in Passion, heads the cast, which is said to number more than 20,000 men, women and children.

The scenes, staged in Rome on the actual site of Nero's tyrannies, are enormous. The Palatine, Circus Maximus and the Rome itself of Nero's time, half a century after the birth of Christ, form the back-ground for the drama.

The historic debaucheries of Nero and his court and the terrible cruelties of the despot, as vividly pictured, are tempered by the tender love of the pagan Vinicius for the beautiful Christian girl, Lygia, and the unyielding faith of the followers of Peter, the Apostle, even when burned at the stake and thrown to the lions in the arena of the Circus.

Jannings as Nero has given an even more impressive characterization than was his in Passion. Nero was cruel, lustful, bloodthirsty, always. Yet he was inordinately vain, foppish, childish in his self-admiration. It was thus that Jannings has portrayed him. Nero dead 1,900 years, lives again—on the screen.

He causes beautiful slave girls to be tossed into his marble pool that his banquet guests may see how he fattens the fish for future banquets.

He burns Rome, secretly, that he may gain inspiration for verses which excel Homer's Burning of Troy.

He causes Christians to be burned at the stake as "flowers" at his garden party; and hundreds of others to be thrown to the lions in the Circus Maximus to appease the populace for his crime of incendiarism.

Then, his dastardly secret exposed at last, he pleads with a servant to sink into his heart the blade which his own cowardly hand fears to do.

Thus he dies, and upon the site of his inhumanities rises the cross to bless the union of Vinicius, now a Christian, and Lygia.

Dance by Knights of Pythias

A grand cabaret and dance will be held by Wauregan Lodge No. 6, Knights of Pythias, Norwich, Connecticut, at Olympic Hall, on Thursday evening, December 31st. The festival will begin at 9:30 p. m. 1926 and will end at 3:30 a. m. 1926. The affair will be the most elaborate New Year's eve celebration ever held in our city.

A special high class vaudeville show for the evening was booked with the United Booking Company of New York, through the courtesy of Mr. Edw. McAvoy of the Palace theater who entered heart and soul into the spirit of the contemplated entertainment. Mr. McAvoy also promised to have his Palace theater orchestra assist the vaudeville entertainers. The Knights look forth to ring in the New Year resplendent with joy and happiness together with their many friends of Norwich and vicinity. As the foremost precept inculcated by the Knights of Pythias is Friendship, it is safe to predict that all their friends will be given a most enjoyable and memor

PEACE WITHIN PARTY

In preparation for the opening of the congressional session next month there has been no little anticipation of what would be done in regard to certain new members who have indicated that while they were elected as republicans they have not adopted republican policies. One of the conspicuous ones is young Robert LaFollette of Wisconsin, nominated as a republican, elected as a republican and the republican leader in that state, and yet outspoken against the administration and opposed by those in his own state who stood as regular republicans. Another is Gerald P. Nye, just appointed as senator from North Dakota to succeed Senator Ladd, deceased, in which state it is maintained that the governor has no power of appointment and of whom it is said that he is another insurgent.

There are those insurgents who have been read out of the party. Such a fate has been urged and might reasonably have been expected by others. There is no question but what it might have been urged with full justification in view of what had happened. But there is always the question of policy to be considered, and that has apparently been getting some attention at Washington, if we are to judge by the decision of the leaders to extend the olive branch to the two new senators who are regarded as radical but who have not had a chance to show their disposition in the senate. It is of course preferable that they should be republicans rather than opponents. The aim is to obtain harmony in the republican ranks, and from the preliminary soundings it is apparently considered that sufficient reason exists for making the test.

Whether LaFollette has seen the desirability of being a republican and is disposed to act as such instead of being an insurgent can best be told by his conduct. He is going to be given a chance, and it is a chance which his campaign declarations do not warrant, but it is a generous move in behalf of peace with full regard for the fact that other contests are coming in Wisconsin which cannot be ignored. The influence of the president in behalf of peace has been felt. Whether it will be reciprocated is another matter.

AS TEXAS DOES IT

The governor of Texas has refused to call a special session of the legislature in that state. She is unwilling that that body should have a chance to carry out the plans which have been made to impeach her, at least she is unwilling to do anything that will help to such an end. A few years ago such a stand would have been sufficient to have blocked it, but legislation was adopted with just such a situation in view, with the result that the speaker of the house is authorized to call the legislature into session upon the petition of a certain number of members. Thus though the governor will not do so, the speaker of the house declares that he will act late in the month and the session will be called for early in the new year.

This move will be countered by an effort on the part of the governor to have the eight-year old law authorizing the speaker to call a special legislative session declared unconstitutional, which means that all possible resistance is going to be offered, while various charges and counter charges are being made to add fuel to the flames.

It is a situation which is doing Texas no good. It is holding it up to ridicule and making it possible for such a state of affairs to develop and it is keeping alive certain ill feeling which ought not to exist in connection with the government of a state. Whether it will result in a recognition within Texas of some great mistake that was made when the return of the Ferguson regime was permitted is a question. The charges that have been made are certainly such as cannot be ignored. If they can be proved, there does exist a lesson for the majority of the voters of that state who seem to have been stampeded into opening the way for existing conditions. The trouble in the Lone Star state seems to be just getting under way and as it increases in volume it increases in intensity. But how many of the voters in that state who participated in the last state election, and aided in establishing the present state government, recognize their responsibility in the present situation?

THE MOSUL QUESTION

A few weeks ago there loomed up a possibility of war between Greece and Bulgaria. It had become well kindled before the league of nations was given a chance to act, but when it did get busy it was able to quickly quench it.

For a much longer time it has been wrestling with the Mosul situation. It hasn't as yet been able to get an agreement between Great Britain and Turkey. In fact Turkey has declared that it will not abide by the league's decision, such to be interpreted as meaning that it will not accept league decision should it be unfavorable to Turkey.

When the question as to which country should control Mosul arose Turkey was persuaded to leave the matter with the league. That was done and a study was made of the situation in that region by league representatives. When the matter came before the council with representatives of the interested nations present it was insisted by Turkey that its representative must participate in the voting instead of the representtives of the interested nations remaining voteless. The world court when asked for an opinion declared that the council could make a report and recommendation, disregarding the votes of the Turkish and British representatives, and it is only a matter of a few days now before the meeting of the council is scheduled.

When the question first arose there was a move made on the part of Turkey to get its army into action. It has remained on its side of the line but it hasn't recalled its forces. It is prepared to strike and it isn't to be supposed that the British have made no efforts to protect themselves against such a possibility.

There are complications about the Mosul question which do not tend to make an adjustment easy. But with both sides prepared to accept the decision of the league there would be no need of thinking of striking at each other. Whether the situation can be compromised or adjusted without a clash remains among the uncertainties for the present.

THE SIGNING IN LONDON

Good reason existed for the jubilation which accompanied the signing of the treaties in London which resulted from the Locarno conference. It was an event of unusual importance. With the representatives of seven countries gathered in that city for a common purpose, the creation of machinery for the maintenance of peace instead of making preparations for war, there was cause for elation. Many a new leaf is turned over but here was a radical change which bids fair to mean much to the future peace of Europe, and therefore the world.

These treaties are the outcome of the war. The nations concerned have experienced all the ravages that ought to be considered necessary to get them in the right frame of mind to break away from the methods of the past and give due thought to the adjustment of such differences as may arise by other means than bloodshed.

The results of the war might have left that same hatred that wars have engendered in the past. Ill feelings may be considered natural under such circumstances, but whatever steps are made to prevent war are steps to avoid that hatred and ill feeling, and therefore a better relationship between nations.

Whether the Locarno conference and the reaction from the war has actually established a permanent demand for peace among the nations of Europe which are once more standing in a better relationship remains to be seen. Certainly an important step in the right direction has been taken and each one of the nations concerned has reason to earnestly hope for the fulfillment of expectations, and to shape their conduct to such an end.

RECOUNTS

City elections were held Tuesday in western Massachusetts cities and as the result it is announced that there will be petitions for recounts in Pittsfield, Northampton and Holyoke. In the first two cities aldermen were elected by the narrow margins of one and four votes respectively and in Holyoke the mayoralty victory by 178 votes out of a total of over 15,000 votes was declared to have been the "closest vote in the history of the city since the new charter was adapoted in 1897" and therefore sufficient ground for a recount.

What has happened in these cities is only what is happening right along in those communities where the method of counting ballots that has been in use for decades is maintained. How long is it going to be before such communities are going to wake up to the importance of replacing such a method with voting machines where votes are registered as cast, where it doesn't remain for counters to interpret the intention of the voter and where accuracy prevails in the count.

Just as long as the old slow and unsatisfactory method is retained there is bound to be a question every time there is a close vote and yet close votes are entirely possible, and if cast under mechanical exactness there's no chance and no need for recounts.

One district in New York has recently been impressed against its will by the merits of machine voting. In behalf of accuracy and quick information it is the method which should be employed in all cities quite the same as mechanical devices for adding and other figuring are demanded in business houses.

FROM LUCILES DIARY

When Dexter Haines told me that he was taking a flying business trip to California I asked him if he would be too much occupied to attend to a commission for me.

"Your slightest wish, Lucile, is a supreme command to me," he replied, in his nonsensical way which I know is more than half serious. "Only don't expect me to show any intelligence about wearing apparel, for I wouldn't know a Chinese kimono from a Mexican serapi."

"Oh, Dex," I said, "you know I wouldn't bother you to shop for any clothes. Indeed, the only thing I can think of that I would wish is one of those gorgeously embroidered Chinese shawls, but that is quite beyond me. What I was thinking of was a box of those delicious California fruits. Never in my life have I had my satisfy of them, and this seems to be a good chance to send for a nice large box."

"You bet it is. I'll bring you the best box to be found in San Francisco," promised Dexter, and he certainly did bring me the most lucious looking box made of Chinese basketry and filled with pounds and pounds of delectable candied fruits. When I said that I must owe him a fortune for it he laughed and said a moratorium had been declared, and when it was lifted I could pay him in fudge.

My Cousin Annabel and her two children were visiting us when Dexter brought the box, and I decided immediately to put it some place where those wild little boys could not find it, for they are the worst land pirates I ever saw, getting into everything all the time. Nothing in the house seemed safe from their meddling fingers. I can't see why mother ever had them come to us for a whole week. I was nearly exhausted at the end of their stay, but I was so delighted to have them gone that on the night of their departure I celebrated by asking a few friends in to play bridge. There was a little chill in the air, so I made the room very cosy by lighting the fire which we always keep laid in the living room.

"I have a special treat for you," I remarked gayly as we were counting our scores. "I'm going to let you all have a taste of the marvelous sweets that were brought to me from California." I smiled at Dexter. He drew me aside and said sotto voce that perhaps I had better look into the box carefully before I passed it around, if I had not already examined it.

"Very well," I said, much intrigued by his mysterious manner, and then, happening to look at the embers on the hearth, I gave a cry, as I suddenly remembered that I had secreted my box of candied fruit in the fireplace to keep it away from Annabel's imps.

"Oh, oh," I fairly screamed, and every one looked at me in astonishment. I sank into a chair and covered my face with my hands.

"What is the matter?" asked Louise Fuller who flew to my side.

"It's nothing," I managed to say, but I kept my face covered, for I did not wish anyone to see my tears of vexation.

"Get some water, Dexter," said Louise. "She's fainting."

"No, no, I'll be all right in a minute," I moaned.

"It is your heart?" asked Louise. "Have you ever had an attack like this before? The place for you is bed."

Of course the party broke up, and I was grateful to have my guests leave without discovering my little misfortune.

Early the next morning Dexter phoned to ask how I was, and I gayly informed him that I was quite fit again. He asked if I had opened the box yet.

"No," I answered as casually as I could, "not yet."

"I thought maybe you were lounging in your Chinese embroidered shawl. I never would have got into Lucile, is packed in a compartment in the bottom of that fruit box."

"Oh, Dexter," I cried, "how perfectly wonderful of you!"

I do hope that he took the tremble in my voice for happiness, instead of the fearful disappointment that I was actually feeling. I could have torn my hair at the thought of that burned shawl. I never would have got into this disgusting predicament if mother had not had Annabel and her frightful children here.

I just cannot decide whether to tell Dexter or not. Perhaps if he knew how bad I feel about the loss of that shawl he would try to make it up to me in some way. He is a generous old dear.—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Ottmar Mergenthaler, the Great Inventor

Over in Germany in 1854 there was born in the home of a humble teacher a boy who was destined to invent the linotype machine, that marvelous and intricate apparatus that has made the modern daily newspaper a possibility. There was very little money for the support of the family, and the boy, as soon as he could, had to help in the most common tasks of the household. At 14 he was set to work with a watch maker, and at once showed great mechanical ability. In the daytime he worked hard at his task, and in the evening he went to night-school, where he studied mechanical drawing. At 18 the boy borrowed enough money to make the trip to the United States, where he was promised employment with his cousin.

Thus, in 1872, Ottmar Merxenthaler, with some 500 others who were likewise seeking fortune in the land of opportunity, took his place in the crowded steerage of an Atlantic liner and ultimately landed in Baltimore. In the Washington shop to which he went he soon became foreman. There he grew familiar with the ingenious tools and machines and the making of accurate instruments. Through a friend he developed a form of copying machine, and was thereby led to interest himself in typesetting and printing. Thereupon he began his experiments that led to the making of the linotype machine.

At one time his experiments proved of so little value, and he was so destitute of money, that he took all his drawings and plans and tore them up. Shortly afterwards, supporters having been found, he resumed his work. He had begun by trying to use papier-mache, but after a long series of disappointments he saw at last that the thing to do was to cast actual type metal at once. In 1884, when he was 30 years old, he perfected a machine that at once set type and cast it in a form. The machine was still far from the marvelous machine of today, and he continued to improve it from year to year, patiently experimenting and devising.

Tuberculosis came upon him and various misfortunes drew upon his strength. He died at 45, but he had lived to see his great invention a success, and to receive medals, high honors and great financial rewards. Today there is scarcely a printing office in the United States that does not owe thanks to the genius of the German immigrant.

Stories That Recall Others

Time For Nurse to Nap.

This little miss was persistent. She liked to get out in the garden when the gardener was at work, but her nurse was careful to see that she shouldn't. Going out of doors and heading in that direction the nurse called to her to come back. She minded. It was not long after when she was seen going in her favorite direction and was recalled. Then she cam einto the house and going out another door circled around in expectation of escaping notice. It failed, but she came back and stood under the window where the nurse was sitting and she exclaimed, after a few minutes of thought: "Isn't it about time Miss X for you to take your nap?"

He Loved Her, Anyway.

At a social gathering the other night the host proposed to his guests, mostly middle aged married folk, a more or less new game. The key was: "I love my love because she is ——," the idea being that the first player should supply a word beginning with "a" which described his love, the second a quality beginning with "b," and so on.

"My love" was loved because she was "charming," "demure," and so on until the eighth player was reached. The letter "h" was his.

He happened to be at the party alone, his wife having remained at home, and there had been current gossip that they did not get along any too well.

There was therefore no little merriment when he responded: "I love my love because she is home."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

THE KHYBER PASS

The Khyber pass, one of the world's famous trade arteries, will soon echo to the whistle of the locomotive. This month, according to dispatches from India, a new section of railway on the highroad to Afghanistan has been formally opened.

"Located as it is, in the northwest corner of India and at the head of the 'Broad road' or 'Main street' of Kipling's lama and his youthful disciple 'Kim,' Khyber pass is the key to the back door of India," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "It is one of the few breaks in that encircling wall of mountains and deserts which has been the main ally of the British in protecting their hard-won domains from the inroads of the independent and lawless tribes of the north and the west.

"The seeker of romance, of contrasts, and of danger might well end his journey here. As one writer says, 'There is perhaps no other mountain passway in the world so historic as this, so filled with the ghosts of armies, so thoroughly soaked with romance and battle and blood.' Many centuries before the roar of the motor truck, its canyon like walls reverberated to the shouts of Alexander and his Greeks. It has known in turn the exultant cries of the Mosuls, the Afghans and the pioneer English. For more than 30 centuries Khyber pass has been a great floodgate, through which, in turn, men have poured in search of conquest, adventure, and trade.

"Beginning at Fort Jamrud, an outpost surrounded by tents and adobe houses a little more than ten miles from Peshawar, the new railroad parallels the roads of the pass as it winds and twists its way in a northwesterly direction to Ali Masjid, located in a cupilke depression at the highest point in the pass. This is the limit of the line. Here the highway begins its descent, through the narrowest and most treacherous section of the pass to Landi Kotal, the last Indian town. Six miles farther on it the Afghan border. Throughout its length the twisting defile is a gloomy gorge, into some parts of which the direct rays of the sun never penetrate. High precipices, treeless and desolate, but very impressive in their vivid colorings and dense shadows, make easier to comprehend the difficulties in protecting the route.

"Although the entire pass is in British territory, safe conduct is offered two days in the week. At dawn Tuesdays and Fridays merchants and their caravans assemble at each end of the pass and there is a great hurry and scramble to get through before sunset. On these two days troops occupy the hilltop blockhouses and are stationed along the road to protect the caravans from snipers and highwaymen. By herding all the traffic into two weekly passages, too, there is the added safety of numbers. At all Masjid the two streams of traffic meet at midday, thus the highway in either direction can be devoted to one-way traffic. On other days the road is deserted.

"What arrangements will be made to increase this margin of safety, now that the railroad covers half of the distance through the pass, has not been stated. The government of Afghanistan has maintained its 'Absolutely Forbidden to Cross This Border Into Afghan Territory' sign, for many decades, and the railroad will increase the number of 'one-foot' visitors to Afghanistan (i. e. tourists who step over the border so they can have something out of the ordinary to tell the folks back home.) What effect it will have in bringing about a change in the 'splendid isolation' of the Afghans remains to be seen.

"Some of the wild land beyond the pass in Afghanistan is exceedingly beautiful, resembling, according to the few Europeans who have seen it, the famous Vale of Kashmir, the land of Lalla Rookh. Areas around the headwaters of the Kabul river, the most important river in the kingdom, have not been explored by Europeans since the days when Alexander made his way to India.

"More interesting than the scenery of the pass are the Afridis, the untamed tribesmen who live in the vicinity of the passes, between their country and India. They are powerful, independent, treacherous and ferocious. Hiding in the seams of the hills they once picked off with their trusty muskets travelers on the roads below. Many punitive expeditions were sent against them, expeditions which were as unfruitful as the Moroccan campaigns against the Riffs.

"Acting on the principle that a thief can catch a thief, however, the British have been more successful. The daring plan was conceived of training and arming the wild tribesmen of the pass into a protective body. The 'Khyber Rifles,' composed entirely of Afridi, tribesmen under English officers, has become a famous and successful British colonial military organization. Tall, stalwart men, who do not seem to know the meaning of fear, they have figured in much of the literature concerning the safeguarding of the northwest frontier of India. They are crack shots and many of them have callous spots on their right cheeks caused by the recoil of their rifles when fired.

"The weather, too, plays a part in the drama of contrasts of the pass. In the winter Khyber pass is cold, windy, and more like the Near East than India, but in the summer this crash in the sunshot hills is a fiery furnace with temperatures as high as 112 degrees. The atmosphere shimmers in heat waves like the surface of a boiling cauldron,' one visitor reports. Then the shaggy Bactrian camels are not seen and the sturdy little donkeys and cumbersome ox teams struggle along as best they can in the terrific heat. Occasionally a lumbering military motor lorry crowds its way through the caravans, leaving a cloud of choking dust in its wake."

ISSUES WARNING ON STOLEN MONEY ORDERS

Post office departments have been advised to call attention to activity shown by money order thieves and forgers which have brought heavy losses on banks and merchants by the cashing of false orders and in some cases care is not used in accepting postal money orders. It is stated that a postal money order should no more be cashed without identification than a bank check. The postmaster-general offers a reward of between $50 and $200 for the arrest and conviction of a person for breaking into a post office and stealing property of the United States and this includes money order forms. The government offers a reward in the matter of theft, but not in that of forging money orders.

JURY VERDICT FOR $1 GIVEN IN BOZRAH SLANDER CASE TRIAL

After being out from 2 to 4.47 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, the jury in the superior court in the slander suit of Israel Botnick of Bozrahville against Nathan Gilman and his wife, Clara Gilman, of the same place, brought in a verdict of $1 damages against Mr. Gilman, but a verdict for the defendant in the case of Mrs. Gilman. The suit was brought for $5,000 damages.

Judge C. L. Avery accepted the verdicts and directed Clerk George E. Parsons to record them. Court then adjourned till Friday morning but the jurors were excused till Tuesday morning of next week.

The case went to the jury at 2 o'clock. At 3.40 they returned from the jury room and through their foreman, S. Clinton Rogers, reported that they had been unable to agree upon a verdict.

Judge Avery addressed the jury, reminding them that the trial of the case had taken two court days and it was unlikely that any other twelve men could have any better understanding of the case than they had. He suggested that if there were any considerable majority, one way of the other, the minority ought to consider seriously whether it was not possible to come to an agreement, while every man was entitled to his reasonable opinion. The judge told he should send them back to consider the case further.

At 4.47 the jury returned with its verdict. When the verdict slip had been handed to Judge Avery, he called attention to the fact that they had brought in a verdict on one defendant and not the other. "We haven't found her liable," responded Foreman Rogers. "Then you should bring in a defendant's verdict in that case," replied the judge as he sent them back again to the jury room to prepare that verdict in regular form.

Upon their return both verdicts were read and recorded as already stated.

Defense Testimony

When court came in for the morning defense testimony was put on in the suit which is on the claim of slander on the allegation that Mr. and Mrs. Gilman said in the hearing of others that Botnick had set fire to his store that was burned in Bozrahville on a night in December, 1919.

Chief Howard L. Stanton, of the Norwich fire department, tesified that on Dec. 2, 1919, he was called out to a fire in Bozrahville, the call coming in at 1.14 a. m. Chief Stanton says he responded with three men When they arrived the building was nearly destroyed so the department returned, the witness testified.

"I asked Mr. Gilman in regard to the origin of the fire and he was unable to give me any information." said Chief Stanton, "who also said that Gilman did not intimate that Botnick set the fire." The records show that the origin of the fire is unknown."

Chief Stanton said that if Mr. Gilman had mentioned anyone, he would have called in the state police.

Ebenezer Learned, an insurance agent of this city, testified that he insured the Gilman property at Bozrah for $1,000; $1500 on the building, $250 on the contents, $100 church furniture and $400 on grain. The loss paid was $1,250. The building could hardly be replaced for $5,000 to $10,000 Mr. Learned said.

Recalled to the stand, Mr. Gilman said he had no other insurance on the building.

Mrs. Gilman denied that she had many any accusations against Botnick in the presence of those named in the complaint or that she had said "There goes the firebug," to Botnick's son Mrs. Gilman further testified that she went to the fire with her husband. The first thing she did was to give the alarm to the neighbors. Mr. Gilman broke the post office door in order to get into the building.

Mrs. Gilman said that she never talked to Botnick after the fire. There was no doorway between the post office and the store. There were several openings large enough to admit a person and several slots for letters.

George F. Burdick of Lebanon, who was night watchman at Bozrah, testified that his wife first discovered the fire. His wife said to him that there was a light in the store. The witness said that he went to get Mr. Gilman, after which both went to the store. Mr. Burdick said that he tried to get into the store, but was unable to after it was found that the building was a mass of flames he did not go into the store but took the bottom hinge off in an effort to get in.

Botnick was recalled to the stand in rebuttal, producing his bank book for the last four months of 1919. He was questioned where he got the money from the time of the fire to a year afterwards. He replied that he collected from people who owed him. The figures showed that he had deposited at the rate of about $1000 a month in the bank.

At this point both sides rested and the arguments were made by Attorney John H. Barnes for the plaintiff and C. Hadlai Hull for the defendant. After Judge Avery had concluded his charge to the jury he declared the noon recess.

BURNED MOTHER'S BARN—GIRL SENT TO STATE FARM

Committment to the East Lyme state farm for women for four years for wilfully burning her mother's barn containing horses and cattle, was the sentence imposed on Carrie Nieman, 23, of Ellington in the superior court at Rockville, Tuesday morning. The offense was committed September 27. Judge Allyn L. Brown, of Norwich, gave her a severe reprimand and said she could be sent to the state prison for ten years for the offense.

The December sitting was opened Tuesday morning by Sheriff Fred O. Vinton of Eagleville. Prayer was offered by Rev. Henry A. Coolidge, pastor of the Congregational church of Union.

William L. Torrey, '68, was sentenced to one year in jail for indecent assault on his 13-years-old granddaughter. Judge Brown in reprimanding him, said that if it wasn't for his age he would be sent to state prison.

Harold Putney, 22, of Stafford, for an assault on an inmate at the Mansfield School for Girls, was sentenced to jail for nine months.

Eugene Rivette, 35, charged with the same offense, received nine months in jail.

For the theft of a $150 diamond ring from Mrs. Mary M. Dowd of Ellington, George Freeman was sentenced to jail for eight months.

Lawyer Harold Boardman of Hartford, made a plea to save a 18 year old boy from being committed to the reform school on the charge of breaking and entering in the daytime and with forgery. The second charge was later nolled by State Attorney Noone, when the boy pleaded guilty to the first charge. His teacher from Ellington made a plea in his behalf. It was alleged that the boy entered the home of John Ford and stole articles on August 30, also forged checks. A compromise was finally reached and the boy was sentenced to the state reformatory and the sentence suspended. Judge Harrison L. Hamilton of Ellington was appointed special probation officer, as the accused was placed on parole for a year.

The defendants in the remaining cases pleaded not guilty and their cases will be assigned for trial this week. But one appeal was vacated, that of Alfred Forster of Rockville, charged with breach of peace.

Two civil cases were heard Wednesday: Bertha Clark against Leonard Clark; and Liber Buchman against Jake Berkowitz.

Preceding the pageant a musical program by the Misses Lois and Mildred Leffingwell, Mary Hyrack and Zelda Mowry, was well rendered. Their numbers included "What Shall the Harvest Be?" and "Let Us Scatter Seeds of Kindness." Miss Carolyn Beebe was at the piano.

Miss Carolyn Beebe's solos, Slumber Boat and The Rose's Cup were much enjoyed. Mrs. Beebe was the accompanist.

A piano solo by Miss Mildred Leffingwell closed the program. Mrs. Whiting, Miss Beard and C. E. Ellis kindly loaned the use of their cars to convey the children.

CHANGE MEETING NIGHT FOR WEST END ASSOCIATION

Reports that showed the good condition of the West End Community association were made at the regular meeting held Tuesday evening at the Elizabeth street school auditorium with President C. E. Carpenter in the chair. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were presented and accepted, the latter showing a good balance in the treasury. Several new members were voted in.

It was voted to change the meeting night from the first Tuesday in the month to the third Monday, beginning in January. Fred M. Oat reported that the skating pond has been flooded and is all ready for a good freeze to open this sport for the winter. Mrs. Eugene Calkins reported for the welfare committee that Thanksgiving dinners and warm clothing had been given to needy persons. For the entertainment committee Mrs. Frank I. Royce reported that $179.50 had been cleared by the District School entertainment that was given in November and that plans have been made for the annual New Year's eve party.

The entertainment part of the evening was in charge of Howard O. Smith, modern and old fashioned dances being enjoyed, for which the music was by the Mohegan orchestra, Albert Smith director, Charles Burke, prompting. The evening was one of great enjoyment for the association membership.

MADE COMPENSATION AWARD FOR SCHOOLBOY WORKER

In a workmen's compensation award in the claim of Fred Schwartz, of 28 Maple street, this city, against the National Economy Stores, Inc., of New London, Commissioner J. J. Donohue has awarded the claimant $ 1-2 weeks at $6 a week. The claimant, who is a minor, worked for the store during the school vacation in the summer and returned to school Sept. 10, 1925. He was injured July 13, when his index finger was caught on a nail on a potato barrel in the store. The commissioner finds that the compensation ends at the time the youth returned to school, although he received some medical attention thereafter. The respondent is also ordered to reimburse the boy's father, Hyman Schwartz, for the amount he expended for physicans in treatment of the injured finger.

WANDERING HORSE CAUSE OF THREE-CORNERED ACCIDENT

A party of Norwich Knights of Pythias, traveling in three local machines and bound for Colchester, figured in a three cornered accident Tuesday evening about nine o'clock on the Colchester road near what is known as the Starr Sullivan farm in Bozrah. All occupants of the three machines fortunately escaped injury.

The local men were driving to Colchester to take the third degree of the Knights of Pythias at the Colchester lodge rooms. They were riding in the Cadillac sedan owned by Abner Schwartz and driven by Harry Schwartz of No. 23 Perkins avenue, the Dodge sedan owned by Alex Pasnik and driven by David Cohen of No. 23 West Main street and a machine driven by a Mr. Maiman of this city.

It was dark and raining and the roads were slippery. The three machines were traveling together with Mr. Pasnik's sedan in the lead. As they approached the Sullivan farm a large and dark brown horse which had wandered on to the road from the field on the right hand side, suddenly loomed up in front of Mr. Pasnik's machine. Mr. Cohen, the driver, saw the horse when he was within a few feet of it. He pulled up to the side of the road and stopped without hitting the animal.

Mr. Schwartz who was right behind pulled over to the left of the road in order to avoid both the sedan and the horse. One of his wheels hooked onto a roadscraper left by the roadside and the machine swung completely around so that it was facing the opposite way. The headlights on Mr. Schwartz's machine blinded the driver of the third machine. The latter put on his brakes, skidded around so that his machine crashed into the Cadillac.

In the meantime, the horse, startled by the sudden appearance of the machines coming towards him, tried to get out of the way, but slipped and fell down. It regained its feet without injury. None of the occupants of the machines were injured.

Mr. Schwartz's machine was damaged about the rear end of the body and the right side of the body of Mr. Pasnik's sedan was quite badly wrecked. The Maiman machine was also damaged.

After the accident the machines proceeded to their destination in Colchester where the men took the third degree, according to their plans.

Says — Now Stiff Joints Must Go!

New Discovery Limbers 'Em Up and Even the Creaking Ceases.

Yes; it's true—the world progresses. All you have to do nowadays to limber up that old stiff, creaky knee joint is to squeeze a half inch of miracle-working substance from a tube.

Then rub it on the offending part for about a quarter of a minute or until it soaks through the skin and disappears on its errand of mercy.

Then read the evening newspaper and go to bed.

The chances are that your misbehaving knee joint will lose its creak while you are dreaming about the high fences you used to leap when you were a youngster.

"And in the morning," says one who has tried the new discovery, "you'll feel so happy that you'll want to jump into your sportiest clothes and walk briskly down the street just to show the neighbors that you are not as old as they think you are."

Joint-Ease: They call this wonder-working substance, for the reason that when ordinary remedies fail to limber up the stiff, inflamed rheumatic joint or reduce the swelling, Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's a good name for a good, clean, stainless prescription that in just a few months has proven to a multitude of people that lame, swollen, distorted joints can speedily have the kinks taken out of them and work as smoothly as ever.

But Joint-Ease is for bothersome joints, whether in knee, elbow, ankle, hip, shoulder, spine or finger, and for that purpose its sale, at 60 cents a tube, is immense.

Lee & Osgood Co. sells dozens of tubes of it every week and druggists everywhere report a big demand.

Always remember, when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—quick.

BELGIAN CHAMPION WINS WORLD'S BILLIARD TITLE FROM SCHAEFER

CHICAGO, Dec. 2—(A. P.)—After the most extraordinary display of billiards ever witnessed, young Jake Schaefer, lost the world's championship at 18.2 balkline billiards to Edouard Horemans the Belgian champion, 2,500 to 1,495 here tonight. Schaefer took the lead with a world's record run of 432 but fell down in his next inning and the little Belgian debroned him by a run of 74.

Eouard Horemans clipped off 100 points in his first start tonight in the final 500 point block of the 1500 point championship match contest with Jake Schaefer.

J. Herbert Levis of Chicago, again was referee, despite Schaefer's objection to him. Levis ruled against Schaefer on a shot last night that permitted Horemans to complete the second block of 500 with a run of 131. It was that run Horesmans completed tonight with 100, giving him a run of 231.

Schaefer continued play with Levis only upon agreement that the loser could challenge inside of thirty days.

Schaefer played unsteadily and had no control over the balls. He scored 64 and 18 in two tries, while Horemans ran 135 in his second effort of the evening. The score was 1235 to 995. Horemans was playing with extreme care with the championship possibility only a step away.

Horemans took dead aim on every shot. If a shot appeared the least bit difficult he would sight it from all angles before gripping his cue. Once he walked three times around the table seeking the proper angle for the shot.

In that manner he counted 80 before he missed a lineup in the middle of the table. Schaefer has made much harder shots than Horemans left him, and may have missed intentionally to play Horemans safe. Safety became the order of the evening, both missing their next tries.

The score then was Schaefer 999, Horemans 1,315.

Horemans got 11 and missed a two foot draw shot at the foot of the table. Schaefer stepped to the table facing a deficit of 331 points.

"Come on, Jake," the crowd begged. They remembered once when Jake ran 400 from spot and if a man could do that, 331 was not a too severe handicap. Ten was his best, however. He left an impossible shot and Horemans missed, after mopping his brow and sighing.

Schaefer shot a 51. The score then was: Schaefer 1055; Horemans 1,327.

Horemans made 13, his last counter being a four foot masse which cost him control of the balls.

Schaefer lucked one, made one, lucked another and made another for a count of four. Shooting his same careful precise game Horemans kept control of the balls until he missed at 86, within 75 points of the championship, while Schaefer still needed 441 to retain his crown.

With a display of rare courage, the champion set about retaining his crown for the first time during the block playing the game of which he is capable. He scored rapidly and re-passed his previous high run of 153. At 150 he had good control of the balls.

At 197 Schaefer encountered a lineup along the foot rail and played a marvelous three cushion. He was pale and his jaws were set, but his stroke never faltered.

At 237 he set a new high run for the match, beating Horemans' 236 made the opening night.

When he reached 309 he made a new record for a high run in match play in 500 point blocks. The old record of 308 was made by Willie Hoppe against Welker Cochran.

Schaefer erased what had appeared to be an unsurmountable lead by continuing his world's record run to 367. The score was then Schaefer 1,426; Horemans 1,425. Schaefer still was in control of the balls.

Schaefer set another record when he reached 401. Once he ran out from the opening shot in a 400 point block. At 420 he needed only 21 more to keep his title.

When he was within nine points of retaining his crown, Schaefer missed a hard bank from the red at the side rail to the white at the end. Horemans needed 75 and got only one. Schaefer then tried for his nine.

HAWLEY PICKS HIS ALL-AMERICAN TEAM

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(A. P.)—Because of the outstanding position occupied by Dartmouth on the national football horizon this year, unusual interest is attached to the All-American team picked today by the Green's head coach, Jess Hawley, and wired to The Associated Press from French Lick, Ind.

Hawley honors three of his own stars, Parker, Diehl and Oberlander, with places on the team, but does not pick his brilliant end, Tully, who has been placed on nearly every All-American team named so far.

Illinois has two players on Hawley's eleven but no other team has more than one representative. Five eastern, four middle western and two far western men are included on the team, which follows:

Ends — Oosterban, Michigan, and Kassel, Illinois.

Tackles — Parker, Dartmouth, and Weir, Nebraska.

Guards—Diehl, Dartmouth, and Sturham, Yale.

Center—McMillan, Princeton.

Quarterback—Grange, Illinois.

Halfbacks—Oberlander, Darthmouth, and Wilson, Washington.

Fullback—Nevers, Stanford.

REMARKABLE INDIVIDUAL SCORING FEATURES 1925 FOOTBALL SEASON

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—(By the Associated Press)—Completion of the 1925 collegiate football season has terminated remarkable individual scoring records in the middle west and east by two famous toters of ice tongs and pigskins—Red Grange of Illinois and Eddie Tryon of Colgate.

Because he entered Colgate prior to the adoption there of the freshman rule, it has been possible for Tryon in four consecutive years of play to pile up 350 points, an average of 87 1-2 per season.

A comparison of the records of Grange and Tryon shows that the Colgate back outscored the flame-haired flash of the Illini by almost 100 points during the three-year period that Red wore Jersey No. 77.

Grange amassed a total of 186 during his varsity career, leading the western conference field in 1923 and 1924 with 72 and 78, respectively. He fell off slightly this season with 36.

Grange's scoring was confined to the making of touchdowns, while Tryon branched out into field-goal kicking from scrimmage and after touchdowns. This aided him in establishing an amazing mark of 284 points in his last three seasons.

Even in carting the ball across enemy goal lines, Tryon bested Grange in their scoring duel of the last three years, the Colgate star chalking up 43 touchdowns to 31 for the Zuppke ace. Tryon made 15 in 1923 and 14 in both 1924 and 1925, while Grange tallied 12 in 1923, 13 in 1924 and 6 this season.

The New York state player began his spectacular career by scoring 11 touchdowns for 66 points in 1922, finishing in a tie with Pfann of Cornell for fourth place. Brunner of Lafayette topped the field that year with 86 points, Wilson of Penn State, now in the Army backfield, being second with 73.

The following season Tryon again the east, the Colgate player that year the east. The Colgate player that year, with 84 points. In 1924 he scored 89 points but finished fourth to Henry Benkert of Rutgers, who led with 100.

Finishing at the top of the list this year with a total of 111 points, Tryon completed his remarkable collegiate gridiron career 136 points higher than his nearest eastern rival, Zev Graham of Fordham, in total points for the last three seasons.

Scoring records of backfield stars in the east who completed their third season on the gridiron this year follows:

NUTMEGS WILL PLAY LORRAINE TEAM SUNDAY

The Nutmegs will probably play the Lorraine Mills team of Westerly, R. I., and Pawcatuck, Conn., this Sunday at Sachem Field, Falls. The last time these teams met Lorraine emerged the winner after a hard game. The final score was 12 to 6. If this game, which is now in the offering, should be arranged there will be action aplenty as both teams are about evenly matched in regards to weight, football ability and general all-round play. If Sunday's game be arranged, it will probably afford local grid fans their last opportunity to witness a football game in the season of 1925 as all other local teams have closed up shop for the season.

A BASEBALL IS INSURED FOR $250 BY OWNER

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The $50,000 baseball, so-called because it is the one which Hazen ("Kiki") Cuyler hit to right field for two bases in the eighth inning of the last game of the world's series, clinching the title for the Pirates and enriching the players for that amount, has been insured for $250 by a New York jewelry concern, John F. SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

When asked recently whom he considered the best backfield man in the "Big Three," Tad Jones, Yale coach, hesitated not a second in replying, "Jake Slage of Princeton."

Chick Meehan, former Syracuse coach who has enjoyed a creditable season in New York university football, has left for Florida where he will be an official in the Rollins-Oglethorpe game Saturday.

Sentiment for a shorter season in both Major leagues appears to be growing with the annual meetings only a week away.

The new Municipal field in Philadelphia, seating 100,000, and Franklin field, which next season will be able to handle 82,500, are said to have bid for next year's Army-Navy football game.

When winter's snow is falling outside—and the noise of wind roars through the trees—when the house is dark but for the blazing logs in the fireplace

—have a Camel!

WHEN it's a winter night and the day that was busy is done. And outside the snow is driving through the trees before the wind. When, inside, the crackling logs catch fire and burst into flames above the hearth—have a Camel!

For Camel is the tried and trusted friend of millions of experienced smokers. Whether your returning steps bring you home tired or jubilant, no sweeter, more mellow fragrance ever came to you from a cigarette. There's not a cigaretty after-taste, not a tired taste in a whole county full of Camels. Only mild and mellow flavor, deep-down contentment in your home or any home where Camels are lighted.

So this night, before your roaring logs of oak or hickory—have a Camel. Open up the famous package of Camels and know the fragrance, the contentment that brings happiness to millions. Put a Camel between you and a light and taste the mellowest, most delectable blend ever made into a cigarette.

Have a Camel!

No other cigarette in the world is like Camels. Camels contain the choicest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. The Camel blend is the triumph of expert blenders. Even the Camel cigarette paper is the finest—made especially in France. Into this one brand of cigarettes is concentrated the experience and skill of the largest tobacco organization in the world.

Our highest wish, if you do not yet know Camel quality, is that you try them. We invite you to compare Camels with any cigarette made at any price.

KILLINGLY HIGH SCHOOL FAIR IS GREAT SUCCESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 3—People who have been attending the fair arranged in the town hall by the Vocational Agricultural club of Killingly High school have been tremendously impressed Here is a show in which all the vegetables shown were grown by Killingly High school students and all of the poultry raised by them. The excellence of the exhibits entitle them to all the praise and applause they have received. The show is splendid. Any citizen who may have gained the impression that the agriculture, poultry and dairy course at the high school is just a diversion must completely revise his opinion after an inspection of the exhibits, which would attract attention and marked attention, at any agricultural show in the county. The object of the fair is to acquaint the public with vocational agriculture. No citizen will miss it if he is interested in high school activities. This is generous praise, but it is really deserved.

Under the direction of Walter G. Bruce of the high school faculty, the students planned and arranged all the exhibits. Their success has been surprising and this cannot be fully appreciated until the exhibits are inspected.

First year work is shown by poultry and dairy exhibits, the second year work by crop exhibits, the third year work by farm management fact study and fourth year work by farm management economic study. All exhibits will be judged and awards made, as is done at a regular agricultural show. The judges are experts in their line. Much of the territory from which Killingly High school draws its attendance is represented at the fair.

CIVIC FEDERATION APPRECIATES PUBLICITY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 2—Appreciation was expressed on behalf of the Civic Federation Wednesday of the attention called in this column to the sale of certain seals that numbers have mistaken for the regular Christmas seal. As has been said before, the sale of the non-official seals is a perfectly legitimate act, but these seals do confuse people and divert money that otherwise would go to the Civic Federation for carrying out the splendid work it is doing here and has been doing for a number of years. The Christmas seals that are being handled here by the Civic Federation, and not by the Red Cross chapter, as announced erroneously, are now being distributed to purchasers by school children and also are available at Bitgood's and at Dowe's. Later they may be had in the lobby at the postoffice.

Incident to the construction of the new concrete bridge over the Assawaga river at Main street it will be necessary to remove the present cement walk fronting the Jarowski store building and build a new walk. This change will be necessary because the sidewalk of the new bridge is several inches higher than the sidewalk fronting the building in question.

Forms for the side rails of the new bridge were being put in position Wednesday and will be ready to receive concrete within a few days.

The top surfacing of the highway section of the bridge is to be a 2-inch coating of amesite over the concrete base.

Free cooking courses being given here by Miss Sylvia Wheelock of Putnam as a representative of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company are arousing wide-spread interest. The lessons are free and open to anyone caring to attend, either the whole course or separate lectures. High school freshmen are taking a six weeks' course, attending each Monday. On Tuesday's there is a woman's class, for a seven weeks' period; Wednesdays the seniors, juniors and sophomores are taking a course extending over six weeks. On Thursday afternoons the Plainfield Woman's club attends at the Community house at Plainfield, taking a course of six weeks and on Thursday evening's the Girls' club of Plainfield has a course, this also of six weeks.

The following is the Killingly High school basketball schedule for the season about to open: Dec. 18, Mechanicsville Boys' club, here; Jan. 1, Alumni, here; Jan. 6, Woodstock at Woodstock; January 8, Chapman Tech., here; Jan. 13, Windham High, here; Jan. 15, Rockville High, at Rockville; Jan. 22, Tourtelotte High, here; Jan. 27, Woodstock academy, here; Feb. 3, Plainfield High, at Plainfield; Feb. 5, Chapman Tech., at New London; Feb. 9, Stonington, here; Feb. 12, Putnam High, at Putnam; Feb. 17, Plainfield High, here; Feb. 19, Windham High, at Willimantic; Feb. 22, Oxford High, here; Feb. 26, Stonington at Stonington; Mar. 3, Tourtelotte Memorial High, at North Grosvernordale; March 5, Rockville High, here; March 10, Putnam High, here.

The offer of the Windham County National bank to accept any Christmas club checks in the savings department during the month of December to draw interest from December 1st, is a very attractive one.—Adv.

Red Cross Christmas seals have not lost their appeal. There are those who are now buying them and affixing them to all their outgoing mail and to such other matter as seems to warrant the use of them.

Real imported linens at prices so low as to win instant approval—towels, lunch cloths, sets, bridge sets at the Alice-Eleanor shop for the Christmas season.—Adv.

Santa Claus letters are now engaging the attention of little people who are happy in their world of dreams. The postmasters will be wondered what to do with them within the next few days.

Six-room apartment with steam heat and bath to rent at 12 Hawkins St., apply on the premises.—Adv.

William McDermott, whose home is here, writes that he is located at Topeka, Kansas, and will be there for several months. He is engaged in a financial promotion enterprise.

Mrs. Bidwell's Christmas sale tomorrow (Friday), December the fourth, at two-thirty p. m., 2 Hawkins St.—Adv.

The regular meeting of the Civic Federation will be held Friday afternoon at the Health station in the town hall building.

Delegations from the various subordinate granges making up Quinebaug Pomona grange and representative of all Windham county and some adjoining areas will be here Saturday for a regular meeting of the organization in Odd Fellows' hall.

For speeding in Main street, a Harvard youth, driving a powerful motor car, was assessed a matter of $20.74 in the town court, and paid.

WILL ANY SUFFERER REFUSE THIS OFFER?

INDIGESTION

Lee & Osgood Co. Declares Money Back If One Bottle Doesn't Make Any Stomach Sufferer Happy

Why bother with slow actors when one tablespoonful of Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a splendid and pleasant elixir will cause gas, bloating, heaviness, heartburn or any upset condition of the stomach to speedily vanish.

And why should any man or woman suffer another hour with indigestion or any stomach misery when the remedy that acts almost instantly, can be easily procured?

But there is more to say about this remarkable remedy—something that will interest thousands of despondent people.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin not only quickly relieves stomach distress, but it also conquers stubborn indigestion, dyspepsia and gastritis, and puts an end to dizziness, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness and despondency which distressing troubles are nearly always caused by chronic stomach disturbance.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin is pleasant to take, has a delightfully refreshing taste and after it has put your stomach in a clean and healthy condition, just notice how much better you look and feel, for besides correcting stomach disorders, this supremely good remedy that Lee Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere guarantee, is a fine tonic that builds you up and makes you work with vim, eat with relish and sleep soundly.

Indeed if it wasn't such a wonderfully efficient remedy tens of thousands of bottles would not be sold daily.

PUTNAM

SAYS THAT PUTNAM NEEDS NEW RESERVOIR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 3—Alexander Gilman, chairman of the board of water commissioners, told the city council at its meeting last night that a new and larger reservoir is the only practical way, or, as he expressed it, the only way in which the water pressure in certain parts of the city can be improved. To put in larger mains in this district would not do it as the pipes in other parts of the water system would not carry this increased volume of water. To lay a new and larger main from the pumping station to the reservoir would mean a heavy outlay, he asserted, and the storage tank would then prove inadequate. In his judgment a much larger reservoir in a different site is the only solution, and he thinks it will have to be built in the not distant future.

The discontinuance of the trolley cars brought up the question at this meeting of the council as to whether the batteries used for the fire-alarm system would have to be re-charged The current in the past has come from a feeder connected with the current of the trolley line. The city owns a motor-generator ready to be used for this purpose, which was bought some time ago through the foresight of R. E Thurston, head of the fire department, in anticipation of a day when the trolleys ceased to run. The agreement between the city and the Connecticut company is of such long standing that the fire committee of the council was directed to investigate and report.

A recommendation of the light committee, that four new lights be placed on Pomfret street and Hospital hill, on the street leading to the Day Kimball hospital, a much traveled highway, was ratified by the council. The present lights will also be re-spaced.

Louis E. Law, superintendent of the Hemingway Silk Co., was granted permission to build a bungalow on Grove street.

The matter of rebating taxes to the Putnam Land and Mill company, in accordance with a decree hadned down in superior court a month ago was referred to the finance committee to investigate and report:

According to the report of Captain of Police Jarvis there were 21 arrests during the month of November, for the following causes: drunkenness, 13, assault, 2, motor law violations, 5, larceny, 1, forgery, 1. Three of these offenders were sent to jail, four were turned over to other officers, seven were put under probation, one was bound over, six paid fines and costs amounting to $411.75.

As a representative of the Rotary club, A. Newton Vaughn asked permission to erect a Christmas tree in Union Square. The request was referred to the highway committee with power to act.

FORMER TROLLEY SWITCH IDEAL PLACE FOR PARKING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 2—City officials and business generally are wondering whether the discontinuance of the trolleys will not provide an answer to one of the most perplexing of local problems—parking space for automobiles. On South Main street, from the entrance to the subway under the New Haven tracks, to Grove street, there is a trolley car switch where the north and south bound cars met and passed, where at least 100 automobiles could be parked. The street is very wide at this point and automobiles and other vehicles do not have to cross the trolley tracks. The location is convenient as one has but to pass through the subway to reach the main business section of the city. Like every other place Putnam has had trouble in finding places where automobiles could be left, and conditions grow worse with the increased use of motor cars.

Charles A. Richard, alderman-at-large, and chairman of the highway committee of the city council, heartily approves of hte idea. "Unless the Connecticut company or the New Haven company have certain rights over the street where the switch is laid," he said, "it is an admirable place for parking. Or, if either of these companies have any control of that kind I cannot see why any objection would be made to using it for this purpose. It meets about all the requirements that could be asked, the location being excellent, but a minute's walk to Union Square."

Putnam lodge of Elks holds its memorial exercises Sunday, December 6. Hon. John Hughes Cassidy will be the speaker of the afternoon, and all Elks and their friends are invited to attend. The committee in charge have arranged for the following program:

Overture, Pep's orchestra; march, orchestra; invocation, Rev. James F. English; opening ceremonies, officers of the lodge; solo, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," Wallace Smith; selection, orchestra; eulogy, John Hughes Cassidy; solo, "Vale" (Farewell), Miss Dorcas Bartlett; duet, "Seek Ye the Lord," Misses Ruth and Dorcas Bartlett; selection orchestra; reading, "The Land of Beginning Again," Miss Ruth Bartlett; "Auld Lang Syne," members of the lodge; selection, orchestra.

A barn and chicken house at the farther end of School street caught fire at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning and were damaged to the extent of about $500 before the fire department extinguished the blaze.

The physicians of Putnam and surrounding towns held their monthly meeting and supper at the Day Kimball Hospital Tuesday evening. Eleven were present.

The patients, nurses and other attendants at the Day Kimball hospital enjoyed a Thanksgiving dinner, the turkeys of which, were furnished by William F. X. Rafferty, who for many years past has played the leading part in this very practical and much appreciated bit of philantropy.

The Sunbean class of the Baptist church, made up of children, visited the hospital in the afternoon with baskets of fruit for every child that was a patient there.

E. C. Rogers, proprietor of the Putnam inn, William H. Mansfield, Jr., and L. S. Lockwood of Providence, started last Sunday, for Florida, making the trip in Mr Rogers' automobile. At Washington they were joined by W. H. Thompson, of Terre Haute, Ind., who has spent the winters in Florida for several years past.

Mr. Rogers goes, as formerly stated, to view for the first time the 1,240 acre tract he owns in the Lake Okeechobee region, which he bought three years ago, long before the boom started and which is believed to be now worth mor that twenty-five times or possibly fifty times as much as it figured in the deal. He and Mr. Mansfield will alternate driving the car and they will make the trip by easy stages. The latter bought two large lots when he was in Florida a year ago and which have greatly appreciated in value although he paid a high price for them at the itme.

"June" Lockwood went along partly to complete the foresom and because he wants to see a Florida land boom while it is working overtime. He is well known in Putnam, where he spent two years while he was manager of the textile dye plant at East Putnam, which was totally destroyed by fire four years ago.

Mr. Rogers expects to be home shortly after New Years.

Mrs. Frank Burgess of Grove street, has returned from a visit with her son, Roy Burgess and Mrs. Burgess, of Worcester, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton A. Ballard were in Reading recently and were guests at a dinner given by Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Porter, of that city, in honor of their first wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ballard.

Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Morrell, of South Main street, have returned from a visit with their son, Fred Morrell, and family, of New York city.

Everett Packard has resigned his position with the Buick company to become a member of the John O. Fox company. Mr. Packard is a son-in-law of the late John O. Fox.

Charles A. Ryan democratic candidate for alderman from the first ward, is at home for a three days' leave of absence from the Newport Naval hospital, where he is receiving treatment for a painful and inflamed eye, the sight of which he lost from the irritation of mustard gas, while serving overseas with the A. E. F.

He was home over Thanksgiving on a few days' leave of absence, if that is what a furlough from a military hospital is called.

Although suffering from the trouble from his eyes for several weeks past, it did not prevent him from making a successful fight for the democratic nomination to succeed Alderman Bertaime. Except for Mr. Ryan, all of the old members of the council were renominated and as each ward is entitled to a representation from each party, his election is assured.

The impairment of Mr. Ryan's sight is believed to have been due to the mustard gas he suffered during the Chateur Thiery engagement.

PREDICTS ELECTRIFICATION WILL EXPAND RAILROADS

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 2—(A. P.)—Sidney Withington, electrical engineer of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, speaking to Yale students today in the fourth of a series of lectures at the Dunham Laboratory of Electrical Engineering, said that financial stabilization of the railroads will mean great expansion of electric operation and that electrification in many instances will be the solution of railroad problems.

"The fuel saving through this method of transportation," he said, "may be as much as 50 per cent. In addition, the electric locomotive can be maintained for between one half and one third as much as a locomotive of the same capacity. Other advantages are numerous, such as increased reliability, increased capacity of truck, and the saving of labor in handling trains.

"It should not be forgotten, however, that an electric locomotive costs two or three times as much as a steam locomotive, and that the additional mileage posible with electrification is limted in some cases by the demand of traffic."

PLANS OF NEW HAVEN RAILROAD APPROVED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—(A. P.)—Plans of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, which require a a modification of the harbor lines on the East river and the New York Harbor, south of 132nd street, to permit the development of freight yards and the construction of a dock and warehouse for the interchange of freight with ocean carriers, were approved today by the war department.

The necessity of modifying the harbor lines arose from the fact that a 40-foot depth is required at the dock and to get this the dock structure will have to be 800 feet long which would have carried it beyond the limitations set by the department.

AN ADDITIONAL STORM WARNING HAS BEEN ISSUED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—(A. P.)—The weather bureau late today issued this additional storm warning:

"Advisory—Warnings changed to whole gales 4 p. m., north of Virginia Cape sto Boston, and northeast storm warnings continue north of Boston. Hurricane central 2 p. m., between Wilmington and Hatteras, North Carolina, and moving slowly northward."

JEWETT CITY

KING'S DAUGHTERS TO SELL CHRISTMAS SEALS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 2—The sale of Christmas seals will begin this week. They are not Red Cross seals, but are sent out by the state tuberculosis commission. The work is done in this section under the direction of Dorcas Circle of the King's Daughters, and the money is for use for any person without regard to creed or nationality, who is afflicted with tuberculosis. This last year, several persons have been benefited by this fund. Miss M. A Burdick has charge of the distribution of the seals, which will be sold by the school children and placed in stores as in past years. The children do this work to help the sick people get well, as it is explained to them. The doorbells may ring numberless times, but the little ones are being taught in this way to bring cheer to sick ones. Many people buy a few from each child who calls at the door, thus helping them to sell all their seals. A supply will be at the home of Mrs. E. H. Hiscox if anyone is overlooked, or wish to purchase more.

Two more names are to be added to the Red Cross roll call, Mrs. E. B. Cheney and J. Keene.

PLAINFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. John Kingsley, of Plainfield street, returned home Tuesday evening, after spending a few days with relatives at New Bedford.

Parking cars on the south side of Railroad avenue has been prohibited. Signs for no-parking have been placed in conspicuous places, especially at the narrow congested parts of the avenue.

The second open night of the season was celebrated Monday, at the Community house. Over 500 people attended. Many entertaining features were presented by the Woodstock "gang," in which Jimmie Coffy was the star performer. A burlesque character sketch was rendered on the Charleston, by Vernon Warhurst and Leo Bergeron. A three-round sparring exhibition bout between Henry Burley and Arthur Danigan ended in a draw. The colored quartet, and the dialogues were received with much applause. A swimming exhibition was given by several participants, and 14 goldfish were released into the tank for the swimmers to catch. Edward Davignon caught five, Jack Driscoll three. James Foy two, and Leo Jolicoeur, Henry Burley, Frank and Hugh Eglen, one each. An exhibition of fancy diving was given by Samuel Thornton, swimming instructor, and Homer Vincent. The concluding pool events were relay races and fancy diving by a class of boys, in charge of Mr. Dissinger, the director. Refreshments were served and dancing in the ante rooms followed the entertainments The committee responsible for making the affair a great success comprised Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Struthers, Mr and Mrs. Thomas Hilton, Miss Elizabeth Gorman, Miss Celia Israel, assisted by Harry Baldwin and Ray Greene.

A whist party for club members only is to be held next Monday night, by the Community association.

The Plainfield grange held a regular meeting Tuesday night, followed by a very interesting program of entertainment, in charge of Mrs. Charles Barber. A reading entitled, "The Mystery of a Deck of Cards," was given by George Dawley, followed by a piano duet by Mrs. Ethel Lyons and Mrs. Susie Dodge. Mrs. Lotta Dodge gave a reading entitled, "Homely Virtues," an abstract from President Coolidge's speech, "Fraternal Fellowship." Mrs. Carrie Gardener and Mrs Helen Adams gave a pianologue, followed by a poem by Mrs. Edward Hall, entitled, "Let us Laugh on the Way." Miss Marion Barber gave a reading on "The North American Indian, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow." The greatest fun of the evening was a lunch basket sale in which the ladies stood behind a curtain, with only their feet exposed, each having a basket, bearing a lunch, concealed behind the curtain. The gentlemen bid on the lunch, from the appearance of the feet, and the highest bidder received not only the lunch basket, but was the lady's escort during the lunch period. The money raised from this novel auction sale is to be used to decorate the hall for Christmas and to supply gifts for the tree.

At a special meeting of the executive committee, of the Eastern Connecticut Mill Mens' association, held at the Community house recently, it was decided to postpone the ladies night, which was scheduled for the near future, to a later date possibly sometime in April. The secretary was instructed to write to the textile mills south of Norwich, and invite them to join the association. The committee plans to hold another meeting on January 4th., to complete details and make arrangements for the entertainment. Later in the month a regular meeting of the association will be held. Delegates were requested to find out the advisability of conducting another textile show for the coming year, and the feelings of their respective managers in regard to another textile show.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE INTERIOR DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—Protection of the government's timber lands, a revision of its reclamation policy, and a prompt and sympathetic study by Congress of the Alaskan problem, are the chief recommendations contained in the annual report of the interior department submitted to congress by Secretary Work.

Administration of the department during the past fiscal year was shown to have cost $40,137,468 less than the previous one, and savings of $82,635,930 were effected in the last two years.

Recommendations for measures to protect the timber reserves were based on the Secretary's prediction that at the present rate of consumption the country will soon be faced with a timber famine, and as a means of rehabilitating the government's reserves he urged congress to revise the Timber and Stone Act so that the present government acreage would remain intact for ten years. This act, which provides for the outright sale of public timber land, was passed by congress almost 50 years ago—long prior to the adoption of the national forest policy.

"Abuses have occurred in the past under its operation," said the report, and while subsequent measures to prevent speculation and to obtain a fair price for the timber sold by the government had been operated successfully at the expense of the government, the method was not preserving the timber.

"As soon as it passes into private ownership," the report explained "the marketable timber is usually cut and sold, young growth damaged, and brush left as a fire menace."

The section of the Timber and Stone Act relating to timber was said to be obsolete, and should, the report asserted, be repealed, the leasing or sale of stone deposits to be continued.

"I believe," said the secretary, "Congress should authorize discontinuing the sale of government-owned standing timber for a ten-year period. In Oregon, this plan would defer temporarily the amount going to the railroad and wagon road companies and the counties from timber not yet sold. The increased receipts which would accrue from later handling of the timber and resources would, accrue from later handling of the timber and resources would, however, more than compensate counties for this delay in disposition."

Calling attention to the fact that the reclamation fund, originally intended to revolve or be funded in ten years, had not been funded in 20 years, and that there are large tracts of productive lands on irrigation projects for which there are no settlers, the secretary declared that "until measures have been put in effect to solve these problems of settlement and development and the old projects have been made self-sustaining, the advisability of undertaking new projects would seem to be conjectural and the entire matter should receive the most serious attention and consideration by congress if a basically sound and unassailable permanent policy is ever to be evolved."

The secretary said a report would be made to the present congress embracing recommendations under the new reclamation law covering the proposed charging off of approximately $26,000,000 in losses to be levied against unproductive lands, which was suggested by the department's fact finding committee.

"If this relief is approved by congress," the report declared, "it will relieve farmers from indebtedness they can not meet because of obstacles such as land of little or no value. Whether the loss to the government is $26,000,000 or double that, is not of material concern when balanced against the continuance of a mistaken policy."

"Two years," the secretary said, "are not enough to correct the errors of inexperience, lack of vision, or mistaken policy. It has, however, been long enough to dispel the secrecy which has so long veiled the operations of federal reclamation. We are now entering a new era in the history of reclamation. It lies within the power of the congress to determine an equitable and economically sound policy which will remedy existing evils and make impossible the recurrence of conditions which have demoralized the Federal Reclamation service."

The secretary said that the department had been cautious in beginning application of the $4,880,000 for projects and extensions appropriated by the last Congress because of experiences with old projects, and held up entirely the $3,600,000 Baker project in Oregon. In this, he said, he had the approval of the Attorney General, and the project will be held up until congress has had time to review the department's former action.

In the interest of proper reclamation development, the Secretary said, the government should have the active cooperation of the states to the extent that the states take over the projects on their completion and assume responsibility for their settlement. This, the secretary added, the states have declined to do, and under the proposed revise policy, such a refusal by a state would be taken as evidence against the feasibility of a proposed project.

Alaska was described as a territory which is rapidly becoming a "lost province" and where opportunity for expansion had been curtailed by bureau officials "made hesitant by limited authority." The maximum population of 75,000 whites had shrunken to 20,000 (estimated) and production from its natural resources wavered and receded.

The situation, Secretary Work declared, called for a prompt and sympathetic study by congress of Alaska's natural resources and their possibilities: of its methods of government and their effect, and the question whether governmental control should be constructive in type or continue to cultivate dependency, or be removed entirely. The suggestion that all the government's activities in Alaska be merged into one department was committed to the immediate attention of congress.

To abandon the Alaskan railway, as has been suggested, the secretary said, would be a reversion of the American policy of progress' despite that the road's upkeep is expensive and out of proportion to its earnings. Suggestions that the bed of the railroad be converted into a truck highway were characterized as impracticable because of Alaskan weather conditions.

The natural shrinkage of the public domain, the secretary reported, had made possible the closing of 42 of the department's 84 land offices, and the savings effected in administration amounted to more than half a million dollars.

The secretary recommended a change in federal policy to secure permanent preservation of grazing lands on the public domain. The gratuitous use of the public domain as an unrestricted range for livestock, he said, had resulted in overgrazing and large areas were almost denuded of native grass. Legislation authorizing establishment of grazing districts by presidential proclamation was recommended so that grazing can be controlled by a system of permits.

Attention also was called to the present homestead laws limiting stock raising on tracts of 640 acres. This was said to be impracticable and the secretary urged repeal of the homestead stockraising act.

Cooperation of the states with the government in administering the affairs of the Indians was urged, especially with regard to education and health work. Complete transfer to state jurisdiction of Indian educational facilities is, in the secretary's belief, essential to the Indians' welfare and progress.

Transfer of jurisdiction over smaller national parks and monuments to the states in which they are located, and leaving to the federal government those parks and monuments of interstate, also was urged.

Mouth Organ Ancient

Probably the ancestor of the modern mouth organ is the ancient Greek musical instrument known as the Syrinx, one of the oldest of all music instruments. The modern mouth organ dates from 1830 when Christian Messner of Trossingen built his first factory at Wurtemburg. This factory still gives employment to 3,000 persons, 5,000 working at the factory and 3,000 doing piece work at home.

Losing Religious Restraints

There are 8,000,000 people in Turkey all of whom are Moslems excepting about 400,000. The restraints of Islam are rapidly being thrown off and Turkey is steadily becoming a country without a religion.

The citizens are friendly to Americans because they know this country has no territorial ambitions in their land.

Finds way to get rid of muscular aches and pains

HOW OUTDOOR MEN TREAT MUSCLE-STRAIN

Sprains, bruises, rheumatism also yield to this treatment

Outdoor men who do hard muscular work, who undergo exposure and risk of accident every day, know how necessary it is to give prompt attention to muscle-strain, bruises, sprains and other injuries.

A member of a survey party, sent out by the government of British Columbia to do sub-division work three hundred miles from civilization writes:

"The chief of our party with rare foresight brought along as a part of our first aid supply a bottle of Sloan's Liniment. And through weeks of exposure and hardship we found it our best help for sprains, bruises, stiff muscles and rheumatism."

Sloan's gives real relief because it doesn't just deaden the pain. It helps your body to throw off the cause.

Just a little Sloan's patted on lightly—and a healing tide of fresh new blood is sent right to the place that hurts. The aching and stiffness are helped right away.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Paddy Steps to Talk

You seldom lose, but sometimes gain,
By taking trouble to explain.
—Paddy the Beaver.

Paddy the Beaver had asked Peter Rabbit if he, Peter, had seen Yowler the Bob Cat the night before.

"No," replied Peter. "No, I didn't see Yowler, but I saw fresh footprints, and that was enough for me. That is why I remained right here all the rest of the night and how it happens I am here now. Did you see Yowler?"

"No," said Paddy, "but I knew he was about and that is why we are working today instead of working last night. I knew well enough that Yowler had discovered that we have started a dam down here, and that he would think it a splendid chance to get one of us. I saw his footprints and that is why we chose to rest instead of working last night. I knew that he would hang around all night expecting us to appear. Being up all night he probably is sleeping this morning. So here we are at work."

"You were saying," said Peter, "that you can see just as well in daylight as at night, and that most folk seem to making the mistake of thinking that you cannot."

"True, Peter, very true," replied Paddy. "As a matter of fact there are times when we would rather, much rather, work by day. We are less likely to be in danger then from any but those two-legged creatures called men. Beavers have been hunted so long by them and have been trapped so much that rather than be seen by them we have kept out of sight by day and worked by night, excepting in places where men seldom or never come. Here, where no one comes but Farmer Brown's boy, and he a friend, we had just as soon work by day as by night. And when we know enemies are about like Yowler the Bob Cat we would rather work when he is least likely to bother us. You see, in the daytime we have friends to help us by giving warning."

"Who?" demanded Peter, looking all about and seeing no one.

"Never mind," replied Paddy. "I'll just let you find that out for yourself. At night we usually have to depend wholly on our ears, noses and eyes, though the latter are not of very much use then. You know the most dangerous time in the lives of us Beavers is when we are building a dam." Paddy sighed. "It certainly is a dangerous time, and the very time when we ought to be free of danger so that we may do the work right."

"I don't see why it is the most dangerous time in your life," protested Peter. "I don't see why you are in any more danger than when you are cutting trees for food."

"There are times when we are cutting trees when perhaps the danger is just as great, but that is only when we are cutting a tree some distance from the water," said Paddy. "And in a great many instances we don't have to have those particular trees. We take that risk knowing just what we are doing, with our eyes open, as the saying is. But when we are building a dam, especially when we are just starting it, we have to work away from the Laughing Brook. Even when we are working close to it very often it isn't deep enough to give us any real protection. That is why it is a worrisome time for all of us until the dam is big enough to make deep water in the Laughing Brook. Even then we must work too far from the safety of the water to feel at all comfortable."

"This is a long dam we have begun here, Peter Rabbit. It is to be the longest dam I ever have worked on. Do you know what we are building it for?"

"No," said Peter.

"We are building it so as to cut those young poplar trees you showed me the other day," replied Paddy.

"Really?" cried Peter delightfully.

"Yes, really," replied Paddy.

"But those trees are a long way from here," cried Peter.

"I know it" said Paddy with a sigh.

POETRY

"Down to Sleep."

November woods are bare and still;
November days are clear and bright;
Each noon burns up the morning chill;
The morning's snow is gone by night,
Each day my steps grow slow, grow light,
As though the woods I reverent creep,
Watching all things lie "down to sleep."

I never knew before what beds,
Fragrant to smell and soft to touch,
The forest sifts and shapes and spreads,
I never knew before how much
Of human sound there is in such
Low tones as through the forest sweep,
When all wild things lie "down to sleep."

Each day I find new coverlids
Tucked in, and more sweet eyes shut tight;
Sometimes the viewless mother bids
Her ferns kneel down, full in my sight;
I hear their chorus of "good night;"
And half I smile and half I weep,
Listening while they lie "down to sleep."

November woods are bare and still;
November days are bright and good,
Life's noon burns up life's morning chill;
Life's night rests feet which long have stood;
Some warm soft bed in field or wood
The mother will not fail to keep,
Where we can "lay us down to sleep."

—Helen Hunt Jackson.

The Flight of the Heart

The heart soars up like a bird
From a nest of care;
Up, up to a larger sky,
To a softer air.

No eye can measure its flight,
And no hand can tame;
It mounts in beauty and light,
In music and flame.

Of all the changes of time
There is none like this;
The heart soars up like a bird
At the stroke of bliss.

The heart soars up like a bird,
But its wings soon tire;
Enough of rapture and song,
The cloud and the fire!

Its look, the look of a king—
Of a slave, its birth,
The poor, tired, impotent thing
Sinks back to the earth.

And the mother spreads her lap,
And she lulls its pain;
"Oh, thou who sighed for the sun,
Art thou mine again?"

—Dora Reed Goodale.

JOHN MARVINS, NEW LONDON, ARRESTED FOR VIOLATION OF THE LIQUOR LAW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 3—John Marino, 619 Bank street, was taken into custody early this evening, charged with violation of the liquor law, following his residence being raided by state and local police. Sufficient evidence was obtained by the raiding force to warrant Marino being held in bail of $100 for trial in the police court tomorrow morning. He secured a surety on his bond in Mrs. Rose D'Elia, Jefferson avenue.

Last night Ben Ketzweger, a stranger to the police, appeared in a restaurant on lower Bank street and displayed a bottle of wine, which he offered for sale to customers of the restaurant. So persistent was Ketzweger that State Police Officer Frank Kulowski, who was in the restaurant followed him to the street and then compelled the owner of the liquor to deliver it to him after Kulowski had made it known to Ketzweger that he was a police officer. Kulowski took the liquor to the state police barracks, Groton, and this morning caused it to be tested to determine its alcoholic strength. The test showed the liquor to be of strength of 12 1-2 per cent.

This afternoon Kulowski visited the police station, and, accompanied by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolmen Dennis Cavanaugh and William Graham, procured a search warrant from Judge S. Victor Prince. They swooped down on the Marino place, which is a tenement above a store, and conducted a systematic search of the house. A pint of liquor, together with several containers, were found in various parts of the house and were seized as additional evidence against Marino.

This afternoon deeds transferring title to building lots in the recently developed Charles S. Guthrie tract, Lower Boulevard and Pequot avenue, were received for record at the office of the city clerk. One of the deeds received transferred title to Carlos Barry, lot No. 10, Parkway. Another deed transferred title to lots 17 and 18 to Joseph S. Stanners. The two deeds contained numerous restrictions as to use and among other restrictions was a provision that no structure should be erected upon either tract that did not exceed a cost of $7,000. Purchasers covenanted not to sell within five years from Jan. 1, 1926, without written consent of the grantors. Stores, hotels, or other business structures are prohibited by other restrictions of the deed.

Mrs. James Griffith, about 60, and residing with her son, Ray V. Griffith, Vauxhall street extention, Waterford, is missing from home and fears are entertained by relatives of the woman for her safety. Mrs. Griffith, who has made her home with her son for some time disappeared yesterday morning and when she failed to present herself today, the woman's son instituted a search in the hopes of locating his mother. When he was unsuccessful in his mission Griffith went to the police station and requested the assistance of the police in locating his mother. Mrs. Griffith underwent an operation recently at Lawrence hospital and it is believed by her son that his mother's mind has become unbalanced or that she has become despondent. When Mrs. Griffith disappeared she wore a black dress, a short cape and a black hat. The woman is described as being of medium height, but stout, for she weighs about 200 pounds.

CITY PARKING SIGNS EVIDENTLY NOT CLEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 2—Warning signs to autoists in this city appear to be confusing. Seldom are cases presented in court when the accused parties do not have excuses that prevail for not imposing penalties. Today Alexander N. Brown, of Groton, was charged with having parked his car on the west side of Bank street for a period of more than an hour. The young man said he sought to leave his car where he supposed he was privileged to leave it, but he seemed to have failed in that purpose. He observed that on one pole parking was restricted after 6:30. On the next pole he observed a sign forbidding the turning of autos in the street. Then he came to a pole where there was no sign of restriction, and he had an idea that he had at least found a place where he could leave his car for a brief time. Henry Watterson, of Summer street, left his car for a couple of hours in front of the Capitol theatre. He said he had observed that parking more than 30 minutes was prohibited on State street, but he found no such warning on Bank street, and concluded that he had found the spot where his car might be left with safety. Judge Prince suspended judgment in each case, but he told the parties accused to use their brains and some common sense when they sought a place for parking. That seems to be a reasonable request. If it is followed a great deal of annoyance will be avoided.

HEAVY FREIGHTS ARE SEEN ON NEW HAVEN ROAD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 2—Observers about the union station and the steamer line operated between New London and New York declare that the New Haven railroad is now doing more business in the movement of trains and boats than the company has ever done. The number of freight trains is unusually great and the cars that make up the trains count up to figures that are in excess of the number heretofore run on freight trains. Much of the freight is for long hauls and is in carload lots. The passenger business is running very heavy also. There is little property, if any, in the possession of the company, which is not used for railroad or steamboat purposes, that is not rented, this also being a source of revenue the company has not always been favored with. The situation is indicative of competent management on the part of the company's officials.

STILL SUMMING UP IN RHINELANDER CASE

WHITE Plains, N. Y., Dec. 2—(AP)—Picturing Leonard Kip Rhinelander, son of a wealthy old New York family who is suing his mulatto wife, Alice Beatrice Jones Rhinelander for annulment of marriage, as the "docile slave at Alice's feet," and the neglected son of a wealthy father, Attorney Isaac N. Mills occupied the entire court day in summing up for the plaintiff. He had not completed his summation when court adjourned for the day, and indicated that he will require most of tomorrow for the task.

Opening his summation of evidence taken during the three weeks which the case has run, Mills, who is chief plaintiff counsel, made an appeal to the white jury for a verdict in favor of his client on the basis of racial differences.

"Leonard will hail a verdict for the plaintiff as a prisoner on the steps of the scaffold hails a pardon from the governor," the lawyer asserted. There is a third party at interest in every venture in matrimony, he continued. That praty is the public, and he asked the jury to be guided by a consideration of the effects which their verdict will have.

Turning suddenly on the father of his client, as the afternoon session got under way, Mills asserted that "Philip Rhinelander is more to blame for the fool position that his young man brought himself into than the young man himself."

He said that for years the elder Rhinelander has neglected Leonard, that not once had the father visited the boarding school in Connecticut which Leonard attneded. He made a point of the absence from the court at any time of any member of Rhinelander's family, while Alice had been supported by all of her kin. Mills pictured himself as the sole defender of his allegedly backward client.

"I do not claim that Leonard Kip Rhinelander is a fool, but it is a problem how much intelligence he has," the lawyer asserted, "At the beginning of his acquaintance with Alice, although he was 18 years old, intelligence tests shows that hig intelfect was not above that of a normal boy of 14."

He reviewed what he called "Alice's regular campaign for her engagement to Leonard." This, he said, consisted of several phases: Her continual mention in her letters of the incidents at the Hotel Marie Antoinette, where Rhinelander had lived on two occasions with Alice before their marriage; her promotion of his jealousy by making him feel that he was likely to lose her; by her continual reminders that she was making great sacrifices in turning down other men for Rhinelander.

Mills asserted that Alice's frank confession to Leonard that she had had relations with another man before she met him was not consistent with her concealment of her negro blood. Everything she told Rhinelander, Mills said, was calculated to promote her case, but she knew that to reveal her color would be to "ruin everything." Mills then asserted that Rhinelander had returned from the west to take Alice in honorable marriage only because he did not realize that she had colored blood.

"You must not judge him by these surroundings, in open court with the open confession of color before him," Mills shouted. Before the marriage Leonard could "not see her in the turmoil of the court with hundreds of fingers pointing at her," the lawyer continued.

The question which started the legal battle, that of color, Mills said, had been confessed by the defense, but declared that it had not been eliminated fro mthe issue, referring to newspaper interviews immediately after the marriage had become public. Mills said that "Leonard then stood by his wife. He loved her—that is the wonder of this case."

Throughout the day both principal parties to the suit sat calmly through the waves of oratory which flooded the crowded court room. Neither appeared greatly moved.

Just prior to adjournment, when Mills indicated that he probably would require most of tomorrow for completion of his summing up, Justice Morschauser announced from the bench that in that case he probably would not charge the jury until Friday, when the jurymen would be fresh and rested.

THIRTEEN PULLETS HAD PERFECT SCORES AT STORRS

The hens in the Storrs laying contest are running just about true to form. During the last fifteen years the college has collected a vast amount of data on eggs and feeding and all that sort of thing, but in making comparisons it seems only fair to use records accumulated during the last three years or since the time when night feeding at Storrs was first adopted. In the fourth week of the trials, the total production for all pens was 3,484 eggs or a yield of nearly thirty-six per cent. This is 147 eggs better than for the preceding week, in 23 eggs more than for the corresponding week last year, but, is 43 eggs under the average for the last three years. A few backward pens have not yet gotten started at all, whereas, on the other hand some pens are going so strong that it does not seem as if, with the approach of winter, they would be able to stand the pace they are now setting. During the last week three Barred Rocks, six Rhode Island Reds, and four Leghorns, a total of thirteen pullets in all, came through with perfect scores for the period.

During the last week in November Mount Hope Farm's pen of White Leghorns from Williamstown, Mass., headed the list with a score of sixty-one eggs. Rhode Island Reds entered by John Z. LaBelle of Baillouville, Conn., were second best for the week with a lay of fifty-eight eggs. Two pens of Leghorns owned by R. W. Colman of Medina, N. Y., and Dudley Poultry Farm at Webster, Mass., were third and fourth with fifty-five and fifty-two eggs respectively. If one considers production by classes it will be noted that the Leghorns which constitute the largest group, eased up one and one-half per cent during the week. The "All Other Variety" class likewise let up a little, but the Reds, Barred Rocks and White Wyandottes all made more than enough gain to offset the loss in the other two groups.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes

STOCK PRICES HIGHER

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Stock prices continued their rise to higher ground in today's moderately active trading. With favorable trade developments reported from several industries, constructive operations assumed a broad range. Popular industrials ranked uppermost in the advance although the strength of rail shares was well sustained.

The jump in wheat prices to new high levels for the season coupled with the firmness of the other commodity prices, provided a good foundation for the bidding up of securities. These factors outweighed the feeling of uneasiness over the continued firmness of money rates and reports that both the bank of England and the federal reserve bank of New York might advance their rediscount rates tomorrow.

The rising tendency of oil prices linked with a decline in the daily output of crude oil to the lowest level since last April again attracted speculative attention to the petroleum shares. Marland developed outstanding strength, mounting to a new top price for the year, while Standard Oil of N. J., Pacific, Pan-American, Phillips, Atlantic Refining and Indian Refining issues joined in the upturn.

Merchandising issues vied with the oils in an attempt to capture buying favor. Indications of record holiday sales coming on top of the increase in November earnings promoted a wide demand for the mail order, chain and department store stocks. Gimbel Brothers advanced more than 5 points and Woolworth, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck sold one to 4 points higher during the day although some of the gains were surrendered before the close. Speculative interest also was revived in the banking shares with gains of 2 7-8 to 5 points registered by General Baking, Loose Wiles, Biscuit and Ward Baking A.

Favorable merger and dividend developments arrested waning interest in the motor group, turning the trend of prices upward. Willys Overland preferred spurted up to a new high level at 120 7-8 in response to the liquidation of 29 3-4 per cent., accumulated dividends on this issue. Chandler advanced 3 3-8 on the publication of a tentative plan for a merger of this company with the Cleveland Automobile company, inviving an exchange of shares for those of a new holding company. Chrysler, General Motors, Mack Trucks resumed their advance with gains of 1 to 3 points, while the accessory stocks such as Stewart-Warner and Stromberg Carburetor kept pace with the rise.

Price movements in the railroad group lacked uniformity, with most of the buying interest converging on the southern and southwestern carriers. Southern Railway established a new peak price at 117, closing a half point below the top for a net gain of more than a point. Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis and Missouri Pacific preferred were other strong points in this group, but Atlantic Coast Line closed lower after an early display of strength.

Among the isolated weak spots was United States Industrial Alcohol which was hammered down 5 1-2 points. Selling pressure was based on reports of a falling off in business due to the increasing competition from alcohol substitutes and an expansion in the country's output of industrial alcohol.

Another sharp break in French francs to 3.76 cents, within 3 points of the 1925 low, reflected uneasiness over proposals for currency inflation in France nad drastic measures to correct the government's financial position.

Demand sterling was fractionally higher around $4.84 1-4 and other European currencies were firm.

Call money rated at 5 per cent., all day and time money rates were unchanged at 4 7-8 to 5 per cent. commercial paper continued firm.

Reports Presented

There was an attendance of 35 when President Bushnell called the meeting to order and Secretary Ross read the minutes of previous meetings which were accepted.

Secretary Ross gave his annual report as follows:

From the first meeting of the executive committee selected by the board of directors at the gathering of Dec. 19, 1924, the matter of disposing of the authorized but not taken bonds of the society has been constantly before the committe and on one occasion—the special meeting of the society—before the entire membership of the society, this on Oct. 28, 1925. The society emerged from the 1924 fair with a small deficit to carry over, amounting to about $1,800. This amount represented to within a few cents of the expense incurred through absolute necessity of making certain repairs to the property of the society. Had these repairs not been attempted, the income for the 1924 fair would have paid all outstanding bills. The executive committee then were handicapped by insufficient working capital to lay the plans for the 1925 fair. Recommendation had been made and certain plans adopted such as the removal of the hay barn to a place nearer the stables, the erection of a permanent farm machinery building, a modification of poultry premiums, etc., but with the knowledge that the funds of the society must be carefully conserved, these plans were not carried out.

The question of fair dates was not settled until the executive committee meeting of Feb. 19, when after a thorough investigation the committee unanimously decided to postpone the annual fair to the 17-18-19 of September. They realized that any change of date must necessarily be of an experimental nature but the dates agreed upon conflicted with no other fair in our immediate neighborhood. They should, as the committee figured, bring about a fuller exhibition of such articles as fruit and vegetables and because of cooler weather, a better cattle and poultry show. Furthermore, it seemed to avoid conflicts with other fairs in the racing department and this item was important if Norwich was to have good racing. In March, your secretary waited on the New London Kennel club to secure a pedigreed dog show for our fair. The fact that this club were planning for a show in New London for July, gave us little encouragement subsequently this idea had to be abandoned. About this time, the secretary reported to the building committe that in response to inquiries from farm machinery dealers as to their needs if the society were to build a building for their exhibits, no adequate response was forthcoming.

Built New Booths.

On the 14th of August a meeting of the executive committee was held at the fair grounds and at that time they voted to abandon the ladies' free toilet which by reason of its location was a nuisance to the exhibitors in the exhibition hall, and to throw open the ladies' pay toilet with a matron in charge to public convenience. This move made many friends for the Norwich fair. At the same meeting, the committee voted to tear down the small shed near the stables, it being in a dilapidated condition and useless. The committee then thoroughly discussed the advisability of building a set of one-story booths that merchants might have proper shelter for their stocks and the shortage of room for such exhibits of the 1924 fair be relieved. In view of the financial condition of the society, the matter was weighed carefully but upon being assured that all such booths would be sold out for the 1925 fair and that such rents for the first year could be realized to pay half the total cost of the building, the committee unanimously decided to go ahead. The committee are glad to report that all the new space was rented and at the price agreed upon. In addition to this the booths are now wired for electricity without cost to the society, each renter needing current paying for his wiring. In passing it may be of interest to the members to know that the merchants exhibition of the 1925 fair were the subject of very complimentary remarks of His Excellency Governor Trumbull when he was our guest the first day of the fair.

Before the meeting closed the committee voted to examine into the advisability of repairing the old grandstand or abandoning it. In the end, the building committee decided to patch the roof and to remove the most dangerous portion of the building. At the special meeting of the society on Oct. 28, in the town hall, the finance committee again stressed the need of funds. A membership campaign was agreed upon and subsequently added 15 members to the roster. The society voted to authorize the executive committee to borrow not over $3,000 to meet the expenses of the fair and to carry us over to 1926. Two other meetings of the executive committee were held, one on Nov. 19, and the other on Nov. 24, with the same object, namely, to raise money. The society had authorized the borrowing but had not discovered a source from which to borrow.

Summary of Season.

Before closing this report it is only fitting and proper to present a few salient facts relative to the 1925 fair of general interest to all members and supporters. It was held on new dates. The weather for all three days was as ideal as could be expected. Several special attractions had been adopted to increase the interest and the gate attendance. Governor Trumbull and Senator Bingham both agreed to be present and but for his being called to Washington by the president Senator Bingham would have been with us. Governor Trumbull was on hand with his staff, the first time in 9 years Norwich has had an official visit by the chief executive of the state. In practically every department of the annual show there was a material increase in the number of exhibits. The flower show held this year in the old county dining hall, was very successful. The poultry show was larger in number of birds but not superior in quality to the 1924 fair. The vegetable show was by far the best seen in Norwich in many years. The merchants exhibitions were a great advance over previous years. The Midway this year was run on as near to satisfactory grounds as Midways can be run. In number of concessionaries, it was a few smaller than last year due in some extent to the change in fair dates and also the rigid requirements of the committee governing the use of games. The receipts from this department were within a few dollars of the 1924 fair. It was the first fair in Norwich that has had a Ferris wheel, a three abreast merry-go-round, and a chair swing for the young people. The shows also were more numerous this year. The police protection for the 1925 fair was perfect, the seven state officers under Sergeant Bushy and the seven Norwich officers giving the authorities excellent assistance. Not a single disturbance occurred in the three days nor was anyone injured, so watchful were the police. They did a real job well and deserve our public commendation. Detachments of Norwich firemen and Boy Scouts likewise did excellent work.

1925 Attendance Not Satisfactory.

The attendance was disappointing. The treasurer's report will justify the financial condition we find ourselves in. The grandstand receipts were much smaller than before. In every other aspect the fair went ahead. The expenses of the 1925 fair as the treasurer's report will show were very much less than 1924 and given an even break on attendance, the committee would be closing their term of office with a comfortable balance on hand.

In closing, your secretary desires to express his appreciation for the generous support of the executive committee who with him shared the obligation of organizing and running the 1925 fair. They have at all times been ready and willing to do their work for the best interests of all, regardless of personal preferences. Because there has been such generous support and loyalty, your secretary the more reluctantly submits to the demands of his private business and notifies his fellow members of the society that he is not able to consider a further candidacy for the secretary's position.

Recommendations.

That the admission price for adults should be 50 cents to the ground.

That all children under 12 years of age accompanied by adults, be admitted free.

That young people from 12-16 be admitted for 25 cents.

That the entire grandstand be sold at 50 cents a person for the 1926 fair.

That the society tear down the old grandstand at once.

Treasurer Bailey's Report

Treasurer Albert J. Bailey showed in his annual report that the gate receipts for the 1925 fair totalled $5,353.50 as compared with $3,054.25 in 1924. The automobile show brought in over $1,200. The midway receipts were $2,430.08. Rents of $235 for the grounds was received during the year. The expenses paid thus far includes all premiums, labor, insurance, etc. The outstanding bills include advertising, merchandise, etc. The labor amounts to $2,231.94; advertising $946.33; fast horses $3,000; premiums $3,289.10; amusements $1,405; insurance $675.79 and judges $250.31. The unpaid bills amount to $2,959.78. The balance in the bank to date amounts to $484.02. This deficit covers a period of two years. The report was accepted.

Albert J. Bailey as speed secretary reported on the securing of the horses for this year's fair.

On the question of all future membership being abolished except for the $25 memberships an amendment to the constitution striking out the second paragraph of section two was unanimously adopted.

It was voted that the executive committee be empowered to fill any vacancies among the officers that might occur during the year.

It was voted that a committee of three be appointed, not members of last year's executive committee, by the president to see how the present deficit might be raised and report at the next meeting. The president appointed Albert W. Lillibridge, Reuben S. Washburn and John R. Bowman, Jr., as the committee.

The meeting adjourned at 12:40, to meet Dec. 16 at 11 o'clock.

NEAR EAST RELIEF ANSWERS A QUESTION

The local committee for Golden Rule Sunday, (Dec. 6.) for the Near East relief work, desires to answer this question: Who are these Golden Rule children of the Near East?

They are descendants of the ancient races of the Near East to whom we owe much if not most of our religion, literature and civilization. Many of them are orphans of martyrs of recent years. At least a million people in the Near East are living today who would have perished had not the Golden Rule citizens of America, through Near East Relief, practiced as well as preached the Golden Precept. Of these million lives saved, a disproportionately large number are children. Many of them have already been placed in positions of self-support and usefulness. More than 12,000 children were graduated from the orphanages last year.

A million lives have been saved, but what profits the mere saving of physical life if in the end there is only another human animal to encumber the ground and serve as possible cannon fodder in some future war?

We have saved life—now we are beginning to make life. Out of the ruins of the Near East is growing up a generation of orphans whose lives grip the coming centuries. In order that their education and training may be wisely guided, three commissions of experts have been sent to the Near East to study and bring back recommendations as to the educational, social and religious training of these children. Every opportunity is improved of giving to the older children the best practical training in trades and industries that will lead to early self-support, economic independence and industrial leadership.

In the Caucasus the orphans, under the direction of agricultural experts sent out from America, are cultivating and developing 22,000 acres of land which the government has placed at the command of Near East Relief, tax and rent free. The older boys, on a model dairy farm, provide the dairy products for the near-by orphanage family of 12,000 children.

In the Aegean Sea, on the island of Syra, made famous in the songs of Homer, is an orphanage colony of 2,300 boys and girls occupying a group of stone buildings constructed by the older boys under American supervision. Practically all trades and industries are represented in the activities of these orphanages. The girls make or re-make much of the clothing, besides producing laces, embroideries, rugs and other articles for sale through Near East Industries. The boys do blacksmithing, shoemaking, carpentering, tinsmithing, tailoring and agricultural work as well as make pottery.

Bookbinding, printing, commercial training and nursing are among trades and professions taught to the older orphans before being graduated or apprenticed in self-support.

The immediate objective of International Golden Rule Sunday is to provide food for the thousands of orphaned children who, during the coming winter, will starve if prosperous America forgets. The ultimate objective is far bigger than the saving of the lives of these children. It contemplates nothing less than a new Near East and a new era of love, good-will and unselfish service in the old world.

MAKING NORWICH APPEAL FOR CHRISTMAS SEALS

The appeals in the Christmas seal sale have been sent out by mail by the Norwich committee to a numerous list. The letter says in part:

"Every dollar raised from the sale of Christmas Seals goes into the fight against tuberculosis, a fight that has been carried on with ever increasing strength for eighteen years.

"In buying Christmas Seals last year you helped to pay the salary of a visiting nurse. You have the services of six visiting nurses and four school nurses aiming to discover early cases of tuberculosis that valuable lives may be saved by treating the disease in its curable stage. You have maintained at the various state sanatoria five worthy cases needing treatment for tuberculosis. You helped to buy 4757 quarts of milk for use in tuberculosis families and for the undernourished children in your schools. More milk can be used if you will give a little more toward buying it.

The Norwich committee in charge of the sale consists of: John A. Cunningham, chairman, Harold P. Hull, treasurer, Rev. A. H. Abbott, E. LaRue Bliven, Lucius Briggs, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell J. W. TRAVEL TALK WITH MUSIC FOR ROTARIANS

Members of the Norwich Rotary club at the luncheon Wednesday noon at Wauregan hotel were taken on a delightful trip through England, Germany, Switzerland and Italy, by Henry J. LaFontaine and Charles E. Dyer, who recently returned from a three months trip abroad. Mr. Dyer was the guest of Mr. LaFontaine at the luncheon.

In speaking of his trip Mr. LaFontaine told of his trip across on the Winnifredian which carried besides the passengers about seven hundred head of cattle. Arriving at Liverpool Mr. LaFontaine and Mr. Dyer traveled by motor up to London where several days were spent in sight-seeing and at musical functions. Commenting on the music Mr. LaFontaine said that they thought the American music and drama was far ahead of the English and that he really did not hear what could be called an exceptional voice. From London the travelers went to Holland and then into Germany where they spent considerable time at Baden-Baden where they had the opportunity of hearing and meeting some of the world's greatest musicians. Mr. LaFontaine spoke of the magnificent scenery and the beauty of Germany. He also told of his delightful trip to Switzerland where he met the daughters of Robert Schumann, the composer, and gave his impressions of them. He spoke of singing some of the Schumann masterpieces for the daughters.

After a trip through the Alps they went to Rome where they were fortunate in securing an audience with the pope and attending mass in St. Peter's. Mr. LaFontaine told of many humorous incidents on the trip and spoke interestingly of all that impressed him most.

Mr. Dyer spoke briefly on the trip saying that it was not new to him but that he thoroughly enjoyed the trip especially in showing points of interest to so interested a companion as Mr. LaFontaine. Mr. Dyer spoke of the change in Italy under the Mussolini regime.

Following the travel talk, Mr. Dyer and Mr. LaFontaine sang a number of selections, Mr. Dyer rendering Mattinata (Tosti) and Love's Sorrow (Shelly) while Mr. LaFontaine sang Vision Fugitive (Massenet) and Spirit Flower (Campbell Tipton). Both the singers were heartily appreciated and their numbers heartily applauded. A rising vote of thanks was given them at the completion of the programme. Arnold Goldstein was the accompanist for Mr. LaFontaine and Mr. LaFontaine played for Mr. Dyer.

At the business session President Joseph N. Weymouth presided and Dr. Hugh B. Campbell acted as song leader. There was a duet selection by Russell A. Clapp and Lew Young.

Notice was given that President Don Adams of International Rotary will speak in Newark, N. J., Wednesday evening, Dec. 9, and may be heard on the radio from station WOR at 8:15 o'clock.

MIND REMAINS BLANK, MAN NOT IDENTIFIED

The unidentified man picked up by the police, who is a patient at the Backus hospital, suffering from loss of memory, showed no improvement up to Wednesday night. His condition remains unchanged. The officials are as far away from solving the mystery surrounding the man's appearance in this city and his identity as they were the night he was taken to police headquarters and from there to the hospital.

First Selectman William S. Murray spent some time with the man at the hospital Wednesday afternoon. The man complains of a constant pain in his head and is making a great effort to bring back something that will assist in revealing his identity. Wednesday he talked of having a brother or a cousin in New York and said he believed if he got there that he would know this relative's office, if he saw it. He felt sure that it was in the lower part of New York and that it was up one flight in a building. The name of Pacific street came to him and he thought that might be where the office was. The business, he said, was something connected with canvass or cloth of that character.

At the hospital the man spends his waking hours in reading and has all his faculties except the memory that will tell him who he is or where he came from. He feels sure that he could recognize his name if he heard it spoken, but he can give no assistance towards suggesting what it may be.

College Trustees to Meet

A meeting of the board of trustees of Connecticut college has been called for Thursday, December 10, at the Hotel Taft, New Haven. Notices of the meeting have been sent out by Colin S. Buell of New London, secretary to the board of trustees.

SOPHOMORES ARE FIRST TO RAISE THEIR QUOTA

Two of the most exciting class meetings in the history of Connecticut college took place on the campus Tuesday when the sophomores were the first to go over the top in their endowment fund quota for $16,630 and the juniors were a close second by going over the top to the tune of $11,900.

The juniors completed their 100 per cent Wednesday morning. At the sophomore class meeting excitement ran still higher. At the beginning the pledges amounted to $12,500 but Miss Dorothy Bailey of Richmond Hill, N. Y., vice-president of her class and class campaign manager for endowment, started the ball rolling by donating $50. The deficit to be made up amounted to $3,635 and by direct appeals to class loyalty and by raising her own pledge considerably, Miss Bailey succeeded in getting the sophomores first place in the interclass endowment race. When the last pledge had been received, the sophomores ran from the gymnasium through the campus houses shouting, "We've reached the top first."

The seniors, who have been set a quota of $7,900 have 52 per cent of it and the freshmen whose quota is $16,000, have but 52 per cent. This endowment fund drive is the most enthusiastic in the history of the college.

Scouts Place Tuberculosis Posters.

The request is to make a search of hospitals, hotels, offices and mills for a trace of the girl.

20 MEN ARE HELD AS LEADERS OF LIQUOR RING IN NEW YORK

U. S. District Attorney Bucker Charges That They Control 18 Ocean Steamers Engaged in Bringing Liquor From Foreign Ports to Rum Row—Half a Hundred Prohibition Agents, Deputy U. S. Marshals and Special Patrolmen Were Engaged in Making the Raids in Various Parts of New York—The Chief Point Was in the East River National Bank Building in Times Square.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(A. P.)—Half a hundred prohibition agents, deputy United States marshals and special patrolmen swooped down today on the offices of rum ring which prohibition agents said was the largest in the history of prohibition and was "the backbone of Rum Row."

A syndicate which controlled 18 ocean steamers in the rum trade, bribed coast guard officers by the wholesale and maintained a secret service system of its own for watching the movements of federal officers, was said to have been broken up by the raiders, whose first roundup of the day netted 20 men and whose principal captive was "Bill" Dwyer, alleged head of the syndicate.

The ring's activities were said to be responsible for the bringing of millions of dollars worth of liquor into this country annually. Dwyer, arraigned before Judge Goddard on a specific charge of conspiring last July to bring 4,038 cases of liquor into the country hidden in the bunkers of the S. S. Augusta, was held in $40,000 bail, although Assistant United States Attorney Stichman asked it be set at $75,000.

United States Attorney Buckner said he had been informed that Dwyer was an owner of the Mount Royal race track in Montreal and the Coney Island race track in Cincinnati.

The raids today were carefully planned after warrants had been issued by Federal Judge Thomas Thatcher. At a given signal, detachments of agents went to different parts of the city where members of the alleged syndicate were known to be gathered. The chief point of attack was a suite of offices in the East River National Bank building, in Times Square where leaders of the rum ring were arrested.

The activities of the ring were described by Mr. Stichman, when he addressed the court to ask a heavy bail for Dwyer.

Had Offices in New London.

"Government employes, low salaried men, were feasted and entertained with wine, women and song," he said.

The ring maintained headquarters in the East River National Bank building, in Times square, in a building on Lexington avenue, in the Grand Central Terminal, and at St. Albans, Montauk Point and Hempstead, Long Island. It also had offices in Albee's theatre building in Brooklyn and in New London, Conn."

Indicating Dwyer, Mr. Stichman said, "this man is the leading figure against which the energies of the prohibition department in this case have been directed. By him various coast guard officials have been bribed. In the Augusta case his agents did the bribing and the vessel was allowed to proceed up the river to Yonkers.

"For more than two years coast guard boats have been in the pay of this defendant."

Mr. Dwyer was described as "a man so powerful, so wealthy and so influential that he not only was able to put government employes on his payroll, but to maintain a secret service that rivalled our own." Mr. Stichman said government agents were trailed from Washington when they came here, were met at the station and then trailed about town.

Federal Attorney Buckner said the sweeping "round-up was the result of three months investigation under the personal supervision of General Andrews and Major Green and had been done by specially selected "undercover" men from Washington and other points acting in close co-operation with the local federal attorney's offices. Mr. Bruckner added that the investigators had been greatly aided by members and officers of the coast guard who had resisted and resented the temptations constantly offered by the defendants.

"All honor to the loyal members of the coast guard," said Mr. Buckner, who daily risk their lives in doing their duty and receive from $36 to $100 per month while they witness their weaker brethren receiving as high as a thousand dollars each for letting a single boat go by them without interference."

The roundup was described by federal authorities as the biggest raid on rum importing and distributing forces that has yet been made in the United States.

One of the prisoners was Bill Dwyer, who, Mr. Bruckner said he had been informed, was half owner of the Mount Royal race track in Montreal and also the Coney Island race track in Cincinnati. Dwyer is alleged by the government agents to be th ahead of the ring.

Major Walton A. Green, representing General Lincoln C. Andrews, of the treasury department, figured in the roundup.

One of the steamers owned by the ring was the Augusta, which was captured last July with 4,038 cases of liquor on board. Federal authorities said that the ring had a suite of offices in the East River Savings Bank building and had general headquarters in Lexington avenue.

New London Coast Guard Men.

Among prisoners arraigned tonight were five men attached to Coast Guard Base Four at New London, Conn. Their names and the bail they were held in are:

Fred J. Leyin, $10,000, Nicholas Brown, $10,000, and William R. Hughes, Wilhelm Pump and John Lovens, each $5,000.

COAST GUARD OFFICIALS WERE AWARE OF BRIBING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—Coast guard officials tonight declared they had known of the bribing of coast guard personnel for some time and had permitted it to continue to aid in attempts to apprehend the alleged wealthy law violators doing business along Rum Row.

The bribing of a $60 a month seaman, was a small matter compared with trapping illicit liquor operators making millions out of the business, they said, describing the coast guardsmen as only 'minor pawns in the game," and asserting that those guilty would be courtmartialed.

In order to assist Walton A. Green, chief assistant to Assistant Secretary Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, the coast guard officials declared they permitted the bribing to go on quietly and kept it under close observation. They expressed gratification that the wealthy operators "whom nobody seemed able to touch," had been apprehended.

BOOTLEGGING RUINING BUSINESS OF THE COUNTRY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—Bootlegging is debauching the business of this country and undermining the social fabric," Brigadier General Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury and national prohibition administrator, today told a luncheon meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

The general put responsibility for success or failure of prohibition on to those "who continue to defy the law by providing the outrageous profit for the bootleggers."

The big need to make prohibition a reality, General Andrews declared, was the focussing of public attention on the prohibition units and giving to them all possible help.

LAVISH EXPENDITURES BY U. S. PROHIBITION AGENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Evidence of the expenditure of more than $1,000 of government money by a prohibition agent during a month's stay at the Mayflower hotel here in working up a case against two of its employes, was placed before Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury, today by Representative Gallivan, democrat, of Massachusetts, one of the wet leaders in congress.

A story of lavish entertainments arranged by the agent culminating in a banquet for thirteen persons, at the government's expense, at which liquor was alleged to have been served, was told by Mr. Gallivan. As a member of the house appropriations committee, he also protested against the setting aside last year of $200,000 for "under cover work" in the prohibition bureau, for which it has asked $250,000 next fiscal year.

FRANCE IS RUSHING FINANCIAL MEASURES

PARIS, Dec. 3—Premier Briand's appeal to the patriotism of all parties to unite to save France in the face of the economic and financial menace brought about the adoption by the chamber of deputies today of the government's bill providing for inflation of the currency to the amount of 7,500,000,000 francs and additional taxation ranging from 20 to 100 per cent.

This evening the finance committee of the senate accepted the text of the financial bill as voted by the chamber and will recommend that it be adopted by the senate. Many modifications had been discussed and inserted, when Premier Briand appeared before the committee. He declared to the members that unless the text was voted by the senate as adopted by the chamber "there was no government possible." The senators yielded, and it is practically certain that the senate will adopt the bill tomorrow.

The senate itself met for only a few minutes and heard M. Berenger's report on the bill, which it ruled should be published in the official journal tomorrow and discussed at the next sitting, which is set for 2:30 tomorrow afternoon.

In the chamber the final vote on the bill as a whole was 257 to 229. It constituted the fifth vote of confidence in the government during the lengthy session. The smallest majority in the voting which the government received was seven—a vote of 246 to 239 on the inflation section of the bill.

GREECE MUST PAY $219,000 REPARATIONS TO BULGARIA

GENEVA, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The League of Nations commission which has been investigating the recent Greco-Bulgarian clashes on the Macedonian frontier has imposed reparation payments on Greece to the amount of $219,000. This is considerably less than Bulgaria demanded.

As an exception to the general finding against Greece, the commission ordered indemnity for a Greek captain who was killed while advancing under a flag of truce, and declined to impose indemnity on Greece for Bulgarian militiamen who were killed or wounded in the frontier fighting, deeming that Bulgaria in calling to arms these inhabitants of the frontier region, violated the treaty of Neilly.

The commission rejected Greece's demand for an indemnity on the ground that the investigation showed that Bulgaria had acted in conformity with the covenant of the league, while Greece had violated it.

The commission recommended the creation of a special frontier guard, with a neutral officer attached on each side of the frontier.

In a word the commission holds that Bulgaria was practically guiltless and rules that Greece violated the covenant by invading Bulgarian soil.

SUMMATIONS COMPLETED IN THE RHINELANDER CASE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. Dec. 3—With a final appeal to the white jury to free his client from this horrible, unnatural and absurd union," Isaac N. Mills, chief plaintiff counsel, today closed his summation in the suit of Leonard Kip Rhinelander for annulment of his marriage to Alice Beatrice Jones, part negro housemaid of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Summation having been completed for the defense, court was adjourned until tomorrow, after the jury had voted to wait until then to receive the charge of the court, prior to taking the case for deliberation. Justice Morschauser indicated that his charge will be brief, and it is expected the jury will have the case before noon.

"Give this boy a chance to reclaim himself and the name he has besmirched, under the bedevilment of the defendant," Mr. Mills pleaded with the jury. He accused Alice of having consistently pursued "a diabolical plan of campaign" to ensnare Rhinelander. "She had brains," said the lawyer. "At the end of a year of her campaign she owned the boy body and soul."

Assuring the jury that Rhinelander's intelligence was below normal, plaintiff counsel declared that even brilliant mental ability is not proof against "the charms of an evil woman," Nor was Rhinelander the first man to fall under the spell of such charms, the lawyer asserted, asserting that history is replete with the names of great men who likewise succumbed.

Alice Beatrice Jones, the lawyer declared, was comparable in her ascendency over young Rhinelander, to Delilah in her enslavement of Samson; to Solome, to the dusky Cleopatra with her hold on Mark Anthony; comparable in her charms to Helen of Troy.

After running through three weeks of sensational testimony taking the Rhinelander case closed true to form after George Jones, father of Alice, had startled the crowded courtroom by shouting protestations at being termed a "taxicab driver." Mrs. Jones, Alice's mother collapsed in tears and the court took a 15 minute recess.

Leaping to his feet and shaking with anger when Mills stated that Jones had taken out a license to drive a taxicab, and that in the application Jones had stated that he was 'colored," Jones shouted at the lawyer:

"I'm no taxicab driver. I never was a taxicab driver."

When Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for Mrs. Rhinelander sought to quiet him, Jones protested, "Don't let him say those things about me."

AIRPLANE FIGHT WILL BE CARRIED TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—A fight to obtain for the airplane greater recognition in the national defense organization promises to be one of the major issues at the coming session congress.

This became more apparent today with the announcement by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, that he favored unification of air activities, and a statement by Representative Curry, republican, of California, that he would introduce two bills designed to give increased recognition to air activities.

Meanwhile, publication by the president's air board of the report on its inquiry into aviation problems, started speculation in various circles as to the possible nature of air legislation, if any, to be commended by the administration.

The report was favorably received by both Secretary of War Davis and Secretary Wilbur, who jointly urged creation of the board. The former characterized it as a fine constructive effort toward taking the whole question (aviation) but of the run of controversy and misunderstanding," and the latter said he was "very much pleased" and felt the report would be "of very great assistance to us in the development of naval aviation."

CORRY, Pa., Dec. 3—(A. P.)—Civic organizations and business men of the anthracite field who have made efforts to terminate the tie-up in the mining industry, tonight were invited by Gov. Pinchot to meet with him next Tuesday at Harrisburg to confer on the situation.

The governor, on tour of the state, sent the invitations by telegraph upon his arrival in Corry. The messages were addressed to members of the coal suspension committee of the Scranton Chamber of Commerce and the presidents of the business organizations in Wilkesbarre and Hazleton. They read:

"Can you meet me for a conference on the anthracite situation Tuesday morning at Harrisburg?"

The telegrams contained no suggestion as to what the governor had in mind. It was indicated however, that the executive called the conference in an effort to ascertain whether there are still other possible means of advancing a settlement of the suspension.

FOR U. S. ADHERENCE TO THE WORLD COURT

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—Two thousand persons, assembled at a mass meeting at Woolsey hall here tonight in the interest of the United States' adherence to the world court, adopted resolutions in favor of this country entering such a tribunal at the earliest possible moment without any reservations other than those already approved by President Coolidge.

This action was taken after Homer S. Cummings, who resigned recently from the democratic national committee, had criticized the so-called irreconcilables in the United States senate for their action on the world court and after Charles R. Brown, dean of the Yale Divinity school, expressed himself in favor of a world court.

Senator Hiram Bingham, in a letter read at the meeting, stated that he would vote in favor of America's entrance into the world court with those reservations and amendments which met with President Coolidge's approval. Other letters were read from President Angell, of Yale, and from George W. Wheeler, chief justice of the Connecticut supreme court.

Senator Bingham's letter said:

"Regret I cannot attend your meeting. You know I favor the adherence of the United States to the permanent court of international justice as recommended by President Coolidge and endorsed by the republican party in its national platform. In regard the questions as to what form our adherence to the world court should take, I shall vote for those reservations and amendments which meet with the president's approval. The attitude of President Coolidge toward our foreign relations commands my hearty respect and will receive my cordial support."

Denounced Leniency Extended to Bandits

Frank A. Goodwin in Address Before the Massachusetts Police Chiefs' Association.

BOSTON, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—A bitter denunciation of court procedure in which he charged that through their "unexplainable leniency" the courts are making bandits and thieves by hundreds, was delivered today by Frank A. Goodwin, state registrar of motor vehicles, in an address before the Massachusetts Police Chief's association. Deploring the effect of political influence on the administration of justice, Registrar Goodwin assailed a member of the ways and means committee of the state legislature, with the assertion "he is responsible for keeping more crooks, thieves, and bootleggers out of jail than any other man I know of."

"He is a sinister shadow around the court corridors and district attorney's office," he continued, "and has a reputation of being able to deliver."

Goodwin asserted that bandits are justified in feeling that they may shoot, kill and rob with impunity and that the courts, through their "unexplainable leniency," are making bandits and thieves by the urged support for a legislative program that would limit the discretionary power of judges and would prevent district attorneys from nol prossing cases for any reason other than for lack of evidence to convict.

"Politicians, commercial lawyers, courts, district attorneys, parole boards, juries and perverted public opinion," were listed by Mr. Goodwin among the forces which hinder the police in fighting crime. The record of men recently arrested as robbers and of the men recently convicted of murder in Cambridge, he said, was "on file—on probation-suspended sentence." In hundreds of other cases, it was the same, he said, "five, ten and even twenty-five times."

"Politicians, jury fixers, criminal lawyers and soft headed sentimentalists," he declared, "are getting them out, ably aided by judges, district attorneys, juries and parole boards.

"Yesterday, one of the young bandits captured said 'to hell with the police, I have a good friend and a politician who will get me out. I will never do a day's time.' This politician mentioned by him is on the ways and means committee at the state house, which passes on salaries and pensions of judges, district attorneys and other attaches of the courts."

"Men with criminal records," he added, "must be kept off juries. Parole must be limited to first offenders and bailjumpers which today is a disgrace, ful must be abolished.

"We must enlist the support of the decent, law abiding citizens, whose lives and property are not now safe. It certainly cannot be possible that this condition can continue in a civilized community."

MRS. BAGNANO CONTRADICTS TESTIMONY OF MISS MACRI

The Accused Girl Had Been on the Stand 13 Hours and 45 Minutes—To Every Question Put to Her About Statements Made by Miss Macri, Mrs. Bagnano Made Flat Denials— Judge Hinman Announced That He Will Not Hear the Final Arguments Until Next Monday.

LITCHFIELD, Dec. 3.—(A. P.)—The jury will not get the case of Olympia Macri, on trial in superior court here on a charge of murder as a result of the shooting of John Bagnano in the lobby of the Palace theatre at New Haven on February 26, 1925, before next week. This became known when Judge George E. Hinman immediately after the close of today's session told counsel for both sides that he would not hear final arguments until Monday, regardless of the hour at which introduction of rebuttal testimony ends tomorrow.

The defense rested at 3.51 this afternoon, three minutes after Olympia left the stand at the end of thirteen hours and forty-five minutes of testimony. The court room doors had been thrown open as soon as Olympia's testimony was concluded, and nearly fifteen persons who had been waiting around the court house most of the afternoon filed in and took seats in the section reserved for spectators.

State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling immediately started to introduce rebuttal testimony. He had put on three witnesses, including Carrie Bagnano, widow of the slain man, when court adjourned at 4.35 o'clock this afternoon to enable the jurors to reach their homes over the slippery roads at a reasonable hour. Mrs. Bagnano's examination was uncompleted. She had denied every statement of Olympia brought to her attention thus far.

When the jurors came back to the box at 3.44 this afternoon, after a short recess, State's Attorney Alling, who had been cross-examining Olympia since 10.23 this morning, announced that he had found that questions he had intended to ask the witness covered points already in the record and turned her over to Attorney Joseph Koletsky, her counsel, for redirect examination. He reserved one question.

Attorney Koletsky asked Olympia only a few questions, most of them concerned with the boys who were present at the struggle on the Wooster street bridge.

The first rebuttal witness introduced by State's Attorney Alling after the defense rested was Mary E. Nevins, New Haven policewoman, who said that she came into the police station at 3.45 on the night of the shooting. She found Olympia in the captain's back office at headquarters. She went with her to the women's quarters, the witness testified, and "she started to undress."

Policewoman Nevins said that she noticed Olympia's skin, and saw no scratches upon her neck or arms.

"Did you notice the character of her skin?" asked State's Attorney Alling.

"Does the prosecutor think this woman's a psychologist or something?" remarked Attorney Koletsky. The question was withdrawn.

"Did you see her hands?" The state's attorney asked the witness.

"Yes, I did," replied the policewoman, adding that she saw no cuts or scratches on them and no scabs on the girl's neck or arms.

Under cross-examination, the witness said that Olympia was a "well appearing girl."

"You weren't looking for scratches were you?" Asked Attorney Koletsky.

"No."

"You weren't looking for cuts, were you?"

"No."

Under redirect examination, she said that when she learned of the shooting she looked for marks on the girl's body and saw none.

Mildred Legge, stenographer for Coroner Eli Mix, was the next witness. The state's attorney asked her "to describe Olympia's "appearance, manner and manner of speech" when the girl was testifying before the coroner. Attorney Koletsky objected but the objection was overruled.

"She seemed to be cool and collected," said Miss Legge.

Asked to "describe her manner" in answering questions" the witness said that Olympia did not hesitate "to any marked degree." She testified that the girl did not scream, jump out of the chair, or create a disturbance. No cross-examination. Attorney Koletsky asked her if Olympia "appeared ashamed."

"No," replied the witness. She testified that Olympia's tone of voice was not monotonous, that she did not appear ashamed, and that she did not answer questions mechanically.

Mrs. Carrie Bagnano was called to the stand in rebuttal at 4.26. Asked if it were true that Olympia used to meet her on Congress avenue, New Haven and that she would stop and talk with her, Carrie answered "No."

"Did you meet Olympia at Savin Rock upon one occasion?" She was asked.

"No, sir."

"Miss Macri has testified," said the state's attorney, "that before your baby was born you and your mother-in-law went into Mendell's store and had a conversation with her there. Is that so?"

"No, sir."

Mrs. Carrie Bagnano denied that Olympia gave her samples of powder in Mendell and Harris' store, as Olympia had testified and also that Olympia offered to get things for her at wholesale.

She denied that Olympia ever asked her to go to her home, and said that she first learned of Olympia's baby at her own house the night Sammy Wells was there.

Mrs. Bagnano said she did not tell Olympia "no wonder my husband left town because he knew that you would have a baby." The witness also denied that she didn't need to know your baby was my husband's because "he'd told me."

Immediately after court adjourned for the day, Frank M. Platt, of Milford, foreman of the jury at the first trial at New Haven, last spring, went forward and shook Olympia's hand. A woman sitting in the first row of spectators' seats leaned over the rail and kissed Olympia. The spectators made no move to leave the court room until Sheriff F. H. Turkington and his deputies ordered them to do so.

SEVERE STORM ALONG THE ATLANTIC COAST

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—The storm which lashed the Florida coast earlier in the week and broke yesterday over New Jersey and New York, reached such an intensity today that the coast guard headquarters at Asbury Park ordered a double patrol along the entire New Jersey coast tonight.

No loss of life was reported although the general property damage was high. The Connecticut coast was pounded by high waves running before a rain-laden gale.

Beach structures at Coney Island were demolished and restaurants flooded on the boardwalk today. Marine police succeeded in taking a building in tow after the structure had been blown off its piles and drifted almost to Sandy Hook. When the building crashed into the sea several workmen had narrow escapes. In it was $25,000 worth of canoes and small boats.

Two barges were torn loose from their moorings and drifted out into New York bay toward the sea. Some shipping was kept in port. Captain John Collins of the lime barge Acma had a narrow escape when the barge broke adrift and was carried by the gale almost to Ambrose Channel. Police rescued him.

Another barge laden with $5,000 worth of machinery and marine supplies was adrift outside the Narrows, after seven workmen were forced to jump for safety when the wind ripped it away from its dock.

Seven vessels engaged in salvaging the S-51 sunk recently off New London, Conn., in collision with the City of Rome, had to suspend operations and prepare to ride out the gale at extra length anchor chains. Divers have been unable to make descents for the last two days. Among the vessels is the S-50, sister ship of the lost submarine.

TUG FIREMAN FATALLY STABBED IN CAMBRIDGE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 3.—(A. P.)—Albert Levesque, of Central Falls, R. I., second class fireman on the United States naval tug Wandank, was fatally stabbed in the Pavilion skating rink here tonight. Robert Schaffer, of Boston, who police said admitted the killing, was held without bail on a charge of murder.

According to the police, Schaffer said that he was trying some stunts in the center of the rink when Levesque, on leave with several other sailors and a young woman, approached him, insulting him and challenged him to a fight. Schaffer said he went to the rink side to take off his skates and leave, that Levesque followed him and made threatening remarks, calling to his comrades to "come on over," and that in fright he pulled out a knife and stabbed Levesque. The latter died in ten minutes.

WORK OF FRANCE'S NEW COMMISSIONER IN SYRIA

BEIRUT, Syria, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—France's new high commissioner in Syria, Henry DeJouvenel, today spent his first full day in Syria in receiving delegations of all religious and political groups in the country except the rebellious Druses. It is estimated that 10,000 people passed through his offices during the day. He received many pledges of cooperation.

Speaking to foreign newspaper correspondents M. DeJouvenel said that order and security must be restored before peace can be discussed. Civil reforms will not be permitted to interfere with the military operations already under way, he declared.

To the heads of American educational and relief organizations the high commissioner expressed the thanks of France for efforts on behalf of the people of Syria. This American delegation included President Bayard Dodge, of the American University of Beirut; Barclay Acheson, of Portland, Oregon, and Charles W. Fowle, of Woburn, Mass., directors of the Near East Relief.

M. DeJouvenel also received the American consul and the commanders of the American destroyers Lamson and Coghlan, now anchored here.

Later he bestowed decorations on the Christian survivors of the recent seige of Rasheiya, including the wife of a Syrian priest. This woman was wounded while carrying a message dropped from an airplane to the besieged garrison in the citadel announcing that reinforcements were on the way.

The high commissioner announced that he expects to proceed to Damascus on Friday.

Little change is reported in the military situation. An attack made on the French column marching toward Hasbeiya, where the Druses have concentrated their forces, was repulsed with losses for the Druses. In bestowing a decoration on General Gamelin in recognition of his successes in the Syrian war, M. DeJouvenel indicated that the fighting will continue.

ELECTION AND CHRISTMAS HOLDS PEOPLE'S ATTENTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 3.—After a brief respite public talk, of a mutual nature and interest, is being aroused by the city elections which come next Monday, also the approaching Christmas shopping season. Although interest in the elections appeared slowly it is gradually gathering up a force which points to a high record vote to be cast Monday. Adherents of both parties admit that the tickets are well balanced and as yet no one has ventured predictions on the final outcome. Other than that for the mayoralty, probably no other contest is attracting wider attention than that for city clerk and treasurer. Some have even advanced the belief that the successful candidate for that office will represent public sentiment to such a degree as to greatly influence the outcome of the remainder of his ticket unless a precedent is established in split-ticket voting. For ward aldermen, William E. Jackson, republican and Albert J. Piche, democrat, the candidate in the first ward, are in the limelight. These two popular vote-getters have started things humming in their district and the margin of majority will undoubtedly be close.

From the same and still other angles comes the talk of Christmas and its attributive shopping. A co-operative movement between the merchants, active through the Willimantic Men's association, has set the pace for a booming Christmas season locally. Initial steps were taken by the installation of 1,000 candle-power street lights along the business streets. Next came the installation of the Shenandoah uniform flag display and this Friday, if the weather allows, men will decorate the streets with Christmas trees and greens.

In the meantime the merchants have not only embarked on a series of co-operative advertising projects but have allowed their generous stocks to overflow into beautiful window displays.

Engine Company No. 1 answered to a call for what was believed to be a fire, shortly before noon, Thursday, in the Turner block, at the corner of Church and Main streets. On the third ward ballot no nomination for republican candidate appears.

Tennessee Means "Curved Spoon"

The state of Tennessee is called by its curious name after the river which flows through it, and whose course takes the shape of a curved spoon. It was on account of this formation that the Indian tribes called the river Tennessee, which means in their language "curved spoon," and the word was officially applied to the state in 1796.

FAT WOMEN HAVE SMALLER FEET THAN SLIMMER SISTERS

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—There is a saying that fat women may always expect consolation. The latest is that they have smaller feet than their slimmer sisters, who take great pride in boylike figures.

George M. Spangler, who is arranging the national convention of Retail Shoe Dealers here January 7-9, is responsible for the statement.

"Fat people are usually small boned," he said. "Large boned people have more area over which to spread their flesh and do not show obesity."

All the golfing, health walking and other forms of exercise in which the modern woman is indulging has not enlarged her feet, but has made them smaller and muscular, the shoe man observed.

Millions in Jewelry to Grave

ATLANTA, Dec. 3 (AP)—The practice of burying jewelry with the body of a relative or friend is an expression of sentiment that morticians do not seek to discourage, explained Fred W. Patterson, President of the National Selected Morticians. While most of the jewelry buried with bodies is expensive, averaging about $10 a trinket in each case, Mr. Patterson estimated that the 2,000,000 Americans who die annually carry approximately $20,000,000 worth of jewelry to the grave with them.

There is a difference between deep frying and deep frying in Snowdrift

Pure fat is wholesome and easy to digest. It is burned fat that is responsible for most of the objections to fried food.

At the right temperature for frying, many fats "break down," smoke—that is, burn—and have a tendency to upset digestion.

The wholesomeness of Snowdrift as a frying fat is due to the fact that it can be heated hot enough to fry crisply long before it burns, so that with ordinary care you can fry food in Snowdrift that is as digestible as the same food cooked any other way, and still has that rich, delectable "fried" taste.

A crispy brown crust forms so quickly that the food does not absorb too much fat and, inside this thin crust, cooks to a tempting lightness and daintiness.

BROADWAY CARNIVAL MERELY AN OVERGROWN COUNTY FAIR

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—The lazy way current of Times Square North was blocked at the height of its flow.

From the rear seat of an automobile of expensive make, driven by a liveried chauffeur, a man in faultless attire arose and rendered an operatic cornet solo. His execution must have been better than fair, for there was generous applause at the conclusion.

"Real music lovers will recognize that as a selection from Moteverde's Straciama, explained the artist. "He is sadly neglected by our impresarios and so this gem of melody is unknown to thousands. So, these gems (and he produced a velvet box)—those pure, Snake Valley Sapphires—"

It was just another sideshow on the two mile daily carnival which is Broadway. Staged, according to the New Yorker, for the benefit of the 300,000 visitors who come each day to the city's hospitable doors, an overgrown County Fair holds forth from 30th street to the late 60s.

Changing with every short city block and yet unchanged throughout its length in the foundational motif which is a candid combination of the world's latest offerings.

The Orange Trail has supplanted the Cocktail Route—this is the biggest physical change in Broadway in the last decade.

Instead of Martin's, there are flaring white and pinkbooths on the corners with alluring piles of the yellow fruit, and often complicated machinery, palpably designed to convey the impression of having been used to transmute the piled fruit into the golden, frosty drink. The shaded light and private tables and comfortable footrail are missing.

But except for the missing bacchanalian temples, the Broadway carnival continues to offer its sideshows as of old. Three diminutive negroes appear from a side street, push their way into the solid stream and to the tinkle of a home made uke, stage a native interpretation of "The Charlestown," to the delight of a throng which includes more than a few formal costumes. The flurry of small change is hastily garnered as a stolid member of the City's Finest strolls into view.

The jam of humanity breaks, flow a block and concentrates again before a silk-tongued merchant who stands guardian over two uncannily dexterous dancing dolls. Half the watchers see the tiny silk thread which furnishes the motive power but none are so unsportsmanlike as to spoil the game. A few quick sales and this "show" also liquidates before the approach of John Law.

Opponent and proponent of the evolution theory held adjoining corners in a soap box debate on a recent night and each drew large crowds. A deep-breathing enthusiast gave his "measure" with personal illustrations and insisted to the end that just his "love of his brother" was the recompense sought—but at the end produced a patented easy-gliding suspender which would aid the seeker of ozone.

Strollers on Broadway pass, with little apparent notice, windows full of diamonds, curios to make an antiquarian dream, and ornate mechanical devices, to coagulate in a solid ass before the latest cafe window showing a sculptured watermelon.

The tides of Broadway are influenced by kilowat and ampere rather than by luna rays. The trend to the Roaring Forties is south from Washington Heights and North from Washington Square as soon as the first electric signs flicker into life. The flow becomes veritable "ripe" of humanity as theater time approaches, to recede gradually from then, as the crest splashes into the dinner and dance club belt.

PROGRESS OF HAITI SHOWN IN COMMISSIONER'S REPORT

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 3 (AP)—Haiti, rich in soil and agricultural resources, has "just completed one of the best fiscal years of its history."

A study of the 1924-1925 financial report shows that $3,097,532 in revenue was received by the republic, as compared to $5,580,424 the previous year. This surpassed by $1,298,043 the total receipts of 1919-1920, the best previous year since the American intervention.

Expenditures totaled $7,843,040, approximately a million more than in 1923-1924. Half of this increase, however, was devoted to retiring debts, while the remainder was allotted to public works and agriculture.

Brigadier-General John H. Russell American high commissioner, has expressed himself as well pleased with the improvement in conditions.

SOUTHERN COLLEGE HEADS AVERAGE $6,101 ANNUALLY

GEORGETOWN, Ky., Dec. 3 (AP)—College presidents of the South are making their contributions to education at average salaries of $6,101 yearly.

This was learned by James Moreland, registrar of Georgetown College, after making a survey of 44 first rate Southern institutions.

His investigation also revealed that full professors averaged $3,111, department heads $3,099, college treasurers $3,006, registrars $2,327, executive secretaries, $2,694. Deans averaged $3,643 while the lowly instructors were at the bottom with $1,588.

Salaries of heads of departments at the University of Texas showed more than those received by presidents of several colleges. Texas was the highest paying university in the South with $10,000 for its president down to $1,900 for instructors.

ILL PRINCE CURED WHEN FORESTER POUNDS HIS BACK

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 3 (AP)—King Christian of Denmark has a novel way of curing lumbago.

While he and King Gustaf of Sweden were hunting elk with Prince Charles, the latter suffered an attack. King Christian immediately ordered one of the foresters to hammer away with clenched fists at the small of the prince's back.

Prince Charles howled with pain, but after a drubbing lasting ten minutes admitted the lumbago had lifted.

"I had my revenge," said the prince, "I managed to pot two elk that day, while Christian did not even get a chance of blazing away a single shot."

REHABILITATION OF TORNADO SWEPT AREA STILL UNDERWAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 3. (AP)—The annual Red Cross roll call finds this organization just finishing its biggest disaster relief job of the year—in the section of Missouri, southern Illinois and Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee, swept by the disastrous tornado of March 18.

Nearly two million dollars has been spent by the Red Cross in assisting the residents of the affected area to rehabilitate their communities, and a "back to school" campaign is now in progress.

One of the biggest problems is to overcome the fear of the children of even entering school buildings, from which so many of their playmates were taken out dead last spring. The least puff of wind unnerves them.

There still are 500 injured in need of medical attention, 266 of them at West Frankfort. It may be a year before some of these cases are completed.

Thousands of families have been assisted in restoring their homes and farm buildings, especially in the towns of Gorham and DeSoto, Ill., and Griffin, Ind., which were demolished by the storm.

NEW NATIONAL PARK PLANNED IN NEW MEXICO MOUNTAINS

SANTA FE, N. M., Dec. 3 (AP)—Far from the beaten path of travel a new national park is being planned in the James and Sangre de Christo mountain ranges in northern New Mexico.

At the southern entrance of the proposed park is a beautiful canyon which has a high water-fall that roars and sparkles. There is a cave whose sides have been painted in brilliant colors by nature's chemistry.

In the center of the region is the Valle Grande, a huge extinct volcano, the largest crater in the southwest. Near the crater are stone formations resembling Gothic cathedral spires.

The Norwegian Storthing, which is authorized to award the Nobel Peace prize, decided that there would be no award of this prize for 1925. The Storthing also decided to give no peace prize for 1924, when it was held over.

DANIELSON

CHRISTMAS MONEY AT LIBERTY IN DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 3—The flood gates of the Christmas club reservoir for such funds were unexpectedly thrown open Thursday by the Windham County National Bank and a stream of money poured forth. This was the first release this year, in Danielson of Christmas club money. The public generally was not looking for any distribution of this holiday wealth until about December 10, but its earlier release was highly pleasing. Possession of the checks will set hundreds to buying Christmas gifts at once. It will start the holiday rush in the stores earlier than otherwise would have been the case. This will be welcome from several viewpoints, especially to the clerks who have a hard three weeks of work ahead of them and spreading the holiday shopping over an extra week will lessen the strain on their energies.

This (Friday) afternoon at the Health Station in the town hall building there is to be a regular Well child conference. In announcing this meeting it is pointed out that children need plenty of sunshine and fresh air. During these late fall days when there is a suggestion of winter in the air, children should not be allowed to remain in the house by the warm fireside. Playing out of doors is conducive to good health. Warm sweaters and mittens will help to keep out the cold, and these children can play in perfect freedom in any weather. Children who are thus allowed to play out in the open each day come in for their meals with glowing cheeks and laughing eyes and are healthy in the extreme. The little children who are allowed to take their morning or afternoon nap on the porch are, likewise, healthier, because they have had plenty of air and sunshine during this time. Such factors of health are discussed at the Well Child conferences held in Danielson each month, and the conference of this afternoon promises to be of particular interest.

Wednesday evening, Moriah lodge, A. F. and A. M. elected the following officers: Master, John R. Marland; senior warden, Charles A. Burdick; junior warden, L. S. Ingalls; treasurer, Charles S. Bill; secretary, Frederic O. Armington; senior deacon, Walter Anderson; junior deacon, Wellington E. Bitgood; senior steward, H. K. Franklin; junior steward, Byron F. Barrowclough; chaplain, Harry Brearley; marshall; E. L. Darbie; tyler, Edward S. Carpenter.

At her home in Wauregan Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock funeral services for Mrs. Jessie Burns were conducted by Rev. William Fryling of the Wauregan Congregational church. Burial was in Evergreen cemetery at Central Village. Relatives acted as bearers. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Well, the motor coach operators on the new line of the Connecticut company have had their baptism of weather in getting their first experience operating the coaches they have had slippery highways most of the time the week and on Thursday as rainy and as mean a day to drive as they are likely to contend with during the winter. The operators have done splendidly. The coaches are operated with marked consideration for safety at all times and not the slightest difficulty has been experienced.

With the coal strike entering its fourth month, one hears less about it in Danielson than any other such strike in many years. It appears that many here, forewarned of the strike by failure of negotiations between the operators and miners last summer, stocked coal enough for the winter, or used wood throughout the fall to conserve such coal as they were able to obtain for real cold weather. With this situation as it is and an abundance of cord wood available, it is not likely that there will be any great suffering for fuel here this winter such as the strike last all through the cold weather period. Of course, there are some exceptions to this broad statement.

The newly elected officers of McGregor corps W. R. C., are: President, Mrs. Cora D. Page; senior vice president, Mrs. Lucy B. Graves; junior vice president, Mrs. Mary A. Bedard; treasurer, Mrs. Hattie L. Bayer; chaplain, Mrs. Frances A. Wurtele; conductor, Mrs. Flora E. Kennedy; guard, Mrs. Sarah A. Wilde. Miss Annie L. Page and Mrs. Malvina Bedard were named first and second delegates and Mrs. Elizabeth Dawson and Mrs. Nellie V. Moran first and second alternates. Appointive officers are to be named prior to the installation on January 6.

On November 30, 1864, at Cairain City, near Greenfield, Mass., Emory L. Tubbs and Miss Clara F. Bagg were united in marriage. Monday at their home on School street, Mr. and Mrs. Tubbs quietly celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding, with a few friends and relatives, a misunderstanding as to the time preventing others from being present.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Tubbs are well along in the eighties. Emory L. Tubbs was born August 12, 1839 at Guilford, Vt., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tubbs. Clara F. Bagg was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bagg and was born January 30, 1841, at Bernardston, Mass.

Mr. Tubbs is a Civil war veteran and served nearly three years in the Eleventh Vermont Volunteers and afterwards in the First Vermont Heavy Artillery. He was twice wounded, once in the hip while acting as a night guard and later through the left arm at the charge at Petersburg, April 2, 1865, only a few days before the close of the war. He is a member of McGregor Post, G. A. R., having served as chaplain for many years and held other offices.

Mr. and Mrs. Tubbs were married soon after he received his discharge and removed to Indiana, where they remained for seven years. They later resided in Vermont, Kansas, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, but for the past 43 years, except for a period spent in Florida they have made their home in Killingly, being well known throughout the town.

A son and daughter, both deceased, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Tubbs. The daughter was Mrs. William McEwen. They have a granddaughter, Mrs. Henry Milope, and two great grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Tubbs both suffer from infirmities attending advanced age, but are able to get out and are frequently to be met on the streets of Danielson. They attend the Pentecostal church, having been very prominent in its activities.

It was noted that numbers of cars had rear tires equipped with chains Thursday as a precaution against skidding on slippery highway surfaces.

The fact that East Killingly is left without regular transportation service has interested one or two who are studying the field and its possibility of producing profit for a motor vehicle operator. One handicap complained of incident to establishing such a service is the poor condition of the highway, especially between Elmville and Killingly Center. The traveling there and over East Killingly hill from the valley is apt to be rough for weeks during the winter and late spring.

More than an inch of rain came in the storm that became heavy during Wednesday night and continued all of Thursday in this area. Of course, Miami, with 14 inches of rain in twelve hours, would not think the storm up here amounted to anything but it brought a welcome addition to reserve supplies of water in Killingly.

Personal taxes are not over-due as yet, as many have supposed, but they are being collected as due and payable at this time by Attorney L. A. Woisard, special collector. These taxes are to be paid during December.

Construction work is continuing on the addition to the School street garage, which will be a greatly enlarged plant when the work underway is completed.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

SCHOOL ENUMERATION SHOWS GAIN THIS YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Dec. 3—The school enumeration, as finally tabulated was forwarded this week, by the secretary of the school board, to the state comptroller. The figures show a total of 1473 children in the town of Stafford between the ages of 4 and 16 years, a gain of 21 since last year. PUTNAM

PUTNAM AGAIN CALLED FOR FIRE IN POMFRET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 3—The Putnam Fire department was called upon again, today, to help extinguish a fire at Pomfret. One of the cottages attached to the Ben Grosvenor inn caught fire this afternoon, but was saved by the use of hand chemicals at a loss of between $300 and $500.

A chemical truck was sent out from here but the blaze was under control before it arrived.

As the grand finale to the victorious football season that Putnam High school's team has just ended, a banquet was given this week by the Hi-Y club at the Baptist church, at which the members of the football squad and their coach were the guests of honor. Other guests were Maurice Childs, acting Y. M. C. A. secretary and principal of Woodstock Academy and E. L. Robinson, principal of Putnam High school, who acted as toastmaster.

Principal Robinson was a very efficient toastmaster and had a good supply of stories on hand. He introduced as the first speaker the captain of the 1925 warriors, William Valentine. Valentine thanked the club for the supper—that had been given the team and said that he hoped that the student body would back up the new team as it had done to this year's.

He was followed by George Farquhar, who told how he caught the forward pass for which he is famous. Sylvio Dupre urged the team of 1926 to keep up the good record and to follow their motto, an excellent one, "Play clean and fair but hard and fierce." Allan Colburn made a few remarks and was followed by Terrance McGarry who told of the work of the good coach and the good quarterback. Walter Wheaton and Gordon Caffrey both spoke briefly. Arthur Pominville said that a lot of credit for the success this year should go to the coach, Mr. Smith. Walter Scott was called upon next and he also said that he appreciated the good work of the coach and that Putnam was going to have even a better team next year. Roy Thompson spoke briefly and was followed by Harold Arnold, who said that if the team was successful people praised the team, but that if it was poor all of the blame is placed upon the coach.

Michael Hannifan spoke "at length" after which he and Colburn sang a novelty song. Thomas Elliott told how three years ago Putnam did not win a game and only about half of the contests last year. During the time the team was developing this year the season was perfect. He hoped that next year's team would be as good as this year's. Winslow brought out the interesting fact that Putnam scored 213 points as against its opponents' 18. He remarked that if it had not been for Valentine's interference he would not have done so much.

Mr. Robinson urged the members of the squad, who are to graduate next June, to feel that they would always be welcome at Putnam high and to make their visits there frequent. He said that Mr. Smith had done more to foster the spirit of good sportsmanship in Putnam than any one he knew.

Mr. Smith was then called upon. He brought out the fact that the secret of a good team was training coupled with experience. He said that next year's season would probably be a hard one and urged all present to try and have a bigger squad next year by getting their fellow students into it. He repeated the team's motto, "Play clean and fair but hard and fierce" and urged all to follow it, whether in the football field or out in the wide world.

Maurice Childs, of Woodstock academy, gave a very interesting talk in which he gave the views of a neighboring school about the Putnam team. He hoped that this year's successful season would be a lesson for the team, which they could remember throughout life.

The last speaker was Mr. Duffy, the leader of the Hi-Y's, who spoke briefly.

The banquet, which was attended by about forty, was brought to a close by the singing of the Alma Mater.

A hen house and part of a barn was burned at 376 School street Thursday morning. The hook and ladder truck responded to a telephone call, but, on arriving an alarm was sent in by Chief Thurston, which brought out the hose company. The damage to the property is estimated at about $500.

A few days ago it was stated that Harold Cunpingham, of Pomfret, had filed an appeal in the superior court against Tony Postemsky, of Pomfret, for $3.50; that he had been allowed $1.70 in a lower court, but claimed that the larger amount was due him. This is incorrect as it was Tony Postemsky who filed the appeal and not Mr. Cunningham. The latter brought suit against Postemsky for $1.70 before Walter Byrnes, justice of the peace, as commission on a cow he sold for him. The justice allowed the claim and also assessed the costs of $10.34 against him making a total of $12.04. From this decision Postemsky appealed.

The regular meeting of the Woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital is to be held on Wednesday, December 9, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

All of the elementary schools of the town will take some part in the program which is to be in three parts, one each by the Rural, Smith street and the Israel Putnam school pupils.

Byron Wilcox, son of Fred J. Wilcox, of Chapman street, who is a senior at Bates college, was the author of one of the editorials in the last issue of the Bates Bobcat, the comic magazine of the college. This is the second number of the magazine to be published, and it has been so successful that the Bobcat is to become a regular magazine, issued four times a year.

The fire department was called out Thursday morning at 6:30 o'clock for a fire in the rear of 191 Providence street. A Ford sedan owned by A. D. Beausoliel caught fire in some way, and the front cushion was burned. Aside from this there was but very little damage.

Mrs. Edwin Phillips, School street, has taken charge of the cafeteria at the High school in place of Mrs. Oscar Ross, who has resigned from the place. Mrs. Phillips began her new duties this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian Anderson and son, Donald, of Providence, have been the guests of Mr. Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Bernier, of Woodstock avenue.

Daniel E. Hickie died very suddenly, Monday morning, at the Day Kimball hospital. He had made his home in Harrisville recently, but was a resident of West Thompson for many years. Mr. Hickie was known to many residents of Putnam who will miss his cordial greeting despite the infirmities of age. Funeral services were held Thursday morning at St. Mary's church and the body was taken to Pawtucket for burial.

Mr. Hickie was born in Ireland 76 years ago but came to America when a small boy.

REBEL BELIEVES PIGMIES ONCE HIGHLY CIVILIZED

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec 3. (AP)—Whether the pigmy of Dutch New Guina is evolving or degenerating first must be determined before it may be classed as the "missing link," in the opinion of Albert Rebel, Tuscon editor, who has seen the creature.

In commenting on the Smithsonian institution's expedition to New Dutch Guines, Rebel told of impressions formed when he went with a Dutch geological party to the uncharted fastnesses of Sumatra in 1918.

Pigmies may easily be called "ape men," he said, for their mode of living is not much above that of apes. Although his first contact with the Bataks of interior Sumatra almost convinced him he had found the gap in the Darwinian hypothesis, Rebel was amazed to learn the savages once had known a comparatively high state of civilization, as evidenced by remnants of art and writing in a alphabet known only to them.

Rebel's party established contact with the pigmies by signalling, but were never able to approach them. A few gifts of trinkets were left on a hillside. The next morning they were gone and jungle food was found in their place.

In this manner many trophies were obtained, but when the white men came near, the pigmies took to trees like monkeys. The habitations were examined and found to be nothing more than nests.

As a result of his investigation, Rebel reached the belief that the pigmies have been degenerating for centuries, until now they are barely above the level of the lower animals.

Supervisor Martin Robertson held a Teachers' meeting at the Rock Meadow schoolhouse Wednesday afternoon.

The Red school is proud to hold the attendance banner. The school numbers twenty pupils and had only one day of absence for one pupil, during the month of November.

Miss Helen F. Millard and Miss Elizabeth P. Hand went to their homes in New Haven for the Thanksgiving recess. Miss Gladys Young spent her recess at her home in Woodstock.

The date for the next meeting of the Union Parent-Teacher association is Friday evening Dec. 11th at the town hall. Although the program committee has not fully formulated their plans it is expected that they will secure the loan of a lecture from the state board of education, and that it will be illustrated by lantern slides.

An enjoyable community social, under the auspices of the Ladies' Benevolent association, was held at the town hall last Friday evening. The evening was very rainy, but nothing dampened the spirits of the attendants.

Miss Emma C. Fisher of Springfield, Mass., was a week end guest at the parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Turning of Hartford, were at the Barber home for Thanksgiving. Mrs. Turning remained with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Barber, until Sunday.

AMERICANS IN EUROPE LONG FOR HOME DISHES AND MENU

PARIS, Dec. 3. (AP)—Although Europe may boast the best cooks in all the world, hundreds of Americans here are starving for American dishes.

Even the American woman who diets has her troubles. For European chefs have not learned how to make that extremely thin and brittle toast which enables one to give a pretense of eating.

In France, sauces and butter and flour used as ingredients in the cuisine, are terrible enemies to the waistline. In England, boiled unseasoned vegetables offer little temptation to the palate. No medals can be awarded in Italy and Germany for no woman who wants to wear fashionable gowns dares to eat much macaroni, spaghetti or ravioli. Wine and beer do not go with the slender boy-like figure.

Follow a party of American tourists, or go to a luncheon of American business men, or to a gathering of American women, and hear these pleas and complaints:

"My kingdom for some cornbread."

"If I could only get some nice brown waffles with Vermont maple syrup."

"Oh, for some real buckwheat cakes."

"When a Frenchman can cook chicken in nine hundred and ninety different ways, why can't he fry it like we do at home?"

"The cook who learns how to make corn fritters in Paris will make his fortune."

And to cap the situation, French kitchen artists can not make the kinds of soup which Americans like best.

400 INDIANS BURIED IN CALIF. MISSION CEMETERY

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 3 (AP)—Inside the adobe walls of an ancient cemetery on the highway between Mission San Jose and Irvington, 30 miles south of Oakland, is a stone bearing "1797-1915" and a monument inscribed:

Here Sleep
Four Thousand of the Ohlone Tribe
Who helped the Padres Build This Mission San Jose de Gaudalupe.
Sacred to Their Memory.

The Indian graveyard is situated a mile from the mission they helped to erect over a century ago.

Recently, the graves needed attention, and the parish of the mission church is restoring beauty to the historic ground.

HOME IN CLOUDS AWAITS PRESIDENT ON CHICAGO VISIT

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—When President Coolidge comes to Chicago Dec. 7 to speak to the farmers attending the convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation, his headquarters will be in a two-story Georgian residence on top of the 20 story Hotel Sherman, 300 feet above the street.

The midwestern sky white house or presidential suite has downstairs a wood paneled living room with a real fireplace, a mail dining room and a kitchen where all the president's meals will be prepared.

Upstairs—there are no elevators in the little house—are four bedrooms.

CHEAPER CLOTHING MAY RESULT FROM DISCOVERY

MANCHESTER, England, Dec. 3. (AP)—A wool substitute, said to be just as warm and comfortable as the real thing, is expected by its inventor to result in cheaper clothing.

The cloth is called Woolulose and the manufacturer explained it consists of 70 per cent jute fibre and 30 per cent ordinary recovered wool.

Spplied in the raw state, the material will sell at approximately three-quarters of the price of the cheapest wool.

New Discovery Banishes Sleeplessness, Quiets Nerves and Stops Headache

The most wearing-out process which could afflict a person is that which is caused by lack of sleep. Fitful, insufficient slumber tears the nervous system to pieces and causes much of the weakness, irritability and susceptibility to disease which is often blamed on other causes.

Lack of sleep ages one, destroys beauty and certainly shortens your life. And yet it is so easy to have the deep refreshing slumber of childhood.

A sleep that will make you feel like a new person and add five years to your life—a slumber that will banish the "blues" and give you the strong, healthy nerves which mean a sunshiny, cheerful outlook on life. And you can get all these benefits from a new, harmless, easy-to-take preparation called Neura.

Neura contains no opiates or habit-forming drugs. The results from the use of Neura have been so remarkable, however, that it is now dispensed by Lee & Osgood and druggists everywhere with a guarantee to return the small cost if you are not amazed and delighted with the results from the use of the very first package. Get a good night's sleep tonight by taking Neura today.

SAYS DANCING TO HUMANS LIKE SUNLIGHT TO FLOWERS

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Dec. 3. (AP)—Dancing is just as necessary for healthy human life as sunlight is for flowers, is the belief of Dr. F. L. Deane, bishop of Aberdeen and Orkney.

He regrets, however, that modern dancing tends to thrust aside "some of the most beautiful dances that we have inherited from the past."

"Country dances," he said, "have behind them that intangible, indefinable, yet living force—the force of national sentiment and patriotism."

Forest Research at the Fire Line

For five days this summer, up in the Idaho panhandle, assistant silverculturist H. T. Gisborne of the northern Rocky mountain forest experiment station lived on terms of unenviable intimacy with the swift-spreading Rode forest fire, taking frequent measurements of humidity, temperature, wind, and moisture of forest fuels as the fire raged.

In the course of these somewhat hazardous observations on behalf of the Forest Service of the United States department of agriculture, Gisborne noted three main obstacles to prompt control of fires. The readiness with which dead trees, standing or down, increased the spread of fire was first remarked. Equally striking was the important part played by the wind, even when the fire was burning against the wind and downhill. Volume of fuel had also a remarkable effect. Within a circle of a few rods some parts of the fire burned fiercely, others very quietly, each influenced by no other factor than the amount of fuel available.

The French schooner La Parisienne which was seized with a cargo of 50,000 gallons of alcohol on Stellwagon Bank, eight miles off the Massachusetts coast two weeks ago, was ordered released.

THE AIR INQUIRY REPORT

Because of the loss of the Shenandoah and the delay in locating the seaplane that attempted the flight from the Pacific coast to the Hawaiian islands and certain criticism in connection therewith, there were developments which prompted the president to appoint a board to make inquiry concerning aviation in this country.

That board known as the Morrow board, because it was headed by Dwight W. Morrow, has made an exhaustive inquiry and now laid the facts and recommendations before the president. Their report will of course be available for congressional use in connection with aviation.

Much testimony was obtained during the inquiry, and as the result of it the board finds that there should not be a single air service, but that the army and navy should maintain separate units, thus disposing of certain sensational demands that have been made. But furthermore the board finds that it is not necessary to build up a large air power and that the United States is not in danger of an air attack from any potential enemy of menacing strength, and thus undermining the alarming talk which certain individuals have been indulging in.

The board does find that there should be a bureau of air navigation in the department of commerce for the encouragement of the development and use of civilian aircraft and that additional secretaries should be named as may be needed to meet this requirement and to take care of aviation needs in other departments.

It likewise finds that our accident rate is decreasing and that we compare favorably with other countries. That criticism of extravagance was not justified and that the charge of pilots forced to fly in unsafe planes was not substantiated.

The board went exhaustively into the subject and deals with it in a calm and positive manner. Its recommendations will no doubt receive the attention they deserve but they will also be generally accepted as eliminating the wild and unwarranted charges that were made. The revelations are only such as might have been obtained by other means but in view of the statements made it is well the inquiry has been made.

CONSUMERS ARE INTERESTED

While attention has been directed to the Pinchot plan for bringing about a settlement of the difficulty in the anthracite fields, and the refusal of the operators to have anything to do with it even as a basis for negotiations, not very much attention has been given to the plan put forth by the operators two weeks before the Pinchot plan whereby a permanent adjustment was sought and whereby it was planned to submit to arbitration any questions which were not settled after 30 days in conference. That plan was turned down quite as coldly by the miners although there was no qualification in it which tied the hands of the board of arbitration to act in only one direction.

Thus far as failing to do anything for the ending of the strike the miners appear to be quite as deep in the mud as some are inclined to believe the operators are in the mire of unfairness.

There is no reason to suppose that the operators have any more concern for the consumer than the miners have. Both sides are looking out for themselves, but when the proposition calls for a board of investigation that will deal with conditions surrounding disputes and that board can authorize an increase in wages, or the maintenance of wages where they are, but cannot think of lowering them even though conditions warrant, or is expected to increase wages instead of lowering the price of coal as a method of dealing with large profits, it must be realized that the Pinchot plan is not conceived in the interest of the public. Apparently the only benefit would be the resumption of coal mining, and then a resumption of the old strike at the first favorable opportunity.

While the operators call for an arrangement that will prevent the stoppage of the production of coal while matters are being considered, there is some consideration for the coal consuming public, even though their own welfare may be the paramount purpose. Those who are sticking to anthracite are of course interested in any such relief.

DISREGARDING SAFETY

If 20,000 of our citizens had been killed in conflict during the year there would be a proper demand for the ending of such a struggle. Hands would be thrown up in horror at such a slaughter and peace would be demanded. But there were 20,000 persons killed during 1924 and it is estimated that by the time 1925 is completed there will have been 22,000 fatalities in this country, or an increase of 2,000 over last year. This is a death record from motor vehicle accidents, and while it is an appalling loss of life there does not seem to be the same insistance upon preventing it that there would be in case of war or some disaster which exacted a similar toll.

Can it be said that there is satisfaction over such a record and that every thing is being done that can be done to bring about a reduction? It is of course pointed out that the increase estimated for this year is because there are more machines in use. That condition must of course be realized but not very much allowance is being made for the influence of the campaigns in behalf of greater safety or the realization on the part of all motor vehicle drivers that this deplorable loss of life is due in large degree to the lack of care.

It is hard to understand why so many persons are satisfied to go on taking those very chances which have proved the undoing of others and which have contributed in so large a degree to the annual death list. New provisions are constantly being made for bringing about a decrease of motor vehicle fatalities and accidents, but it doesn't appear that there is a corresponding interest and response on the part of the very ones for whom such efforts are intended. If there were there would not be the steady increase in fatalities even though the number of vehicles increases. Campaigns for greater safety must continue but it is decidedly discouraging when what seems to be indifference produces an increase instead of a decrease.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY

For several years Golden Rule Sunday, the first Sunday in December, has been observed. It is a day for giving thought of others and particularly those children of the near east who are depending upon such aid as they get from relief workers for their existence.

There are 35,000 children now under the care of the relief workers in the near east which means that nearly 28,000,000 meals must be provided for them in the course of a year. Besides those under the care of the relief organization there are others who are receiving part care. These are those who have been saved and the effort is to see that they are not abandoned now.

Under such circumstances, where distress would prevail in a deplorable degree if assistance were withdrawn, there is an admirable opportunity for the application of the Golden Rule. We know how we would feel if those cases existed hereabouts and we know what sacrifices we would make to extend relief. Their distress and predicament are none the less because they are far away. Conditions surrounding them are in fact such that they should receive the thoughtful attention and care that would come from whatever aid that is extended.

The appeal that those living in the midst of plenty should have a simple meal on Golden Rule Sunday and give the difference between that expense and what their Sunday dinner would ordinarily cost is entirely reasonable. It should mean slight sacrifice but it should result in accomplishing untold good. Whether the sacrifice is resorted to to provide the contribution to this commendable work in the near east, Golden Rule Sunday deserves to have general observance.

LENIENCY FOSTER'S CRIME

As the result of a study which has been made by the Judicial Council of Massachusetts into the crime situation in that state numerous recommendations have been offered to the governor of that state. That state is no different from many others in the increase that has been experienced in crime. The council points to the gain in crime and to the clogged courts, but there is much significance attached to its statement that "The pendulum has swung too far in the direction of leniency and this tendency has reached the point where it has let criminals, especially younger ones in some parts of the community, to hold in contempt the courts that are supposed to restrain their activities."

In order to better deal with this situation it is recommended that there be more trials without jury except in capital cases and that sentences be more promptly imposed. Prompt action in criminal cases is called for and better use asked for the deterrent effects of the criminal law for the provision of the protection that is due the public.

It is requiring a long and persistent effort to bring about a realization of the fact that too much consideration, too much leniency, is being extended to the criminals and the criminally inclined and to get that cooperation among the enforcers of the law that will impress upon the violators that the laws actually mean something. The Massachusetts report adds new emphasis to the present day requirements.

EDITORIAL NOTES

When winter comes spring cannot be far away.

Reaching the last sheet on the calendar pad shows that the course of 1925 is about run.

The governor of Pennsylvania is finding that it is one thing to propose and another to dispose.

The man on the corner says: Good intentions are always more numerous than good accomplishments.

The two million dollar estate of C. F. Murphy shows that there is money in politics if the game is well played.

In spite of the frequent rains there seems to be a big opportunity for stopping any waste of the city water.

It is none too early to do some serious thinking about your 1926 resolutions and after that your income tax.

There's no danger that the Christmas shopping will all be done so early that there will be no business in the last few days before the holiday.

With over a thousand pardons issued by Governor Ferguson of Texas this year she ought to have the penal institutions empty by Christmas.

AT THE CLUB

"Are you going to wear shoes again this year?" complained the sandy-haired member to his large and amiable friend, as the latter deposited himself in his favorite lounge chair and contemplated with satisfaction the new and iridescent shine on his calf-skin boots.

The sandy-haired person waited for a reply, while his friend frowned in perplexity.

"Really," said the large man finally, "it's not often I fail to grasp the vagaries of your conversation, but in this instance I'm bound to admit I don't get you. Are you suggesting that I might spend the coming season clad in a Russian ballet ensemble?"

The sandy-haired person shook his head and registered despair.

"I suggest nothing," he said. "My powers of suggestion are getting anaemic from a lack of encouragement. You remember five years ago they told you that leather had gone up and shoe buttons were scarce and waxed thread had been cornered on the market, in fact, they told you that everything had gone up except the price of chewing gum and the soft coal smoke that adorns the face of our fair city."

The amiable member nodded.

"So for five years," continued the sandy-haired person bitterly, "I have voted for every man, woman or politician who has promised relief, and what good has it done me? And now when—"

"You're quite right," interrupted the amiable member soothingly. "But you must remember that it takes a lot of material to make you a pair of boots—about three times as much, say, as for your sister."

"All roads lead to Rome," groaned the sandy-haired person, "even the oldest gags. But why do you come to me with your troubles?"

"Troubles?" repeated the large member, simulating surprise.

"Certainly," replied the sandy-haired person tartly. "I knew when you crossed the threshold that some one had stepped on your feelings, or your garage bill had just come in, or something weird was happening in copper. But come across with the facts. Shoot!"

The large and amiable man hesitated.

"The fact is," he said, with a frown, "I don't seem to understand women."

"Ah?" said the sandy-haired person politely. "Women in general?"

"Well—er—your sister in particular," admitted the large man miserably.

A slow grin overspread the features of the sandy-haired person as he waited for more.

"I can't seem to get their point of view," he repeated aggrievedly.

"Tut, tut!" admonished the sandy-haired person, blandly. "This is not my busy day, you know, so if there are any other little things you'd like to have me explain—the origin of sin, or the income tax or anything of that sort—don't hesitate to mention it."

"Don't be a fool," said the large member, indignantly. "You'll be in this fix some day yourself."

"Never," retorted the sandy-haired person with scorn. "No woman alive shall ever work me up and turn me down. What has sis been doing to you now?"

"Nothing," said the large member sadly. "That's the trouble. Every time I phone she has another engagement or has just gone out with a Mr. Addison or somebody. It looks too deuced accidental-a-purpose to be convincing. And yet when she does go somewhere with me—"

"Addie is certainly a pest," interrupted the sandy-haired person very thoughtfully, "but at the same time, my dear fellow, and without the least desire in the world to say I told you so, may I point out that at the very beginning of this affair—well, never mind that, if you're going to get huffy about it. But why not drop the matter now, avoiding further injury to your emotions, you know. Find a matrimonial balm elsewhere, or words to that effect?"

The large and amiable man rose with a scowl. He drew on his gloves with a series of jerks and when he spoke he snorted.

"You can expect me up at your house at 8.05 tonight," he said. "I shall have on the ordinary dress shirt of a regular citizen and if that monkey-faced Addison is there with his flowing tie and turquoise studs I'll pick him up by the scruff of the neck and drop him into an ash receiver. Now I'll bid you good-afternoon. You can lunch by yourself."—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Oscar von Miller, who has come to New York to advise with a local committee on plans for the erection in the metropolis of a great museum of peaceful arts, is the founder of the German Museum of Science and Industry in Munich and one of the best known engineers in Europe. He first visited America in 1893, when the first electric plant was being started in New York. He obtained from Mr. Edison the right to install a plant in Germany, which proved a success. He has taken a prominent part in the electrification of German railways, and is also a pioneer in the field of hydro-electric experimentation. At the zenith of his career he took up the project of establishing an industrial museum in Munich, which has proven a model the world over. The museum covers 10 acres, the buildings being divided into 61 sections, each section showing a kindred art.

From Small Beginnings

Thomas Blanchard, the Great Inventor

Thomas Blanchard annoyed his teacher by not studying his lessons, and the other pupils annoyed Thomas Blanchard because he stammered. The school was a most unhappy place for the boy. Grownups and children alike told him he had no brains, and he realized also that he had no tongue, at least, not one that behaved itself. The boy was glad enough to sit down by himself with his jack-knife and whittle out toys that he liked—and very clever he was in whittling. Then he found the country blacksmith shop an earthly paradise and envied "that mighty man", the smith and tried to imitate him by working in iron. He found his field—not books, but metal; not talking, but doing. He made an appleparer that could pare apples almost as fast as young girls could hand them to him. His older brother made tacks, and Thomas went to visit him. He was amused to see grown up men putting heads on tacks, and doing it by hand. He was only eighteen but he set to work to make a machine that would head tacks better and faster than his brothers' men could do it.

Some time after this the farmer's son visited a place where they were making guns. He saw how difficult it was to make gunstocks, and how long it took. Could he make a machine that would do the work more quickly? That seemed an absurd idea, but he accomplished the work and made a new kind of lathe that did miracles. In fact Thomas Blanchard seemed able to do the impossible always. He invented a device that bored square holes. Then he set to work and made a lathe that turned out such odd and irregular shapes as shoe lasts!

Away back in 1825 this farmer's son whom the teachers thought dull, and couldn't speak without stammering so that people laughed at him, foresaw the automobile, and made a steam carriage by which he rode along the highways frightening all the New England horses into fits. He made a machine that could bend wood into any shape without breaking it or splitting it. He promoted railroads and steamboats, and earned so much money that he was as independent as a prince. The dullest boy in the school, at whom both teachers and pupils laughed, had turned out a great genius. His tongue stammered but his brain worked so quickly and so smoothly that he could make machinery to do anything that he wished it to do.

It is better to think and to do than it is to talk.

Stories That Recall Others

Just Their Way.

Two ladies who had not seen each other for years recently met in Franklin street. They recognized each other after a time and their recognition was cordial.

"So delighted to see you again. Why you are scarcely altered."

"And how little changed you are! Why how long is it since we met?"

"I should say five years."

"And why have you never been to see me?"

"Oh, my dear, just look at the weather we have had."

Back to Familiar Scenes.

The country doctor of a number of years ago was often called on by patients for services that would have been exasperating to any professional man who was greatly in demand were it not for the fact that many incidents, though serious, proved to be humorous.

A doctor in a small town was sitting at the table one day. The meal was hardly begun when a laboring man appeared at the screen door and in a blunt way called: "Doc, come down to the house right away."

The physican understood the ways of the people of his small town, or at least thought he did and knowing the working man to be one who little cared to display sentiment or divulge details promptly responded to the man's call, thinking perhaps his wife was ill.

After half an hour the doctor returned to complete his meal. He was laughing as he entered the house. "What do you think was wrong?" he asked his wife who was warming the food.

"Well, that fellow wanted me to come down to see him," he continued. Yes, sir, after coming all the way up here to call me, he hurried home and got in bed. Had no idea I could have treated him right here."

CHILD TRAINING

The Story of a Teacup

Virginia Carey

Little Frances Carrol looked at Dorothy Dale's new tea set. She thought she had never seen anything so pretty. There was a little teapot, a sugar bowl and creamer and six tiny cups and saucers, all with sprigs of pink flowers on them. She picked up each piece, held it in her hands with wistful admiration, then carefully set it back on the tea-table. Why didn't she have a tea set like that? She wanted one all her own.

Dorothy came from the kitchen with cookies and water. "The water is tea," she said.

All they played "tea party," Frances kept looking at the tea set, and wishing and wishing.

When the time came for her to go home, somehow one of the little teacups found its way to her apron pocket. At home, she hid it among her playthings, but all the afternoon she kept thinking about it—it was such a pretty little cup. She did not tell Mother; she had a feeling that Mother might not want her to have it.

The next day Mrs. Dale paid Mrs. Carrol a hurried call. When she had gone, Mrs. Carrol called Frances.

"You haven't one of Dorothy's little tea-cups, have you?" she asked.

Frances' heart began to thump uneasily. Mother seemed so sad, she was frightened. She started to say, "No," but looking into her mother's face, she couldn't. Instead, she told her just how it had happened; she had wanted the cup so much that without thinking she had picked it up and put it into her pocket.

Mother told her to get the cup, and together they went over to Dorothy Dale's.

"You stole my cup," said Dorothy accusingly.

But Dorothy's mother said, "We will forget all about it."

Frances had never been so miserable in all her five short years. Mother did not scold her, but all the way home something kept saying, "You stole — you stole — you stole." What awful thing had she done?

When they reached home, they found they had company. Miss Payne, Frances' teacher at kindergarten, was smilingly waiting for them. Frances wanted to stay and talk with her, but mother sent her off for a nap.

Mrs. Carrol turned to her guest. "I have a problem for you," she said. Then she told her about Frances and the teacup. "Do you suppose she is going to be a thief?" she said wretchedly.

Miss Payne laughed. "Of course not. A child of her age has not yet developed a sense of right and wrong; she is primitive. All she knows is that she wants certain things because they give her pleasure and does not want other things because they make her unhappy. Whatever you do, do not lay a great burden of guilt on the child and make her feel that she has done a dreadful wrong. Many adult complexes can be traced to an overburdening sense of fear or guilt implanted in childhood. Talk to Frances. Show her that she does not really enjoy taking things that belong to other people—that it makes everyone unhappy. Frances wants her little world to be a happy one. When she is a little older she will be able to understand the moral question involved."

When Frances awoke from her nap, her first thought was that something was wrong—oh, yes, the teacup.

Then Mother came and sat on her bed, and she cuddled up close to her and they talked about little girls who wanted things. Mother understood all about it, and that heavy something inside seemed to go away.

"I feel glad inside now, Mother," she said. "but I am never going to do it again."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Teheran.

Recent news dispatches from Persia announce the deposition of the Kajar dynasty, which has ruled the country for more than 150 years, and the occasion of a new shah to the famous "peacock throne" in Teheran.

"Despite Persia's traditional conservation in governmental affairs, Teheran, its capital, is a city of kaleidoscopic contrasts," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Visitors may enter through any one of its twelve beautiful gates, whose glazed tiles glisten in the sunlight, and find spread before them a dingy collection of mud houses rubbing elbows with palatial residences enclosing flower-filled gardens. A lumbering camel, seemingly just stepped out of a priceless old Persian rug, may draw aside to allow the passage of a high-powered motor car bearing a wealthy Persian en route to his villa on the outskirts of the city.

"Teheran has not always been the capital of Persia. Rhages or Rei, its predecessor, the ruins of which are near-by, was a bustling city of one and a half millions in the Middle Ages. As the birthplace of Harun al-Rashid, Caliph of Badgad, the fifth and most renowned of the Abbassides, its name is forever linked with the 'Arabian Nights.' This city also called Rhagae, was destroyed by the Jengis and Khan.

"Modern Teheran's position, seventy miles south of the Caspian Sea, commanding the highways of the extensive upland plateau and the entrance to the Elburz Passes, has made it the center of a considerable caravan trade, though it does not rank high as an industrial city. Its population is roughly estimated at 300,000 in winter, but in summer this number diminishes one-third. For, although the district lies in the approximate latitude of Cape Hatteras, and nine months of the year bring it cool nights and sunshiny days, the three months of summer are uncomfortably hot and dry.

"The palace of the deposed shah is located in the 'Ark,' or former citadel, in the middle of the city. Here is the Selaam Court, containing the large Takht-Khaned, or Throne Room, where the shah received his people at his New Year's reception, three months and more after the Western World ushered in a new year. This reception formerly was a brilliant affair; the royal band played all through the ceremony, the court post was much in evidence with the shah's greetings for the new season, and the shah himself was seated in a jeweled chair on a beautiful marble throne, which, however, should not be confused with the priceless Peacock Throne kept in the Treasure Vault.

"The Office of the Commandant of the Imperial Guards, the Apartments of the Grand Vizier and the Imperial Archives are separated from the main palace by a shady rose garden, but one's interest naturally centers in the Treasure Vault wherein are kept the Persian crown jewels.

"Nadir Shah, who was also known as Kuli Khan, was shah of Persia from 1736 to 1747. Shortly after he was crowned he invaded India, laid waste to the country and sacked Delhi. It was he who laid down his bare sword as a sign that the massacre might begin and refused to lift it again until thousands of the inhabitants had been murdered. And he it was who brought the peacock throne to Teheran where it has been since 1739.

"This gorgeous chair of state is incrusted with thousands of precious jewels; rubies, diamonds, emeralds and so many others that one is almost blinded by its coruscant splendor. Emblazoned on the back is the large peacock from which the throne takes its name, with its tail spread out in a magnificence no living peacock ever attained. Taken as one piece of 'furniture,' the peacock throne might easily be called the most expensive in the world for it is valued at thirty millions of dollars."

"Keeping it company is the sword of Timur, the Tatar, which doubtless accompanied him on his victorious march through Persia and Syria as far as the frontier of Egypt in those blood thirsty days when invasion and conquest were the lifelong ambitions of every great man. In the Treasure Vault also is a huge terrestrial globe of gold, weighing eighty pounds, set with 51,366 jewels and nearby is the diamond known as the Darya-i-Nur or 'Sea of Light' weighing 186 carats which Nadir Shah did not overlook at Delhi.

"Teheran might well be called the meeting place of East and West, for in the southern portion of the city, tucked away behind the pale pink and blue plaster walls, may be found the majority of the natives with their bazaars and their own circles of life hardly untouched since the early years. In the northern part the Western influence is seen. Felt and heard in the shape of well-graded streets, electric lights, movies European shops, hotels, restaurants and even a tramway. The airplane has made its way to Teheran, the Drill Square north of the central square sharing honors as an aviation field and—a football gridiron!

"Persia is fast adopting modern ways. The new ruler, who is referred to in a dispatch from Teheran as a decree reducing the price of bread,"

CONSERVATION OF WILD LIFE PRESENTS COMPLEX PROBLEMS

To protect the lives of the useful or harmless wild animals and birds of the country and at the same time to guard growing crops and livestock against depredations of injurious wild life is the complex problem in conservation which the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture is constantly facing and attempting to solve. The services of this bureau become more important as time goes on and the scope of its organization is enlarging accordingly. Especially has this been the case during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925, according to the annual report of the chief of the biological survey.

The increasing occupation and development of the United States, says Doctor Nelson, makes it increasingly difficult to maintain even a fair representation of the once enormous natural resources in game and fur-bearing animals and game and insectivorous birds in this country. At the same time, the wide-spread herds of domestic stock and the extension of the farming areas have given predatory animals and harmful rodents of many species an abundant food supply, under the influence of which their numbers control.

To accomplish the varied tasks involved in these problems calls for field and laboratory investigational work by trained specialists and the maintenance of warden service to safeguard federal game laws, as well as a force to conduct field campaigns to control wild animal and occasional bird pests.

The economic phases of the bureau's work have included operations for the control of predatory animals, chiefly in the west. Skilled hunters have been detailed to take these destructive animals wherever they occur, and to patrol borders especially in Arizona and New Mexico for animals coming across the international boundary. That predatory animals have been considerably reduced in numbers is shown by the fact that 353 wolves were taken, 37,255 coyotes, 288 mountain lions, 2,945 bobcats, and 61 Canada lynxes. In addition probably twice as many coyotes were killed in poisoning campaigns. Measures to reduce the numbers of bobcats have also served to check the spread of rabies, which is carried by these animals. In cooperation with state extension services and other state and private organizations constant warfare is waged by the biological survey against injurious rodents which consume vast quantities of grain and grasses in the west.

The Alaska game law, passed by the last session of the 68th congress, provided for the establishment of an Alaska game commission of five members, all residents of Alaska, and one of them the chief representative of the biological survey in the territory. The resident commissioners appointed by the secretary of agriculture to enforce the law and the regulations promulgated by him will have available for their use the vast store of information on birds and mammals in the files of the department and the cooperation of the biological survey.

The appropriation of funds by congress for the establishment of the Upper Mississippi river wild life and fish refuge, extending for about 200 miles between Rock Island, Ill., and Wabasha, Minn., has brought the number of federal wild-life reservations under the jurisdiction of the biological survey to 70. These refuges and preserves for wild birds and animals are distributed over the United States, and in Porto Rico, Hawaii, and Alaska, and constitute an extensive phase of the conservation work of the bureau.

Huge Volcanic Craters in Alaska

In exploratory work conducted under the department of the interior during the summer of 1925, R. H. Sargent, topographic engineer of the geological survey, and R. S. Knappen, geologist, discovered a remarkable crater in the southwestern part of the Alaska peninsula that is nearly as large as the famous crater lake in Oregon. The work of the geological survey party included the mapping of a mountain some 8,000 feet high that had already been reported to be a volcano, but a closer inspection disclosed nestling in the summit of the peak a crater approximately 6 miles in diameter. The huge bowl was found partly filled with ice and snow, and numerous glaciers occur on its precipitous outer sides, radiating from the crater rim like the spokes of a great wheel. This is believed to be the highest crater in the world of like dimensions. Another crater was discovered about a mile and a half in diameter and a thousand feet deep.

The Alaska Peninsula is a region of volcanoes and craters. In 1921 Topographic Engineer Sargent and Geologist W. B. Smith discovered in the same vicinity a mammoth crater which is 6 3-4 miles in diameter. This crater, which was named Aniakchak, was further studied this year by Mr. Knappen and found to be far more wonderful than had been previously supposed. Many cubic miles of volcanic ash and lava cover the country within a radius of 15 miles from its center. The interior of the crater affords many interesting studies in volcanology—lava flows, ash cones, dissected volcanic necks, and warm springs, showing that Vulcan, the fire god, is not yet dead.

The Sargent-Knappen party reports much big game in the country, particularly the huge Kodiak bears, of which 54 were seen during the trip.

Promising Idaho Copper District

A promising copper district in Lemhi county, Idaho, in the vicinity of Salmon is described by a geologist of the department of the interior in a report by Clyde P. Ross.

Idaho is well known to mining men for its silver-lead mines and, especially in early days, for its gold placers, but its copper deposits are less famous, although copper has been produced in a number of places in the state. Some copper ore has been shipped from the Salmon district, but most of the properties are now in the development stage or are mere prospects. When general conditions in the industry become more favorable to new development and the deposits are more adequately opened up the district yield a considerable tonnage of copper ore. Mrs. Ross discusses the major features of the geology of the deposits and offers some suggestions to prospectors.

Soviet Saves Bison

The Russian government is reported to have joined in the efforts to prevent the dying out of the race of European bison, cousin of the American buffalo, and to have set aside several hundred thousand acres of land in the western Caucasus as a refuge for these rare animals.

PROVIDENCE SPEAKER ADVISES COOPERATION AMONG MERCHANTS

After listening to a very interesting and highly instructive talk on co-operation in business, by H. Nelson Street, secretary of the Providence Retail Merchants, the retail merchants' bureau of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, at a meeting Thursday evening at the Wauregan hotel, adopted a budget system to raise money for the expenses of the Dollar Day and Suburban Day publicity, etc., and voted to change the time of meeting from morning to evening at their monthly gatherings hereafter. There was a very large representation of the bureau members present for the luncheon which was served at 6.15 o'clock. Alex Pasnik was the song leader and Harry Markoff presided at the piano.

At the close of the supper, President Abner Schwartz, toastmaster, introduced Mr. Street who was the speaker of the evening. Mr. Street called attention to the fact that crime has cost the American business men ten billions of dollars. Of this sum, one hundred million was lost through fraudulent checks. We pay taxes to keep 80,000 criminals in our jails, he said.

We wonder if the American business man is blind. We wonder if he doesn't see those things." The American business man isn't blind but he refuses to be thrown into a panic. However, there are many things which should give you concern. Mr. Street called attention to the increased competition brought about through the general use of the automobile. There is hardly a family that hasn't an automobile today and the purchasers can go anywhere from 50 to 200 miles to do their shopping. But on the other hand the automobile gives you a larger field for trade, he said. We have got to eliminate the fear of the big city competition and see what we can do with ourselves.

With reference to the mail order houses, he said it is here to stay. But you, too, are here to stay. The chain stores are making barrels of money, but you are still in business. There is something to be concerned about. That is the house to house canvasser. I don't believe there is a thing today that gives more concern to the merchant than house to house canvassing. House to house canvassing is a success. What are we going to do to handle this competition. You are up against a force of wall trained men. You have got to educate yourself to talk intelligently about the thing you have to sell.

The man who resorts to untruthful and exaggerated advertising is going to lose the public and help the house to house canvasser. As a means of solving the problem of this competition, Mr. Street said: You are going to meet the competition of the chain stores, itinerant vender and the house to house canvasser by co-operation and co-ordination among yourselves. Organize, get together, let one fellow benefit by the experiences of another. Paddle your own canoe and you will get there.

President Schwartz expressed the appreciation of the bureau to Mr Street for his splendid talk. The meeting then took up the proposed budget by which the various merchants contribute a certain amount each month for the purpose of raising money to defray necessary expenses incurred by Dollar Day and Suburban Day plans. The budget system was unanimously adopted.

It was then voted that the stores remain open evenings until nine o'clock for the accommodation of the Christmas shopping public beginning the Saturday night before Christmas. The matter of changing the meeting hour for the bureau's meeting was taken up and it was unanimously voted to hold future meetings at 6.15 p. m. instead of in the morning, as has been the custom since the bureau was organized. As there was no other business to come before the meeting, adjournment was taken about 8.30 o'clock.

BRIDGE CLUB MEETING WAS FAREWELL SURPRISE

The Wednesday Evening Bridge club met at the home of the Misses Alice and Abby Casey, Norwich Town, with 10 members and nine guests attending, seven of the guests coming from New London. The dining room was attractively decorated, the color scheme being red and green, and the table was graced with a decorated Christmas tree, which was lighted during the serving of supper. Nineteen covers were laid and each one received a favor.

The gathering took the form of a surprise farewell party in honor of Miss Irma Graff of this city, one of the members of the club, who left later in the evening for New York. In behalf of the club, Miss Helen Hewitt of New London, a former member of the club, presented Miss Graff with a gift.

C. N. LEE'S DAUGHTERS CONTESTING HIS WILL

Objections made by two daughters of the first wife of Charles Northam Lee of New York, Hartford and Farmington, whose will disposed of over $1,000,000 making his second wife his chief beneficiary, have tied up the probating of the estate in New York city. Mr. Lee died Aug. 20.

Grace Lee Johnson of Seaton House, Ickham, Canterbury, England, and Carolyn Cowles Griggs of No. 55 East Seventy-second street, New York, each willed by him $10,000, are the contestants. They claim in their complaint that the document, disposing of an estate of over $1,000,000 is illegal and void, because, as they allege, its execution was not their late father's free, unconstrained or voluntary act.

The now disputed will is dated January 16, 1924, and bears the names and addresses of Elizabeth J. Hall, John H. McClure and Clinton O. Jackson, all three of Wethersfield, Conn., as the subscribing witnesses. The other bequests are:

Annie L. Lee, widow, of No. 471 Park avenue New London, $100,000 outright and a life interest, or until she remarries, in the residue.

Lee Johnson of Uncasville, Conn., Dorothy Griggs Murray of No. 41 Hilton avenue, Garden City, L. I., Maitland Lee Griggs of Ardsley-on-Hudson, N. Y., Carlo Lee Bertuccelli, of Glastonbury, England, Northam Lee Griggs of No. 55 East Seventy-second street, New York, grandchildren; and Mary Lindsay Murray and Carol Lee Murray, both of No. 41 Hilton avenue, Garden City, L. I., great grandchildren are given $5,000 each now, and at the death or remarriage of Mrs. Annie L. Lee, equally the principal of her residuary trust fund.

Mrs. Lee and the Hartford Connecticut Trust company are named as the executors of the estate.

PLAINFIELD MAN IS FOUND WITH LEGS FROZEN

Frank Kenney, 32, of Plainfield, this state, was found early Thursday in a lumber yard at South Worcester, Mass., where he said he had lain for more than three days in a helpless condition. Both his legs were frozen. Kenney was semi-delirious when picked up by police, but from what he said it appeared that he had gone to the lumber yard to sleep Sunday and on awakening was so ill he could not move. For more than 72 hours, he suffered from exposure.

Police took him to a hospital, where his condition was reported serious.

OBITUARY

Rev. William T. C. Hanna, D. D.

(Contributed)

The death of Rev. William T. C. Hanna, D. D. resident of this city for about five years past, occurred Thursday evening at 8:30, following a considerable period of failing health.

Rev. William Tough Carson Hanna, D. D., was born in Port Rush, North Ireland, in July, eighty-one years ago. Looking out as it does upon "The Skerries," then farther out, until far beyond, the dim outline of Scotland's promontories looms gray upon the horizon, Port Rush was and is an inspiring spot in which to be born. In that summer colony of well-to-do family connections and Christian friends of culture did the subject of this sketch enter the world.

His father was Thomas Thompson Hanna, the son of Dr. Thomas Hanna, a surgeon under Admiral Nelson in the battle of Trafalgar. Through his gifted mother, Matilda Carson, he was the grandson of Alexander Carson, D. D., L. L. D., the leading Greek scholar and theologian of Ireland, and an undisputed Biblical authority of the Christian world of that day. When two years old William was taken by his family to Scotland. Here he remained four years. Reverses in family fortune led his father to look across the sea to America, the land of opportunity, in which to bring up his children. In consequence, at the age of six years, William found himself with his parents and three brothers and two sisters in New York City. His early training was received in the public schools of New York. A business offer with Dayton, the publisher, coming to him while still very young, he persuaded his parents to allow him to accept the position. For several years he proved faithful to this trust. Later he held a position of responsibility with Perrigo and Sons, New York City.

During these years of business life William was by no means neglectful of his mental culture. He was an active member of a live debating society and of various literary clubs. His church activities were manifold. During their boyhood the Hanna boys attended two and sometimes three Bible schools, and usually two preaching services every Sunday. Three of these four boys entered the Baptist ministry.

In his late teens William Hanna felt impelled to give his entire life to Christian service. For the training necessary, he entered the Academy at Hamilton, New York, and was later graduated from Madison University (now Colgate). A hard and thorough student, he left on the records of Madison University and in the hearts of his contemporaries a standard of scholarship rarely equalled by any student of any college of that time or of today. Shortly after entering the ministry he was united in marriage with Sally (Sarah) Patterson McDade of Philadelphia. Mrs. Hanna died five years ago immediately preceding the coming of Dr. Hanna to Norwich to make his home with his daughter and Dr. Pitt, pastor of the Central Baptist church.

The forty years of active life in the ministry were spent in Troy, New York, Ballston Spa, New York, Bradford, Pennsylvania, and Muncy, Penn. After retirement from active service, Dr. Hanna did much supply work in and about Philadelphia, his home city. One winter was spent in the south as professor of homiletics in a Baptist institution for ministerial training. The degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon him by Bucknell University in 1900.

Dr. Hanna was a man of the highest culture and literary attainment. During his prime he was a welcome contributor both of prose and of poetry to the periodicals of his denomination. As an authority and speaker on the topics of his day he was a much appreciated guest at forensic organizations, notable among these the Pompelon Club of Bradford, Penna.

The passion of Dr. Hanna's ministry, nay of his entire life from his conversion as a boy of thirteen, was the Lord Jesus Christ. To this absorbing devotion is doubtless due the fact that through his life and teaching an unusual number of young men and women were influenced to give their lives to full-time Christian service both in America and "to the end of the earth."

Of that family of six, but one brother, Rev. T. A. T. Hanna, now a man of eighty-three, residing near Philadelphia, survives him. Of his children, four in number, one daughter, Mrs. David Alexander Pitt of this city, remains. He is also survived by four grandsons, Courtnay H., Ledlie C., Sidney H. and Gavin A. Pitt of Norwich, together with several nieces and nephews in Pennsylvania. Dr. Hanna will be buried in the family plot in North Cedar Hill cemetery, in Frankford, Philadelphia.

STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT BOOSTS CHRISTMAS SEALS

Boost the home town's attack on tuberculosis, says the weekly health bulletin issued by the state department of health, in an article in this week's issue. The article says:

The plan of selling Christmas seals to combat tuberculosis now in operation affords an opportunity for everyone to boost his home town's effort to control this disease. The fact that each town is allowed to retain the net proceeds of the local sale amounting to 25 per cent. of the money received from the sale of seals is an incentive to each community to push the seal sale campaign so as to secure funds for preventing tuberculosis in the community.

In this way the different local communities are not only helping their own community, but they are working together to help a great cause in the state and nation. Modern facilities for travel permit disease to be spread so readily that disease prevention measures taken by one community help protect the people in other communities as well. Thus in helping itself each community helps others. If you would help your town and other towns fight tuberculosis, buy Christmas seals!

SAYS MERIT SYSTEM SLAUGHTERED IN STATE

Speaking Thursday night before the meeting of the Lyme grange at Hamburg, Representative Allen B. Lincoln, of Ashford, attacked the spoils system in Connecticut, which he said fairly honeycombs the political life of the state.

Mr. Lincoln's address was upon The Merit System, or The Practical Necessity of Some Ideals in Life and Citizenship. In part he said:

It is the fashion with some to discredit the "idealist." The citizen who maintains that human life can be improved; that civilization can advance; that government can be made more honest and efficient; and especially one who dares to suggest that politics and civil service can be placed upon a higher level of character and efficiency for the public good—such a citizen is apt to hear the comment, "Oh, he's a dreamer!" "Human nature does not change." "There always has been corruption and inefficiency in public life, and there always will be;"—so chants the pessimist. "The purification of politics is an irridescent dream!"5 declared Senator John J. Ingalls, of Iowa, some forty years ago.

"Keep your feet on the ground. Don't walk in the clouds." "Be practical!" "It may be right in theory, but it won't work in practice." Now often you may hear remarks like these!

On the other hand, I have come here tonight to declare to you that a sane ideal is the only practical method of successful and achieving action; and that he who seeks to be practical without a definite ideal will not keep his feet on the ground, but is practically certain to send them ploughing into the ground and to get stuck in the mud of inefficiency and discouragement, and indeed in the slime of corruption and decay and failure. Look around you in any avenue of life, personal, business or civic, and find the answer.

"The Merit System," is in contradistinction to "the Spoils System" under which appointments to clerical or executive offices are determined principally by political favor. Under the "Spoils System," political "henchmen" will support or follow the candidate or the office-holder or the "boss" in expectation of reward by political appointment.

There are more than 500,000 such employes today in the federal service alone; and in the entire service of federal or local governments there are today more than 8,000,000 persons;—one in every 25 of the population, or one for every eight families throughout the United States; and their pay amounts to more than three billions of dollars a year. It costs every head of a family on the average more than $100 per year to pay his public servants of every sort. Surely here is a matter deserving of the most careful consideration by every head of a family, and by every member of the family. It is a problem intimately related to taxation and the cost of living. Undoubtedly there are far too many public servants; how can the number and cost be reduced without impairing public convenience? It is a very practical question.

Sketching the inauguration of the merit system in the national government and its extension to many states and municipalities, Mr. Lincoln went on to say:

Of course the extension of the Merit System to the federal civil service has at times been handicapped by selfish politicians, and in its operation has not been without some of the weakness and incompetence of "the human element," but the record of achievement shows beyond a doubt that the operation has vastly improved the efficiency of the service with the saving of millions of money as compared to the

HEALTH WAVE SWEEPING OVER THE COUNTRY

Health is claiming a larger share of public attention than any other single object at the present time says this week's issue of the health bulletin issued by the state department of health. Like a great wave it has spread over the country and found its way, at least some phase of it, into even the smallest cities.

To learn the extent of health activities and judge of their effectiveness a health survey was undertaken by the research division of the American Child Health association in 1924. This survey was carried on in 86 cities, with a range of population from 40,000 to 70,000. Since the survey covered all fields of health endeavor the results as recently published in book form "A Health Survey of Eighty-Six Cities," make possible a comparative study of small cities with that for larger cities made by the committee of the American Public Health association in 1920.

The 86 cities, distributed over 31 states, presented interesting local problems with promise of special developments in the health field through their increasing population or commanding position as county seats. Four surveyors were assigned to the study which was carried out in a similar way in each city. The study included their Characteristic Organization and Personnel of the Health Department, Vital Statistics, Communicable Disease Control, Venereal Disease Control, Tuberculosis Control, Maternity Hygiene, Hygiene of the Infant, Pre-School and School Child, Sanitation, Laboratory Facilities, Health Instruction, Public Health Nursing, and Recreation. The survey was completed in some five months, after which it was tabulated by expert statisticians and the results presented in the aforesaid book.

The results are illuminating—Note some of the high lights.

HOREMAN MUST DEFEND HIS NEWLY WON TITLE AGAINST SCHAEFER IN 30 DAYS

CHICAGO, Dec. 3—Assured of at least a thirty-day tenure as world's champion at 18.2 balkline billiards, Edouard Horemans who last night in an extraordinary match dethroned "Young" Jake Schaefer, is planning to leave Chicago on a hastily arranged exhibition tour.

In the short, squat, curly-haired little left-hander, American followers of the carom game will have a chance to see the First European holder of the popular balkline title in twenty years. The reign of Jake's father, later Willie Hoppe, and family the son of "The Wizard" as the elder Schaefer was known lasted that long in its invincibility against European or Asiatic attack.

It lacked only a meagre five points in a 1,500 point match of remaining invulnerable last night, Schaefer falling after the most remarkable display of point making ever displayed in a contest for the world's championship.

He made a run of 412, several hundred less than the unofficial records, he, Horemans and several others of the topnotchers boast, but unmatched in world's championship play.

A peculiar agreement arrived at after Schaefer disputed a referee's decision in the second 500-point block Tuesday night requires that Horemans meet Schaefer inside thirty days. That was required to prevent Schaefer forfeiting the match unless a new referee was appointed.

The contest is sought by Detroit and Cleveland, but probably will be played in Orchestra hall here.

J. Herbert Levis of Chicago, referee is president of the Illinois State Billiardists association, a man of private fortune, and interested in the game for its own good. He has officiated at many championship contests and never before was a decision disputed. He is said to feel keenly hurt over Schaefer's attitude, and he may never act as referee again.

A deficit of $17,643 held over from last year is wiped out, leaving a surplus on hand.

Football carried the burden of the other sports, showing gross revenue of $605,712.18 and a net income of $321,-543.15. The gross revenue of the three other major sports follows: Baseball, $46,826; track, $8,721; crew $4,854. Baseball showed a deficit of $1,351; track, $47,473, and crew, $60,118.

All of the minor sports showed deficits, hockey, basketball and tennis showing a deficit of more than $9,-000 each, with lacrosse following with a deficit of $8,810. The total net deficit in the minor sports was $68,496, an increase of $17,158 over the deficit of last year.

While crew showed an increase of $6,147 in its deficit over last year, track showed a decrease of $10,784, while the baseball deficit was lessened by $4,114.

WESTERLY PANTHERS TO PLAY AT JEWETT CITY SUNDAY

Westerly Panthers football eleven on next Sunday afternoon, will play the Jewett City football team on the Ashland field, at which time they promise that the score will be different than the 18 to 0 game played there three weeks ago by them. In the former game they point out that their star players were not put into the game until the last half when it was too late. On next Sunday the heavy players will begin the game, when the lineup for Westerly will be: Ends, DeBartelo, Mulcahy; tackles, Lucetti, E. Shea; guards, Lonzo, Sheehan; center, Martin; quarterback, Mooney; halfbacks, Pupillo and Salemano; fullback, Edell; substitutes, Travenet, Carr and McKnight. Euell, a former star backfield for Stonington High last year, is a good defensive back and Salemano is known as a great line plunger and the line averages 180 pounds.

Harlow's All-American

Ends—Broad, Brown, and Sage, Dartmouth.

Tackles—Weir, Nebraska, and Parker, Dartmouth.

Guards—Gothran, Lafayette, and Despres, Colgate.

Center—McMillan, Princeton.

Quarterback—Grange, Illinois.

Halfbacks—Oberlander, Dartmouth, and Tryon, Colgate.

Fullback—Slagle, Princeton.

CLAIMS PRO COACH IS AN ABSOLUTE DICTATOR

CAMBRIDGE, Dec. 3.—The professional football coach has become an absolute dictator and the team members his pawns, Dr. Morton Prince, Boston psychologist and Harvard graduate, says in the current number of the Harvard Alumnus bulletin. Last month Dr. Prince wrote in the same magazine that few gridiron warriors enjoy their combats in the field. In his latest article Dr. Prince suggests that the coaches be confined to teaching and the one to direct strategy from the side lines be a member of the team, the teacher "saying good bye to the team the moment it enters the field."

Who now is the football commander at the post of command? Dr. Prince asks, replying that "He is a man, forty years of age, more or less, sometimes in the fifties, old enough to be the father of the players, who fights the team against his middle aged opponent. Their own game is not played by the undergraduates. They are pawns or puppets in the hands of the professional coach. * * * He (the coach), takes complete charge of football athletics with the absolute authority of a dictator and he uses it to the fullest extent."

Dr. Prince suggests that the coaches should have nothing to do with the direction of athletics, and that all orders and directions should be issued through the captains. "The coaches may advise, but should never be allowed to order." The segregation of rival teams before and after games should be abolished, he holds, and the players of the teams should get together, come together, talk together, learn to understand and know one another, and develop a spirit of good fellowship."

"Is it not preposterous," the writer inquires, "that when rival teams, for example, relax after a game they should keep apart and even go in the evening to separate theatres? When, too, a man knows and likes an opponent he will not find it in his heart to do him an unsportsmanlike turn on the field?"

PASS IS INEFFECTIVE AGAINST GOOD DEFENCE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 3—(A. P.)—There is no forward passing attack ever conceived in football that cannot be stopped by a team well coached in a defence for the pass, according to Reggie Brown, backfield coach at Brown university, and former coworker with the late Percy Haughton while the latter was coach at Harvard.

"The pass," said Brown, "has not outstripped the defence, any statements to the contrary notwithstanding. There has yet been no aerial attack devised that cannot be stopped and stopped effectively by a shrewdly coached eleven of good intelligence, speed and power."

Brown supported his statement by the showing Brown university made against Dartmouth. In that game the Green eleven was not able to cross Brown's goal line except for two blocked kicks.

"It is a matter of record," said Brown, "that Dartmouth completed but five passes against the Bruins. Two of these were completed behind the line of scrimmage and it is not disputed that most any team can do this. In the other three it is significant that Brown men had their hands on two of the passes and except for their attempts at interception should have knocked them down. This leaves but one pass completed cleanly for a gain. That is proof enough that the defence was at least as good, if not better, than the attack."

PLAINFIELD TO PLAY AETNA TEAM THIS EVENING

The Aetna Fire Ins. Co., will be the attraction at the Plainfield Community house tonight. The Aetna team is composed of some of the best college and semi-pro players obtainable and rank with the fastest quintets in the state. In the Aetna lineup will be Goodman, former Springfield college star, who is acting the role as coach. Whitman of the Bristol K. of C., Brainard of Harvard, Haynor of Waterbury. From the semi-pro ranks they will have MacDonald of Andover and coach of St. Michael's as forwards, Hardy of the champion Chicago Aetna, also Tobin of Iowa university, Ines of Chicago semi-pros and Borgeson and Andrews of the Hartford guards.

Plainfield will use its regular lineup, namely, Dissinger and Normandin, forwards, Norris center, Benson and Bissel guards. Plainfield opened its home season last week with the fast Fall River Five. Both teams played in mid-season form. Plainfield finally emerged the victor by a few points, 39 to 35.

There will be a preliminary game between the local Buddies and the Willimantic Boys club.

BALTIC FIVE OPENS SEASON TONIGHT AGAINST N. L. TEAM

At St. Jean's hall in Baltic this evening the Baltic Five will play its first game of the season against the Leather Pushers of New London. The Baltic team is one of the fastest of the Eastern Connecticut fives and hopes to get off to a good start in tonight's game. The basketball game is being revived this year in Baltic on a much larger scale than in years past when the team represented the Baltic Social club. The team is being backed by Baltic business men and it is expected that the interest will run high in this popular indoor sport.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 3—(A. P.)—Commander Jonas H. Ingram, of the class of 1907 today was appointed director of athletics at the United States Naval academy to succeed Commander Byron McCandless at the close of the academic term next June. Commander McCandless' tour of shore duty expires at that time.

Commander Ingram, now on duty with a destroyer division of the battle fleet on the west coast, is the oldest of three brothers from Jeffersonville, Ind., who attained athletic fame at the academy, William A. ("Navy Bill") Ingram is football coach at the University of Indiana, having resigned the service. Ensign Homer L. Ingram died two years after graduation. All were star backfield men on navy football teams, and each stroked the varsity crew in his junior and senior years.

DANIELSON SERVICE BATTERY ORGANIZES BASKETBALL TEAM

The first basketball practice of the season for the Service Battery was held at the State Armory at Danielson last Tuesday evening. About 18 men reported and were given a lively work out.

Among those to report were Gale of Wesleyan and Joe Eaton of Plainfield H. S., who, before leaving for the south last season was a regular in the forward berths, Bill Armington of P. T. S. at center and "Mel" Poirier and Bill Eaton of Plainfield H. S. who were classed as two of the best men in the back court playing amateur ball in Eastern Connecticut last season, in the guard positions.

Other very promising candidates for the team are Brundage of Conn. Aggies, Beeney of Killingly H. S., Godreau, Dyson of P. T. S., Reeves of Killingly H. S., Milone, Gasoriek and Thomas.

There seems to be but little difference in ability of most of these men and a hard fight is expected before the first team is finally decided upon. The Soldier Boys will be without the services of "Paycha" Keech, star forward of last season's team, as his term of enlistment has expired.

Amateur rules are being played and the Battery would like to hear from all fast teams wishing games. It is rumored that a league is to be formed in Eastern Connecticut and the Service Battery is desirous of joining. Much could be done in the form of a league in bringing basketball to the foreground, once more after a lapse of several years. All that is needed is the support of the people. The Battery would like to hear from other National Guard outfits in this section.

For games, write, giving all necessary information, to Lieut. Gordon J. Gale, or Corporal Ralph Brundage, in care of Service Battery, Danielson, Conn.

HOREMANS MAY DEFEND TITLE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—New York billiard followers, surprised by the sensational victory of Edouard Horemans over young Jake Schaefer for the world's professional 18.2 balkline billiard championship match at Chicago last night, looked forward today to the possibility of the Belgian cue star defending his newly gained laurels here in the near future.

Schaefer completed his match with Horemans with the understanding that, if beaten, he could have a return title contest within 30 days, the ex-champion thus may have first call in a match with Horemans but it was pointed out that Erich Hagenlacher, German player, already has filed a formal challenge for a championship match and may be recognised as the first contender.

Horemans, known as the "temperamental waiter of Antwerp," where he was born 36 years ago and first learned his skill with the cue as a "houseman" while working as a waiter, has had a sensational rise to fame. He first came to this country in 1920, after winning the European championship, and lost his first big match to Schaefer. Competing in his first world title tournament in Chicago in 1921, Horemans finished in a tie for fifth. He finished no better than third in succeeding tournaments until last February, when he was runner-up to Schaefer, who took the title from Willie Hoppe.

Horemans is credited with a high run of 806 in exhibition play and another of 734, made since coming to this country. He shoots left handed and is recognized as a master of the masse and centerstable nurse.

GERMAN CABINET IS TO RESIGN SATURDAY

BERLIN, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—The German cabinet will resign on Saturday. This is in keeping with an announcement made by Chancellor Luther on November 30, to the party leaders that the government would withdraw from office after the Locarno pact signing ceremony in London, December 1, and that a new cabinet would be formed in sympathy with the Locarno policies and obligations.

The Berlin papers publish an interview with Dr. Stresemann, the foreign minister, gave to a German correspondent in London, in which he expresses the greatest optimism regarding further negotiations over questions arising out of the Locarno understandings.

A report from Paris that Dr. Stresemann will soon proceed there is hailed with satisfaction by the liberal socialist press, which points out that this would be the first time in fifty-five years that a German foreign minister has visited the French capital officially.

CIVILIAN GOVERNMENT IN SPAIN FUNCTIONS

MADRID, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—The civilian government, which is taking the place of the military directorate, held its first formal cabinet council this evening. The members were sworn into office by King Alfonso this morning. The council was brief and no actual business was transacted.

The Madrid newspapers received the formation of the new government with mixed feelings. El Liberal, foremost independent daily, declares that the government change is in name only, since the author of the military coup which brought the directorate into power, is still at the head of the government.

El Sol characterizes the new government as "civil-military and transitory," and says that it could demonstrate its qualifications best by conceding greater freedom to the nation.

El Imparcial bewails the failure of the new government to abolish the press censorship.

An official communique says that the public received the news of the political change with approbation. The new ministry it adds, will continue the task of trying to balance the budget and carry out the political and social standards set by its predecessors.

COUNSEL SUBDUED IN THE MITCHELL COURTMARTIAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(A. P.)—Opposing counsel in the courtmartial trial of Colonel William Mitchell failed today to keep the peace as ordered yesterday by the court president, Major General Robert L. Howze, and they were warned again that the tribunal "viewed with disfavor" the continued dickering and wrangling.

General Howze called the attention of counsel anew to army laws governing court procedure and solemnly requested "counsel for both sides" to take notice. The warning was given during the cross-examination of Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, senior surviving officer of the Shenandoah disaster, by Representative Frank R. Reid, of Illinois, chief defense counsel.

Major Allen Gullion, assistant trial judge advocate, had objected a few seconds before to Mr. Reid's manner of examining the witness. The defense attorney referred to what he called his opponent's lack of comprehension, and added:

"Things get to your ears but they never reach your brains."

In the confusion that followed, General Howze ordered a three minutes recess and when the court reconvened delivered his admonition.

Commander Rosendahl testified that Lieutenant Commander Zachary Lansdowne did not protest against taking the Shenandoah on her fatal flight into the middle west. The reduction affected in the automatic gas valves had nothing to do with the wrecking of the ship, he testified, and the gas escapes functioning satisfactorily during its last battle with the elements. These statements were supported by Lieutenant Roland G. Meyer, construction officer of the Shenandoah.

Persistent efforts of the defense to show failure of the big dirigible's gas values, as charged by Colonel Mitchell in his published statement, brought no concessions from the two navy officers and when the court adjourned tonight Mr. Reid was still grilling Lieutenant Mayer. He will conclude the cross-examination tomorrow.

WARRANT FOR MANAGER OF RITZ-CARLTON HOTEL

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—A warrant was served tonight on David B. Provan, manager of the Ritz-Carlton hotel, charging him with violation of the liquor laws. It was issued by Magistrate Edward P. Carney, who last night raided the hotel and confiscated a quantity of alleged liquor. Provan, who is ill, promised to appear for a hearing before Magistrate Carney next Tuesday.

Director of Public Safety Smedley Butler, after complimenting Magistrate Carney on his "splendid work," announced that he would start padlock proceedings against the hotel and would also seek the revocation of its dance license.

"Somebody has got to be punished in this case," said Director Butler. "Either the management of the hotel or the man who rented the room which was used as a bar. The laws are all lop-sided. They are going upside down favoring the rich and discriminating against the poor. My one ambition is to get all these big places and there are four big clubs in this city that I would like to grab before I go—if I go."

MODERATION LEAGUE CLAIMS SURVEY ACCURATE

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—The Moderation league today took issue with the statement of the world league against alcohol questioning the accuracy of a survey made by the Moderation league to show that there was as much intoxication now as before prohibition. The Moderation league says that it presented only actual figures for intoxication arrests and that in fairness to wets and drys guessing was avoided.

Two armed men held up a branch of the Peninsular State Bank of Highland Park, Detroit, and escaped with $14,000.

SEARCHED FOR DIARY OF MAD KING OF BAVARIA

MUNICH, Germany, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—The home of Herr Reidiger, who published recently what was alleged to be a diary of Ludwig II, the mad king of Bavaria, was searched by the police today after the filing of a charge that he obtained documents on which he based his book unlawfully. He was subjected to a searching inquiry.

The Ludwig diary covers the period from 1869 to 1886, the year in which the king was pronounced insane and committed suicide. It shows conclusively that Ludwig should never have been permitted to ascend the throne, as the diary was incoherent even when he was 24 years old. It was written partly in French with some Latin, but mostly in German.

No living woman's name was ever mentioned in the diary, but Ludwig was passionately devoted to the memory of Marie Antoinette, the French queen who was executed in 1792, 82 years before Ludwig was born. The anniversary of her death he regularly recalled with some form of devotion.

HARTFORD MAN'S SKULL CRUSHED BY ELEVATOR

HARTFORD, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—Jose L. Borros, 49 years old, a laborer, of 207 Pleasant street, was killed instantly today, when his skull was crushed by a moving elevator used to hoist materials at the new Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company building under construction in Garden street. Borros was said to have been in the habit of jumping on the elevator while it was in motion. It is believed that he missed his step. After being viewed by Assistant Medical Examiner Glover E. Howe, the body was removed to the undertaking rooms of Farley and Molloy at 129 Capitol avenue. Borros leaves a wife and three children. The funeral will be held from his late home at 8:30 a. m. Saturday with high mass at St. Patrick's church at 9 a. m. Burial will be in Mt. St. Benedict's cemetery.

Water in Steeples

Being desirous of using the steeples of its unused churches as water towers, the village of Podmoshie, in the Dmitrovksy district just outside of Moscow, has applied to the Moscow Soviet for a ruling. The village authorities argue that such a utilitarian diversion would greatly reduce the cost of the new water-works system. The churches that are not used for divine services can be converted to secular purposes with the consent of their congregations, they might be embodied in the water system provided engineers pronounced them safe.

Navy Woman Is Alleged Plot Messenger

Mrs. George W. Steele, the wife of Captain G. W. Steele, commander of the air station at Lakehurst, N. J., is alleged to have acted as messenger for Captain Paul Foley, in an attempt to change the testimony of Mrs. Zachary Lansdowne, widow of the commander of the ill-fated "Shenandoah," during the inquiry into the crash of the airship. Mrs. Lansdowne stated in testimony before the Mitchell Court-Martial that a letter from Captain Foley was delivered to her by Mrs. Steele, in which she was asked to change her testimony.

THE HIGHWAYS, THE AUTOS AND THE PEDESTRIANS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Some weeks ago Coroner Phelan, of Bridgeport, in reporting his findings regarding a case of automobile killing, took occasion to speak a word concerning the road-builders' duty. The prevalent idea is that this duty is completed when a good road-bed for automobile traffic has been laid down. Coroner Phelan on the contrary, held that it wasn't finished till reasonably effective steps had been taken to assure safety to pedestrians as well as chauffeurs.

The accident which he investigated concerned the death of a high school pupil who was struck and killed by an unskillfully driven automobile while the lad was walking at the side of the road and six feet outside the paved portion. There was no sidewalk or other safe refuge for a pedestrian anywhere in the vicinity. The lad had to walk in the roadway. And the outcome showed that no roadway is wide enough to assure safety against the incomprehensible wabblings of an incompetent driver.

The Bulletin has already quoted Coroner Phelan's remarks but I want you to read them again and see if they don't set your think-stuff going. He wrote:

"Cases of this character cannot fail in my judgment to cause resentment in the public mind for such pitiable omissions by the state or town authorities to provide such safeguards. It should go without saying that since the state has handed over the main highways to motor vehicle traffic and thereby deprived the humble pedestrian of the personal security that was his before the dangerous presence of that traffic, the state by way of restitution should give heed to the constant dangers of the pedestrian and provide him with secure sidewalks or footways along such main traveled highways of the state."

Ever since this finding and recommendation was made public, I have been listening, with both ears, for the roar of popular approval which one might expect it would evoke. Not only from the ranks of pedestrians themselves, whose limbs and lives are involved, but from car-drivers as well whose full use and enjoyment of the cement highways is limited by their need of looking out for slower-moving people on foot. But I haven't heard it, yet.

An old chauffeur who had driven cars pretty nearly all over both America and Europe without ever being involved in an accident, once explained to an inquirer the secret of his methods. "I take it for granted," he said, 'that every one I meet is a d—d fool and that I have got to look out for him as well as myself."

While they may not be able to phrase it in as striking words, I am led to believe from experience and observation that the rule quoted is the one adopted and followed by pretty nearly all really good drivers. They instinctively take on their own shoulders the responsibilities caused by other peoples' carelessness or stupidity. They find that driving a car consists not only in knowing your car and your road and your passengers, but also in an unwinking and ceaseless vigilance to get and keep out of the way of less intelligent users of the road.

While this is true of "good drivers" it necessarily leaves out poor drivers meaning thereby inexperienced drivers, "joy-riders," intoxicated drivers, "road-hogs," etc.—Considering the widespread use of autos by people of all grades of understanding, from morons up, I am daily more and more inclined to wonder over the comparative rarity of serious accidents. Many even of the lunkheads of daily life seem to discover and use latent supplies of common sense when they get into their own cars.

Nevertheless, there remain a residue of sapheads and nin-compoops and morons and foolhardy experimenters. They often have money enough to buy a car and a license. Having these the state permits them to mingle on equal terms with their betters on the common highways. It regards itself as powerless to check them till they get drunk and are caught at it, or get careless and smash somebody else's car, or "get gay" and kill a pedestrian.

Indeed, it would be extremely difficult for the state or any other licensing power to bar out these undesirables from the roads. No tests are known which enable even the wisest scientists to measure character with absolutely accuracy. Certainly, none are available which the ordinary run of officials could use without doing vast injustice. There seems nothing else to do except grant licenses to all who can establish a prima facie claim, and take them away only when unfitness has been proved.

In the meantime, the time in between the granting his license to an unfit driver and the time when he demonstrates his unfitness by killing somebody, must the rest of us be left wholly at his mercy and quite unprotected from his mental and moral lapses?

Coroner Phelan thinks not, at least so far as the entirely innocent pedestrian is concerned. It is the fact, as he puts it, that the highways which used to be common to horse-drivers and foot walkers are now practically given over to automobiles. If the state hasn't done this by actual deed of gift, it has done so by tacit acceptance of the fact.

For untold years it has been the custom of cities and villages wherein traffic was congested to provide sidewalks for pedestrians. They, the walkers, were expected to keep out of the traffic-using roadways. Vehicles were equally expected to keep off the sidewalks. This was a simple matter-of-fact concession to mutual safety and convenience. In the country districts sidewalks were not needed. The traffic was thin and comparatively slow. Few drivers but were able to see and give a share of the road to any walker. Few walkers but were able to get easily out of Dobbin's way if Dobbin's driver was asleep or drunk. Moreover, few horses would run over a man or a baby carriage, unless maddened by fright or lashed by a deliberatively murderous driver. The pedestrian, in those days, was quite as safe on the rural roadway as the teamster or coachman.

But now things are very different. Even in the most remote districts travel over the macadam or cement state roads is thick and rapid. It is almost as thick as on many village streets where sidewalks are a matter of course, and is apt to be much faster, as the open road offers opportunities for speeding which town streets do not.

Instead of being safe in the middle of the road, the pedestrian on a state highway is now in danger of his life, even when he is six feet outside the paved portion. He may not be endangered by the majority of safe and sane drivers. But he is endangered if any one of the reckless and incompetent minority comes skyhooting along. And, as we have noted, the state can't forbid that driver his day till he has done some overt act to prove his unfitness. Nevertheless it doesn't seem quite right that you or I should have to be killed in order to enable the state to take Claude Duval's license away from him.

That's where Coroner Phelan's plan comes in. Since, as he says, the state has actually if not explicitly turned the paved highways over to automobiles, and made them everywhere unsafe for people on foot, the very least it can do is to furnish safe and continuous sidewalks, well outside the cement and effectively separated from it by a ditch or a substantial wall.

This should be done at once along all the main travelled highways of the state. And it should be made a part of the contract in the construction of all new state highways.

Admittedly, it would somewhat increase the cost, per mile, of highway construction. In order to avoid an increase of total expenditure, this might somewhat reduce the annual mileage of new roads built. Very well; wouldn't it be better, in the end to have 125 miles a year of new road, built right, than 150 miles a year of unsafe road?

As things are, the walker has practically been forced off the main highway, unless he is willing to use them at imminent risk of limb or life. Where is he to go? He surely can't be forbidden to walk to a neighbor's or to town or to school or to church, if he prefers that form of locomotion, or doesn't happen to own a car. Must he go 'cross-lots? Or must he build his own sidewalks on his own property and trust to his neighbors to build continuations on theirs?

Of course, such expedients are absurb. Having, practically and in effect, taken away his right to safe travel on the state highways, the state is morally bound to supply him with a safe and practicable substitute, if he can't use the roadway he must have a footway which he can use.

This should be demanded quite as insistently by sensible auto-drivers as by pedestrians themselves. For the separation of the traffic would be as unmixed a blessing to the man at the steering-wheel as to the man under the mudguard.

The road I know best and travel most in my flivver is a nearly level and straight state road with good shoulders, adequate ditches and at least eighteen feet of smooth paving. There is ample room for a six-foot sidewalk on at least one side, within the fence but across the ditch. Yet three trips out of every five, I am compelled to log slowly and carefully over this stretch of smooth, level roadway, which is used almost as much by school children, baby carriages, ball passers visiting neighbors, cattle going to and from pasture, etc., etc., as by autos. Why shouldn't they use it as well as I? There is no other fit place to walk within the highway limits. Some car users sneer at these people as "jay-walkers." Yet they have every whit as broad a right to the free and safe use of the common highway as Mr. Rolls-Royce or Mr. Henry Ford.

If the part which used to be safe is now rendered unsafe for them by the state's action; then the state should see to it that some other part is set aside for them.

COMPENSATION AWARD TO TREE WARDEN'S SON

A workmen's compensation award has been made by Commissioner J. J. Donohue in the case of George H. Davis of 109 Palmer street, whose father, Henry Davis, Norwich tree warden, was killed by a fall from a tree while in the employ of the street department of the city. The death of Mr. Davis occurred on Oct. 24, 1925 from injuries he received in a fall from a tree on which he was working on North Main street. George Davis himself has been totally incapacitated since April 1925, because of injuries in a fall from a tree, and made the claim that he had been a dependent of his father since then, with his wife and family.

The commissioner says that from the evidence introduced it is found that the claimant is a dependant of the deceased and that the contributions made him by his father were depended upon and necessary to maintain his standard of living, and were in amounts sufficient to entitle him to the mixmum amount provided by the act.

Compensation Commissioner Donohue therefore awards to the claimant that the respondent insurer pay all reasonable medical, surgical and hospital bill sincurred by reason of injury to the deceased on Oct. 25, 1925, $100 for funeral expenses and the sum of $18 per week from Oct. 27, 1925, said payments to continue during the period of claimant's incapacitation, accrued payment to be made at once in a lump sum, weekly thereafter. The average weekly wages of the tree warden were in excess of $36.

HEBRON FARMER ACTIVELY AT WORK AT 99

Surrounded by four generations of his descendants, George Matson Buck of Hebron observed his 99th birthday recently. Only the fact that it was Sunday and that an unusually large number of visitors came, prevented him from doing the chores about the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Buell of Lovely street, his son-in-law and daughter, respectively, with whom he is living.

Looking forward to his next birthday, when he will become a centenarian, Mr. Buck explained to what he attributed his long life. He said: "Out of door work in a high altitude, good air, temperate habits; taking good care of myself, and plenty of hard work. I don't use liquor or tobacco, except occasionally a good cigar. My two farms lie on high ground, the highest cultivated land between the Thames and Connecticut rivers. I love to walk and have always been a good walker."

Mr. Buck does more than his share of the work on his farms. Within the last month he has been splitting wood and carrying armfuls of it into the house. He says he uses a buck saw as an aid to health.

It is only on rainy days that his family can prevail upon him to stay indoors and then he is uneasy. He maintains that work in the open, in the hay fields in the summer, harvesting and husking corn and other crops in the fall and wood cutting in the winter keep him in good trim.

Mr. Buck has five living children, 25 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. He was born in Portland November 15, 1826, and when 25 years old married Emily Phelps of Hebron. They were together 56 years, and had eight children, all of whom lived to maturity.

Connecticut's federal land banks showed considerable more activity during October than in September, according to figures issued by the federal farm loan bureau of the treasury department at Washington, showing the total number of loans closed during October was 17, as compared with but 11 in September. Massachusetts' and New Hampshire's banks, also, closed more loans, while the banks of Maine, Vermont and Rhode Island closed a smaller number.

The loans closed by Connecticut state banks in October were valued at $46,800, bringing the total number of loans closed from the period of organization to the end of that month to 1,303, at $4,389,950.

Maine's federal land banks closed 30 loans at $67,000, during October, as against 33 at $97,600 in September, making the totals 2,550 and $7,123,950, respectively.

In New Hampshire the number of loans rose from four in September to six in October making the total number closed 526, at $1,171,675; in Vermont the number dropped from 30 to 24, bringing the total for that state to 1,065 at $3,071,000.

REV. ERIC B. SCHMITT, FORMER RECTOR HERE, DIES IN NEW HAVEN

Rev. Eric B. Schmitt of Ansonia, rector of Trinity Episcopal church of this city from 1889 to 1896, died Wednesday in New Haven after a lingering illness. He resigned the rectorship of Ansonia in the spring owing to his failing health.

Rev. M. Schmitt was graduated from Yale with the class of 1883 and from Berkeley Divinity school in 1886, being ordained deacon in that year. He was admitted to the priesthood in 1887 and was assistant rector at St. Stephen's church, Lynn, Mass., from 1886 to 1889, when he came to this city as the rector of Trinity church. He continued here till 1896 and was succeeded by Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, the present rector of the church. Rev. Mr. Schmitt went to Calvary church, Stonington, where he remained from 1896 to 1900, and then went to Christ church, Ansonia, continuing there until his health compelled him to resign this spring.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Franklin R. Hoadley and Miss Esther Schmitt, and one son Erhart Schmitt, all of Ansonia.

The funeral will be held at Ansonia and the body will be brought to Stonington for burial in Stonington cemetery.

For many years he had a summer home at Stonington.

WAGNER AND PHILLIPE NOW PITTSBURGH PARTNERS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 3 (AP)—The paths of two baseball stars who together on the diamond won fame for themselves and the Pittsburgh Pirates in the early 1900's have been joined together in business.

Charles L. ("Deacon") Phillipe and Honus Wagner, he of the clumsy feet, who appeared to do everything wrong but still during his time did it better than anyone else, are engaged in the sporting goods business here.

The presence of the two stars in the store when an old time fan happens to enter is always the occasion for a reminiscence bee. Most often the conversation relates to the memorable series between the Pirates and the Boston Red Sox of 1904.

The Sox won but during that series there was a record hung up by a veteran who had reached Pittsburgh via the Louisville route. He was six feet, one inch and every inch a baseball player. The record still stands and it more than likely will never be equalled.

The pitcher referred to was Phillipe. He pitched in five full games during the 1904 classic and was returned victorious in three of them. His victories spelled the sum total of the Pirate successes in the series.

Although 52 years old, Phillipe has not shrunk in height or popularity and is almost as active as ever.

"CHARLESTON" GETS COLD SHOULDER FROM ROMANS

ROME, Dec. 3 (AP)—Rome has a cold shoulder to the "Charleston."

Jazz dancing to the tune of wailing saxophones and crashing trapdrums of Americanized bands long has been in vogue here. Even "blues" numbers have had their devotees. But the hip-swaying gyrations of the latest American dance are considered just a bit too much.

The "Charleston," therefore, is almost unknown in Rome's three cabarets, although it is occasionally seen in the dance floors of large hotels patronized by Americans.

All efforts to increase its popularity among the Romans have met with the objection that its popular adoption would represent too great a relaxation in the traditional dignity due Rome as the home of the Papacy.

The suit of the late Albert F. Rockwell of Bristol, against the New Departure Manufacturing Company for the payment of $2,000,000 claimed to be due him as royalties on ball bearings has been settled out of court. An agreement made is understood to give approximately $1,000,000 to Mrs. Rockwell.

SPRING OF CIVIL WAR FAME AGAIN SURVIVES DROUTH

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 3 (AP)—Georgia and the southland are recovering from a drouth of unprecedented severity during which many streams and water sources dried up and all records for aridity were broken, but through it all, a cold stream of pure water continued to flow from the side of a beautiful foliaged hill on which, some 60 years ago, was located the Andersonville military prison, of the Southern Confederate army.

This is "Providence Spring," in Sumter county. Local history has it that in the closing days of the war between the states, that section suffered from the effects of a drouth which dried up all small streams and wells, leaving no water supply for the many thousands of Federal prisoners of war confined within the over-crowded and fever-stricken camp.

Quinine had been made contraband of war and none was available to relieve the burning fevers which created an insatiable thirst for water.

These conditions existed for days while the men in their delirum, madly scratched holes in the ground with their bare hands in hteir attempt to strike water. Finally, after having reached the end of their resources and too weary and exhausted to put forth more physical effort, they dropped to their knees and prayed to God to send them relief.

While they were still praying, a bolt of lightning struck the hillside, just outside the "dead line" and a fountain of sparkling, cold water gushed forth to cool the parched tongues whose prayers had been heard.

Today one may visit the prison camp and find the holes marked off and enclosed within iron fences, and the stacked off "dead line" which was extended to bring the spring within its confines, bearing evidence to the miracle that was performed there in the sixties. The fountain has been housed in an ornate work of masonry, in which is inserted a bronze tablet identifying is as "Providence Spring," and relating the above story.

Adjoining the camp is Andersonville National Cemetery, covering an area of 120 acres and where rests in eternal peace, nearly 14,000 of the boys in blue who succumbed to the ravishes of the fever and other diseases. Virtually all of the names on the plain stone slabs are preceded by the word "Private," with here and there one marked "unknown."

The Rev. Dr. Frank E. Lynch, a former district superintendent in the Philadelphia conference of the Methodist Episcopal church and former president of the Philadelphia Federation of Churches, died after a short illness. He was 61 years old.

At Set of Sun

If we sit down at set of sun,
And count the things that we have done,
And, counting, find
One self-denying act, one word
That eased the heart of him who heard:
One glance most kind
That felt like sunshine where it went,
Then we may count that day well spent.

But if, through all the livelong day,
We've eased no heart by yea or nay;
If through it all
We've nothing done that we can trace,
That brought the sunshine to a face;
No act, most small,
That helped some soul, and nothing cost,
Then count that day as worse than lost.

SKILLED TRADES ADVANCED TO INSURE HOME HAPPINESS

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 3 (AP)—Working on the theory that when a discouraged man returns home after a day's employment for which he is not fitted his depression engulfs the household, Kansas City schools are popularizing the skilled trades.

"We are instilling in the minds of the children a proper appreciation and emulation of skilled workmanship," said Superintendent L. I. Cammack. "We are showing the pupils the desirability of engaging in the trades and, at the same time, giving them an opportunity in vocational classes to discover the trades for which they are best equipped."

JUDGE IN SMALL DEBTORS COURT TRIES CASES BY PHONE

WICHITA, Kan., Dec. 3 (AP)—David Leahy of Wichita, "dean of Kansas newspaper men," is one judge in the United States who tries cases by telephone.

He is judge of the "small debtors' court," permission for the establishment of which was granted by the last legislature.

A telephone rings in a Wichita business house.

"Hello. This is Judge Leahy. We want to get your testimony in regard to the Jones vs. Jones case." And so the testimony is taken, to be incorporated in the court records and used as the basis for a decision.

The "telephone cases" are decided by Judge Leahy after all the evidence is collected, and then his decision is mailed to the principals.

Judge Leahy's courtroom is a poor place for a lawyer. He himself receives no compensation for his services, and legal lights are barred from admission unless they wish to be mere spectators.

Even the courtroom is abandoned in the summer time. Most of the cases decided this past summer were heard on Judge Leahy's front porch. The seat of judgment was a rocking chair; the defendant and plaintiff took their places at the counsel tables—the front steps.

In the 200 cases tried since the institution of the court—without cost—not an appeal has been taken from Judge Leahy's decision. Only persons whose controversy involves a sum of $50 or less are admitted to the court. Many potential cases are settled "out of court" by Judge Leahy's getting the principals together and talking it over with them.

Wichita's charitable judge acts as a judge even outside of office hours. Recently two prominent eastern authors found themselves embroiled in a controversy over the color of "Wild Bill" Hickok's hair. "Wild Bill," noted frontiersman, was an intimate friend of Judge Leahy when Kansas was still in short trousers.

The controversy was referred to the Kansas newspaper man. "'Wild Bill's' hair was straw-colored," read his decision. "The old wood-cuts make it look dark."

"Presiding over a small debtors' court seems to take the judgment of a Solomon," observes Judge Leahy, "but it's only plain, common sense."

FORMER MEXICAN PRESIDENT SETTLES DOWN TO FARM LIFE

NOGALES, Ariz., Dec. 3 (AP)—General Alvaro Obregon, former president of Mexico, is leading the life of a farmer.

He has extensive land holdings in the state of Sonora, and makes his home in Navajoa. It is reported that he has invested approximately $1,500,000 in land.

General Obregon also is working on development of plans and has consulted American capitalists regarding the building of a dam on the Mayo river. The project would bring many thousands of acres under irrigation. The cost has been estimated at 25,000,000 pesos.

ROOSEVELT RESPONSBLE FOR USE OF ANIMALS IN MOVIES

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3 (AP)—Though perhaps he never guessed it the late Theodore Roosevelt was the father of animal picture, which has developed into one of the most popular forms of film entertainment.

W. N. Selig, who began making motion pictures on a commercial scale in Chicago in 1896 and was one of the leading producers when Roosevelt was president, tells the story, a hitherto unpublished sidelight on the statesman's career.

When Selig learned the president planned to go to Africa on a big game hunt immediately after the expiration of his term in 1909, he began negotiations to bring Kermit Roosevelt to Chicago for a course in motion picture camera work. The plan was to have him photograph the hunt as a cameraman under contract to Selig.

Negotiations lagged, however, and the best Selig was able to do in a personal interview with the president shortly before Christmas was to obtain his promise that if he did not take a Selig cameraman along he would not take another.

Matters stood here when the expedition sailed. Selig had overlooked, however, the Smithsonian Institution's connection with the Roosevelt hunt. The Institution knew nothing of his conversation with the retiring president, and when the expedition entered the big game country an English motion picture cameraman was along.

This was bitter news to Selig. He thought Roosevelt had broken his promise, and so, when word of the former president's first lion kill was flashed to the United States, he resolved to take the hunt in a film.

There was in Chicago at the time a vaudeville actor who was staging a clever impersonation of the famous stateaman. He was signed, and the filming of "Big Game Hunting in Africa" began.

The climax of the picture was enacted in a big cage, about 100 feet long and 50 feet wide, containing an African "set" convincing enough scenically and in which a stout iron grill separated the section in which "Roosevelt" aimed his rifle from the section in which the lion roared. Negroes gathered off the streets of Chicago made up the "native" train of the big game hunter.

At the critical moment a puff of white smoke issued from the counterfeit ex-president's rifle, and the menagerie lion fell mortally wounded. To avoid disappointment and a possible retake of the scene, "Roosevelt" was given only blank cartridges to shoot; the actual killing was done by a sharpshooter posted on the sidelines and using smokeless powder.

Although the name of Roosevelt was not mentioned anywhere in the film, the public generally accepted it as a picture of the Roosevelt hunt, photographed in Africa, and it was a tremendous hit. It was popular even abroad, and Roosevelt—the real Roosevelt—arrived in Berlin on his homeward journey from Africa just in time to see the fake featured in the theaters.

He was furious, of course; and when he next met Selig, in the Republican club at New York, he spoke hot words. But his wrath vanished and the famous Roosevelt smile gleamed again when the film producer said:

"If only you had taken an American cameraman, Colonel, I wouldn't have done it. But you took an Englishman."

DENOMINATIONAL INSTITUTIONS NOW OPERATING 600 HOSPITALS

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—The 600 hospitals operated under the auspices of denominational institutions having a property and endowment valuation of $350,000,000, are cited as evidence of a unification of common religious objectives and an adjustment of differences.

"Theological dogma has found common ground in our attempt to meet a world need for physical and social reconstruction," said Dr. N. E. Davis, president of the American Protestant Hospital association. "The Association has developed a mutual dependence among the many religious organizations, which has aided in unifying our objectives."

Three men were killed when the New York-Pittsfield express struck a light truck at an unprotected grade crossing half a mile south of Great Barrington, Mass.

AGREEMENT ON BOUNDARY LINE BETWEEN SOUTHERN AND NORTHERN IRELAND

LONDON, Dec. 3—(A. P.)—The negotiations at London for settling the difficulty caused by the refusal of professor Eoin MacNeill, the free state representative, to recognize the award of his colleagues on the Irish boundary commission, has been concluded with a celerity unusual in Irish disputes.

The terms of the new agreement amending the articles of the Anglo-Irish treaty were issued tonight, and Premier Baldwin was able to read them to the commons before the house rose. The new agreement was signed in the prime minister's room in the house of commons at eight o'clock this evening and embodies settlement of the boundary question with the full assent of all parties concerned.

The agreement was signed in behalf of the British government by Stanley Baldwin, Winston Churchill, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Lord Birkenhead and Lieutenant-Colonel L. C. M. Amery; in behalf of the free state by William T. Cosgrave, Kevin O'Higgins, Ernest Blythe and Peter O'Bryne, all members of the Irish cabinet and in behalf of northern Ireland by Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, and Secretary Blackmore of the Ulster cabinet.

Final formalities were arranged with top speed in order to allow Mr. Cosgrave and his colleagues to catch the night boat train for Dublin. Among the last proceedings as an interview between Premier Baldwin, Judge Feethan and Joseph Fisher, of the boundary commission, which arranged that the commission's award is not to be published.

The new agreement revokes article 12 of the Anglo-Irish treaty, which provided for the boundary commission, and releases the free state from obligation under article 5 to pay a portion of the British war debts, while the free state undertakes to shoulder the whole costs of compensation for damage to property in Ireland.

A slight concession also is made to the northern government in the transfer to the Ulster parliament of powers heretofore invested in the council of Ireland. Ulster has the advantage, too, of retaining the existing boundary.

In his statement to the commons, Premier Baldwin expressed the hope that the necessary legislation authorizing the new agreement would be passed before the house rises for the Christmas recess.

After the agreement was signed there was just time for the free state ministers to dine with president Cosgrave and the British ministers who signed the document before starting for Dublin. They had no time to make a statement to the press.

In British government circles emphasis is laid on the comprehensive nature of this triple agreement on the boundary problem, which prevented a settlement at the Buckingham palace conference before the war and nearly wrecked the Irish treaty four years ago. In this connection the prime minister wished to acknowledge on behalf of the government its deep sense of the services the boundary commission has rendered to the cause of Irish peace and unity.

It is understood that in the course of the debates in the house of commons, the ministers will make a full explanation of the negotiations and the meaning of the new agreement. It is believed that the article abrogating the provision for the council of Ireland and permitting the different governments to get together may mean still further advances toward reconciliation.

WOMAN GOVERNOR SEES NO HAVOC IN FEMININE POWER

CHENENNE, Wyo., Dec. 3 (AP)—Governor Nellie Taylor Ross of Wyoming, who is rounding out her initial year as the first woman governor in the United States, does not believe that with the vigorous entrance of women into politics will come "an irresistible urge to exercise their newly-found power in some strange and novel way, threatening havoc to the body politic."

In response to a request from The Associated Press, the woman governor summed up her views on the place of woman in politics as follows:

"The question is so often propounded to me in various forms as to what I consider the particular service women may render in politics and government that I am forced to the conclusion that it is inspired by real concern on the part of the public as to the effect of the general enfranchisement of women. Whether the question emanates from apprehension or hope, I am unable to say.

"It may be apprehension lest with some power long deferred there will come an irresistible urge to exercise it in some strange and novel way, threatening havoc to the body politic. Or it may be the hope that with freshness of interest and devotion to lofty ideals, women will place the politics of the nation on a higher plane.

"If I were to judge by the inquiries that have come to me from various sections remote from my own state—women have voted in Wyoming so long that the public does not regard suffrage as an experiment—there is more apprehension than hope.

"It is most amusing and amazing to me, for example, to be asked as I was soon after my election whether I expected to appoint any men to office. This question, telegraphed to me from the east by a well-known metropolitan newspaper, had every indication of being quite sincere and was apparently inspired by the fear that the elevation of woman to executive office was likely to be followed by the dismissal of all men and the substitution of women in their places.

"What possible reason there could be for such an opinion with respect to women office-holders is difficult to understand. Women have been established in the business and professional fields for years without working a revolution in business or in the professions. Feminine physicians, lawyers, scientists, writers, bankers, clerks and others have not to my knowledge effected any great alteration in the methods and purposes of their particular calling. It cannot be reasonably expected then, I think, that women in public office would make any attempt to revolutionize the government.

"The full privilege of citizenship does undoubtedly place in the feminine hand a weapon formidable in its potential consequences. It opens to woman the door of opportunity for unbounded service, and at the same time challenges her to prove whether she does in reality possess those high ideals and noble qualities which, from time immemorial, men have generously attributed to her. I do not, however, lay claim for her to any monopoly of the virtues that contribute good citizenship.

"Men and women, we are all alike citizens, moved by the same love of country and entertaining the hopes and fears for its future. Conditions that affect one affect all. Just as in the family, the prosperity of the group is reflected upon each of its members, so it is in the state, and insofar as our activities promote the general welfare, in exactly so far do they promote that of both men and women. Both have the same responsibilities and there is no plea for good citizenship that can not and should not be made to both alike."

Automobiles killed 30,000 people in this country last year and injured 600,000.

GRISWOLD

Miss Bartha Geer, of Springfield, Mass., spent Thanksgiving with her mother, Mrs. E. A. Geer, also her brother and family.

Mrs. Edward Gibeson, of Hopeville, returned this week, from New York after a two weeks' visit with relatives.

Miss Francis Montgomery is in the Rackus hospital, recovering from an injury to her back, sustained several weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Needham, of Hopeville, were callers, Wednesday, at Providence, R. I., to visit Mr. Needham's brother, who is ill.

Funeral services for Mrs. George Brown were held at her late home, in Pachaug, Wednesday afternoon. The house was filled with relatives and friends. Rev. Mr. Clement, of Jewett City, conducted the services. There were many beautiful floral tributes. The bearers were A. B. Browning, Elmer Miller, W. B. Montgomery, Chauncey Roby, Frank Terry and C. Frank Morgan. Hourigan Bros., were in charge.

The members of Pachaug grange gave an Old Folks' concert, Friday evening, of last week. Owing to the stormy night there was not a very large attendance. Those present enjoyed a rare treat. The net profit was $55. The old-fashioned dance at the close of the concert was greatly enjoyed. The orchestra was composed of grange talent.

Sails Help Pull Plows

Sails were introduced as an aid to plowing in a soil tillers' match at Brightlingsea, England, many of the residents of which are yachtsmen as well as farmers. The wind at times aided the horses in dragging the plow along, but at other times puffs blew the implements to one side and spoiled a straight furrow which hindered the contestant's chance of winning first prize. Men as well as women participated in the contest, which the judges decided was a great success but they thought there was little possibility of sails ever putting horses or motors out of business when it comes to plowing.

A document indicating that George Clifford was a constable of York County, New Brunswick, was found when police arrested him in a liquor raid in the market district in Boston. A trunk full of liquor was seized.

Half the world is half asleep

¶ Many people are considered lazy when they are really suffering from the world's most universal disease—constipation. It is a disease which robs you of your energy, your interest, your desire to do things. Only ALL-BRAN brings sure and safe relief from this disease.

"My dear... what is the matter with Harriet?"

HARRIET was once the life of the party. Once. Today her friends have a way of "pitying her" wherever she goes. Her sallow cheeks, her lifelessness, her circled eyes. Sluggish, always dead tired, Harriet stumbles on down the pathway of social decline—needlessly!

In the world about us, there are thousands of men and women who, like Harriet, suffer from constipation and pay its hideous price. Constipation is the world's most universal disease. But constipation can be permanently relieved and its devastations thwarted.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a safe, sure way of relieving constipation permanently. It will drive the sluggishness out of the system and restore that vivid vitality so necessary to perfect health and worldly triumph.

This is how Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings relief and why it is safe and sure: as it journeys through the body its fiber remains unchanged. It remains a bulk food, as doctors call it. ALL-BRAN sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It stimulates the flow of the digestive juices. It absorbs and carries moisture into the intestine and prompts it to natural, healthy action. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN works as nature works. You never have to increase the amount eaten. How different from habit-forming pills and drugs, whose dose must be increased as time goes on.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or your grocer refunds the purchase price. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it any way you like it—with milk or cream, sprinkled over other cereals; in soups, cooked with hot cereals, or made into the many delicious recipes given on every package. Also delicious with fruit. But be certain to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

KNOW THE TRUTH ABOUT BRAN

To be effective, bran fiber must go through the various digestive processes without submitting to any of them. It must pass through the entire alimentary tract without its form being changed.

What happens when a bran food is eaten?

After the saliva has acted upon it, it passes through the stomach and into the intestines, where every part which is not fiber is absorbed.

In ALL-BRAN the quantity of fiber is so great that it furnishes bulk enough to prevent and relieve constipation.

In a part-bran food, the quantity of fiber is so small that there is only a puny amount to do a herculean task.

ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Demand it.

Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. A product which is only part bran is not dependable. It can bring, at best, only partial results. Too many times it may bring none. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is ALL-BRAN. That is why doctors recommend it. Why take chances?

Kellogg's is the original and only ALL-BRAN. In thousands of successful cases it has proved its worth. Let it bring permanent relief from constipation for you. Your grocer sells Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Get a package today. Leading hotels and restaurants serve it.

NORWICH COMMERCE CHAMBER HAS PROGRAMME FOR THE YEAR

A programme for the year ahead, selected from 29 different suggestions made by the members, is contained in the November letter of the Chamber of Commerce.

Among the matters of civic interest, in which the Chamber has taken action or held discussions, are the community sheet, freight and express service, school essay and slogan contest.

The following is the letter:

Programme of work—The suggestions from the membership received during October indicated a keen interest on the part of the members concerning the civic interests of our community.

Twenty-nine different subjects were submitted. Many suggestions having the same subject were received from the members. The suggestions having the greatest number of members presenting them were included in the program of work.

The chief activities of the Chamber during this year, as submitted by the members, will be concerned with the following program:—Aviation field, building code revision, community advertising, community chest, community spirit, industrial matters, membership increase, milk and meat inspection, parking, recreational matters, solicitations, streets improvement, transportation and zoning.

The committee in charge of the preparation of this program which was approved by the directors was Dr. H. E. Campbell, R. D. Judd, H. A. Tirrell.

A glance at the program shows that the Chamber is taking up, or continuing, a number of important questions affecting the general welfare of Norwich. Your organization will put its earnest efforts into the work and present the various activities, each in its particular aspect, from time to time to the public, and to the town and city officials, after due consideration and study on the part of the various committees of the Chamber.

Community Chest—The Chamber acted as the co-ordinating agency for holding a conference to discuss this subject. The conference was held Nov. 9th, attended by representatives of the following organizations: American Legion, Backus Hospital, Boy Scouts, Central Labor Union, Chamber of Commerce, Diocesan Bureau, Lions club, Manufacturers, Merchants, Red Cross, Rotary club, Salvation Army, United Workers, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Y. M. C. A.

J. M. C. Treadway, president of the Bristol Community chest, and F. S. Hitchcock and J. F. Kennedy from New London were present and explained the Community Chest idea to the gathering. They answered a number of questions during the conference. Bristol has had the chest in operation for two years and is enthusiastic over this method of raising funds, by a single effort, to sustain its charitable and philanthropic institutions. New London will conduct its first chest campaign during the early part of January. The sentiment in New London is evidently strongly in favor of a Community Chest. Bridgeport, New Haven, Southington and Hartford are among Connecticut cities that have established community chests.

The conference was held in order that representatives of the organizations present might learn how the chest operates, its aims and purposes, and its limitations. The conference brought out one important fact and that is—that the number of people who contributed to a community chest is greatly in excess of the number of people who contribute to separate drives. Further consideration will be given this matter.

Traffic Bureau—The bureau held an interesting and instructive conference on Nov. 16 with representatives of the New Haven railroad and the American Railway Express company, to discuss shipments and deliveries to and from Norwich.

Similar conferences with the Central Vermont railroad officials and the Thames River Line are planned by the bureau in the near future.

Realizing that adequate transportation of freight is one of the principal assets of a community, a traffic bureau was established last year by the Chamber. Its purpose is to watch local shipments, and foster the maximum service that can be secured.

Norwich is particularly fortunate in the number of transportation companies giving us service. The New Haven and Central Vermont railroads and the Thames River Line can and should provide good service for local shippers.

As a result of the discussion on the 16th inst., which was attended by 26 men interested in local shipments, arrangements are to be made, effective Monday, the 23d, that will give Norwich an earlier express delivery. An effort will also be made by the local express company officials to secure at least one motor truck to make deliveries in Norwich.

Regarding the delays in some freight shipments to Norwich from New York, the New Haven officials stated that such delays were caused at the Bush Terminal in New York and the Brooklyn Eastern District Terminal over which the New Haven company has no control. The change in schedule of the New England Steamship company's boat-line from New York to New London was responsible for the forty-eight hour delivery of local freight from New York. It is possible that the boat schedule will be rearranged to conform with the former over-night service to Norwich which was in effect before the last revision.

Census of Manufactures—The Chamber has been requested by the bureau of census, department of commerce of the federal government to co-operate with them in securing the local census of our manufactures.

Provisions for taking this census every two years is to be found in the act of Congress of March 3, 1919, and makes it obligatory on the part of the manufacturers to file their schedules.

The chamber urges our local manufacturers to file their information schedules promptly. The schedules will be mailed by the Bureau from Washington about January 1, 1926.

Red Cross—The Norwich Chapter of the American Red Cross is at present conducting its annual membership enrollment, any one may become a member upon the payment of one dollar.

The following extract from the Charter Obligations of the American Red Cross clearly proves the charitable purpose of this association.

"To continue and carry on a system of National and international relief in time of peace and to apply the same in mitigating the sufferings caused by pestilence, famine, fire, floods and other great national calamities, and to devise and carry on measures for preventing the same."

Locally the Norwich Chapter has assisted the town health department; milk fund; dental work; soldiers' relief; and special work for the United Workers.

The local chapter needs about $2500 to carry on its work. The chapter is counting of the support of Norwich.

New England Conference—The first general meeting of accredited representatives from the six New England states was held in Worcester Nov. 12 and 13. The meeting was held at the request of the governors of each state to discuss plans concerning "The promotion of New England agriculture, commerce, industry, transportation, public utilities and other matters of common concern." In order to carry out these plans a New England council was established consisting of twelve representatives from each state. The creation of this council will provide a means for intelligent and unified action on the part of New England upon questions and problems affecting the general welfare of these six states.

The chamber was represented at the Worcester meeting by H. D. Larrabee and J. A. French.

Community Spirit—The foundation of a progressive town is its community spirit. The soul of a community that inspires faith, courage, loyalty, and affection for our home town, is community spirit. It is based on the belief that a town worth living in, is worth working for.

The school essay contest which has just closed, and the slogan contest just ended, were taken as a means, by the chamber, to encourage and awaken greater enthusiasm for Norwich.

The Thanksgiving meeting of the chamber wherein the historical, the educational, the business and the religious phases of our community life were so interestingly told, proved that truly "We are citizens of no mean city."

BIG FORESTRY CONGRESS FOR ALL NEW ENGLAND

Education of the public to the fact that New England could raise more timber is one of the purposes of the second New England forestry congress which is to be held in Springfield, Dec. 10, 11, and 12. Nearly 5,000,000 acres of land in New England that once produced timber and could do so again is producing little or nothing of value now.

Several preliminary meetings will be held on the morning of Dec. 9 and at 2:15 p. m., there will be a joint meeting of the state forestry associations of New England. Mrs. Jessie G. Gerard, conservation chairman of Connecticut Federation of Women's clubs, will speak upon What the Women's Clubs Can Do for Forestry.

The official opening of the congress will be held at 8 p. m., in Central High school with the following programme:

The National Forest Program, Gen. D Pratt, president American Forestry Ass.: Public Education in Forestry, Dr. Chas. Lathrop Pack, American Tree Ass.: What Forestry Means to America, Dr. C. A. Schenck, of Darmstadt, Germany, (talks to be broadcast), motion pictures.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION IS AWARDED TO WIDOW

Workmen's compensation has been awarded by Commissioner J. J. Donohue to Mrs. Cora Keeney, widow of Sidney C. Keeney of New London, an employe of the New England Collapsible Tube Co. It is found that the cause of Keeney's death on Oct. 24, was due to the cause to which his former disability was ascribable under a former award, viz; tuberculosis. He left his widow and five minor children. The widow is to receive compensation at the rate of $14.73 for 312 weeks. The accrued payments since the date of death are to be made in a lump sum, it being found that four weeks' payments have already been paid to apply on the 312 week period.

Gypsies Annoy Berlin

Berlin police are worried by an influx of gypsies. These strange Romany caravans appear from nowhere and camp on Kings heath, near the Johannisthaler Chaussee, in East Berlin. Ordered to move on, they go, but next day they are back in camp again. Numerous complaints have been filed against them for soliciting in an insistent manner, but the patience of the gypsy is as old as the world.

Business Seeks Inventions

Included in a long list of requests from business firms which maintain that the field for inventors had hardly been scratched after all, are the following suggestions for the ingenious-minded: Flexible glass, unshrinkable flannel, a noiseless airplane, an easily cleaned smoking pipe, simplified but not freakish and a temperance drink that will taste like something and keep indefinitely.

The fabric, tulle, is named for Tulle in central France.

Turkish Women Smokers

Turkish girls are not permitted to smoke before they are married, and even when they are married it is not customary for them to smoke in the presence of their elders. The new regime in Turkey is expected, however, to rapidly break down these restrictions.

Peter Discovers One of Paddy's Friendly Watchers

A timely warning, without cost, may keep a life from being lost.
—Paddy the Beaver.

This is as true as true can be. Very often a warning which costs the one who gives it nothing at all saves the life of some one who hears it. Peter Rabbit had an example of this as Paddy sat talking with him and explaining what dangerous work the building of a new dam was. Suddenly the voice of Blacky the Crow was heard.

"Caw, caw, caw! Ca-aw!" shouted Blacky.

"Good by, Peter," said Paddy hurriedly, and without another word ran for the Laughing Brook after slapping the ground with his great broad flat tail. Peter could see Mrs. Paddy and the two nearly grown young Beavers also hurrying for the Laughing Brook. Each dropped whatever he or she was doing and ran for the water. They made for a certain pool where the water was deep enough for them to feel reasonably safe, and they didn't stop until they reached it.

Now, Blacky was quite a distance above the alder swamp. He was, as Peter knew, sitting in the top of a tree there. Peter had understood perfectly what Blacky had said. He had cried, "Beware, beware, beware! Coyote!"

Now, it came to Peter that Blacky must be one of the friends Paddy had spoken of as ready to help him by giving warning in daytime. "Paddy fears Old Man Coyote," thought Peter. "Old Man Coyote is one of the enemies Paddy must watch for by day or night. Blacky has seen him over there and the black rascal has called a warning. I wonder if the black rascal really did it for Paddy or if he did it just to spoil Old Man Coyote's hunting? Anyway, I'll heed the warning. I'll keep right here close to this old hollow log. I never have known just what to think of that black scamp. He can do the meanest things. Then again he can do the nicest things. He has warned me of danger more than once when I would have been caught but for that warning. It is queer how some folks can do splendid things and then turn right around and do horrid things. Folks talk a lot about Blacky the Crow and say he is just as black inside as his coat is outside, but I know that Blacky isn't all bad by a whole lot. Sometimes I doubt if he really is what you would call bad at all. He is full of mischief and he is smart Smart folks full of mischief are sure to get in trouble more or less. They may not admit it, but just the same a lot of little people in the Green Forest and on the Green Meadows owe a whole lot to Blacky and depend on him and those sharp eyes of his for warnings of danger. Listen to him now! He is following Old Man Coyote and everybody within hearing knows just where Old Man Coyote is. He isn't coming this way, so I guess those Beavers will be back pretty soon.

"Caw, caw, caw, ca-a-w!" shouted Blacky

At that very instant Paddy appeared, coming from the Laughing Brook. "Was that one of the friends who watch for your enemies and give you warning?" asked Peter.

Paddy nodded. "I depend on Blacky a lot," said he. "Having him about is better than having a second pair of eyes of my own. There is mighty little his eyes miss, and I've never known him to fail to give warning when he has discovered Old Man Coyote or Buster Bear or Yowler the Bob Cat or one of those two-legged creatures with a terrible gun."

"Or Reddy Fox," added Peter.

"Or Reddy Fox," agreed Paddy. "I suppose that warning means something to you, but not to me. I am not afraid of Reddy. He isn't big enough to make me fear him. But those others I mentioned well when they are about I don't want to be. But this isn't working. I must get busy."

Paddy went over to a clump of alders and sitting up seized one in his hands and with a single bit with those front teeth of his bit it off just as Peter would have snipped off a clover stem.

LEGAL QUESTION RAISED ABOUT ALCOHOL SHIPPING

A question of how much a truck driver must be fortified by permits for the transportation of denatured alcohol from companies bonded by the government is to come up before Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas in Hartford this (Wednesday) afternoon when he has a hearing on whether to make permanent a temporary injunction he issued Monday restraining Superintendent Robert T. Hurley of the state police department from seizing denatured alcohol of the Connecticut Alcohol Distributors, Inc., of New Haven, while the alcohol is being transported in this state.

State policemen seized thirty-five barrels of alcohol last Wednesday while it was on trucks from Danbury to New Haven, because the driver did not have the permit required under the state law. The alcohol was consigned by the Solvents Recovery, Inc., of Danbury to the Connecticut Alcohol Distributors, Inc., of New Haven, and was aboard trucks of the Florida Trucking company, acting as transportation agents for the distilling companies.

John M. Chapnick of New Haven, attorney for the Connecticut Alcohol Distributors, Inc., who secured the injunction, claims that it was not necessary for the driver to have a permit for the actual transportation of denatured alcohol when a basis permit for the manufacture, sale and transportation of the product was issued at Washington and countersigned by the state federal prohibition agent. Deputy Administrator of Prohibition Frank T. Putney agrees with the view, as both the Connecticut Alcohol Distributors, Inc., and the Solvents Recovery, Inc., were bonded by the government, but at the hearing before Judge Thomas it will be determined whether the truck driver had the necessary slips showing the place of shipment and the destination of the cargo.

Stubborn Chimney Fire

A stubborn chimney fire at the residence of Thomas M. Shields, No. 1 Crescent street, gave the fire department three quarters of an hour of hard work Wednesday evening, before it was finally extinguished. Five tanks of chemical, 15 gallons in all, were used on the blaze. A tin draught cover over the chimney top was melted by the heat. The call came in by telephone at 7:21 o'clock.

NEW LONDON WINE DEALER PAYS FINE FROM A WAD OF $50 AND $20 BILLS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, December 4.—John Marino, residing at 613 Bank street, never made a more serious blunder than when he let Benny Ketzweger have wine, when the latter dropped in at the Marino house last evening. When Benny appeared later at a restaurant where State Policeman Kulowski was dining, Benny was foolishly drunk. He boasted of what he had and made himself a nuisance generally. The state officer got hold of Benny and told him some things. He also asked him some questions and finally obtained information that was to the effect that while Ketzweger did not know the name of the fellow who produced the supply he knew him by sight and could describe him and could take the officer to the house where his "friend" resided. He knew the man had a concession at the beach last summer, too. A search warrant was obtained to make sure that the officers were not to be tricked and then local policemen and the state officer sauntered down to the Marino house. They found on a search some bottles of wine and confiscated it as evidence of the truth of what Benny had said. In court this morning Marino could not be convicted of selling, but he was charged with having liquor of a greater alcoholic content than one-half of one per cent. He was represented by Attorney Connor, who demurred to the complaint. That was a practical admission of guilt and Marino was fined $150. His wine was not taken from him, however. John counted out the money representing his fine and costs in fifty and twenty dollar bills and went away satisfied.

"You fellows find it easy to get alcohol in the coast guard service," said Judge Prince to three sailors from the state pier, who were before the police court this morning. They were charged with intoxication and with disorderly conduct, and each admitted that he was justly accused. The sailors are John Weatherbee, Edwin Wesserhoft and John MacLeod. The last named fared best, for he was turned over to the coast guard without a fine. Wesserhoft was fined $10 and went to jail. He was nursing a bruised head, bruises inflicted upon him by Officer David Nagle, because the sailor fought the officer when an attempt was made to arrest him. Wesserhoft went into the Imperial restaurant on State street and there was very offensive. He smashed about $5 worth of crockery in failing assault and endeavoring to handle dishes. The management called Policeman Nagle who hustled the sailor from the place. Then the sailor seemed to imagine that he had the right of way and would not be guided by the policeman. The night stick was brought into use and Wesserhoft changed his mind. Weatherbee was simply drunk when he was arrested.

William Lyman, charged with embezzlement from his employer, was represented to have made restitution of the money he was charged with having stolen. That led to the continuance of his case for a week to ascertain whether he had discharged his obligation.

Michael Costello was fined $5 for parking his automobile on the west side of Bank street. That section is like a fly trap for the heedless operators of automobiles. There are signs warning against parking, but these are disregarded with great frequency. The limitation of fines is expected to have the effect of putting a stop to violation of the parking ordinance in that particular section.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Reuben B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of John Morgan, a sailor attached to the submarine base, to be suspended. Commissioner Stoeckel also caused the operator's license of Bruno Mazzana, 23 Bank street, recently suspended, to be returned to the owner.

Louis LaForge, a soldier stationed at Fort Wright; Mrs. William Mahan and infant son, 29 Cottage street; Mrs. George Price, 51 Shapley street, and William Mahan, 29 Cottage street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Association hospital, were discharged today.

An automobile owned and operated by Arthur B. Herrick, of Waterford, struck Miss Katherine Lyman, 16, this morning as the latter was crossing Huntington street, near the corner of State street. Miss Lyman, who sustained numerous bruises, was conveyed to the office of a nearby physician, where her injuries received attention.

A horse that had strayed away from a pasture in the northern part of the city, was found roaming about on Williams street, near Main street last night by B. Verito, 317 Main street, who took charge of the animal, causing the horse to be placed in Verito's barn, where it awaits the claim of its owner.

The New London police early this morning received a telephone message from the authorities of New Haven requesting that a watch be maintained in this city for the driver of an automobile wanted for evasion of responsibility. The driver of the automobile, after colliding with another machine, speeded away, although the driver of the machine struck was injured to the extent that he had to be removed to a hospital for treatment. The colliding car was believed to have headed toward New London, but no trace of it was found, although a close watch was maintained on the outskirts of the city for a machine, which was damaged.

Mrs. George Jordan and daughter have returned to their home in New York, after having spent several days as guests of Mrs. Jordan's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Murphy, 126 Connecticut avenue.

An automobile owned and operated by George A. Katuin, Boston, and a machine owned and driven by Stanley Goldsmith, Hotel Mohican apartments, this city were in collision late yesterday on Thames street, Groton. Katuin was taken into custody on a charge of evasion of responsibility and this morning he was arraigned before Judge Cornelius C. Costello in the Groton town court. The case was continued until the 14th inst., and the accused furnished a bond of $100 for his appearance.

Katuin was operating his car in a southerly direction and at the corner of Baker avenue, a trolley car traveling in the opposite direction approached as did the machine driven by Goldsmith, in avoiding a collision between Katuin's automobile and the trolley car, the automobile collided with Goldsmith's car. Katuin instead of stopping to determine the extent of the damage occasioned, continued to drive in the direction of Providence. Goldsmith lodged complaint with the state police and Katuin was apprehended between Mystic and was ordered to present himself in court this morning.

Thomas Grogan has sold realty at 715 Crystal avenue to John Poplowsky and wife.

The fire department was called out early this morning for a slight blaze in the American and European bakery, 551 Main street. When the fire was discovered a quantity of paper pie plates and other inflammable material was ablaze. Believing that the place would be seriously damaged an employe caused an alarm to be rung in from Box 25, corner of Main and Federal streets. The fire was subdued with a small quantity of chemicals and the damage was trivial.

Frank DiMaggio, one of the DiMaggio Brothers, proprietors of the Hotel Winthrop, is confined to his home, 465 Montauk avenue, by illness. The victim's father, Salvatore DiMaggio, is also ill, but the latter's condition is reported as being slightly improved.

Miss Alice Larkin is confined to her home, Williams street, by illness.

Miss Ruth Gardner, 411 Bank street, is a patient at Lawrence hospital where she underwent an operation, Wednesday, for appendicitis. Today at the institution it was stated that the condition of Miss Gardner was as well as could be expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McGrath, married last week, have concluded their wedding tour and are now residing at 75 Coleman street. Mr. McGrath is a marine engineer and is employed by the McDonald Towing company, of New York.

Additional deeds transferring title from the Pequot Realty company, recent purchasers of the vast tract of land and mansion, formerly owned by the C. S. Guthrie estate, Lower Boulevard, Parkway and Pequot avenue, were received for record this afternoon at the office of the city clerk. The deeds show that Ann T. Cobb acquired a building lot, James Snow acquired one lot and Captain James D. and Louise K. Pettigrew purchased two building sites. The deeds, like the previous deeds filed, contain a clause that no structure shall be erected upon either of the sites at a cost less than $7,000, and that no store, garage or hotel shall be erected on the sites.

The funeral of Simon Riordan, formerly of New London, whose death occurred at Preston Monday night, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger. At the close of the mass Edward F. Murray sang "At the Foot of the Cross." The bearers were Louis Schablein, Simon O'Shaughnessy, Harry J. Kennedy, Patrick J. Quinn, Edward Lezarde and Frank Kennedy. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Edward Barnett, Lincoln avenue, was called to Danbury this afternoon because of the sudden death of his brother, who was a hat merchant there.

Patrolman George Perkins is the latest member of the police department to be stricken by illness, the officer being confined to his home, 67 Norwood avenue. Traffic Officer Frank Linehan, who has been ill a number of days at his abode, Jefferson avenue, has resumed his station, corner of State and Main street.

Three alleged violators of the city's traffic laws, are scheduled to be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning. This afternoon Patrolman Michael Dorsey observed the machine owned and in charge of Clifford Fox, residing in the Y. M. C. A., parked in restricted area on Bank street and ordered the driver to appear in court. Later Traffic Officers John Courtney and William Riordan observed Benjamin Cohen, 74 Poquonoc road, Groton, and Lester Perry, 84 Mercer street, violating the city ordinance prohibiting the parking of automobiles longer than 30 minutes on the east side of Bank street. Both drivers were ordered to present themselves in court.

Bicycle thieves continue to operate, although this kind of thieving is not perpetrated with the frequency as was the case during August and September. However, that the thieving is still being conducted, was evidenced from the fact, late this afternoon, that John Hickey, 295 Willetta avenue, complained to the police that his son's bicycle had been stolen from the yard of the Hickey home but a short time after the youth had placed it there.

Patrolman Henry Sylvia, on duty in the lower section of the city communicated with Desk Sergeant Frank Howard, stating that the former desired the apprehension of the driver of automobile, 55-108. Connecticut registration. It developed that the driver of the car had driven through Bank street at a fast rate of speed and at the corner of Truman and Shaw streets and Montauk avenue, the speed of the machine was so great that it constituted a charge of reckless driving. The machine is listed in the name of Charlotte M. Albertine, 110 Love lane, Hartford. The Hartford police will be requested to order the party having charge of the automobile in New London to appear in the local police court Saturday or Monday.

POOR ARE BUYING COAL AT RATE OF $24 PER TON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 3.—Coal is scarce in this city by the ton lot, but there appears to be no difficulty in buying bags containing 50 pounds at a price that is more than $24 a ton. Perhaps this matter will be called to the attention of the state fuel commissioner. It is the very poor who are the patrons of the 50-pound bag sellers, and two or three more profits than go to the dealer in ton lots are attached to the buyer who has no place to store coal or who cannot buy in large quantities, because of lack of funds.

HEALTH OFFICER HEWES DENIES REPORT OF ITCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 3—Dr. Frank W. Hewes, health officer of the borough of Groton, denies the published report that the children of the public schools, have become afflicted to itch. The health officer has made it known that two cases of scabies were found, recently, with two children pursuing studies at the Groton Heights school, but that not a single case was revealed to exist among the students of the Col. Ledyard school. Dr. Hewes further stated that the general health condition of the students of both schools was excellent.

DARING AUTOMOBILE THEFT IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 3—One of the boldest thefts of an automobile to occur in New London in many months took place this afternoon, when a car was stolen from State street. The machine, a Rickenbacker coach, 1926 model and the property of Montague, H. B. Higham, Larchmont, N. Y., was driven to the east side of the street, between Union and Green streets, about 5 o'clock, while Higham, a salesman, visited the store of the James Hislop Co. Higham absented himself from the car about a half hour and when he returned to where he had left his machine he discovered that it had been stolen. The car is valued at approximately $2,700 and was almost doubly valuable because the car contained a large quantity of Christmas samples of wearing apparel. Higham reporter his loss to the police and the state police at the Groton and Centerbrook barracks, the Norwich, Westerly, Hartford and New Haven authorities were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen car and the thief. The machine is painted light green and carries New York registration, 6Y-3456.

COURT MARTIAL NOW OVER IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 3—The court martial session that has been held several days at the state pier, of charges made against the crew of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 187, alleging the trafficking in liquor, was concluded this afternoon, when the final testimony was taken in chambers. The transcript of the testimony will be forwarded to Washington, where the finding will be announced, it is believed, within a week.

The court martial resulted from the arrest of Felic Palma, a Filipino member of the crew of the patrol boat and it was statements made by Palma that led to a court martial being ordered. Palma was arrested early one morning about six weeks ago by State Police Officer Henry J. Albright, Groton barracks, when the officer observed Palma carrying a grip that appeared exceedingly heavy. When Palma was questioned it was revealed that the grip contained several bottles of liquor. He declared that he received them from the skipper of the patrol boat and that the latter received a supply of bottled goods from one of the schooners at anchor off Rum Row earlier in the day. When the patrol boat, which, it was claimed, had sustained damage as a result of her bow having been buried against the side of the rum-supply ship, arrived in port, the craft went to the Thames Towboat's marine railways for repairs and it was there, Palma declared to Officer Albright, that the liquor was given him.

results of the "spoils system." Suffice it here to say that without a single exception every incumbent of the presidential office from Grant to Coolidge, including Cleveland and Wilson, has given unqualified approval to the merit system; nearly every one of them has extended it by executive action; and several of them, notably Cleveland, Roosevelt, Taft and Coolidge have given it emphatic endorsement. No president has ever ventured an adverse comment, whatever lapses in application may have occurred in spots, due to tremendous pressure of the spoilsmen.

Similarly, nearly every political party platform since 1872 (over 50 years) has endorsed the merit system, usually with citation of definite benefits and recommendations of extensions. I have before me brief outline of the civil service planks of the parties and their presidential candidate for the past forty or fifty years.

I wish to make the point that it is impossible for any opponent of the merit system to say that such extended and definite and emphatic testimony from all parties and their candidates for half a century is merely verbal utterance for campaign effect. The facts indisputable are that the merit system, as founded on the Pendleton bill and steadily advanced as I have indicated is proof of its essential success, its growing efficiency in government executive service and economies, with wide-spread public approval.

Politicians Oppose System.

In the reactions of recent years, however, there has been a tremendous pressure brought to bear by politicians and spoilsmen to hamper the merit system or break it down. Congress remains firm, however, as do the presidents; but the reaction is in operation.

The most vital need at the present time is that the merit system shall be applied to prohibition enforcement service. It is not necessary to declare that "only prohibitionists shall be placed on guard." The true appeal is for honest and efficiency in loyalty to law. If there be those who demand that the Volstead law be modified or even repealed, there is undoubted right to do that by legal and constitutional methods as prescribed; but citizens who seek to violate or undermine or weaken or defy law are not loyal American citizens. Unless this basic fact of constitutional government can be realized and acted upon, popular government is in so far a failure and the public welfare jeopardized.

State's Record Not Creditable.

Truth compels the statement that the record of Connecticut in relation to this matter of the merit system has not been creditable, and in recent months has become highly discreditable with costly and disastrous consequences to the state.

Connecticut had a fairly efficient civil service law for several years prior to 1921, operating under a state civil service commission; but the politicians in control of the state constantly embarrassed its operation, and at the general assembly of 1921, they "hamstrung" the law by amendments limiting its operation, and at the session of 1923 it was arbitrarily repealed, after so-called "hearings" before the judiciary committee of that session, at which hearings some of the foremost citizens of the state were ridiculed and insulted by members of the judiciary committee. The repeal of the bill was accomplished under arbitrary control of the legislature by the so-called "ring" of spoilsmen, who are still in control. Connecticut is the only state which has repealed the civil service law.

At the session of 1925 the same tactics of ridicule and misrepresentation were continued at the hearings before the judiciary committee, and when the bill came up on the floor of the house the member who had introduced the bill was given scant hearing; was over ridden when he rose to answer unfair and untrue statements made by opponents of the bill, and the measure was summarily rejected at the command of the "boss" as were several other meritorious measures by the general assembly of 1925.

I realize that this is a severe indictment of the "spoilsmen" who have denied a fair trial of the merit system in Connecticut, but it is a true indictment, as all familiar with the present political situation in the state well know.

The reign of the spoilsmen in Connecticut has gone far beyond the defeat of the merit system; and the gang of spoilsmen now ruling the politics of this state are neither republicans nor democrats worthy of either party name; but just spoilsmen who are out for selfish ends, regardless of party, and they are working together for the spoils, while the rank and file of worthy citizens, men and women in both parties neutralize each others votes at every election, and let the gang have full swing. The spoils system fairly honeycombs the political life of Connecticut, and the gang in control stops at nothing to achieve its purposes.

It is controlling not only the distribution of offices, but is actually passing or repealing laws for the benefit of the "gang" and its "henchmen."

In 1925 General Assembly

At the general assembly of 1925 a horde of petty politicians stated at 54 in number were appointed "assistants to the superintendent of the capitol" at $400 per, paid by money taken from the public treasury, and prominent members of the assembly who had shown independence of the "ring rule" were shoved aside to obsolete or minor committees, to show the power of the "boss" in vengeance and the danger of going against his wishes; and thus important constituencies in this state were deprived of fair representation, and the state was deprived of the best service of some of the ablest members. Why should any political "boss" in Connecticut be able to do these things with impunity?

And yet, you all know that this thing has been going on for years and who cares? A citizen of this state, of national reputation, who has given his life to unselfish public service, and in recent years has endeavored to arouse the people of Connecticut to the true state of affairs, has recently said, in comment upon the shameless procedure of the leaders of the assembly of 1925, "the worst of the situation is that the people do not seem to care."

Enacted Special Laws

These same leaders of the general assembly of 1925, plainly acting under the joint control of the "big boss" of the republican party and his hearty co-laborer the "big boss" (late lamented) of the democratic party, was able to enact during the session of 1925 special laws for franchises of special privilege in public utilities, wherein the chief beneficiaries are to be stockholders and not the public; and an effort made by several members to establish state control of these franchises against stock exploitation was "knocked higher than Gilderoy's Kite." Tax exemption laws were covertly or blindly modified for the benefit of rich patrons of exempted institutions. Petty lawyers prostituted the high privilege and influence of assembly membership in attempts to restore forfeited "rights," to former criminals, while evading or suppressing the newspaper publicity required by law in such cases. Home rule in cities was overridden for the gratification of members of the "gang" or the punishment of factional rivals, while the public welfare was ground fine between these might gladiators for spoils!

A vicious attack was made upon the high courts of the state "for the benefit of bootleggers, boosers and boodlers," as one disgusted republican member expressed it. The state highway department was manipulated by assembly members for the benefit of private interests against the great needs of the state for a fair policy of highway development; and especially to the detriment of agricultural interests. And if there was one outstanding measure of large benefit to the state other than routine or established lines of legislation, accomplished by the general assembly of 1925, I would like to know what it was!

And all this domination of politics to the detriment of the public welfare is so unnecessary! Accomplished by really a small group of selfish "spoilsmen" who make a study and an art of controlling a sufficient number of assembly members to achieve their ends; and such petty fellows they really are when you come to "size them up!" But who cares? And this same gang have their plans well laid already and their "henchmen" picked, or will attend to that during the present winter, for the assembly of 1927.

The membership of the general assembly of 1925 was overwhelmingly republican; 239 republicans and 23 democrats in the house, 35 republicans and 3 democrats in the senate. The personal individual character of the republican majority was apparently of high quality as to nearly all the members; but they suffered themselves to be dominated and their best interests defeated by what Washington so long ago called "the baleful influence of party spirit," and when the vicious measures which I have outlined were rammed through by "the steam roller," or quietly slipped through with scarcely any member realizing what was going on these "descendants of the Puritans," of "fine old Yankee stock," sat there and did as told, or remained silent like a bunch of moral "duds" while the henchmen of the gang shouted "aye," and the speaker declared the measure passed!

What Is The Remedy?

What is the remedy? Have the people of Connecticut lost their moral power? Must we suffer these things to go on indefinitely, with ever increasing burdens of special privilege and lawlessness?

The so-called "descendants of the Puritans" and "of find old Yankee stock," though so largely in evidence in the general assembly of 1925, are yet very much in a minority throughout the state. These matters of special privilege and lawlessness and consequent public burdens are quite as much the concern of citizens of the so-called "foreign element who have come into the state during the past two generations and are now in a majority. The wage-workers, the farmers and the average business man bear the larger share of these burdens, and yet they also suffer themselves to be manipulated by the politicians. Groups of the newcomers or new voters of foreign birth are often praised into republican and democratic ranks, and there do the bidding of the bosses. They do not so intend, they are not way-wise in the new country; and are often misled by wrong leadership; and so they too, suffer the burdensome consequences with the rest of us. The burdensome abuses of power affect adversely every man, woman and child in this state. The average citizen is getting restive, but still submits; and the "big boss" seems to bear a charmed life!

May I repeat the question—What is the remedy? There is no other remedy but an aroused public sentiment; concreted around and definitely expressed in each town and senatorial district, to nominate and elect to the next general assembly men an women of unto the public interest, nd not only with courage to overthrow the spoils system, and its selfish leaders, but men and women of positive conviction and constructive action, to prepare and adopt needed public economies; to save the millions of dollars now wasted in the "riotous living" of the spoilsmen and their pet schemes; to restore business efficiency, to state institutions; to check the reign of the bootlegger and the boodler, to protect and safeguard the quality and character of the rising generation; to realize the practical necessity and value of sound principles and practice in government; the practical value and civic efficiency of sane ideals; to promote the better living and better citizenship which are the invaluable rights of Aremican citizens in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Come on now—who cares?

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

A rare treat is in store for the patrons of the Palace tonight at the cabaret. Miss Frankie Rice the famous mimic who gives her impressions of Sophie Tucker, Eddie Foy, Ed. Wynn and a number of other stage celebrities has agreed to offer her impression of any actor that the audience names.

Miss Rice is supported in her act by Fred Wheeler, the Victor record artist who sings On the Road to Mandalay. You can hear him at the Palace and then get all the encores you want by just tuning in on your victrola when you get home.

In the classics of 1925 a company of six with a real Hawaiian troup is Miss Frances Quinn who recently won the Charleston contest in New York. This little bit of red Peppee as she is called started out to be a lady doctor and just recently graduated from Hunter college but she has found that the public would rather have a physican who can cure the blues and we'll say that she is fully capable of doing nothing else but. Donald Tompkins the one legged dancer was nothing short of a sensation last night and his dancing on one leg and the crutch called him back for many encores.

Brown and Holt are one of those rare teams who just can't help getting you laughing and keep you going that way

Hazel Cotter the girl with the perfect figure does some real fancy work on the Trapeze and the Web. Johnny Hines in his latest picture The Cracker Jack is just as fly and funnier than ever. It's a tale of pickles and revolutions Johnny starts out as a flap jack turner and ends up by turning over a whole Mexican army.

Breed Theater

It took a poet—Tennyson—to call attention to a fatal military blunder. In his poem, The Charge of the Light Brigade, he relates the story of the gallant Six Hundred who galloped to their doom, knowing that they were riding unnecessarily, into certain death.

And now a motion picture has brought to light another instance of a grave tactical error in military strategy, involving the famous "Last Stand" of General George Custer, when he and his entire command were annihilated by Sitting Bull's Sioux Indians.

This thrilling incident has been reproduced in The Scarlet West, a First National picture which is coming Friday and Saturday to the Breed theater.

For six months the producer, Frank J. Carroll, pored over the histories of that period in order to insure accuracy. He left nothing undone to guard against any error in staging the battle.

According to Mr. Carroll, Custer's command was wiped out because the general made the mistake of dividing his forces.

The picture shows the regiment, with Custer at its head, riding out of Fort Remington to engage the Indians, who had taken the warpath. Misled by treacherous Indian scouts as to the number of enemies he would encounter, Custer determined to surround them. He therefore divided his force in half, sending Major Reno to execute a flanking movement and to attack the Indians in the rear.

Anticipating such a move, the Indians attacked, surrounded Custer and encircling him until he and all of his men had been slain. The massacre was complete and the Sioux had disappeared when Major Reno and his men arrived in accordance with his orders.

This is the first time that the true story of Custer's Last Stand has been shown on the screen, according to Mr. Carroll.

Coming to the Breed

The new gigantic screen version of Quo Vadis, which First National is to present at the Breed theater Sunday marks the first venture into motion pictures of Prince Gabriellino D'Annunzio, son of the illustrious Italian poet and statesman.

Prince D'Annunzio directed this production of Henry Sienkiewicz's great novel. Emil Jannings, the distinguished continental actor, has the leading role as Nero, and the supporting roles are filled with other noted names. The production took fully two years to make. Twenty thousand people appear in the cast.

The City of Rome turned over to the producers the famous Villa Borghese in the heart of Rome. And it was here that the Palace of Nero and the Roman Circus were constructed for some of the most dramatic and spectacular scenes in the production.

The greatest artists, sculptors and architects of Rome designed and executed the settings.

During the production the King of Italy and Premier Mussolini were frequent visitors on the "lot" to observe the progress being made on the most ambitious production ever attempte by an Italian company.

Count G. Cippico, a close personal friend of Prince D'Annunzio, and who is interested in the advancement of Italian film production, has come to New York to observe the reception this ambitious offering receives at the hands of Americans. Regarding Prince D'Annunzio's initial screen effort he says:

"He is full of the fantasy and much of the idealism and poetry of his father, and this is reflected by the artistry and delicate treatment he has given Quo Vadis.

Broadway Theater

A much sounder story and a greater variety of human interest has gone into the making of Wandering Fires, the new Arrow picture, than is usual with the co-called society dramas.

The story is written by Warner Fabian, author of Flaming Youth—and who does not remember the sensation that picture caused?—and produced and directed by Major Maurice Campbell, a celebrity in the realms of spoken dramas as well as in the cinema world.

George Hackthorne, portraying the role of a young chap suffering from amnesia, excels in his part. There is a novel touch in the opening scene which takes place in a fashionable Cunotry Club where Norman Tuell Anthony (Constance Bennett) and, though bored with society, succumbs to her charms.

The cast is an efficient one including besides the above-mentioned stars, Henriette Crosman and Effie Shannon.

At the Broadway theater where Wandering Fires will be shown as one of the two features scheduled for Sunday, it is impossible to imagine any type of patron who will not respond to this struggle of love and right-doing. It is better than a tonic—in fact, as good as a holiday.

This reviewer advises the readers not to miss the great Keith vaudeville and picture program at the Broadway tonight. As extra attractions a clown night and prize night will be given with this great program.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks strong; high priced industrials lead advance.

Bonds irregular; Murray body 6 1-2 break sharply.

Foreign exchanges mixed; sterling higher as London bank rate advances.

Cotton lower; increased private crop estimates.

Sugar higher; Cuban buying.

Coffee easier; lower Brazilian market.

Chicago

Wheat strong; bullish cables.

Corn firm; less favorable weather.

Cattle higher.

Hogs: Firm.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE

NEW WYORK, Dec. 1—(By the A. P.)—Undisturbed by the danger that the advance in the London bank rate to five per cent., would lead to an increase in the local reserve rate, the stock market pressed forward to higher ground today on an expanded volume of trading. Total sales reached the two million share level for the first time in more than a week.

Early unsettlement, occasioned by the Bank of England's action, was gradually dispelled by assurances from bankers and treasury officials that no immediate change was necessary at New York and their views were borne out after the close of the market when the local 3 1-2 per cent., rate was retained. Initial selling orders were readily absorbed, opening the way for a resumption of constructive operations. Prices moved up under the leadership of standard industrial shares, with the advance gathering momentum as trading progressed.

Financial circles found encouragement in Secretary Mellon's assertion that speculation in the stock market had not reached dangerous proportions and that the rise in prices represented an orderly advance rather than inflation. The action of the market supported his opinion that even a change in the bank rate would have a negligible effect on speculation.

Another sharp rise in wheat prices also acted as a bullish influence on stock trading.

These factors contributed to a restoration of confidence which quickly overcame the early selling attack and provided an incentive for reaccumulation of stocks. Recognized industrial leaders assumed the leadership of the advance, with gains of 2 to 8 points registered by U. S. Steel, Du Pont, American Can, General Electric and American Sugar.

Motor shares, which yesterday gave evidence of good recuperative power, attracted further support today. General Motors, Hudson, Chrysler, Studebaker and Willys-Overland scored substantial gains, but profit-taking caused a recession of more than a point in Chandler. U. S. Rubber, Stewart Warner and other accessory issues were in good demand, but Murray Body broke more than 4 points to a new low at 5 3-4 on the announcement that a temporary receiver had been appointed for the company.

Aggressive bullish demonstrations were resumed in several specialties. Commercial credit soared more than 3 points to a new high record for the year while Remington Typewriter, American Ice, Coca Cola, Owens Bottle preferred, Ludlum Steel and Foundation company sold three to 6 points higher.

Rail shares were neglected despite the announcement that freight traffic for the week ended Nov. 21, had exceeded one million cars for the eighteenth time this year. Chicago and Northwestern, Southern Railway and Western Pacific preferred registered moderate improvement.

Trading in foreign exchanges was quiet. Demand sterling responded to the increase in the London bank rate with a fractional advance to $4.86 3-8 and French francs were strengthened by the prospect for an early renewal of debt funding negotiations.

Call money held firm at 5 per cent. all day. Time money rates were unchanged at 4 7-8 to 5 per cent., and commercial paper remained in good demand.

TAFTVILLE

The crowd at the second night of the Taftville Congregational church fair Wednesday evening at Ponemah hall exceeded that of Tuesday evening, in fact, it was one of the largest crowds ever assembled in the hall. The entertainment for the evening was an old fashioned minstrel show, which not only always pleases the Taftville people, but draws a number of spectators from other places. The minstrel was one of the best ever produced here, the good music, snappy jokes, funny endmen and beautiful girls who sang in the chorus, combining to place the show far ahead of the average. When the curtain rose to the snappy strains of Don't Bring Lulu and Susie, the audience saw the entire company assembled on the stage, the interlocutor being Archie Torrance, Jr., and the end men, Thomas Parsons, Victor H. Davis, George W. Weller, Jr., and Oscar E. Mathewson, Jr. Local jokes which showed no sympathy for many people in the audience, kept the rest of the crowd in an uproar, and some of the funny stunts pulled off by the endmen brought round after round of applause. The soloists were all in fine voice, and each number was heartily applauded. The program follows: June Brought the Roses, Samuel L. Armitage; The Farmer, George W. Weller and Hollywood Four; In the Garden of Tomorrow, Miss Mildred C. Kloss; Pal of My Cradle Days, Thomas Grimshaw; Selections Hollywood Four; Ukelele Lady, Miss Ethel Holland; Yes Sir That's My Baby, Thomas Parsons; Save Your Sorrow for Tomorrow, William Mitchell; Show Me the Way to Go Home, Victor H. Davis; Closing Chorus, Bam, Bam, Bammy Shore, Cecelia, Show Me the Way to Go Home. The Hollywood Four is composed of Lon Gagnon, George W. Weller, Jr., Fred Erlbeck and Archie Torrance, Jr. The pianist was Miss Dorothy Campbell. The bevy of attractive girls who sang in the chorus were Miss Gladys Thoma, Miss Ethel Holland, Miss Elizabeth Newton, Miss Louie Unsworth, Miss Melba Monty, Miss Bertha Monty, Miss Edna Krodel, Miss Mary Martin, Miss Celena Adams, Miss Iola Shaw, Miss Flossie H. Meyer, Miss Elsie Heap, Miss Mildred Kloss and Miss Isabel Barritt. The chorus men were Lon Gagnon, Thomas Grimshaw, Samuel L. Armitage, Fred Erlbeck, William Mitchell, Robert Schmidt, Robert Cooper and Harold E. Linderson.

As on the preceding night, there was good patronage of the booths. Some of them reported being sold out early in the evening, and the cash receipts of all were large. The committee in charge of the fair believe it will be one of the most successful events ever given by the church and that when the final balance is reported it will show a substantial amount to be turned into the church treasury.

On Tuesday evening those at the chocolate bar table were Miss Elizabeth Houston, Miss Mary Greenhalgh and Miss Mildred Terrington. At the home made candy table were Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis, Miss Ruth Anderson, Miss Eleanor Heinrich and Miss Virginia Disque. At the ice cream booth were Miss Freida Saroski, Miss Melba Monty, Miss Mary Martin, Miss Celena Adams and Miss Edna Krodel. Mrs. John Volkman was one of those at the apron table. The door was in charge of Walter L. Barritt and Martin Wohlleben.

LOOKING AT SANTA BROUGHT ON COLLISION

Making a sudden stop in Main street to look at the Santa Claus in the Porteous & Mitchell window about 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, the driver of one of Ford's lumber motor outfits with a trailer precipitated a collision with the machine driven by Benjamin F. Krieger of 28 Elizabeth street which was coming along behind him.

Before Mr. Krieger could avoid it, his Essex coach had hit the outfit ahead and the shock of the blow knocked Tony Cortu into the street from the lumber vehicle. Mr. Krieger took the man into the office of Dr. Louis T. Cassidy at once, but as the doctor was out, Cortu said he wanted to go home as he was not hurt. Mr. Krieger took Cortu to his home on Maple street.

MEMORY COMES BACK TO MAN FOUND WANDERING IN THIS CITY

Regaining his memory about 5 o'clock Thursday morning, the man who has been a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital since he was picked up by the police, told the nurse in charge that he is Albert Gifford, 34, of Peabody, Mass. Police headquarters was notified by the hospital that the man had recovered his memory and Selectman William S. Murray was also notified. Mr. Murray went to the hospital and interviewed the man.

He told Mr. Murray that he is about 34 years of age, is married and has two children. He said his home is on Lowell street, Peabody. Mr. Gifford stated that he left Peabody last Saturday to look for work. He had plenty of money with him at the time, and was looking for a position as a steamfitter. From Peabody, Mr. Gifford went to Boston and from there to Providence. In Providence he stopped at a rooming house but is unable to recall what happened to him after that. When he arrived in this city, during his wanderings, he had neither money nor his watch. As he complained of pains in his head, the theory has been advanced that he was drugged and robbed.

In his statement Mr. Gifford said he has a brother, Harry P. Gifford, treasurer of the Five Cent Savings bank in Salem, a brother Wallace L. Gifford, manager of the Submarine Signal company, of Boston, and a brother, Charles Henry Gifford, an auditor for Swift and company, near Peabody. There is also another brother, Thomas Gifford, of Pacific street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Gifford said he couldn't remember how he came to have a letter in his pocket addressed to Mrs. Gertrude Smith, of Peabody, Mass., although he had a recollection that he had had a letter to be mailed.

Mr. Gifford expects to leave the hospital Friday and to continue his search for employment. He stated that he planned to get work in New London.

JUDGE A. L. BROWN DENIED GURLEYVILLE WIFE DIVORCE

In the Tolland County superior court at Rockville, claiming that she feared her life would be taken by her husband, who slept with a shot gun under his bed, Mrs. Bertha Clark, 26, of New York city, asked for a divorce Wednesday. Judge Allyn L. Brown, of Norwich, who heard the case, which was asked on the grounds of intolerable cruelty, denied the divorce. Mrs. Clark, of Bohemian descent, married in New York, March 24, 1913, Leonard Clark of Gurleyville. She testified that he said: "Some day I am going to put you to sleep for good" and she held his hands at night in fear that he would carry out his threat. She also declared that he threatened to put her in an asylum. Mrs. Clark testified that her husband lay in bed at night "as if he was dead" in order to scare her. Clark later explained this statement by saying he went to bed several times earlier than his wife and fell asleep.

When she was examined by Clark's attorney, it was brought out that she waited until Clark left for Willimantic to work one morning, stripped the home of furniture which was taken by truck to her mother's home in New York city.

Judge Brown questioned the woman as to her husband's alleged acts of cruelty and before she left the stand said: "Your testimony won't entitle you to a divorce on these grounds." Mrs. Albina Blaha, her mother, and Mrs. Mary Holsan, her sister, both of New York, corroborated her testimony.

Leonard Clark testified that his wife was lonesome for New York and her mother, but that he would like to have her back with him at Gurleyville.

Frederick Lee, 25, of Vernon, and Francis Armstrong, 20, of Manchester, were sentenced to the Tolland county jail by Judge Brown on the ground of breaking and entering in the night season the home of Fannie W. Andrews in North Coventry March 5 last. A confession made by Armstrong told of five other burglaries in Bolton this past year. In sentencing the two young men to jail for ten months, Judge Brown commended them for making a clean confession.

COMPENSATION AWARD IS MADE FOR WIDOW

A workman's compensation award for Mrs. Mary S. Dias, of 22 Lewis street, New London, widow of Manuel Dias, an employe of the Thames Lumber Co., has been made by Commissioner J. J. Donohue, after a hearing in the case in which the widow asked for a lump sum payment. Her husband was instantly killed Oct. 20 when a boom broke and struck him on the head. He left his widow and four minor children.

The commissioner did not find it advisable to grant her request for a lump sum payment in whole but a sufficient number of weeks compensation is allowed to enable her to meet certain property expenses at this time and to enable her to make final payment on her home.

It is found that she is entitled to $100 towards funeral expenses and $11.68 per week for 312 weeks. It is directed that the $100 be paid forthwith to the proper party and that the sum of $2,002.08 be paid forthwith through her attorney, which is for 200 weeks commuted at 4 per cent. She is also to be paid $70.80 for six weeks from Oct. 20, to the date of the hearing and $11.68 per week until Dec. 14, 1927. The award is subject to the usual revision in case of the remarriage of the widow.

claims will eliminate the use of anything sharp to dig the dirt from under the finger nail. It separates the skin of the finger from the nail as the row of bristles passes through. It stays firmly in hand and cannot slip. The bristles can be replaced any time at a small cost, as the bristle is a separate part which connects to the ivory part by snaps. This is the third patent granted to Mr. Pasnik. A fourth on a sugar bowl is now pending at Washington.

BOSTON DRIVER IN GROTON TOWN COURT

Gerald A. Katuin of Boston was released in bonds of $100 in the Groton court Thursday morning for his appearance in court Dec. 14, to answer a charge of evading responsibility, brought against him by Stanley Goldsmith of New London as the result of an automobile collision Wednesday afternoon at about 2.30 o'clock in Thames street, Groton.

According to the state police report of the accident, Katuin was driving towards Mystic when he reached a point in Thames street, near Bakeavenue, where the trolley tracks swing to the right side of the road. A trolley car approached from the opposite direction and Katuin swung out to avoid hitting the trolley car. In so doing his machine collided with another car, owned by Goldsmith, which was traveling in the opposite direction. Goldsmith's car was damaged considerably by the collision, but Katuin failed to stop, it is alleged. Goldsmith put chase and overtook Katuin's machine. He reported the matter to state police barracks and made complaint against Katuin.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY FOR NEAR EAST RELIEF

Next Sunday, Dec. 6, is the day all over America when friends of the Near East Relief make a sacrifice for the 35,000 children who look to America for continued help.

Some Americans will have a very light dinner on Sunday, instead of a heavy one. And the cash difference between the cost of the two dinners, they will send to the Near East Relief.

Some other Americans will eat as usual, and send a contribution for the children whose meals are always meager.

Some Americans will send $100 to sponsor one of these children for a year. Some others will send larger or smaller amounts as their ability permits.

In other words, there are many ways, and many amounts by which Americans will give the Near East children a chance to grow up into usable manhood and womanhood.

The local committee asks the citizens of Norwich to adopt whatever method seems best, so long as gifts are made for this great purpose.

In Saturday's newspapers the names of those who will act as agents to receive money will be printed.

Guy B. Dolbeare is the local treasurer, and may be addressed at the Norwich Savings society.

DENIES SEPARATE TRIAL FOR TRACY AT BOSTON

William R. Scharton, counsel for George Tracy, who with John J. Keating and Carlo Ghella is charged with robbery in connection with an alleged holdup in Brighton, Mass., recently, in which shots were exchanged, argued Wednesday before Judge Bishop in the Suffolk superior criminal court, at Boston, a motion for separate trial on each count of each indictment in which Tracy is named, on the ground that each sets forth separate course of action and is against different people. District Attorney O'Brien appeared in opposition and asked for speedy trial. Judge Bishop denied Mr. Scharton's motion.

TELL VEGETABLE GROWERS HOW TO FIGHT INSECTS

Methods of combatting insects which lessen crop production and overcoming diseases which greatly injure vegetables were discussed Wednesday at the open meeting of the annual convention of the Connecticut Vegetable Growers' association at Hotel Garde, Hartford. Reports were presented by Dr. William E. Britton of New Haven, state entomologist, and Dr. George P. Clinton of New Haven, state botanist, which gave many methods of overcoming the ravages of worms and beetles which infect growing crops.

Herbert P. Beers of Southport, the president, conducted the meeting which opened with a report by A. E. Wilkinson of the Connecticut Agricultural college who gave a summary of a survey he recently made of the use of trucks by Connecticut market gardeners. He found there were twenty-two types of trucks of which 40 per cent were one-ton trucks.

Scarce 100 years have passed since market gardening had its real beginning in America, and it reached its highest development about the beginning of the present century, said W. R. Beattie of the bureau of plant industry of the United States department of agriculture in his talk on "Present Trends in Vegetable Production." A decided change in vegetable production has taken place during the past twenty-five or thirty years, due mainly to the development of improved transportation, and we may expect other important influences upon local production in the near future, he said.

"Already Mexico is an important factor in our winter tomato market and no one can forecast the possibilities of vegetable shipments from the Argentine and other countries south of the equator," continued Mr. Beattie.

"The vegetable growers of New England is beset by problems from within his own territory and constantly increasing competition without.

"In the past twenty-five years local vegetable growing has passed largely from the market garden stage to that of specialized farming or truck growing as it is called in the south. As vegetable growers of the market garden class we are compelled to accept the facts as they are forced upon us and adapt ourselves to the changed conditions."

SCOUT LEADERS' COURSE HELD SIXTH SESSION

The sixth session of the Scout leaders' course was held Wednesday night at Scout headquarters with a good attendance. The meeting began with the Scout song "Old MacDonald Had a Farm," and others.

Scout Executive Benton gave an extensive discussion of the subject, "Planning and Conducting Meetings." Definite programs and well planned activities for each meeting lighten the Scout master's tasks and give the patrol leaders responsibility and training. A meeting well planned is half done. Model Scout meeting programs were distributed to the Scout masters. Games were discussed and illustrated and copies of rules of a number of interesting ones furnished the leaders.

Cyrus Woodman discussed in an interesting manner first class first aid and was aided by Jean Kieffer who gave some valuable hints from his knowledge of antiseptics and hospital practice. An interesting example of resuscitation by the Shaefer method was cited by him in which he showed how a man had been restored after 18 hours' work, two men working over the patient for that length of time. While young scouts may not be able to accomplish all that is taught in the Scout manual they should practice them and in an emergency might eventually save a life. The leaders entered into the evening's work enthusiastically and much instruction and information was elicited in discussion.

The session closed with taps. The next meeting will be held Wednesday evening, Dec. 9th. An out door session will be held at Beach Pond over the week end for which several automobiles have been offered to transport the men.

PROMOTION FOR HIS BRAVERY AT SEA

As a reward for his "courage and bravery" in refusing to leave his ship, the patrol boat 147, in the terrific gale which swept this coast, Oct. 25 and 26, James H. Snydow, Coast Guard boatswain, temporary, has been promoted to permanent grade, sanction of the same having been received at the State Pier at New London, Thursday from Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lincoln C. Andrews.

With his patrol boat leaking badly and far out at sea, Boatswain Snydow refused to be taken, with his crew, aboard the liner Cameronia, and stuck to his ship throughout the gale, finally bringing it safely into port. For his action he received the commendation of his superiors, and his appointment to permanent rank was recommended by Lieutenant Commander F. H. Young, commanding Base 4.

LIQUOR QUESTION IS TO BE THRASHED OUT IN CONGRESS

Both Wets and Drys Are Forming Their Lines For Attack and Defense—Representative Eyer of Missouri is to Introduce a Bill in the House For the Outright Repeal of the Volstead Act—Various Organizations Are Repudiating the Complaint Sent to President Coolidge by the United Committee For Prohibition Enforcement.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—(A. P.)—The conflict that has enveloped prohibition enforcement ever since its incention, and has gained new momentum in the last few days, tonight was headed toward its original battle ground—the floors of congress.

With the opening of congress only a few days away, both wets and drys are forming their lines for attack and defense. Recent developments indicate that, while some breaches exist in the ranks of the prohibitionists, the wets are counting on strong support.

Among various proposals to be presented to congress, outright repeal of the Volstead act will be sought by Representative Eyer, of Missouri, ranking republican of the house judiciary committee and one of the wet leaders, who heretofore had contended merely for modification of the law.

The prohibition problem, which was taken to the white house yesterday, was carried across seas today with a direct appeal to Pope Pius XI, for moral support of "civil authority" in this country. It was made by the United Committee for Prohibition Enforcement, including a number of catholic and protestant reform organizations, which delivered the complaint yesterday to President Coolidge.

The criticisms of the administration contained in that communication brought reverberations within the committee today. The Methodist Board of Temperance, prohibition and public morals advised the president that it was in no way responsible for the committee's statement and that it still was confident that enforcement eventually would reach perfection. Mr. Coolidge was advised also by Mrs. Ella A. Boole, newly elected president of the Women's Christian Temperance union, that her organization stood with the president in his enforcement stand.

The breaches in the ranks of the United committee were open ever more definitely with the resignations of several members who disapproved of the committee's complaint to Mr. Coolidge, including the Rev. Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the Methodist board, Oliver W. Stewart, of Indianapolis, president of the Flying Squadron foundation, and Edwin C. Dinwiddie, of the International Order of Good Templars.

Clinton N. Howard, of Rochester, New York, chairman of the committee, who sponsored the letter, called at the white house today in an unsuccessful attempt to obtain an appointment with the president to discuss the entire situation. He was told that the president's calendar for the near future was filled, and that the executive would be absent from the city for a few days, delivering an address in Chicago next Monday.

The prohibition question, as viewed by the Women's Christian Temperance union and the Anti-Saloon league, also was canvassed at a meeting tonight of representatives of those organizations, with several members of congress in attendance. The league at its recent Chicago convention placed much of the blame for lax enforcement upon local officials.

RUM RING PAID AS HIGH AS $8,400 TO GUARDSMEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—(A. P.)—United States District Attorney Bruckner today declared fresh proof of collusion between coast guard members and he alleged New York rum syndicate which dominated the Atlantic coast had been revealed in confessions and private papers taken from some of the eighteen men arrested yesterday as participants in the liquor ring.

Notations of payments as high as $8,400 at a time to guardsmen by the syndicate; records of enormous profits on single cargoes and an elaborate system of signals between coast guard boats and liquor ships were among the discoveries said to have been made today.

William M. Dwyer, millionaire turfman, was arrested yesterday as the alleged head of the syndicate. Six members of the coast guard, said to have been in his pay, and eleven men accused of membership in the syndicate in various capacities also were taken. Federal prohibition officers today were searching for 25 more for whom warrants have been issued.

Private papers found in the first round-up indicate, among other inner secrets, that corruption of guardsmen was not confined to those aboard small craft, but extended to crews of the larger 75-foot boats and included officers as well as men.

On the other hand, District Attorney Buckner said he had evidence in at least one instance of the refusal of an offer as high as $20,000 to the commanding officer of a vessel to allow a single cargo to pass.

Most of the signals and secret data were found in documents taken from Philip Coffey, arrested yesterday as "pay-off man" for the syndicate, one entry said to be in his handwriting read: "Coast guard $8,400, paid to Nicholas Brown."

Nicholas Brown, boatswain and commanding officer of the cutter No. 188, was arrested yesterday with all his crew.

Among the signals found in Coffey's papers were:

"Steady light on schooner means not to go to schooner, for schooner is loading."

Mr. Buckner interpreted that as instruction to the commander of a coast guard boat to keep away from a rum row vessel showing a steady light, because small boats were alongside taking on cargoes.

"When a seventy-five foot coast guard boat plays a steady light, small coast guard boats are to get under way."

And another. "Flash three times, all O. K., to load."

In the code, south was designated "sick"; east "easy"; north, "nicely;" west "well;" Montauk was "boy" Block "girl;" No Man's land—Rum-row—"twins."

Dwyer's "pay station" for bribed guardsmen in New York was said to have been the Sea Grill restaurant, which he owned. The restaurant recently was padlocked, and today Federal Judge Julius W. Mack appointed a receiver for it.

REPROVED FOR SENDING APPEAL TO THE POPE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—(A. P.)—The letter of Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the United Committee for Prohibition Enforcement, appealing to Pope Pius XI for moral support of "civil authority" in the United States, brought a sharp rejoinder tonight from the Rev. John A. Burke, general secretary of the National Catholic Welfare conference.

ANXIETY FELT FOR SEVERAL BOSTON OWNED SCHOONERS

BOSTON, Dec. 4—(A. P.)—The close of the second day of the gale which has swept New England found anxiety increasing for several big Boston-owned schooners known to be in the track for the storm as it swept up the coast from Florida. News of the arrival in Brunswick, Ga., of the Tifton from Boston tended to reassure owners of other ships, however.

The Tifton's captain wired here that the craft had encountered very severe weather and high seas.

In Boston harbor the tie-up occasioned by the weather was more complete than it had been in months. Ten outbound steamers rode at anchor in the lower roadstead waiting for the gale to subside, but four others, the Kersham for Norfolk, the Grecian for Philadelphia, the H. F. Dimock for New York, and the Suffolk for Newport News, put to sea.

Coastwise schedules will arrive 24 hours late tomorrow morning. The Dorchester is still held in Philadelphia by fog while a fleet of coal laden steamers from Norfolk is believed anchored south of Cape Cod. It was due yesterday.

TO EDUCATE PUBLIC IN THE USES OF SOFT COAL

HARTFORD, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Manufacturing plants, insurance companies, department stores and public utilities throughout the state were enlisted today by co-operate with Governor Trumbull's joint coal committee in the campaign for educating the public in the use of low volatile coal, in order that these organizations may care for the comfort of their own employes, who may be forced to use soft coal during some part of the winter, it is suggested that each appoint an executive officer, who will designate and assume charge of certain deputies whose function will be to instruct the employes in the methods for burning bituminous coal.

Governor Trumbull approved the institution of this plan at a recent meeting of the joint coal committee and the Connecticut chamber of commerce, working in conjunction with the committee, has advised all organizations in the state employing a large number of people of the existing educational campaign and asked their co-operation.

On the request of Assistant District Attorney O'Gorman the arraignment was postponed until next Tuesday. Young Pirie started fixedly at the magistrate without a show of emotion.

The Bronx County grand jury will meet Monday and consider the case. If it indicts Pirie for first degree murder, his case automatically would be sent to a higher court for trial. A large crowd packed the courtroom to see the 20-year old boy who is said to have confessed to the brutal murder of his friend.

TELEPHONE BETWEEN EGYPT AND PALESTINE

JERUSALEM, Dec. 4—(A. The telephone wires stretch across the Sinai Desert, which the Israelites traversed in their wanderings in the wilderness. Tourists in Cairo are able to phone for hotel reservations in Jerusalem.

STATE'S REBUTTAL IN THE MACRI CASE UNCOMPLETED

LITCHFIELD, Dec. 4—(A. P.)—The state's rebuttal in the case of Olympia Macri, whose second trial on a charge of murder is in progress here, was uncompleted when Judge George E. Hinman adjourned superior court over the week-end this afternoon. The state had introduced five witnesses today, one of them, Dr. John L. Buel, of Litchfield, a new one, and the defense had put on two out of order, by agreement of counsel.

The state witnesses heard today besides Dr. Buel, were Carrie Bagnano, widow of John Bagnano, the man Olympia shot in the lobby of the Pulace theater at New Haven on February 26, Mollie Lombardi, Mrs. Marion Bagnano, sister-in-law of the slain man, and Mrs. Mary Lombardi. The defense witnesses were Sergeant Thomas Reynolds and Captain of Detectives Henry J. Donnelly (retired), both of the New Haven police department.

Dr. Buel, who had sat between State's Attorney Aaron A. Alling and Attorney Frank B. Munn, his special assistant, all this week, took the stand this morning and responded to a large number of questions about amnesia, forgetfulness and kindred disorders, and about the effect of various drugs and the possibility of their having been administered in figs without the subject's detecting their presence.

The two Mrs. Bagnanos, Miss Lombardi and Mrs. Lombardi testified chiefly a sto conversations alleged to have occurred between them and Olympia. They denied virtually all her testimony that was brought to their attention.

A delay of more than a half hour in the opening of court this afternoon was caused by a consultation between Judge Hinman and counsel for both sides in chambers.

In open court in the absence of the jury, Attorney Joseph Koletsky, counsel for the accused woman, indicated that he would like to introduce Tony Bagnano but for his unavailability as a defense witness on account of his relationship with the slain man.

At the time of the short recess this afternoon, the case was further delayed by the interpositon of a short calendar session of the civil side of the superior court.

There was only one vacant chair in the spectators' section of the court room at 2 o'clock this afternoon, the time set for the opening of the session, and by the time it actually got under way more than half an hour later, that, also, was taken. Besides those in the room many who could not find room inside waited in the corridor outside, and questioned those coming out about the progress of the case.

ERROR MAY INVALIDATE ELECTION IN CHICOPEE

CHICOPEE, Mass., Dec. 4—(A. P.)—Discovery today that the municipal election was held on the first Tuesday of December instead of on the Tuesday following the first Monday, is likely to invalidate the election, according to City Solicitor J. E. Hafey.

The error is due to a typographical mistake in the printing of the city charter in 1919 which is so worded as to state that the election shall take place on the first Tuesday in the month. The late discovery of the error is due to the fact that this is the first time since that year that the month has come in on Tuesday.

Plan World's Longest High Voltage System

To Carry Power From St. Lawrence River and Adirondacks to Connecticut, New York and New Jersey.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(A. P.)—A plan for the longest high voltage system in the world to carry hydroelectric power from the St. Lawrence river and the Adirondacks to New England, northern New Jersey and New York was presented today at the annual meeting of the Empire State Gas and Electric association.

The system, which would cost about $100,000,000, exclusive of generating plants and lines into New York city, would deliver a million kilowatts to the metropolitan district and a half million to New England. On this basis is the annual output of energy at the points of delivery would be about 5,800,000,000 kilowatt-hours; more than four-fifths the annual consumption of New York state.

The transmission lines committee of the association, which prepared the study, estimated this power will be needed between the years 1933 and 1935.

One unit of the proposed system would run from eastern Canada through western Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut to a point near Waterbury. A second would extend from the St. Lawrence southeast through Malone, N. Y., to a point near Lake Henry on Lake Champlain and through Schenectady down the Hudson to New York. This would be connected with the New England unit. A third line would begin on the St. Lawrence near Massena and extend through Utica to northern New Jersey and the metropolitan district.

BRIEFS HAVE BEEN FILED IN THE CHAPMAN CASE

HARTFORD, Dec. 4—(A. P.)—Briefs for and against Gerald Chapman's petition for a writ of habeas corpus, heard last Wednesday at the state prison in Wethersfield by Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas, will be in the hands of the judge at his home in South Norwalk tomorrow, following the mailing of them by the bandit's counsel and State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn this afternoon, as directed by the judge.

Chapman's lawyers cited authorities in support of his contention that he cannot be executed for the murder of a New Britain policeman until he has served out his 25-year sentence and that the commutation of his federal sentence, in effect a "pardon," is void for his failure to accept it.

Chapman's brief was prepared by Judge Frederick J. Groehl, of New York, Ray M. Wiley, of Springfield, Mass., Charles W. Murphy, of Danbury, and Joseph M. Freedman and Frank A. Murphy, of Hartford, at Mr. Freedman's office Thursday.

Mr. Alcorn enumerated authorities to show that the state has jurisdiction of Chapman to enforce the death sentence against him and that Chapman's claim that he is a federal prisoner is ineffective in view of the commutatino by the president of his federal sentence of 25 years for the mail robbery. It is his further claim, supported by authorities, that there is no conflict between the federal and state governments in regard to Chapman.

The filing of the briefs today concludes the hearing of last Wednesday. After a study of them Judge Thomas will hand down his decision, probably the middle of next week, as he indicated at the hearing.

TAXATION THREATENS THE LIFE INSURANCE BUSINESS

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—(A. P.)—The life insurance business of the United States, which has grown until there are now $82,000,000,000 worth of policies in force, is seriously threatened by special taxation, speakers said today at the annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance presidents.

William H. Davis, vice president and general counsel of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company, of Los Angeles, speaking on "the menace of taxation to life insurance," said:

"This menace lies not in life insurance being taxed like other business interests, but in the special taxes by which it is singled out as an easy source of revenue, with the mistaken notion that the companies, not the policy holders, pay such taxes, in supposed extenuation."

To Ask For Another U. S. Judge in Conn.

Congressman Tilson Has a Bill Ready to Present in the House When It Convenes Next Monday.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—One of the first bills to be introduced in the house when it convenes next Monday will be a bill filed by Congressman Tilson asking for an additional federal district judge for the state of Connecticut.

The presure of judicial work is now great and it is conceded that Judge Edwin S. Thomas, now the justice for the district of Connecticut needs aid in carrying out the duties of that office.

Col. Tilson has the bill prepared and will present it at the first opportunity after the house organizes.

Congressman Tilson has received many letters from prominent members of the Connecticut bar asking if he would personally accept the judgeship if it were offered him, and urging him to do so, but in every instance Col. Tilson has replied that although he fully appreciated the high honor of such an office his sense of the fitness of things would compel him to forbid the use of his name in such connection as he would not feel free to accept a judgeship created under present circumstances.

If the additional judgeship is granted to Connecticut, it will be the duty as well as privilege of Congressman Tilson, as floor leader of the house, to do all in his power to have the office created. To have his name mentioned in connection with assuming the office himself, would be entirely obnoxious to Tilson, and he was emphatic in his statements regarding it.

Col. Tilson feels very hopeful that the office will be created and Connecticut thus receive an additional district judge.

INFLATION AND INCREASED TAXATION UNITED IN FRANCE

Government's measure, Without Modification, Was Passed in the Senate by a Vote of 205 to 26—The Bill Provides For the Flotation of Currency to the Amount of 7,500,000,000 Francs—New Taxation Ranges From 20 to 100 Per Cent.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The senate late tonight adopted the government's measure calling for financial inflation and increased taxation, 205 votes to 26. As the senate made no modifications in the bill as adopted by the chamber of deputies yesterday, it now becomes law.

The fourth clause of the measure providing for flotation of the currency to the amount of 7,500,000,000 francs was passed by a vote of 196 to 59. The voting came after a featureless debate.

Soon after the senate assembled this afternoon to take up the bill, Senator Berenger, general secretary of the finance committee, advocated that it be voted as adopted by the chamber of deputies. Two leaders of the opposition, former Premier Francois-Marshal and M. Cheron, former minister of agriculture, then fell in line, and in speeches made it known that they were in agreement that the measure was necessary to save France.

At first, when it began discussion on the bill last night, the senate finance committee appeared disposed to suggest modifications and amendments, but these were withdrawn after Premier Briand had appeared personally before the committee with the ultimatum that the measure be passed as drawn up by Finance Minister Loucheur or "no government was possible."

The bill calls for new taxation of from 20 to 100 per cent.

M. Briand made a final appeal to the senators tonight, asking for a strong majority for the government projects, of which, he said, the country would feel the good effect. Declaring that although he was determined opponent of consolidation and inflation, he felt that inflation was essential at the present time since it was necessary to have immediate resources.

PLANS OF REPUBLICAN LEADERS OF THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—With decision as to the political status of the insurgents likely to be deferred until next week, republican leaders of the house and senate made final plans today for the opening Monday of the sixty ninth congress.

Responsible for the organization of both houses by reason of their majorities, the republicans have been called into separate conferences tomorrow to perfect the slates which will be voted on during the first few days of the session.

Democrats of the house also will meet tomorrow to select their candidates for offices of that chamber, and to arrange their committee assignments. Senate democrats will meet Monday just before the session gets under way.

With the exception of the election of a secretary and the assignment of a few newly elected republicans to the standing committees the organization of the senate is complete. The house, however, has to elect all of its officers and the program of the leaders is to complete this Monday and to adopt amended rules.

The main questions still before republican leaders of the senate are the political status to be given to Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, and the right of Senator-Designate Nye, of North Dakota, to a senate seat.

The republican committee on committees failed to muster a quorum today to discuss the status of Senator LaFollette, and for that reason it was predicted that this subject would not come before the party conference tomorrow.

Leaders of the senate "old guard" still were divided tonight on the question of whether Mr. LaFollette should be taken into the party councils. A majority apparently opposed reading him out of the party, as was done last year in the case of his father and Senators Brookhart, Iowa, and Frazier Ladd of North Dakota.

At the same time, some republican senators from western states suggested that if Mr. LaFollette should be given committee assignments as a republican, the conference should rescind its former action and invite back into the party councils Senators Frazier and Brookhart. This suggestion appeared to meet with little favor.

PERSHING IN CONFERENCE WITH PERUVIAN DELEGATE

ARICA, Chile, Dec. 4.—(A. P.)—General Pershing, president of the Tacna-Arican plebiscite commission, and Senor Freyre Y. Santander, chief Peruvian delegate, engaged in a lengthy conversation this morning, which is believed to have been of a most important nature. Both General Pershing and Senor Freyre refused to divulge the subjects considered.

There is no change in the situation which developed through the withdrawal from the work of the commission of Augustin Edwards, head of the Chilean delegation, with the explanation that the arrangements for the actual plebiscite had been unduly delayed.

In spite of the optimism displayed publicly by some of the plebiscitary authorities, the general feling here is that the situation is grave, there being no indication that either side is willing to modify its views to the extent necessary to enable th ecommission to carry on its work.

ROOSTERS WERE FOOLED BY DENSE FOG IN LONDON

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(A. P.) — Midnight lasted all day in London today. The fog which settled over London this morning; a regular "pea souper," was so thick that the pigeons which live on St. Paul's Cathedral kept on sleeping all day. Nobody in the suburbs was disturbed by crowing roosters, as they were as badly fooled by the darkness as they would have been by a total eclipse of the sun.

Traffic was entirely suspended on the River Thames. In the streets of the city, in which the electric lights were kept going all day, traffic simply crawled along, but in spite of this caution there were many collisions and scores of persons were injured.

The fog was so thick even inside the theatres tonight that the lighting effects were obscured.

The fog blanket was general over southern England. Many of the cross channels shipping schedules had to be cancelled.

WORKING FOR THE RESCUE OF 20 ENTOMBED MINERS

NEDERLAND, Colo., Dec. 4.—(By The A. P.)—More than one hundred men tonight fought feverishly to gain entrance to the Fairview Mining Company's silver, gold and lead mine near here, where early today twenty miners were entombed. A fire caused the mine portal to cave in, and destroyed the buildings about the tunnel mouth.

The rescue workers were engaged in a double task—that of sinking a 20-foot shaft into the top of the ine tunnel and that of clearing away more than eighty feet of debris that blocked the passageway when the fire burned the timber supports.

H. K. Lidstone, mine superintendent, expects a shaft to be sunk tonight, thereby enabling rescue workers, equipped with gas masks, to enter the workings.

The cave in of the mine portal followed a fire in the compressor room, from where fresh air is driven into the mine, which spread to the buildings about the mouth and attacked the timberling.

Mine officials have expressed fears as to the safety of the entombed men who may have been suffocated by the dense smoke that filled the mine. However, a ray of hope was seen because of the elength of the main tunnel that extends for more than 3,000 feet into the mountains.

Gathered about the blackened mine portal tonight were scores of volunteer rescue workers from Denver, Boulder, adjacent mining camps, and virtually every man, woman and child of Nederland.

Pulmotors an other life-saving devices were held in readiness for the time when the tunnel is reached from above and the workers can enter the smoked-filled chamber in an effort to reach the imprisoned miners.

Efforts also were being made to drive fresh air into the wrecked mine mouth by means of compressor engines and steel tubes. Whether these efforts were successful, those directing the rescue work were not able to determine.

TESTIMONY NOT IN ACCORD WITH THAT OF ADMIRAL SIMS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—The court martial trying Colonel William Mitchell disposed today of an unprecedented number of prosecution witnesses, heard one admiral dispute testimony given recently by another, and labored officially that the navy opposed a unified air service on the ground that its adoption would insure the national defense from the navy viewpoint. Then the court recessed until tomorrow, to meet on a Saturday for the first time since it was created.

Rear Admiral William V. Pratt, the president of the Newport, R. I., war college, outstanding among the nine witnesses who testified today took issue with statements of his predecessor at Newport, Rear Admiral William S. Sims, retired, who charged that the navy now was controlled by unfit, uneducated, and ignorant officers.

The witness asserted that it did not follow necessarily, because an officer had never attended the war college, that he came within the classification his predecessor set forth. The college he added, had had a "black eye" for a number of years, and that probably had something to do with the fact that high commands were exercised now by officers who had never attended that institution.

Asked if he thought the navy was "jeopardized by the fact that high commands are held by officers who had not graduated at Newport," the admiral caused a laugh by replying that "nothing ever takes the place of common sense." He also expressed the opinion that "the present aviation policy of the navy is perfectly sound."

According to the stories the men were enjoying a drinking party when a dispute arose. They were then in the store, on Chapman street, conducted by Thomas Lucas, and upon being ejected from that place for creating a disturbance they adjourned to the railroad bank nearby where they apparently planned to stage a duel. Czajka claimed that Gwozds had called him a "scab" and he resented the remark. When they arrived at the scene of the fight Gwozds was said to have drawn a knife, which was knocked out of his hand and a fine "shiner" added on for good measure. Apparently the battle stopped right there. The knife was introduced as evidence. Deputy Judge Russell A. Andrews was on the bench

CLOUD DIGGER HIT WEATHER TO THE DOT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 4—The Cloud Digger wins 100 per cent. on his prediction, made in September, that December 1 to 5 would be an unsettled period. It has been all of that and with almost constant rain. May his prediction for the next few days of the month be as accurate. He says that from the 5th to the 9th will be a mild period. From the 10th to 15th very cold and clear.

RADIO FANS BOTHERED BY LOTS OF "SQUEALING"

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 4—Radio fans are clamoring for some publicity about a matter that is annoying them. It is all about the owners of radio receiving sets who are so bungling in the operation of them that they fill the air with squealing noises that ruin evenings for every radio owner within blocks of them. It appears that the squealing can be overcome by careful tuning-in, at least largely overcome. And if that is done the irate fans say, everyone would be in a position for greater enjoyment from their sets.

Friends here received notice Friday of the death on Wednesday of Edith Hedges Jarman Hatch, wife of Clarence W. Hatch, of East Orange, N. J. The body is to be brought to New Haven for burial. Mr. and Mrs. Hatch were residents of Danielson for several years while Mr. Hatch was an official of the International Oil Engine company, which was located in one of the plants later taken over by the Connecticut Mills.

An agricultural institute arranged by the Windham County Farmers' association and Ekonk grange is to be held at Grange hall, Ekonk Hill, in the town of Sterling, on Thursday of next week, the program opening at 10.30 a. m. At the morning session the opening address on The Feeding of Ensilage for Best Results will be made by A. R. Merrill, dairy specialist, of Connecticut Agricultural college. The Kind of a Hen We Look For will be the subject of an address by County Agent F. L. Davis of Putnam. At noon members of Ekonk grange will serve dinner.

At the afternoon session, opening at one o'clock Miss M. E. Sprague of Storrs, will speak on the subject Useful Information in Connection With Work in the Home. Agricultural Work Going on in the County will be the subject of an afternoon talk by County Agent Davis. At the close opportunity will be offered to make requests individually and collectively, for service, since a large number of items of popular interest will be mentioned.

After the holiday season the Danielson Trust company will undertake the remodeling of its banking quarters in the Trust company building. This will involve a re-arrangement along the Main street front and the removal of the entrance to a store in the building. The space occupied by this store will be incorporated in the banks quarters, giving additional room for the business of the bank. The work to be done will occupy a number of weeks.

Some relief from the traffic jams were frequent in the business section when trolleys were running through Danielson has been gained since they suspended service. Of course, traffic is much lighter now than it was during the warm weather season, but the fact remains that when trolleys were running up the center of the street and with a row of cars parked on each side of the street some tie-ups occurred that were unavoidable.

By writing simple stories that may be made the basis of a motion picture intended to show the great benefits to be derived from having a Christmas club fund, Danielson people and those of surrounding towns will have an opportunity to win some valuable awards. The matter is being arranged by a local bank.

Lee J. L'Homme post, American legion, has a plan to raise a fund to be devoted to meeting the expense of installing a sidewalk flag decoration, such as was used in Putnam on Armistice day, that Danielson may have the use of such a beautiful and impressive display on occasions that warrant.

Stressing more than ever consideration of local merchants who serve the public every day, one hears the "Shop at Home" slogan this holiday season. There are many beautiful things to be had in Danielson and at very reasonable prices. There is no charge for seeing these displays and those who are considerate likely will investigate here at least before going elsewhere to shop.

One of the oldest organizations in town, the Killingly Theft Detecting society, is to elect officers for another year on a mid-month date. The organization has been inactive for a number of years, but maintains itself and has a numerous membership.

While the sales of Christmas seals are gratifying, a large volume of them could be used in Danielson during the next three weeks. The hope of the Civic federation is that the seal sales will total 50,000 here this year.

RARE BIBLES ARE FOUND IN BISHOP QUAYLE'S COLLECTION

BALDWIN, Kan., Dec. 4 (AP)—Some of the rarest bibles in existence are contained in a collection to be placed on display here by Baker University.

The collection was willed to the institution by the late Bishop William A. Quayle, of the Methodist Episcopal church, a graduate and at one time president of Baker.

More than 225 rare editions, ranging in size from a very minute copy to the Synagogue Roll or Tora, which is made from the skins of 37 animals and is a hundred feet in length, are in the group.

The oldest Bible is a Latin manuscript of 1225. In the Bishop's catalogue, he referred to it as "a piece of illumination, and chirography," and added that he did not recall having seen its superior in the British museum. This rare volume is bound in gold, cardinal and blue and is made on abortive parchment.

Another manuscript is of the same century, and is a rare specimen on uterine parchment. The psalms have special flourishings.

The entire Pentateuch is contained in the Synagogue Roll, which is undated and without vowel points.

The oldest printed Bible in the collection, the Egmestern, came from the press in 1469, just 13 years after the first printed Bible. Egmestern of Strasburg was the printer of the two-volume edition, of which only the latter is in the collection.

The Quayle group also contains a Biblia Sacra Latina, printed in 1472, of which there are no more than five copies in existence. This one is in the original binding of thick wooden boards covered with calf.

Another is the Coberge, of which the Bishop said: "It is the noblest Bible I have ever set my eyes on and much superior in beauty and sumptuousness in execution to the Gutenberg Bible."

One of the finest sets is a nine-volume Bible, with a curious old commentary, folio size, bound in original vellum and dated 1669. It was once owned by the Carmelite Friars and still contains their bookplate.

A Bible bearing the date of 1656 once belonged to Robert Browning, and carries the writer's autograph. In this group also is Southy's Bible and the family Bible of Robert Louis Stevenson.

Looking over the collection the linguist can run the full gamut, for the Bibles are printed in Hebrew, Latin, German, English, Persian, Chinese, Italian, Dutch, Welch, Manx, Turkish and a rare Arabic.

PUTNAM

JUDGE GEISSLER AGAINST PAYING PUTNAM OFFICIALS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 4—Mahlon H. Geissler, judge of the Putnam city court, and one of the leading attorneys of the county, has prepared for publication the following letter in which he urges the citizens of Putnam to vote "No" on the charter amendment giving salaries to the mayor and aldermen. The letter follows:

"I have been urged to express my views on the proposed amendment to our city charter providing salaries for the mayor and aldermen of the city, which is to be voted on at the city election to be held Monday, Dec. 7.

"In deciding this matter we should determine whether this is a necessary expense. During the thirty years of our city life we have had many able mayors and aldermen who have willingly sacrificed their time and efforts for the good of the city, especially during the times of special work, such as building the sewers, issuing the city bonds, etc. At present there is no special work in view for their officials, and there is no special need of this extra expense, other than the fact that other cities pay their officers.

"In the very near future Putnam must spend at least $100,000 and probably $150,000 for new water mains, reservoir and equipment which is absolutely necessary for the water department. A new addition must soon be made to the High or Trade school, which will cost probably $20,000. If our land titles are to be protected it will soon be necessary to expend from $3,000 up upon some sort of a new index to the land records. Our police, fire and school departments are constantly needing larger appropriations which are absolutely necessary.

"Our present tax rate, town and city combined, is thirty-four mills on the dollar, which is a very high rate. With all these necessary expenses coming in the near future what will our tax rate be a few years from now? Unless something is done and done soon we shall have a tax rate of fifty mills on the dollar.

"There is one remedy and only one. That is an equalization of our tax valuation. Our present Grand List is approximately six million dollars. We all know that we have at least fifteen millions of taxable property in Putnam. If we are to get new industries to occupy our vacant factories and provide work for our unemployed citizens, we must make Putnam an attractive location. When we say that our Grand List is only six million (which means a fair sized village) and that our tax rate will soon be fifty mills, will new industries come to Putnam? No.

"Why not face the facts as they are? If we equalize our tax valuations, we can increase our Grand List to fifteen millions, and make Putnam one of the most attractive towns in New England for manufacturers, and it will not cost us one cent more than we are paying today in taxes.

"To do this we must be careful not to spend a dollar of public money that is not absolutely necessary until we equalize our tax valuations. Otherwise we shall never be able to sell our bonds for the improvements to our water system, and we shall never get our factories occupied, and Putnam will stagnate.

"It is said that the city officials will accept only half of the compensation provided by the Legislature in this charter amendment. That is not legally possible. We must vote "yes" or "no" on the whole amount. We cannot reduce it.

"I am strongly in favor of paying all our public officials liberally if and when we can do so, but as one of the small taxpayers, one of the common people whose daily bread depends upon the prosperity of Putnam, I appeal to each voter of the city of Putnam that if you wish to see Putnam prosper, it is your duty to go to the polls next Monday and vote No on the question of the amendment to the city charter.

"Let us get our taxes equalized. Let us make Putnam attractive to outside industries, and in this way increase our business, our population, and the amount of our taxable property. In this way, and in this way alone can we make Putnam prosperous and make our city grow. Then, we shall be in a position to pay our officials and nobody will be more anxious than I to see this done."

SALARY FOR MAYOR AND COUNCIL ELECTION ISSUE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 4—The Bi-ennial city election will be held Monday, December 7. As there are no party contests the most important issue in the election and that will probably draw the most voters is the referendum vote on the proposition to pay a salary to the mayor and the council.

The proposed amendment to the charter provides that the mayor of the city shall be paid $500 per annum and that the alderman-at-large shall receive $10 a meeting for each meeting that he attends and that the aldermen from the wards $5 a meeting for each meeting that they attend and also gives the council the right to pay the chairman of the highway committee a salary not to exceed $200 a year. Those who are in favor of this will vote Yes on the regular ballot and those opposed will vote No.

The candidates nominated by the republican caucus and ratified by the democratic are: Mayor, Victor Chapdelaine; aldermen-at-large, Charles A. Richard; aldermen from Ward 1, E. C. Rogers and Charles A. Ryan; aldermen from Ward 2, Warren W. Ames and Alfred Pigeon; aldermen from Ward 3, Leo Delisle and Edward Dubois; aldermen from Ward 4, Desire Labby and Willis D. Carroll; collector of taxes, Archie Macdonald, Jr.; treasurer, Charles A. Brown; auditors, Lucius P. Merriam and John J. McGarry; registrar of voters, Herman G. Carver and George Potvin.

The last trolley car between Putnam and North Grosvernordale is gone and the busses are now operating in their place and are running on a time schedule practically the same. As yet are going only to the Massachusetts state line.

The most important change is that transfers are made in Putnam, the busses from the north and south meeting on Union Square at the New Haven station. It is probably the company's intention to run through to Worcester as soon as permission is granted by the state of Massachusetts, but with a singular disregard for the public, in that respect, no official announcement has been made.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson of Woodstock recently celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary in the Swedish church. They were married at Plainfield, N. J., but have lived in Woodstock for the past eighteen years. One son and four daughters have been born to them. The Ladies' Aid society presented Mrs. Johnson with a bouquet of roses and a purse of money was given them by their friends. There was a short program of talks, and music after which refreshments were served. There was a huge wedding cake made by Mrs. John Anderson.

About 200 Odd Fellows were present at the regular meeting of Israel Putnam lodge when eleven candidates took the first degree. The Grand Master of Rhode Island and his suite were guests of honor, and nearly as many Rhode Island men were present as there were local men. The degree was exemplified by the local degree team, which has the reputation of being one of the best first degree teams in this section of New England. After the degree work, refreshments were served.

The regular monthly meeting of the staff of the Day Kimball hospital was held at the hospital this week. Dr. George M. Burroughs, newly elected president, presided. Several interesting surgical and medical cases were reported and discussed. The secretary's report for the month showed sixty-three patients admitted, thirty out patients treated; treated in all, 105; operations, twenty-five; births, ten; daily average number of patients, twenty-seven. Those present were Drs. Burroughs, Todd, Judson, Tanner and Perreault of Danielson; Bullard, Phillips and Perry of Putnam; Overlock of Pomfret; Pike of Woodstock and Plane of Thompson.

Here in Putnam there has been considerable interest over the announcement of the marriage of Burton Bosworth, who for many years has driven the mail bus between Putnam and North Woodstock and is well known to many local people.

At the Tourtellotte Memorial High school of North Grosvernordale, Miss Gladys Bousquet of the senior class, won a Remington typist award for a speed record of fifty-eight words a minute and Miss Isabelle Beauregard, of the junior, won an award by typing fifty words a minute.

Lorenzo Alex was before Judge M. H. Geissler in the city court charged with driving an overloaded truck. He paid a fine of $50 and costs amounting to $12.10. He was arrested by State Policeman Nelson.

The following is the honor roll of the Thompson Hill school for the month of November; ninety to one hundred per cent; Mary Law, Esther Stevens, Ella Logee, Elna Jensen, Alfred Broughton, Graham Foster, Alexander Maitland, Jr., David Sherry, Helen Johnson, Grace Withey, May Withey, and Julio Johnson. Eighty to ninety per cent: Jennie Drobot, Sarah Bullard, Elizabeth Maitland, George Vegnan, Arthur Ware, Latham Morse, Carolyn Dearington, Annie Goloskie, Nellie Johnson and Raymond Smith.

MILLION VISITORS EXPECTED AT EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS

CHICAGO, Dec. 4 (AP)—Chicago faces the problem of caring for more than a million visitors next June 20-24 during the Catholic Eucharistic Congress, meeting for the first time in the United States. Leaders expect it to be one of the most notable gatherings in the history of the church.

Every hotel, restaurant, cafe and cafeteria of the hundreds here has been asked to cooperate with the committees in charge of caring for the delegates, who will include representatives of reigning Catholic dynasties and papal dignataries.

Arrangements for the spiritual side of the congress, in addition to its sessions include the Eucharistic procession, traditional feature of the meeting, in which most of the delegates will participate, and a Mass in Soldiers' Field. United choirs of hundreds of school children are training to sing the Mass, the altar for which will be erected in the arena of the Municipal stadium, which has a capacity of 50,000.

An art exhibition in which prominence will be given to the work of Catholic artists, priests and nuns in this and other lands, is a plan of an exhibits committee which has the assurance of displays from Italy and France.

The prime purpose of the congress is the glorification of the Holy Eucharist the sacrament of the real presence of Jesus Christ in the consecrated bread in commemoration of the Biblical story of the Lord's supper. Clergy and laymen will consider means whereby devotion to the Eucharist may be spread and the thought of members of the church concentrated upon it.

In arranging for the congress, those in charge have as precedents a series of the meetings held nearly every two years since the first, which attracted only local attention, in Lyons, France, in 1881. A permanent committee, named by the pope, has the duty of directing the congress whenever it is held. American members of the committee are the Rt. Rev. Francis C. Kelly, bishop of Oklahoma, and the Rev. Alphonse Pelletier of New York. The Rt. Rev. Thomas Heylen, D. D. bishop of Namur, Belgium, is the present chairman and count Henri d'Ursel, Paris, secretary.

TRUCK HIGHWAYS

Roads, roads and more roads have been demanded and obtained. From ocean to ocean and border to border new construction is underway. State and federal systems are being extended and rebuilt. New demands are constantly being made for new roads, better roads, with emphasis being laid upon permanency of the construction.

In connection with such demands and work comes the call for separate highways for trucks to be constructed the same as the other highways at public expense. It is known that motor trucks are increasing and that they are doing much more business every year. They are in fact being employed by the railroads instead of electric and steam trains.

In connection with the future of the motor truck industry it is an interesting view that is taken by the transportation engineer of New York city when he predicts that within ten years there will be trunk line highways across the continent for motor truck trains exclusively. They will be elevated in cities, have no grade crossings and be constructed by private rather than public funds and those using them would pay tolls quite the same as the users of highways in olden days used to do. That means that such roads would be built the same as the railroads are with the companies owning their right of way and building and maintaining their roadbed.

That is decidedly different than has been indicated by any step that has as yet been taken and yet no little thought has been directed to the taxation of the motor trucks for the wear and tear on the highways and bridges, and to the bother which they are for ordinary traffic.

In our own state there has been talk about a truck highway between Bridgeport and New York as a means of relieving the congestion, but the difficulties of restricting motor vehicle traffic of any kind to one road has been fully understood.

There may be in time such a development as the New York engineer predicts but he is certainly too optimistic when he believes that it will be brought about in ten years.

GREECE GUILTY

There is such a thing as settling disputes by force and settling them in accord with the facts. The latter is too seldom done, but for once it has been resorted to in the Balkans and it is to be hoped that its effect will be to see that it is employed on all matters calling for adjustment there in the future.

Only a few weeks ago there were good prospects of a bloody clash between Greece and Bulgaria. There was trouble along the border and demands were made by Greece for a substantial indemnity for the killing of certain border guards. Bulgaria didn't comply and there were Greek troops sent into Bulgaria and the situation was menacing. There was a clash in which bad blood was shown and more trouble threatened, and this despite the fact that both nations are members of the league of nations and committed to the use of its services in behalf of prevention before resorting to war.

Pressure by the league upon these two countries which could not afford to go to war resulted in a withdrawal of the forces and the submission of all the forces, and the submission of to determine where the responsibility rested has resulted in the decision that Greece was responsible for the invasion of Bulgarian territory and because of it and the losses involved it recommends penalizing Greece to the extent of $219,000, and the establishment of what are regarded as necessary safeguards for the future.

No one knows what the result would have been had the league not taken a hand, other than to know that there would have been much slaughter, great losses and suffering, and if Greece was responsible for the situation it is far better than it should say the sum fixed than to have permitted the two neighbors to do an incalculable amount of damage and bring about a deplorable waste of life. Greece may not be well impressed by the decision, but it must realize that the bill will be far less under this method than it would have been had war been permitted.

NEW YORK'S POLICE METHODS

Some interest will probably be aroused by the orders which have been given the mayor and police commissioner in New York city to suppress the gambling evil and vice. The impression to be gained from this is that such undesirable elements have recently become more active and that more than the usual efforts must be exercised in order to suppress them. But why is it that there seems to be an awakening at this time?

Whenever it has been intimated that the metropolis is suffering from an unwarranted amount of crime, and encouragement has been given to the criminal through the employment of slight and ineffectual methods of dealing with them, the answer has invariably been that New York is not a hotbed of crime. And yet it has been a matter of frequent report that criminals have been warned to get out of the city and go elsewhere under penalty of being rounded up.

The situation in regard to crime and that in regard to vice and gambling would seem to be much the same in the big city. At least the same methods are employed in dealing with them. The impression is gained that so little attention is given to their impression under every day methods that they are permitted to thrive and develope, but when they get to the point where they are getting conspicuous and more bothersome then a new campaign to put them down must be started. Possibly that is the wise method of handling affairs in New York, and possibly it is a good political move.

If crime, vice and gambling are among the things which the police of New York are supposed to suppress the wonder is that they are not constantly devoting their attention to such things, instead of doing it periodically. There is of course the chance that it would interfere with the political activities of the police department but for the protection of the city and the rendering of the service that is expected of them better results would naturally be expected from such methods.

ANOTHER PEACE MOVE

What must be hailed as a peace arrangement of no slight importance is the agreement that has been reached concerning the boundary question that has been giving much concern to the Ulster and Free State governments in Ireland as well as to the British government.

There is no disposition on the part of either government in Ireland to yield much to the other. There has been an insistence upon the part of each that the boundary question must be settled to the satisfaction of both and none came to realize the impossibility of this better than the members of the boundary commission. Whatever was satisfactory to one was opposed by the other. It is proverbial that they cannot agree so when it comes to changing the boundary line the expected difficulty arose.

Inasmuch as the boundary commission could not accomplish what was intended it is as well that it should be abandoned and as a concession for seeking the boundary change which would give the Free State part of Ulster the former is relieved of the part of the British debt which it agreed to pay under the treaty. There has been no evidence as yet that it is in a position to pay it but in behalf of peace the concession is one which the British government could well afford to make.

Leaving Ulster as it has been will likewise create a better feeling in that part of Ireland, while those who desire to be under the Free State government can change their residence if they desire to. Whatever results in supplanting strife with peace in Ireland must be regarded as time and money well spent.

PINCHOT AND POLITICS

An interesting sidelight is thrown upon the Pinchot proposal for the settlement of the coal strike by the report of a staff correspondent of the New York Times who writes that "the commercial interests of the hard coal fields aside from the coal industry are up in arms against what they term Governor Pinchot's 'political interference' in the coal strike." He was told in advance that his plan would not be adopted because it was based upon politics and not upon economics and that it is an economic problem that is faced.

Because of the fact that the hard coal industry is a Pennsylvania monopoly it might be expected that the governor of that state would take an interest in relieving the strike situation, but when he undertakes to inject politics into the proposition and apparently endeavor to advance himself as a candidate for the United States senator from that state through his efforts in dealing with this problem it is a move which fails right in the very territory where it could be expected to have any good results.

The commercial interests of Pennsylvania suffer when a strike is in progress and can be expected to lend their influence in behalf of a settlement, but when it is a political settlement that is undertaken it is quite evident that something outside of the welfare of those involved directly and indirectly, is being injected. Governor Pinchot lost prestige outside of his own state by the manner in which he dealt with the last strike. He is losing it within at this time by the methods which he has tried to employ. It is no place for politics.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Bear in mind Golden Rule Sunday and the good that you can do.

There's always reasons for satisfaction when it is rain instead of snow.

The Pinchot plan isn't what it seems on the surface, as a little analysis clearly shows.

The man on the corner says: Speaking of rain, we kick if we don't get it and we kick if we do.

The aviation board of inquiry finds against Mitchell. Most everyone except Colonel Mitchell figured it the same way.

That is a laudable plan of Floor Leader Tilson to get the tax reduction bill out of the house before Christmas.

It is claimed that while Florida has been there all the time many have just discovered it. Some of that number will have a chance to rediscover New England.

Just because Chapman refuses the commutation of his sentence at Atlanta doesn't mean that he will get a chance to do the same thing with a commutation of his Connecticut sentence.

The interstate commerce commission recognizes the necessity for emergency rates on bituminous coal, and though they do not become effective until the first of the year the emergency will not have passed by that time.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Sometime ago the writer of this column had his fling at the practice of rating a student's ability by material standards. It would be as reasonable to use yard sticks and pint cups as A, B, C, or 1, 2, 3. It has made his heart leap for joy to read what President David Starr Jordan, the eminent Californian educator, has to say on the subject in a recent address: "The marking system is better for measuring cord wood than culture, but it makes estimates easy. The evils of standardization in the suppression of individuality has several different sources. Among them are conservatism of student bodies." While standardization may have some place in schools of the lower grades, and undoubtedly it does, because, at that age the young intellect is hardly qualified to direct itself, yet in the higher studies, and at a later age the marking system may well be abandoned.

The present interest that is being taken in the near east relief work has much encouragement in the spiritual attraction of our schools and colleges in the near east. As in this country, there is the same rising trend toward the seats of higher learning in Turkey, and it is a distinct tribute to our missionaries that our American schools and colleges seem to be the favorites with the Moslem population. Over 1,000 students are enrolled in Robert college and the Constantinople Woman's college. Of this number one-third are Turks, and the other two-thirds are made up of seven other nationalities. In the preparatory school of the American university at Beirut is the crown prince of Iraq —the twelve-year old son of King Feisal. In our five institutions there are 3,000 students, and the longest waiting list in their history. This indicates the moral uplift of the near east.

It is almost impossible to overstate the opportunities of a young man and woman here in America to make good if they have it in them to do so. No better illustration of this can be found than in the recent volume written by Dr. George A. Gordon, the eminent and beloved pastor of the Old South church, Boston, entitled, "My Education and Religion." Many years ago he came to this country as an emigrant from Scotland. When he landed on our shores he found himself practically penniless and friendless. He had a strong faith in God and in the integrity of his own purposes. He had all the enthusiasm that goes with clean healthy young manhood. With these mighty assets and with a disposition to work hard, he won his way through Harvard university, by dint of energy and self denials. For forty years he has been the pastor of one of the wealthiest and most influential churches on this continent. Save in America where could this be done?

In this practical age many people are asking the question, "Are miracles possible? Has there ever been a miracle? Are not all baffling phenomena explainable by law? If we only had a wider acquaintance with law we should find an explanation for all these mysteries. Now this is measurably correct because many things that once passed for miracles are now easily explained on scientific principles. For instance, take the matter of eclipses. Back several hundred years an eclipse was looked upon as a mysterious act of God. The righteous stood in awe before it. The wicked flocked to the churches and prayer that God would pardon their sins. Ignorant and superstitious pagans beat drums, and made loud noises to drive away the evil spirits that had brought on the darkness. All that must be classed with superstition, and yet The Supreme is above law, and can work apart from law.

Is it not perfectly fair to ask, if—all things considered—one's general health is better conserved by residing in Florida during the winter, and in New England the rest of the year. This of course does not apply to frail constitutions unable to endure the severity of our northern climate in winter. But is it best, considered solely from the health standpoint, for those possessed of rugged physical strength? If it is true that indigenous plants flourish better in their native soil than exotics, why isn't it true of human beings? It would seem that plants going through a New England summer needed a New England winter. Such plants we call hardy. The same forces that make hardy plants are necessary to make hardy men and women. Is perpetual summer best for virile human beings? If one travels through our southern states for sightseeing or mere pleasure, that is one thing. If it is to escape our bracing air in winter, that is another thing.

Is there not sometimes a gulf—I will not say a fixed gulf—between a man's acceptance of a principle and making an individual application of it when it seems to run counter to his feelings? To illustrate: as Christians we believe it to be our duty to give thanks to God for his personal care and oversight. We believe he is interested in our well-being; that he loves us and wants us to acknowledge him in all our ways. We also accept this passage: "In all things give thanks unto God." This is our theoretical belief. Now can we apply it so far as to say: "I thank thee, O Lord that my property has been lost, that my beloved wife has been taken, that my boy is in jail?" Let us remember that God could not have changed these things without running counter to his own laws. We can say, "In my trouble, O God, thou art my comfort and stay. Lead me out of the darkness into the light."

While many things are not what they might be, or what they ought to be, yet on the whole it is unquestionably true, that the general trend of human society is upward. There never was a time when so many efforts were set forth to relieve human suffering and want; never a time when such intelligent attention was given to the needs of the little babe; when so much was done to promote bodily cleanliness of school children, and to make them immune from those diseases that were once so frightfully prevalent; when such kindly spirit was shown to the boys and girls, who, because of home conditions were prone to go wrong; when everything possible is done to save the man after the criminal has paid the penalty of his transgressions. This shows that religion if less dogmatic than formerly has become more tender and practical. It would seem as though Mars was being dethroned and the Prince of Peace receiving the crown.

Why hasn't some great writer like Hawthorne, Emerson, or Carlyle immortalized the morn value of the "dark and cloudy day"? The literature of every race is full of the sunny day with its light, beauty, gladness, roses, cheerfulness, and broad expanses of charming landscapes, and thus on ad infinitum. But the dismal day is usually let alone like a criminal—nobody wants to associate with him, or give him any sort of recommend. But doesn't it serve a useful purpose, after all? It's a good thing now and then to give us a chance to see how the home looks; to do those little unpleasant duties which we keep putting off, because outside things are more attractive. It gives a chance to answer that letter which duty rather than love suggests. If you are a husband and a Christian you can't turn down the hint to clean up the cellar. The dark day has a place in the household economy.

JAUREZ; SCENE OF "FOREIGN JOURNEYS FOR TWELVE CENTS."

"Just as the United States' own frontier towns have quieted down in recent years, with a loss in atmosphere, perhaps, but a welcome gain in the life expectancy of the citizens, so the country's adopted resorts just over International lines, seem to have lost something of their old-time raucous personalities," says a communication to the National Geographic society from McFall Kerbey.

"Take as Exhibit A, Juarez, probably Mexico's most important border city, which lies beyond a sluggish stream and a short bridge from El Paso, Texas. Juarez seems to have had its fill of the hectic dance hall and saloon days that followed on the heels of our Eighteenth Amendment. Wild oats have palled, apparently; and the community has settled down to cater with measurable soberness—and certainly lucratively—to the type of American tourist who has only a minor inhibition or two to fling overboard when he finds himself, for an hour or so, in a foreign land.

Curfew at Nine O'clock

"No doubt a great deal of Juarez' recently acquired near-sedateness is due to its very effective curfew. No bell rings; but at exactly 9 o'clock, Mountain Time, each evening a gate on the international bridge clangs closed. If any Americans are so luckless as to be south of the gate at that interesting moment they must remain for the night, and hotels of the usual American standard are not numerous in Juarez. It happens, therefore, that dinner, dancing and the hegira across the bridge have become the fixed order of the El Paso-Juarez evening.

"Business men and their wives from El Paso, a sprinkling of the American younger set, tourists from the four corners of the country, and a few Mexicans of the better class; these make the table groups about the dance floors of the principal Juarez cafes each evening. The food is all that could be wished; the usual American and Continental dishes, a few characteristic Mexican viands, and, thanks to Mexico's lenient game laws, venison, duck and quail.

"Seated in one of the better Juarez cafes, one cannot avoid the thought that his situation is about what it would be in a fashionable club-cabaret some thousands of miles farther north. The outstanding differences seem to be that his surroundings are not so luxurious nor so exclusive.

How Dancers Pay the Piper

"But the parallel must not be pressed too closely. All of the West's breeziness and the piquancy of Latin lands has not been rooted out. Juarez has a way all its own, for example, of proclaiming the old truth that he who dances must pay the piper. Hanging above the center of each dance floor is a contrivance of metal funnels, one directed toward each of the four walls. This fearfully made thing is a collector of perquisites for the orchestra. Music for a few whirls about the floor, then dead silence that must be broken by the rattle and clang of coins tossed down the machine's metal jaws by the dancers. When the practiced ear of the orchestra leader estimates that a gill or so of good hard money has been donated, the music strikes up again with an added verve that is probably well worth to the dancers the coins that have stimulated it.

"There is nothing noticeably exotic nor unrestrained about Juarez dancing, at least in the better cafes. Young and old and middle-aged America seem out for the dance south of the Rio Grande in exactly the same spirit in which they pursue their pleasures on the north bank of that river, or near the Potomac or the Hudson. There is the same music, the same steps, often the same people.

Twelve-Mile Speed Limit

"Promptly at eight-thirty, each evening Juarez gives an early rendition of Cinderella's midnight departure. The 'night life' dies a-borning. Orchestras suddenly stop and their members hurriedly pack their instruments. Chairs are pushed back. Outside, automobile horns begin to toot. But cars do not dash madly about. The new and somewhat chastened Juarez has restricted automobile speeds as well as evening entertainments; and the American who drives faster than 12 miles an hour has only himself and his hurried Gringo ways to blame if he is invited to swell the municipal treasury.

"The cafe center of Juarez is nearly half a mile from the international bridge; but within a few minutes after eight-thirty an unbroken line of automobiles extends to the river, while on side streets other cars wait to take their places. It is a slow job getting Juarez's evening throng of Americans repatriated for the night. Every car and its occupants must be given at least a cursory examination on the bridge by both immigration and customs officials. The procession starts and stops seemingly hundreds of times. When the early closing regulation first went into effect some cars were caught on the Mexican side every night. But practice has smoothed out difficulties, and now, usually several minutes before the bolts are shot home on the bridge gates, the last cars have rolled into the United States to scatter their passengers to homes hotels, and theaters, or to places where they may dance away the rest of the evening under purely American auspices.

Day Time Juarez Drab

"Juarez of the day time is a rather drab affair away from the market and the ancient church. Dust seems to strike the predominant note. The streets are dusty; the adobe houses are mostly dust-colored; even the very few bits of greenery seem sadly in need of a bath. One or two streets are paved; here and there in the residence sections the graceless adobes give way to charming little places in Spanish style with pleasing architecture and palms and vines; now and then the Latin love of color bubbles up in a humble home owner and he covers his khaki walls with pink or blue or yellow stucco. These things show what Juarez may do when it truly finds itself.

"But there are compensations for Juarez's drabness. On the sidewalks are handsome, dark-eyed youngsters and women in quaint costumes, while peons plod down the street beneath colored blankets and great broad-brimmed hats, and leather decked horsemen with huge spurs clank by. There is no mistake about it: when you are in Juarez, even thought you can see a battery of American sky-scrappers a stone's throw away, you are truly in a foreign land.

"A little red tape must be negotiated in getting permission to go to and from Juarez, but not much. If you live in El Paso you carry with you, as a matter of course, along with your keys and your pocketbook and a clean handkerchief, the equally necessary passport with your picture attached. For who can tell at what moment a business acquaintance may suggest: 'Let's run over to Juarez for lunch,' or a hostess may ring up and ask you to join a dinner party on the Calle Commercio?

Economy in Paper

"If you are a tourist the matter is even simpler. You stand in line, before a Mexican immigration official, you answer a few questions of a highly personal character, you ink your thumb and smudge it on a card. Then, if you have shown satisfactory proof of your identity, you are permitted to enter Mexico at will for ten days without charge. But the grim determination of the Mexican Immigration Service to avoid donating the tiniest bit of paper to tourists leads to some amusing incidents.

"In the line ahead of me were a young man and his wife from Spokane who presented their marriage certificate as an evidence of their identities. 'This will do nicely,' said the official; and before the surprised couple could object he had spread the certificate on his desk and had banged down on it a rubber stamp as big as a postal card. 'Turista' appeared in big blue letters. A few dashes of his pen, and the official handed the document back better than new—a marriage certificate and a passport rolled into one.

"Next in line was a young woman from St. Louis who somewhat diffidently presented what appeared to be the envelope of a love letter—certainly a personal missive, addressed to her in a masculine hand. This, too was grist for the inspector, and the envelope's back became her passport. Warned in advance of the great Juarez paper shortage, I presented in addition to identification cards, a sheet of paper bearing my letterhead. The 'Turista' stamp was placed near the top of this. The inspector then very carefully tore off the unused portion and asked if he might keep it. He feared, apparently that the supply of marriage certificates and love letters might run short.

Electricity "Imported" from America

"In many ways Juarez profits from the nearness of its big sister city across the Rio Grande. And there are plenty of El Pasoans who insist that the profit works both ways. All day long motor cars bearing American license plates throng the streets of Juarez. In the cafes and souvenir shops English is the predominant tongue. American money undoubtedly pours southward across the river in a steady stream. During the day El Paso power flows over international wires to help turn the wheels of Juarez, and at night the little city is largely lighted by current imported from America. For all of this of course, there is a compensating flow of dollars northward. The town's street railway is a belt line from El Paso which enters over one bridge, penetrates the business district, and returns over another bridge—a foreign journey for 12 cents.

"There are less tangible exchange between these sister communities. The Mexican traffic officers who efficiently herd the long lines of American automobiles to the bridge learned their craft in the more strenuous traffic lanes of El Paso. When a disastrous fire threatened Juarez recently red tape disappeared and tons of thousands of dollars worth of great steel and brass fire-fighting machines were temporarily 'exported' to Mexico along with the brawn and skill of American fire-fighters. When El Paso celebrates, units in Mexican uniforms add color to the line; and on summer evenings Juarez bands often furnish characteristic Mexican music in El Paso parks. Altogether these strikingly different communities on the Rio Grande seem to have established a unique sort of 'municipal symbiosis,' each contributing something which the other lacks."

LIFE WORK

Our Saviour knew what His life work was to be. Then knowing His life work our Saviour devoted Himself to it with undeviating purpose. With Paul, He might have said, "This one thing I do." If He healed a sick man's body, it was that He might heal the Gennesaret, it was for the sake of quieting the fierce tempest in human souls.

Our Saviour's life work was absolutely unselfish. In this point how few lives can ever for an instant be compared to His? Satan's offer of the kingdom of this work was no empty proposal; for, though Satan could not give them, Christ, with His transcendent ability and power, could have taken them. If Alexander or Napoleon could overpower nations, how much more easily could Jesus Christ have become a master of men! But He chose not to have a place where He might lay His head. He chose the way of the Cross. More than that, He commanded all His followers to choose the same way, making it their life work to take up their crosses and follow Him. His glorious success is to be shared in no other way.

Do you question in your heart, that success? Do the glittering goals of the world allure you? Are you tempted by the life work that ends with the life on earth? Meet that temptation with a thought of the endless life. Christ is there waiting for you. And if He is pleased with your life work, then your crown of success and joy through all eternity will be His simple words, "Well done, good and faithful servant!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Voltaire

Mr. Editor: In answer to the Salvation Army War Cry Feb. 24, 1925, which Mr. Campbell sent in on Nov. 30th, I beg to write where I differ with him on several of the statements contained therein.

The letter claims that more copies of the Bible have been published and sold than any other book in the world. It points out that it is therefore the best book in all the wide, wide world.

Secondly it states that Voltaire predicted the end of Christianity in a century or so.

Intelligent people of the 20th century do not measure or gauge books by the amount of sales.

There are more Ford machines made today than any of the other makes. That does not necessarily make it the best machine?

The people have always revered things about which they were uncertain. The Bible covers the needs of these people.

To quote one of the great thinkers: "Doubt is the beginning of wisdom; faith is the beginning of superstition."

It is due to Voltaire that Mr. Campbell enjoys the fruits of liberty today. It was Voltaire who was the father of that great battle cry, "separation of church and state."

Every country that heeded that cry is way up on top today.

Those that have not heard the call as yet, and still ruled by the Bible and church are away down, down in a rut.

The church has been forced to adjust itself to the conditions of the times. It has never, and never will survive the wounds that Voltaire inflicted upon it.

His principles were sound, and always could be relied upon to stand the acid test.

There will always be champions who will carry on where he left off. His critics are all gone and forgotten.

Indeed, who can name off hand one of them living in his day?

All hail to Voltaire defender and apostle of liberty in its true sense and meaning.

Stories That Recall Others

These Mothers!

Wilma's mother was surprised one Sunday recently to see her little girl, who was sitting several seats ahead of her in church, singing with the congregation.

On the way home afterward the delighted mother said: "Why, Wilma, I noticed you sang all the songs this morning. I did not know you knew them."

There was another surprise in store for her, however, when the little singer answered, very much pleased with herself, "Oh, I don't know what the rest of them were singing. I was singing, 'It Ain't Goin' Rain No More!'"

Down in Kentucky

Harry has been making a southern trip as a traveling salesman and as usual encountered some interesting things. In one hotel in Kentucky he faced the sign "Pull down the blinds before turning on the light." He was obedient but he asked the bell hop the reason for it. "Well," boss," said the boy "they shoots the lights out down here just for fun."

When he arrived at another town it was dark. The train stops on one side of the river and the hotel is on the other. While crossing the bridge the negro, who was carrying his cases, tied his lantern to the end of a long pole. Asked the reason, the porter replied that it was the habit there to shoot lights seen on the bridge.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, who is expected to lead in the championship of the mid-Western farmers at the session of Congress about to begin, entered the senate in 1913, after serving from 1903 in the lower house of Congress, where he made a record as the foe of "Cannonism" and as a liberal, forward-looking lawmaker. Senator Norris is a self-made man of a type common in American history, and of which the people are proud. Beginning life on an Ohio farm, teaching school for maintenance while also studying law, and then settling in Nebraska to rise in his profession, he did so by the familiar route of prosecuting attorney, judge and then lawmaker. He was one of the 12 "willful" senators who, early in 1917, stood out against President Wilson and a bipartisan majority of the senate. Now he is classed as a radical republican, although re-elected last year as a regular.

The Beginning of a Pond

Small beginnings, it is plain,
Mighty endings may attain.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit spent a great deal of time over in the alder swamp in the Green Forest where Paddy the Beaver, Mrs. Paddy and the two nearly grown Beavers were building a new dam. How folks could get any pleasure out of working as those Beavers worked Peter couldn't understand at all. It was too much for him. But then, Peter doesn't like to work at all. But he does like to watch others at work, and so he spent so much time over in the alder swamp that little Mrs. Peter over in the dear Old Briar-patch lost all patience with him for leaving her alone so much.

Peter did his best to get her to go over to the Green Forest with him. "You ought to see what is going on over there. At least that is what he says."

Little Mrs. Peter sniffed. "What does he want to change the alder swamp for? Isn't it good enough for him?" she demanded.

"You don't understand, my dear. He is going to make a pond out of that alder swamp," Peter explained.

"No, I don't understand," retorted little Mrs. Peter. "Old Mother Nature made an alder swamp there. It has been good enough for other folk all these years and I don't see any reason why it isn't good enough for Paddy the Beaver. Does he think he can improve on what Old Mother Nature does?" Little Mrs. Peter sniffed.

Peter patiently tried to tell her that it was all a matter of getting enough to eat on the part of Paddy, but little Mrs. Peter said that she saw no reason why he couldn't cut those poplar trees he wanted without spoiling a perfectly good swamp by turning it into a pond. And nothing Peter could say caused her to change her opinion in the least. Finally he gave up trying. You see, little Mrs. Peter is not unlike a great many other people—fixed in her opinions and set in her ways.

One day as Peter made his way through the swamp toward the new dam he made a discovery. It seemed to be wetter under foot than usual. As he jumped from one tussock to another tussock he noticed that there was water standing in between and it hadn't been standing there the last time he was over there. He couldn't recall that there had been a hard rain, so he couldn't understand that wetness. Then, when he was almost to the dam, he found that he could go no farther without swimming unless he went back and around. This he did, for Peter isn't fond of swimming. When finally he reached the place where Paddy the Beaver and his family were at work he discovered what it meant. That dam had been carried across the Laughing Brook. To be sure the water was running through the sticks of which the dam was being built and over the top, for it was still very low, but it wasn't running off fast enough to keep it from creeping back and back slowly. Those Beavers were working with might and main to fill in between the sticks and brush of the dam with sods and mud to keep the water from running in through them. Peter was looking at the beginning, the very beginning of a pond.

He didn't fully realize it then. He didn't quite understand just what was going on. You see, it was difficult to believe that just piling sticks and brush and mud across the Laughing Brook would actually make a pond, and that the farther that dam was carried each side of the Laughing Brook the bigger that pond would be. In fact, he couldn't understand at all why Paddy and his family kept building that dam farther and farther away from the Laughing Brook, making it longer an longer. It wasn't until Paddy showed him how the water above that dam was creeping farther and farther in each direction along that dam that he began to understand.

Quite suddenly and unexpectedly a feeling of sadness swept over Peter. Something he had known all his life was being changed right before his eyes. Yes, sir, that very thing was happening. Pretty soon he would no longer be able to run about in that alder swamp. Next year Longbill the Woodpecock would have to look elsewhere for a nesting place. Those alders, the ones not cut, would drown. Peter wasn't at all sure that he liked the idea of this pond of which he was watching the beginning.

(Copyright, 1925, by T. W. Burgess)

"No, I don't understand," retorted little Mrs. Peter.

From Small Beginnings

Zachary Taylor, President of the U. S.

Old Rough and Ready, as Zachary Taylor was affectionately called, became president of the United States in 1849, when he was 65 years old. In his long life he had well earned the nickname of "Rough and Ready." From his very childhood he had been familiar with hardships and dangers, and he had always been ready for every emergency. The work of his life, however, was accomplished, for he lived only a little over a year after his inauguration.

Zachary Taylor, like George Washington, was of Virginia birth, but he was not of Virginia "bringing up." His father who had given good service in the war with England, moved after the Revolution to the region of Kentucky, then one of the very outposts of civilization. Young Zachary had to live the pioneer life, to work hard cutting trees, making roads and planting crops. He learned to read and write, but he learned little else, for in those days and in that region book-learning was of little use as compared with the practical learning needed in opening up and developing a new country. Frontiersmen and Indians were his companions, and the gentler side of life was little thought of.

Everyone had the highest respect for the military life. The memories of the Revolution were strong, and the country needed fighters. Therefore, at 24, Zachary Taylor was proud enough to become a lieutenant in the army. He had served but a year or two when the War of 1812 broke out, and gave him the opportunity to begin earning his name "Rough and Ready." He fought with great bravery and skill, for he had been trained in a region of fighting men, in various Indian wars he again showed leadership combined with great personal bravery.

The greatest opportunity in Zachary Taylor's life came in the Mexican War, where he fought with the utmost bravery, in the battle of Buena Vista, Zachary Taylor, who was now Major General Taylor, overwhelmed a force of Mexicans nearly four times the number of his own troops. This tremendous victory led to his nomination, about a year later, to the presidency.

The frontier boy had done well in gaining a "rough and ready" training, for that sort of training had aided him to serve his country remarkably well.

The first time a girl is engaged she imagines that she is as important as the heroine in a novel.

Artificial Butter

Butter which contains no milk, but is said to be palatable, nutritious and cheap, is being prepared by a European chemist, according to Popular Mechanics.

He uses waste fats and tallow, first washing them into small pieces and melting them by steam in wooden vessels. Acid soda is then added and the substance boiled for several hours, after which it is strained through flannel and churned. Oil or sour milk may be added if desired, but they are not necessary. By adding a small quantity of honey the taste is improved and the artificial butter is said to keep better and go 10 per cent further.

Airplane Radio

Compactness of apparatus is essential in airplanes, so Marconi engineers have perfected a short-wave set in which no trailing antenna is required. A fixed aerial is fitted around the fuselage of the plane.

The transmitter and receivor can be mounted as separate units and the complete kit weighs 57 pounds. The wave range of the outfit is from 75 to 140 meters and its communication range approximately five miles, sufficient to enable all units of planes in formation and squadrons to keep in perfect liaison.

COMMITTED SUICIDE WITH REVOLVER HE BORROWED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 4—Harry J. Claffey, 44, of Columbia, committed suicide by shooting himself in the temple with a .32 calibre revolver in the yard of his home on the Hartford-Willimantic highway about 11:15 o'clock this morning. The man was divorced and he made his home with his blind brother, Fred Claffey, 48. As near as could be learned, he suffered from despondency. The Claffey home is near the residence of Mrs. Diana Fox and the man had known for some time that Mrs. Fox possessed a revolver. About 10:30 o'clock Friday forenoon he came to the Fox home and explained that his pet dog had been severely injured when run over by an automobile and he asked for the gun so that he might put the animal out of misery. Mrs. Fox loaned him the revolver, but noticed that he acted strangely and sent Raymond Bush, an employe at her gasoline station, to follow Claffey. Bush did so, but when Claffey reached his yard and before the act could be prevented the man had placed the muzzle of the gun to his temple and fired one shot. Death was instantaneous. The matter was reported to the state police for investigation.

SLOGAN CHOSEN FOR NORWICH ON WORLD-WIDE REACH OF PRODUCTS

Out of 210 slogans submitted by 59 persons in the Chamber of Commerce contest which recently closed, the choice has settled upon "The World Uses What Norwich Produces," as the slogan for Norwich.

That so many competed and so many slogans were suggested was considered to show a very good interest in this contest. Each person submitting a slogan was given a number and the slogans were judged according to the numbers, the contestants being kept secret. Copies of all slogans were prepared by the chamber for each judge and they gave several days' consideration to the selection of the best suggestions for slogans. At the final meeting of the judges, they agreed that numbers 31 and 40 were the best slogans submitted for practical purposes. Number 31 was John McCarthy giving his address as 40 14th. street, submitted a number of slogans and the one chosen was "Norwich produces what the whole world uses." Number 40 was George J. Roessler, 163 Hickory street, whose suggestion for the slogan was very similar, Mr. Roessler's suggestion was "Norwich produces—the whole world uses." The judges taking these two slogans into consideration decided to adopt as a slogan for Norwich "The world uses what Norwich produces." This is slightly different from the wording offered by the two contestants but in fairness to them the judges decided to award the $10 prize equally to Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Roessler.

There is a great deal of truth in the slogan adopted for Norwich by the chamber. In the first place Norwich has one product that is nationally and universally known in its Thermos bottles. The high quality of textiles of all descriptions made in Norwich certainly goes to all parts of the world through various channels, and the diversity of the products greatly increases the number of markets for our goods throughout this country and for the world in general. So it was in the minds of the judges that the slogan "The world uses what Norwich produces," is a truism. It is therefore the hope of the chamber that the business men generally throughout this community will make use of this slogan on their letterheads and have it printed on their business correspondence.

There is no conflict between the title of Norwich as "The Rose of New England," and the slogan for Norwich "The world uses what Norwich produces," nor is there any desire to change the title of this community which has so many beautiful natural sorroundings and settings.

The judges for the contest were: Miss Margaret Foley, president of the Norwich Teacher's league; Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins, president of the Art association; Joseph W. Curtis, vice-president of the Norwich Manufacturers association; Abner Schwartz, president of the Norwich Retail Merchants association; James L. Case, president of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce; J. N. Weymouth, president of the Norwich Rotary club, and William A. Anderson, president of the Norwich Lions club.

Some of the slogans submitted had much merit while others followed very closely the slogans of other cities and in some instances were duplicates of slogans of other cities. The factories of Norwich produce the following diversified products: Red springs and mattresses, belts and belting accessories, braids, brass fixtures, cordages cotton goods, high grade fancy goods and awnings and novelty textiles, cutlery, envelope making machinery, files and rasps, firearms and revolvers, foundry products, iron and brass, furniture trimmings, paints and stains, paper box boards, cartons, boxes, paper, pipe couplings, roll covers, sanitary gauze and cottons, shoes, silk broadcloths and dress goods, silk velvets, spools and bobbins, steam boilers and radiators, thermos bottles, woolens, cashmeres, billiard cloth, uniform cloth, yarns.

It is also the home office of the New London County Mutual Fire Insurance company. One has but to note this diversity of products to learn the truth of the slogan for Norwich "The world uses what Norwich produces."

DUWELLS BRINGING SANTA TO THE EAST SIDE

The Duwell club will take another step forward with the coming of Christmas in sponsoring a movement for a Community Christmas party to be held at the Bishop school on a date to be announced later. Every person on the East Side, whether young or old, will be invited to take part in the festivities. It is expected that there will be between 300 and 400 children who will be received by Santa Claus who will present them various gifts and sweets. This is the first time that such an enterprise has ever been undertaken on the East Side and every effort will be made to make the occasion one that will long be remembered. In addition to the Christmas tree, and programme arranged for by the Duwell club, the teachers of the school are hard at work preparing a very elaborate programme which the children will present for the benefit of their elders whom it is hoped by those in charge will help put this party over with a bang.

Within the next few weeks every person will receive an invitation to attend this party and also will be asked to contribute a little present the value of which must not exceed fifty cents. Arrangements will be made to receive any such presents which will be distributed by Santa Claus at the party. No admission or fees will be charged, the only thing asked is that the residents of the East Side or any one else interested will contribute enough presents to distribute among the 400 children that are expected to attend this big Christmas party. In addition to these presents the Duwell club will provide every child with several little treats.

This is the first time that anything of this sort has been attempted by the East Siders and nothing will be spared to make this gathering one that will be looked forward to each year.

The spirit of the East Side in other activities has always put things over big and it is this same spirit that will make the East Side Christmas party one of the biggest things ever tackled in Norwich. The general committee is composed of James Pedace, Frank Greene, William Shanley, Leon Dix and Robert Woodmansee, who will gladly give any information and greatly appreciate any assistance in putting over this party. This party will not be restricted only to children attending the Bishop school but is being put over for the benefit of every kiddie on the East Side regardless of what school they may attend.

SCIENTIST AND INVENTOR BRINGS SUIT FOR $60,000,000

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Eight corporations, all prominent in the field of radio, were made defendants in a suit for $60,000,000 which was filed in United States district court on behalf of Prof. Reginald A. Fessenden, of Newton, scientist and inventor. Prof. Fessenden charges that an unlawful combination on the part of the corporations in restraint of trade has lessened the value of his devices and inventions so that he is forced to seek redress in the courts.

He claims that his business and the value of his patents have been injured to the extent of $20,000,000 and he asks triple reimbursement together with the costs of his suit under the provisions of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust laws. Jury trial of the case also is asked.

The corporations named are the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric company, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the United Fruit company, the Wireless specialties apparatus company, the International Radio Telegraph company and the Western Electric company, Inc.

It is alleged by Prof. Fessenden that the companies named have combined to refrain from competition in purchasing patents and applications for patents, inventions, devices, apparatus and rights. He further claims that by mutual agreement in combination, and for the purpose of obtaining these at much less than their fair value, they at times have refused to negotiate for the purchase of such patents and devices and at other times have offered, and now offer, much less than their fair value.

It pays better to be a dentist than an oculist. A man has thirty-two teeth but only two eyes.

Miss Keating was recently awarded a verdict of $7,500 by a jury in the superior court in her damage suit for injuries alleged to have been received when she fell on an icy sidewalk in Huntington street. It is understood that the verdict will be appealed to the supreme court of errors.

COUNTERFEITING PLOT IS BEING UNRAVELLED

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 4.—(A. P.)—What is believed to be a huge counterfeiting plot is being unravelled by United States Comissioner Hugh J. Lavery of this city, who has two prisoners, Anthony Panuch, of Stamford, and Mrs. Mary Starsen, 18, of 16 Mission street, Stamford, under arrest charged with the passing of bogus $10 in Stamford. Panuch is held under $5,000 bonds and Mrs. Starsen under $1,000. They will be given hearings before the commissioner next Friday, in the meantime an investigation is under way, if possible, to ascertain whether or not Panuch is the member of the ring of counterfeiters.

Panuch is said to have forced the bills on Mrs. Starsen and by means of threats made her pass them. She claims that she only received the amount of goods which he procured with them. It is not thought that there have been more than 15 of the bills passed in Stamford. The plot came to light last Wednesday night when Panuch attempted to pass one of the bills to Richard Copans, of Stamford.

While Mrs. Starsen confessed to passing the bills, Panuch has stolidly refused to say much. He claims that he does not know where he got the bill and that he did not know that it was counterfeit. Mrs. Starsen also stated that she had received several hundreds of dollars of th ebogus bills, but had passed only a few.

16 NEW INDICTMENTS FOR CHICAGO BOMBING

CHICAGO, Dec. 4—(A. P.)—The special grand jury investigating upward of 100 Chicago bombings in the last few months today, returned fifteen new indictments, naming a score of persons, some of them previously named, then retired and was reported to have voted three additional true bills, most of them naming union officials.

Among those named today was Herschie Miller, gangster, and Steve Sumer, official of the Milk Drivers' union. Upward of half a hundred persons have been named in more than a score of indictments that have been voted thus far, many of them being indicted half a dozen or more times for different offenses.

A score or those indicted will be arraigned tomorrow, in each instance bonds are being fixed at $25,000. Next Monday the regular December grand jury will be sworn in to continue the inquiry, Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, has charged that small business firms have been made the target of a bombers' gang operating at the direction of powerful gangsters and union officials.

LOCARNO A FORERUNNER OF EUROPEAN FEDERATION

BERLIN, Dec. 4—German government circles look upon the signing of the Locarno pact as the forerunner to an inevitable European federation, and with the return from London of Chancellor Luther and Dr. Stresemann, the foreign secretary who affixed their signatures for Germany, the foreign office has become imbued with an unusual spirit of hopefulness.

As Chancellor Luther will present the resignation of the cabinet tomorrow, in line with his preciously expressed intention, it is impossible to fix the date of Germany's application for entry into the league of nations. But this question will be among the first to be discussed by the new government which, it is expected, will be formed immediately by Dr. Luther.

Germany's entry into the league is not expected before March 1, as six weeks must elapse between application for membership, and acceptance by the league council, and another fortnight before Germany can be duly initiated as a member at the plenary session of the league.

In the first few minutes of play Bissell, the Plainfield star guard, was forced out of the game with a sprained ankle, Red Thorton replacing him and playing a fine game. NO MOTION PICTURE SCOUTING FOR BIG TEN

CHICAGO, Dec. 4—(A. P.)—Curtailing of football practice in the "Big Ten" and prohibiting the use of motion pictures for scouting purposes was the important legislation taken up by athletic directors in the western conference in their meeting preliminary to the football schedule tomorow.

Actual football practice under the direction of a coach was fixed at two hours a day. The new ruling, however, does not prevent individual players from going on the field and practicing punting and forward passing, but is designed to stop organized drills. The new rule will shorten most of the season in the western conference as many of the coaches have drilled their proteges three and four hours an afternoon.

Motion pictures may be taken of teams in action in games but they must not be used for scouting purposes, the directors ruled. In a few instances the movies have been slowed up and used to diagnose plays and formations.

Faculty representatives went into session tonight with indications that they might take action in regard to the situation presented by the case of Harold "Red" Grange in quitting school to play professional football.

DAVE SHADE AND LEONARD ARE AGAIN IN GOOD REPUTE

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—Jimmy Slattery, light-heavyweight of Buffalo, N. Y., and Johnny Leonard, featherweight, of Allentown, Pa., were reinstated, here today by the State Boxing commission, the former upon the exportation of a 30-day "sick leave" and the latter on the condition that he make his next appearance in this state at the New Manhattan Sporting club.

Slattery, Dave Shade and Eddie Huffman were challenged by Maxie Rosenblum of New York, who offered to fight any one of them for nothing at the Christmas Fund show Dec. 23. Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., announced his willingness to box at the same show at terms to be named by the commission.

Request was made that a benefit be staged for Young Griffo, Australian featherweight of bygone days, who has been rated by critics as the greatest defensive boxer in the history of pugilism. Griffo was represented as in financial need, and the board advised that the matter be taken up with boxing managers of the Metropolitan section individually.

HUGGINS IN MARKET FOR INFIELDERS AND PITCHERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(A. P.)—Announcing that he is in the market for infield and pitching material, Miller Huggins today indicated that he has already practically closed for a new second baseman to replace Aaron Ward in the Yankee lineup next season.

The New York American club pilot declined to disclose the name of the prospective new infielder, but did not deny it was one of the following four major league players: Spencer Adams, understudy of Bucky Harris on the Washington Senators; Marty McManus, of the St. Louis Browns; Leslie Burke, or Topper Rigney, Detroit Tigers.

Huggins said he was willing to break up his veteran pitching staff to improve the team. "No one can talk trade to me about Pennock or Shocker, but if I can add strength for any of the other twirlers I am ready to talk business," he said.

"No, I have not made an offer for Shinke, of the Red Sox. I am willing to talk trade with managers who have something to offer me, and I think I can tempt them with some pretty good material."

MISSOURI OFFICIALS PONDER OVER 1926 SCHEDULE DATES

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 4.—(A. P.)—Athletic officials of the Missouri Valley Conference wrestled all day with football dates for 1926 and tonight only three of the conference teams had completed their schedules, and these three each had an open date for some non-conference opponent.

The faculty representatives, with the example of "Red" Grange fresh in their minds, decided not to approve the invitation extended to Captain Ed Weir of the Nebraska team, to participate in a charity benefit game at San Francisco on Christmas day. Weir left the decision to the board of professors and they voted that his amateur standing in the valley conference would be adversely affected even though the players accepted nothing more than expenses.

AMATEUR BOXING DATES HAVE BEEN ANNOUNCED

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—(A. P.)—William H. Cuddy, chairman of the National A. A. U. Boxing commission, tonight announced that the national amateur boxing championships would be held here on April 5 and 6 and that the winners would sail on April 10 for an international exhibition in South America.

HARVARD'S ATHLETIC PROGRAMME RESULTS IN DEFICIT OF $88,000

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Harvard's 1924-25 athletic season resulted in a deficit of $88,000, it was revealed today in figures made public by Fred W. Moore, graduate treasurer of Harvard athletics, who acted in response to queries prompted by the publication of Yale's 1924-25 athletic report.

The crimson football receipts were $436,495 as compared with $690,372 for Yale. The Harvard net income was $356,000 and the net profit was $292,000. The report indicated that only 15 per cent of the football receipts were expended for the running expenses of the varsity and freshman teams, the other 85 per cent going chiefly to support minor athletic teams. The report of other sports at Harvard was not published, but the deficit was explained in the statement that the university had spent $167,000 for permanent improvements last year, including the reclamation of the last waste stretch of soldiers field, enlargement of the locker building and installation of additional equipment.

The gross from major and minor sports totalled $653,000, approximately $148,000 less than Yale's figures of $801,822.

NUTMEGS WILL PLAY LORRAINE TEAM SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon at Sachem Field, Falls, the Nutmegs will clash with the fast Lorraine football club of Westerly. Since the last meeting between these clubs, at which time Westerly emerged the winner by a 13 to 6 count, there has been a shake-up in both clubs so that Sunday practically two entirely new teams will face each other.

Westerly after suffering two straight reverses at the hands of the Speedboys and Tigers, are out to get the Nutmegs scalp. The following is the probable starting Lorraine line-up: c, Stillman; Debotlo and Lubanicci, guards; Robar and Richards, tackles; Carr and McKnight, ends; Thravernett, quarterback, Gavitt and Barker, halfbacks, and either Rossi or Leone, fullback.

Finister, Knowles, Kenyon and Lucrette will be on the sidelines available in case of emergency.

VETERAN HOCKEY PLAYER FORCED TO QUIT GAME

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Georges Vesina, veteran goal-keeper of the Montreal Canadian club of the National Hockey league and known as the "Chicoutimi Cucumber" for his coolness under playing fire, has been ordered out of the winter game permanently by his physican. Vesina, one of Canada's most prominent hockey men for the past eighteen years, is 44 years old and the father of seventeen children.

He was taken ill a few weeks ago with a bad cold. In striving to keep his serious condition from hockey fandom and his team mates on the Canadian teams, he had appeared in uniform at the league fixtures as late as Wednesday of last week, then, however, after playing only a brief part of the match, he had to be carried off the ice when, weakened by the effect of his ailment, he collapsed.

TOOLE WILL BE BITTERLY OPPOSED IN COMING ELECTION

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—(AP)—John Conway Toole, for the past five years president of the International Baseball league, will seek reelection at the annual meeting here Monday with the potent influences of the major leagues tossed into the list against him. Allied with the big league opposition is Samuel Robertson, owner of the Buffalo club, who will lead the faction against re-election of Toole inside the meeting.

Edward G. Darrow, business manager of the New York Yankees, has gone on record as being opposed to Toole and has lined up the Detroit Tigers in the battle to place the reins into new hands.

At the national association of professional baseball leagues' annual meeting at Hartford, Conn., last December, President Toole led the faction which compelled the majors to limit the number of players each club could send to the minors to eight instead of 15. Several major clubs, notably the Yankees and Tigers, have vigorously opposed Mr. Toole's stand.

Billy Evans, American league umpire and J. V. Jamieson, president of the Blue Ridge league, have been mentioned as possible successors to Mr. Toole but pre-meeting gossip points to the re-election of Mr. Toole by an overwhelming majority.

Mr. Toole, today, declined to discuss at length, the rumors of the major league opposition against him.

"I would rather not discuss this situation until after the meeting Monday," Mr. Toole said. "The majors are gunning for me because I have been told that I am considered the main stumbling block in the majors' path to restoring the 15 player optional agreement.

"When I was attorney for the National league, Commissioner Landis and other major league clubs, I considered it my duty to work, to the best of my ability, for their interests. For the last five years I have done this very thing for the International league and I have no apologies to make. The general good of baseball requires harmony but when agreements are made between majors and minors and rules formulated under them, they are presumably for the good of all and should be lived up to or amended by both majors or minors and not by one side alone."

Seven of the eight International league clubs are understood to be ready to support Toole in his fight with the majors.

WESLEYAN TO USE SLOW MOTION PICTURES IN COACHING

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Slow motion pictures of the Wesleyan-Williams game will be used to illustrate talks on football which are a part of the course in tactics of the game which fifty-five undergraduates are taking from Coach Sam Hill this winter.

The game was won by Wesleyan 10 to 0. The film was made with a camera owned by Dr. Edgar Fanver, professor of Physical Education, and by use of the pictures Coach Hill will point out defects in the game as well as the good points. There will be opportunity to enlarge in a descriptive way on the blocking, running, passing, tackling and handling of the ball during the game.

Football training in a class room was introduced this fall at Wesleyan, and the 55 men, fortified with Zuppke's book on tactics, meets twice a week. Outside training will come for six weeks in the spring.

TO ATTEMPT TO RID FOOTBALL OF ROUGHNESS

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Although members of the Eastern Association of Football Officials here tonight, admitted that the rules of the gridiron game had been perfected "almost to the nth degree" they agreed that much unnecessary roughness remains to be eliminated. A few deaths and many injuries during the past season indicated clearly that recommendations to the football rules committee are required, speakers at the meeting maintained.

Need for elimination of dangers on the gridiron has become more pressing, it was pointed out by Harry Von Kersburg, of Harvard, "because of the fact that football is becoming more and more the national game, and in addition to its widespread popularity, is now one of the most scientific sports."

Broda was one of the outstanding wingmen in the east this fall and has received mention from many sport writers and coaches for the mythical All-Eastern eleven.

No Game at Jewett City Sunday

Sports Ed: Surely the Westerly Panthers were taking a lot for granted when they stated that they were to play at Jewett City Sunday. The Speedboys closed their season two weeks ago and have settled down for the winter. We are sorry we cannot meet Westerly again for although Jewett City beat them badly the first game Westerly deserved another chance. As it is we could pick up the same team and play but the condition of the field prohibits any football playing. Till next year—Au revoir. Mgr. Chas. Parkhurst.

Age in racehorses is always reckoned from the January of the year in which the horse is born. A horse, therefore, which was born at the beginning of December would be set down as a year old the following January, even though he had only been in this world a month.

One of the outstanding features of the English racing season now nearing its close has been the astonishing success of Jockey Gordon Richards, who has ridden more winners during the year than any other jockey. Not for many a year has a young rider made a bigger impression on the great race-going public, and many trainers predict that before long he will eclipse the achievements of riders like Fred Archer, Tod Sloan and the Reiff brothers.

COUNTY FARM BUREAU REPORTS BUSY AND INSTRUCTIVE YEAR

WALTER T. CLARK
County Agent

Morning and afternoon sessions Friday, with well filled programmes, furnished much of interest and value for the annual meeting of the New London County Farm bureau, which was held at the Buckingham Memorial. The attendance was over 100. President Imbert Fellows, of Norwich Town, was reelected to that office as were County Agent Walter T. Clark and Home Demonstration Agent Miss Gladys Stratton.

After President Fellows called the meeting to order at 11 o'clock, Secretary Arthur H. Davis, of Waterford, presented his report which was approved. The report of the treasurer, W. W. Service, of Preston, was also approved. This showed total receipts of $14,876.37, outstanding bills of $419.08, and balance of $2,822.92.

Home Demonstration Report

Miss Stratton's report of the home demonstration work was given with lantern slides. It showed 37 communities organized and seven junior clubs organized in the past year. Miss Stratton gave detailed report of the work carried on in the communities in the five main projects of work, which are clothing, millinery, nutrition, health, household management, with which is combined household engineering.

County Agent's Work

County Agent Clark also gave his report with the assistance of slides. Dairying and crop projects have been the two major lines of work in the year. There have been 47 pure bred sires, 11 pure bred females placed, one feeding school for grain dealers and cooperative managers; 100 milk sheets were placed on 12 farms, six farmers running contagious abortion tests.

In the junior work one country club had been organized while under farm manager one young farmers' club had been organized. Through this department 34 farm account books, 11 summarizing accounting, one field trip, 11 farmers changed their farming scheme as a result of the accounts.

Under the head of crops, potato crops, legumes, vegetables, fruit and poultry had been extensively gone into with individuals and groups as well in order that these crops might be better.

Under agricultural engineering some extensive improvements in drainage, etc., had been made at a few farms. Through the cooperative work the bureau had purchased 800 tons of fertilizer, lime and spraying material at a total saving of something over $5,350 to the farmers.

During the year the county agent had made 443 farm visits, attended 91 meetings, spent 92 days in the office and 165 days in the field.

Boys' and Girls' Clubs

Interesting reports on the boys' and girls' club work were made by Rose Norcross, of Ledyard, and George Woods, of Waterford. The young speakers acquitted themselves creditably in the way they presented their reports. The former told of the organization of her club and her trip to Storrs with other girls for the summer course, and the latter described his work among his own cattle and in keeping records of his father's herd. He also related his experiences in visiting the national dairymen's show and in judging, as he had been appointed one of the boys' state judges.

COFONI BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 4—During the regular session of Third District court in the court house, on Union street, Friday morning, the town solicitor's table had the appearance of a remnant counter in some department store, for it was piled high with many yards of various colored cloth, evidence before the court in case to come before it for cloth theft at the Bradford Dying association at Bradford. Outside the rail, the large number of spectators present somewhat resembled the counter rush.

Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., called the following:

Civil Docket, Ernest Boyington vs. Mary Cranston, alias. Action on book account, continued one week. Pawcatuck Hardware company vs. Vivian Barnet. Attorney Roche asked judgment for defendant. Continued. State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police of Westerly, complainant vs. Henry F. Narone of Wheeler's Crossing, manslaughter. Continued at request of Westerly Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., for two weeks. State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police, vs. James P. Cofoni. Marked ready. State, Thomas E. Brown, vs. Francisco Algiere. Marked ready. State, William L. Kay, deputy chief of police of Hopkinton, complainant vs. Albert N. Noel of Providence. Continued one week.

James P. Cofoni, 4 Marion street, 17 years of age, was the first case called by Judge Michael J. Turano. Cofoni is the alleged sender of a threatening letter to Otto Seidener, with intent to extort money, who on his previous arraignment, had pleaded not guilty. He was adjudged probably guilty by Judge Turano and bound over to the February term of Superior court for Washington county.

When the question of bail was considerd town solicitor moved that the amount be increased, saying that although it had been previously set at $2,000, the Westerly police department has had to contend with many such cases, and a more substantial bond required Judge Turano said that the penalty for the offense was a 2 year jail sentence or $500 fine.

Attorney Roche for the defendant told the court that the young man had never been in trouble before and the amount previously set, he thought, was amply sufficient.

"No increase, let it stay at the same amount as previously set, $2,000, bail," said Judge Turano.

The same security, the young man's father, Peter, and Dominic Perri of 88 oak street were continued as bondsmen.

Francisco Algiere, arraigned on complaint of Chief Brown, charged with the theft of 144 yards of cloth from the plant of the Bradford Dyeing association at Bradford, R. I., required the services of an interpreter. Joseph Guarino was sworn as interpreter, and the defendant entered a plea of guilty.

Town Solicitor Ferguson said that the complaining witness, A. Clifford Holdworth, superintendent of the B. D. A. plant, had his suspicions aroused and had seen the defendant tucking the cloth under his clothing. The police were called and taken to a house on Pierce street, it was found that the defendant had moved to another house. A visit there showed four trunks filled with cloth. The defendant had been employed as an outside man for some time at the Bradford plant, and at the noon hour had the opportunity to enter the plant and take cloth. The B. D. A. plant has the cloth on consignment and has on some occasions, as trustee for it, had to go into the outside market and purchase cloth which had been missing. As a lesson the complaining witness and police department would ask for a jail sentence.

Judge Turano said that a lesson ought to be taught those who were inclined to steal cloth, but as this was a first offense and the man had no wife or children, he was going to give the man a chance by not imposing a jail sentence, but would impose a severe fine. He sentenced him to pay a fine of $150 and costs which amounted to $158.60, which the defendant made arrangements to pay.

Previous to the regular session of court a number of juvenile offenders were heard, the complaint against them being from the South County Public Service company, that many electric light lamps had been broken, and it was the company's desire that the practice be stopped.

At the state armory on Dixon street this (Saturday) evening will be held a prize drill by the members of the 243rd R. I. C. A. C. (H. D.) of which company Capt. John F. Datson is the commander. Besides the medal which will be awarded, cash prizes of $10, $5 and $2.50 will be presented to the winners.

HORSE BREAKS WAY OUT OF BURNING BARN

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 4—With a loss estimated between $5,000 and $6,000 fire on Friday morning, which was discovered about 4.45 o'clock by Capt. Horace Sisson, entirely destroyed two barns, a shed, corn crib and outbuilding on the Pawcatuck river bank, off Washington avenue, the property of Andrew Lanphear. Among the loss was a quantity of hay, the property of James Lynch, and a new Oldsmobile sedan, the property of Mrs. M. Walter Flynn, Jr. A horse which was tied in the barn and belonged to Edward Kenyon of the Foster farm fortunately made its escape. Trunks with their contents stored in the barn, the property of William Sisson, of Block Island were also lost. The automobile and building loss was generally covered by insurance.

M. Walter Flynn, Jr., reported putting the automobile in the barn shortly after 11 p. m., when he retired to his home a short distance away, and everything was all right at the time. The origin is unknown there being no wiring in the barn. When Capt. Sisson was aroused by the reflection in his bedroom window the alarm 33 was sounded on the Westerly fire bell. Westerly Fire Chief Egger and firemen, together with the Ahrens-Fox pumper and Alert Hook and Ladder truck responded. The wet weather proved the salvation of the house against which the wind took the sparks from the burning building.

Word was sent to the Pawcatuck Fire department and Engineer Pierce Morrison turned in whistle fire alarm from Box 52, corner of West Broad and Moss street, to summons the members of the P. S. Barber Hose company. The best that the firemen could do at the blaze was to watch out for sparks, as great headway had been gained by the flames before their arrival.

The escape of the horse from the barn, in which all the doors were fastened, appeared a mystery, until the horse's hoof prints were found on soft ground at the rear of the barn, where a doorway next to the stall must have been kicked open as the horse thrashed about the barn. The next prints were some distance, where the second bound carried the 27-year old horse and then they led over an adjoining stone wall.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

ELKS

In unison with Elks lodges all over the country on Sunday, Norwich Lodge, No. 430, will observe its annual Lodge of Sorrow in memorial for those members who have died. This year the observance will be held at Broadway theater at 2:30 in the afternoon. The members are to meet at the Elks home at 2 o'clock in order to march from there in a body to the theater. The memorial address will be by Bro. James Hammond of New London lodge and the music will be by the Colonial Male Quartette of Hartford. The officers of the lodge will conduct the customary ritual and the members will be seated in the theater in a special section of reserve seats. Admission tickets for the distribution to their friends have been given to members of the lodge.

ODD FELLOWS

Mrs. William E. Wright, of East Hampton, widow of Rev. W. E. Wright, who was a member of the Odd Fellows for 44 years, has given a Windsor chair 185 years old for the new Odd Fellows' building at Fairview, Groton. The chair, which once belonged to Samuel Young, Mr. Wright's great-great-grandfather, was presented to the home in fulfillment of one of Mr. Wright's last requests before his death.

RED MEN

Mohegan Tribe, No. 64, met in Steiner hall, Wednesday, with James R. Connell, Sachem, presiding.

The entertainment committe reported a very successful entertainment held on the occasion of the fourth anniversary, Nov. 21, with many members present.

Under nominations of Chiefs, the following were named: Sachem, Adelard J. Gauthier; senior sagamore Johnston B. Banfield and Henry S. Kiecolt; junior sagamore, Harold Wickham; prophet, James R. Connell; chief of records, George F. Farrell; collector of Wampum, Daniel A. Deane; keeper of wampum, Joseph A. George; trustee for three years, Rufus D. Harris; representative to Great Council, Raymond N. Harris; alternate, E. E. Bullard.

Announcement was made that the next meeting of the New London-Middlesex Counties' Red Mens' association, would be held in New London, Tuesday, December 8, in Music Hall, Bank street, when Arawanna Tribe of Middletown will work a degree. All members of the Red Men in this section are cordially invited to attend.

Mohegan Tribe voted to attend, and a number of brothers signified their intention of being present.

Several members spoke on the subject of increasing attendance at meetings and a plan for so doing is to be brought up at a later meeting.

LADIES OF MACCABEES

On December 8-10 the Ladies of The Maccabees, one of the pioneer women's fraternal benefit orders in the United States, will hold a special national convention in Detroit to vote on consolidating with the Maccabees, the men's international fraternal order of that name.

The proposed merger has been under consideration by the officials of both societies for some time and will, its propenents state, result in eliminating much duplication of effort, reduce the overhead expense of both societies, and effect a stronger and more serviceable organization to the mutual benefit of the members of both.

While there is not and never has been any direct connection between the Ladies of The Maccabees and The Maccabees, they have been practically brother and sister societies with parallel interests ever since the organization of the latter in 1891, practically the only distinction being that one was made up exclusively of men and the other of women. The way was paved for a possible amalgamation last June when The Maccabees began to admit women to membership, organizing the first "hive" or women's lodge in Washington, D. C., on June 1.

The Maccabees at present have a membership, of approximately 200,000 and the Ladies of The Maccabees 50,000, and if the merger is effected there will be one of the largest fraternal benefit associations in the country. The Maccabees' assets, according to W. P. Coler, actuary, are in excess of $25,000,000 and the Ladies of The Maccabees have reserves of approximately $2,700,000. While the former operate on the American Experience mortality table at rates slightly higher than those paid by members of the ladies' society, annual refunds of excess earnings over cost reduce The Maccabees' net rates to approximately the same level.

The Maccabees extended the invitation to the merger, A. W. Frye, supreme commander of that society, states, but will take no part officially in the Ladies of The Maccabees' convention and vote on the proposal except as their supreme officers may be invited to address the meeting. If it appears to the mutual interests of the members of both societies, The Maccabees will be glad to consolidate but will make no effort to influence the decision. If the vote of the Ladies' convention is favorable, The Maccabees will hold a special supreme review to vote on ratification of the merger some time in January.

The Maccabees is one of the oldest and strongest fraternal benefit associations in America, organized in 1878, and has 4,000 lodges operating in every state of the Union and province of Canada with the exception of South Carolina and Massachusetts. The Ladies of The Maccabees, the bulk of whose membership is in the middle western states, were organized in 1891 as a separate society but closely related in name and interests. Both societies have juvenile departments composed of the children of members.

JUNIOR AMERICAN MECHANICS

At the last meeting of Buckingham council, No. 14, held Wednesday evening at Cadillac hall, much important business was transacted with Fred B. Shappee presiding. It was voted to hold another box social with masquerade and dance, sometime soon. It is understood prizes will be given at this affair.

A short while ago the Buckingham boys motored, by bus, to New Britain, and worked a degree for Chamberlain council, No. 2. After the meeting they enjoyed a fine supper, followed by a fine speech from each of the state board of officers.

The Buckingham boys were presented a handsome silk American flag, costing $100, for the largest net gain in membership, in the state of Connecticut, for the year and the boys are already working hard in order to get the mate to it. This is the third consecutive year that they have made the largest net gain in membership in the state.

Next Wednesday, Dec. 9, the degrees will be worked and a large class of candidates is to be initiated. The Dusty Knights will hold their degrees at Odd Fellows' hall, New London Saturday, Dec. 5th.

Several of the members expect to attend a supper and sale to be held at Buckingham Memorial on Saturday, Dec. 5th., from five to seven, which will be given by the Daughters of America.

FINED FOR DRIVING PAST STANDING TROLLEY

A fine of $25 and costs was imposed on Paul Flagelli of No. 102 Talman street by Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Friday morning, the charge being passing a standing trolley car in violation of the motor vehicle laws. Flagelli was arrested after a complaint had been lodged with City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins by officials of the trolley company.

A trolley car in charge of Conductor Arthur Ladd and on which J. H. Cruthers, an inspector for the trolley company, was a passenger, stopped Wednesday afternoon on West Thames street to allow Miss Rose Standish, an N. F. A. student to alight. Miss Standish had just stepped off the car when a Chevrolet truck operated by Flagelli at a speed of about 30 miles an hour, passed by, it is said. The conductor called to Miss Standish to watch out for the automobile.

Inspector Cafuthers got the number of the machine with the result that the driver was summoned to court. Miss Standish corroborated the testimony of the trolley men. The accused stated that he saw the girl get off the car and as he noticed that she headed for the rear of the trolley car, he kept on going as the coast was clear.

City Attorney Robbins stated that complaints have been made of automobiles passing standing trolley cars on West Thames street, especially in the neighborhood of the Thamesville school house. In imposing the fine of $25 and costs, Judge Libby called attention to the fact that a second offense can be penalized by a fine of $500.

The strongest propensity of a woman's nature is to want to know everything that is going on, and the second is to boss the job.

CLARK'S FALLS

The funeral services for Edwin Prentice Chapman were held in Clark's Falls chapel, Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 24th, at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. E. P. Mathewson of Ashaway, pastor of the First Baptist church, of this town. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends from Westerly, Providence Mystic, Oneco and Pendleton Hill. There were beautiful flowers, a blanket bouquet of roses from the family and a spray of roses from the Young People's society. The bearers were Elbert W. Clark, Ernest D. Chapman, Herbert Bill and Alfred Clark. Interment was in River Bend cemetery, where committal service was read by Rev. E. P. Mathewson.

Mr. Chapman was one of the leading men of the town and at one time represented the town in the legislature. He was highly esteemed in business, where he had many admiring friends. Mr. Chapman taught school in several places when a young man and married Caroline Whitford in Sterling, Conn. There were three children, Ernest D., now past master in this village, Arthur E., who passed away in Providence, and Adelaide C., wife of Elbert W. Clark, with whom he made his home in his last days. Mrs. Chapman passed away and was buried on Pendleton Hill. Her remains have been removed to River Bend cemetery.

Thanksgiving was observed by Mr. and Mrs. John B. Perry, at their home west of the village. Their son, Maurice, wife and daughter, were home, also their son, Oscar, and wife, and two sons, of New Haven.

The Ladies' Aid society met on Wednesday afternoon and tied quilt. They intend to meet next week also.

Charles Palmer is improving the roads in this part of the town.

Automobile Not Damaged.

H. A. Maiman, whose machine was one of those involved in the three cornered accident near the Starr Sullivan farm on the Colchester road on Tuesday night, stated Friday evening that his machine was not damaged. He said that when the stray horse appeared suddenly on the highway the machine in front of him stopped suddenly and that he swung to the right to avoid hitting it. In doing so his machine turned around on the road so that his headlights blinded the third driver, back of him.

Never put off until tomorrow the enemy you can whip today.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week work on the trestle for the new Shetucket river bridge was started by a corps of workmen, and a good part of the trestle work was raised during the week. The New London County Historical society held its annual meeting that week in New London. The week was a rather quiet one in Norwich, as little out of the ordinary occurred to disturb the peace of the citizens. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of 1875 are as follows:

Monday, Nov. 29, 1875—A large and interesting meeting in behalf of Sunday school work and devoted particularly to children and parents was held Saturday afternoon at the Central Baptist church. Addresses were made by the Rev. Messrs. Davies, Stanton, Palmer, Dana and others.

The New London County Historical society holds its annual meeting today in the council chamber in New London. The annual address will be delivered in the conference room by the Rev. E. B. Huntington of South Coventry. Subject, Lieut. Thomas Leffingwell, a pioneer in the settlement of New London county.

Ex-Captain Lathrop of Company C, by request of Captain McCord, has been drilling the company in bayonet exercise. The officers and men are much pleased with the new manual clock made for them by Mr. Konsalik.

Tuesday, Nov. 30, 1875—The polar wave has got east.

Henry U. Moore is appointed postmaster at South Coventry.

The new boiler and engine room have been set in at the Hood Pistol Works, which has now one of the neatest engine rooms in the country.

The Shetucket Bank has declared a semi-annual dividend of four per cent. payable on or after December 6th.

It is feared that the sudden cold snap may interfere with the volunteer inspectors at the coffer dam from getting round to draw their salaries regularly. The doubt will cause sadness in many homes.

The frame work of the winter roof of the new Catholic church on Broadway has been put up.

Wednesday, Dec. 1, 1875—Since its establishment here, the Norwich Pistol Company has received good offers to remove to other places, but the managers like Norwich and prefer to remain here.

Officer Irish went to Hartford yesterday and brought back Robert Barry, the sneak thief, who stole two overcoats from the house of Asa Nash last week. Both coats were recovered. Barry is an old offender and was arrested in Hartford for theft.

There was a good attendance at the union meeting at the Park chapel last evening. The Rev. Mr. Howard presided and remarks were made by the Rev. Messrs Davies, Palmer, Dana, Stanton and others.

The Universalist church has called the Rev. L. P. Blackford of Cuba, N. Y., to its pulpit. Mr. Blackford has supplied the pulpit for the last three weeks with much acceptance and the call was a unanimous one.

Thursday, Dec. 2, 1875—Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Douglass, of Montville, celebrated their silver wedding Monday night. About 60 of their friends were present and left numerous and valuable presents. The anniversary was closed with a supper and dance.

A delegation from the Quinnipiac Engine company, of Fair Haven, are expected here this week to visit the Blackstone Hose and the Nameaug Engine company of New London, between whom and them a very cordial friendship exists.

John Murray closed a three nights' engagement in Breed hall last evening, with one of his best plays, The Man Without a Country. We regret that he did not meet with better success as circumstance attributable largely to the inclement weather.

Work on the new trestle for the new Shetucket bridge will probably be begun today, having been delayed thus far by the absence of the necessary tools and machinery required for raising it. It will not be necessary, however, for the inspectors to get around before tomorrow.

Friday, Dec. 3, 1875—The Thames was frozen over hard and fast yesterday, though the City of Lawrence, which came up in the morning, met with difficulty in reaching her wharf. After her passage down at night, the channel which she made skimmed over rapidly. In the afternoon the boys were skating all along the river, near the wharves and shores.

The improvements on the organ of the Second Congregational church, which have been in progress for the past few weeks, are nearly completed and the organ will be publicly exhibited this afternoon between two and three o'clock. A number of the best organists in the city will be present and give the audience some good music.

The annual masquerade of the Nameaug Engine company, is the event of the season which interests more Norwich people than anything else. It takes place Friday evening, December 10th., and will be attended by a large party from here.

The first trestle for the new Shetucket bridge was set up yesterday. We regret to notice that the corps of inspectors were not on duty in force as usual.

One of the new horse cars has come to grief already, having been considerably injured in a collision with a coal cart in Greeneville.

Saturday, Dec. 4, 1875—Mr. Kies, organist at the Park church, exhibited the Second church organ yesterday afternoon in the presence of about a hundred auditors. This organ was presented to the society by the late Joseph Otis and was first set up in January, 1846.

When the present owners of the horse railroad franchise and property came into possession of it, under the sale authorized by the legislature, there was so long a delay, before any steps were taken to improve the track and increase the equipment that the public began to feel that no material changes for the better would take place. But subsequent action has proved that this fear was groundless. After Mr. West the present superintendent, had made a careful examination of what was demanded for the preservation of the property and for the accommodation of the public he entered at once into negotiations with the city and town authorities for the raising, filling and otherwise repairing of the tracks to Norwich Town and Greeneville and since then has put both branches of the road in proper repair and placed on them new, neat and commodious cars. It is every day becoming more and more apparent that the horse railroad is an institution that the citizens of Norwich cannot well dispense with.

Several trestles were raised for the new Shetucket bridge, yesterday, the men working on the ice. We are glad to notice that a large and efficient corps of inspectors was present.

MISSIONS DEPARTMENT HEARD THREE INTERESTING REPORTS

With the chairman, Miss Nancy Lucas, presiding, the monthly meeting of the missions department of the Woman's Guild of the United Congregational church, was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Community house. The usual business was transacted and there were interesting reports on the annual meeting of the Woman's Board at Brooklyn, N. Y. The reports were given by Mrs. William Zumbro, Miss Elizabeth Huntington and Miss Mary Lucas. Following the meeting tea was served with Miss Clara Griswold in charge.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

President Coolidge

Calvin Coolidge, President!
Was it written in the stars?
Did God whisper His intent
To the dreamy lad who learnt
On the weather pasture bars?
Did the little boy in school
Know that some day he should rule?

Did the gentle mother know
Something others never knew
In that happy long ago,
Him she loved and cherished so
Had a mighty work to do?
Did God ever let her see
Little Calvin's destiny?

Did God whisper: "Train him well,
Teach him to be strong and true,
For some day a tolling bell
To a sorrowing world shall tell
Why this son was sent to you?"
Did God tell her ere she went
She had borne a President?

Calvin Coolidge, President!
Once a lad behind a plough,
Whistling gayly as he went,
With his humble place content,
And a mighty ruler now
Surely 'tis God's hand we see
In a great man's destiny.

The Village Postmistress

She greets the public with a smile
And laughs and jokes, and all the while
She's licking stamps for Uncle Sam
And many another worthy man.

She stamps the letters by the score
And reads everybody's postals o'er and o'er.
And shuts the everlasting door,
And combs her hair in pompadour.

She tells the gossip through the town
And sends it flying all around
And spreads the news from far and near
To many a waiting, listening ear.

She knows the people's pedigree,
Knows every name from A to Z.
Can read the writing on the wall—
And that's because she knows it all.

She answers all the questions asked,
About the future and the past;
She tells you when the mail comes in
And when the mail goes out again.

And though her patience oft is tried
Her deeds condemned, her words belied,
She buries all beneath the past
And serves the public to the last.

Some day her ship will come in turn
Bringing a mail with stamps to burn.
And we no more her face shall see
Or hear her voice.

Or clasp her hand within our own.
We could but wish she'd longer tarried
But such is life—
She'd not married.

The Difference

The weather is colder
Than ever before,
My feet are too tired,
And my throat is too sore
The work is too hard,
The lessons too long,
The sums are too puzzling,
And everything's wrong:
Ashew and aslant,
When little Miles Brown,
With a puckery frown,
Says "I can't! Oh, I can't!"

The weather is perfect,
The loveliest day,
His feet are so light,
And his heart is so gay!
The lessons are studied,
The sums are all done,
The ball has been carried,
The errands are run,
And all goes as smooth'ly
As water down hill.
When dear little Miles
Wears the brightest of smiles
And says "I will! Yes, I will!"

Changeable Styles

Our styles are ever changing in words
As well as clothes;
Just why it's done is really more than any mortal knows.
We say semester nowadays—we used to call it term—
The whooping cough's not catching now, it comes by way of germs.
Examinations are unknown—our children take a test—
Perhaps you like the modern ways—
I like the old styles best.

When I was young, my mother's hand
oft laid upon my brow
To learn if I had fever; but the style is different now.
The doctor comes and puts a tube beneath my tongue, to see How high the mercury will run, and then he frightens me
By missing up a lot of dope—I'm out of date I know—
But I like the way my mother did in days of long ago.

But on your stylish cruises and struggles of Italy and France;
about and prance,
Learn how to speak the foreign tongues of Italy and France;
Pretend to be what you are not and choose each latest fad—
And tax your purse to keep space with styles both good and bad;
But give to me the simple life which made men strong and true—
I'll take the genuine—the old—and you may have the new.

At Close of Day

God saw his daughter weary ere the close of day;
Her hands were tired from labor
wrought full well
Her loyal heart, so strong to live and love and pray,
Beat faintlier as the evening shadows fell.
"Are you so tired, my child?" the loving Father said.
You need no longer tread earthly road,
Come lay upon my everlasting arms
your head,
And put aside at last the heavy load.
Faithful you've been through all the hours I gave to you.
And rounded well what I put in your hands to keep.
Now yours be the rest and peace prepared for hearts that are true.
At close of day I give my beloved sleep.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

Ilse: F: Many thanks. Delicious.
PRIDE AIR: Cards sent as requested.

CRETIA VISITS AROUND

Dear Corner Friends:—As M. was going into Hartford for electrical supplies last Saturday I accepted the invitation, and went into a few of the many stores—filled with pretty fabrics—for one piece in particular and ventured to inquire price per yard, ten dollars. Hard at times to keep from yielding to temptation in the dry goods line as in the wet. Went into 5 and 10 store and soon decided to get out if I could and if Thanksgiving is over, I felt very thankful to be outside again. I recently received a card intended for my birthday which the sender believed to be on Oct. 31—picture of black cat on it—saying or reading "The black cat will get you." My birthday is on April 2—now I'm trying to decide whether the card was late or early. What say you friends?

Kochie: I do live on a pleasant street in the "Thread City." I am not good at guessing. Never in your place but twice. As the fellow said, "Do not keep me in suspense."

Anna Z: Certainly you have good control of your nerves. That canning represented hard and patient work, regardless of the financial part. Glad you saved the other fruits of your labor. You'll undoubtedly look well to supports in the future.

Recently son had occasion to go to Plainville for electrical supplies at Trumbull Electric Mfg. Co., and being only a few miles from Southington M. said we would have dinner there. We patronized one of their restaurants and went on to Mrs. O., then asked to be taken to "Long Glove's" and Whirlwind's. Found the former had gone to the shore but did not ascertain whether for the day or winter. Concluded "Whirlwind" must be with her—so thought we would return by Meriden and encountered the worst holdup ever—as to time and conditions.

Balsam Fir: Is the quilt completed containing special blocks? The evening of Nov. 28, called on Ella S., in Hanover. We all enjoy her company. All painted up (I mean house and barn). We then went to Norwich and spent the evening at 17 Penobscot St., and were refreshed with sweet cider of tender age. Two young misses were there, and one recited to us in a clear voice the piece she had at school pertaining to the Pilgrims.

The conditions of road in Franklin is not pleasing, two autos being beside the road broken. We reached home safely.

Two years ago, Buttercup and her husband were given a surprise by relatives and friends, it being the 50th anniversary of their married life. Since then her provider has built one two-tenement house and sold it, built a bungalow for themselves and are occupying it and now started on another bungalow. How is this for a young couple?

"Elmira" is busy as I can not help seeing red, white—no blue, but black hair hanging from the window of the room she occupies swaying in the breeze. It is not surprising there are many bald heads in her vicinity.

Pleasant Guest had dinner with us on Nov. 26, and then went to ride, and enjoyed the ice cream as well as "Cretia" for which accept our thanks.

May you members of the Corner have a "Merry Christmas" is the sincere wish of

BROIL HAM AFTER BOILING

Dear Sisters: The bones skin and liquid in which the ham is boiled, I use to make soup stock, mixing it of course, with stock made from beef. Properly cooked it keeps well and when used judiciously makes a tasty addition to all vegetable soup.

In selecting note the skin should be thin, of a delicate red, juicy, firm and finely grained. If the skin is thick the pig is old; if gummy the pig is stale; if the fat is yellow and soft the pig is not what it should be.

Whatever cut one buys, however it is cooked, it must be thoroughly done. Rare pork is not only wholly indigestible but it is positively dangerous.

With cured ham the case is different. Fried or broiled ham should always be boiled first. It is not only more economical, but it is more wholesome; and as for taste well broiled ham is one of the most popular dishes.

For boiled ham there is no comparison between the ham that is boiled, then cut into dainty thin slices and broiled, and the ham that is cut raw. The same is the case of fried ham. If housekeepers would try boiling their ham before broiling or frying I am sure they would never go back to the old way. When a ham is boiled before broiled you can use every morsel of it.

All the little bits and shreds of ham left after slicing can be used for omelets and a dozen other popular dishes. The fat, when there is too much, is placed where it is cold, or in the refrigerator, and is used in stews and to season many meats and vegetables. It is always an improvement to poultry and when fried with liver gives a relish that nothing else will.

Baked potatoes that have been left over from a meal are, as a rule, no good for future use; but, if mashed while still warm, milk and butter, also salt, added and the mixture beaten till light they will be delicious heated for another meal.

Uncooked Fudge: One half pound sweet chocolate 1 tablespoon butter, 2 eggs well beaten, 1 cup confectioner's sugar. Melt chocolate and add butter, beat eggs add the sugar to them and mix well, add melted butter and chocolate slowly.

Gelatin Candy: Three quarters cup water, 2 tablespoons gelatine, 2 cups sugar, flavoring and coloring. Soak the gelatine in 1-4 cup of water for 10 minutes. Bring sugar, three-quarters cup of water to boiling point add gelatine (boil without stirring) until it forms a firm ball when dropped in cold water. Remove from fire, add coloring and desire flavoring. Do not beat the candy. Pour into a cold pan. When stiff cut and roll in powdered sugar.

Dear Sisters of the Corner: Just a few lines to say as many others have said, I do enjoy the Corner and have received a lot of good from it. I am going to pass on one of my ideas.

First of all, I am a lover of pretty cards and whenever I visit a store where they have cards I buy a variety such as birthday, friendship, and cards particularly for a sick friend. Then I have a memorandum book wherein are the birthday dates of relatives and friends, and when a birthday is due, I have a pretty card to send right in the house, and how nice it is to remember. Friends with a friendship card now and then as so many of us haven't the time to write letters. I think it binds friendship, and is there anything in life more worthwhile than friendship?

MY TRIP TO MONTREAL

Dear Editor and Sisters: I have enjoyed so much the accounts of your trips and vacations, I wonder if you would not like to hear something of my trip to Montreal.

To tell you all I saw on the way up and back would take much space so I shall try to tell you just about the time spent in Canada. We took two days in going the 400 miles it is from here. Over the Mohawk trail, along Lake Champlain through the Green mountains, across the road on the isles in the lake is all so beautiful.

We were driving along very quietly when all of a sudden there seemed to be a little excitement. All the cars were stopping on being stopped, so of course we stopped, too. There beside the road was a low wooden structure over the entrance of which was U. S. Customs. So this was the custom house. Not very official looking but nevertheless there it was. We received the necessary papers to allow us to enter the great dominion. Soon we crossed the line (without knowing it) and stopped at the Canadian customs house where our papers were O.Ked, so now we could travel in Canada without any trouble.

They say Quebec is the poorest province of Canada. Surely it is poor. The people, houses and farms show it. As we neared Montreal we could see the St. Lawrence river with a long bridge spanning it, the Victoria bridge, nearly two miles long. Over it is the road, trolley tracks and steam railway. After crossing the bridge we were in the city. As we entered, it had the appearance of being very dirty, but, as you may know, Montreal is a city of different levels. The higher up, the cleaner and nicer it is. Arriving late in the evening we were unable to obtain accomodations at any of the hotels so we took rooms at a private rooming house kept by a little French lady.

The next morning we began to look around the city. First, we visited it's largest linen shop. All the linens are imported from Ireland. Of course, we wanted to go up Mt. Royal. Cars are not allowed there so we went in a victoria a funny kind of carriage. From the top of the mountain is a wonderful view of the city, the river and the Green mountains 96 miles away. We were gone about two hours and when we returned we did good justice to dinner at a real French restaurant.

After dinner we took a sight-seeing bus around the city. The guide pointed out all the places of interest and we were allowed to visit some of them. We saw everything from the dominion prison to the Notre Dame cathedral. The cathedral is a beautiful structure with a seating capacity of 15,000. We stopped at the largest fur house in the world. Everything one could think made of fur. Even overstuffed furniture upholstered in fur. We passed McGill university, Victoria hospital and the homes of many officials, railroad president and so on. Montreal has many monuments and parks, memorials of noted generals.

On our sight seeing trips we passed through Woodmont, the city within Montreal. Woodmont is the only "dry" city in the province but our guide explained that the houses had "large cellars." In Montreal they serve all kinds of drinks with the meals if you like it. I have always been very temperate so thought I wouldn't spoil my reputation by bringing home a red nose.

We had only one whole day to spend in Montreal but one could easily spend a week and not see half.

We left early the next morning and took two days to return home. We came down through New York and the beautiful Adirondacks, stopping at Ausable chasm, Saratoga Springs, on down the Hudson and—but I must'nt tell you about that now. It was all wonderful and I hope you all can take the trip sometime, but see if you don't join with me in three cheers for old Connecticut. Home always looks best to me.

May I have a pin? Thank you.

Yours for the Corner.

MATERIALS FOR CURTAINS.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I presume some of the Corner members and readers would be pleased to read a little about material for curtains.

The selecting of curtain material after all is a matter of fancy, for the market is full of beautiful and suitable textures appropriate for each month in the year. Of course the colder months a greater license in warmer tones can be given than for other seasons, when lighter and thinner fabrics are required.

In no age has the cotton texture ever had so wide a field for decorations. There are warm and tender tones of the craftsman's canvas; we have sturdy, durable and rich tints in burlaps for the cold weather; we have simple patterns in open mesh, mercerized cottons for the bedroom; we have laces in all weaves, Swiss designs without number, madras in any color, mateens of beautiful colorings, scrim in different shades of cream, suitable for stenciling; each one in as good a pattern as those of imported makes.

The glazed chints cretonne still hold their own. Although not new, there are still slight variations from time to time in these picturesque cottons. In one we find flowers and birds, in another blossoms and garden roses cleverly portrayed on a pure white background. In cretonne we have conventionalized patterns that are wonderfully charming, all full of that home atmosphere which makes a room so inviting and cheery. If desired, the furniture—that is the chairs — the lounge and the utility boxes and the same conveniences women are so proud of—can be covered with this brilliant upholstery. In dressing the windows the cretonnes should not be overfull but be pushed back to form a light drapery for either side of the window's woodwork. To give it a dainty appearance the sash curtains of Swiss in a delicate pattern can be looped back with a white cord and tassel, or ruffled bands. If the place is utilized as a bed room the brass bed may have a valance of this picturesque texture and a coverlid of this same chintz or cretonne, trimmed on all edges with a white braid, or if preferred a pretty cotton fringe. Long lines give height to a low-studded room.

Yellow is always good. Every sort of yellow tint is employed in the dressing for walls. Some times there are two-toned yellows which assume a placid effect. Sometimes there are stripes of light and dark yellows. For rooms of this color white madras is pretty for draperies in broad stripes of rich yellow on which tiny blossoms of other shades form the decoration. These stripes are cut the length of the drapery and a lace insertion set in, and to finish the edge of the curtain a lace of the same design. You can have a deep frill at the top hung on separate brass rods. These curtains can fall straight or be tied back with a yellow satin ribbon.

Much depends in the selection of curtain materials on the position of the room itself, whether they are for a southern exposure or for a room with a north light. Each one of these places may have many possibilities. For the southern exposure the cool shades and restful tones are required. The rich green and delft blue are charming tones; both are cheerful and a good tonic for the nerves. If green is selected for the color scheme a grass or tea is beautiful and made so by a banding of white blossoms with their green leaves. Chrysanthemums, daisies, white roses or lilies give a perfect decoration for this plan. These bandings can be cut and appliqued on, and then be outlined with a pure white embroidery silk. If green is not desired nothing is more restful than a delft blue which is so clean and cool and so neat in appearance. If the room is desired in this Dutch tint a paper of the same tone can cover the walls, and the chairs and the like can be covered in the same delightful color. The draperies for the windows and doors are excellent in mercerized cotton, in a design of windmill or landscape scenes usually found in these Holland colors. As a finish found on the edge of these curtains a white braid is very suitable or a cream fringe looks extremely well on this cool tint. The curtains are made so short now—unless you wish to have them tied back—I like the little tiny ruffles on the white muslin curtains.

I think for a north light if the yellow tint is made the picturesque color scheme you will find a warm and sunny tone and heat there is cheer within even if it is dark and gloomy without.

Among the simple forms I think stenciling takes a prominent place and the process so easily done and understood is within reach of any woman.

Stencil plates for ready use can be obtained for small sums and are accompanied by directions for their use. It is a very simple process to arranke over any chosen material and to brush over with a dye or diluted paint to give the desired color, but there is a keen pleasure in creating our own design and many women prefer to make their plates from heavy cardboard.

It is necessary only to draw or trace the design on the cardboard then to place them on a hard surface preferably a sheet of ordinary window glass, and cut it out with a sharp knife, taking care to have smooth edges.

Dye colors are best for the amateur, as only fast tones are wanted to give beautiful results. The decoration can be applied on a thin or heavy material with equal success. Ordinarily plain scrim which is so soft and pliable and hangs so beautifully, becomes an artistic curtain when stencilled with old blue, brown or green or whatever might suit the room in some simple conventional border, which may be narrow or wide as the design calls for. Mercerized fabrics are excellent for this treatment and sateens which are lovely in shades and can be obtained in almost every color makes a beautiful background while even the more costly fabrics may be treated in the same manner.

Heavy linen crash, stenciled with a design of fleur-de-lis in reddish brown makes the portiere for a studio. In fact the sugestion once given means possibilities without number for the art is one that requires no special training, only neatness, care and precision—combined with an eye for color.

GREETINGS FROM BONIE

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Here I am again just like bad weather and it is certainly raining outdoors. I missed meeting with you Dec. 2 but will try to see you all at the next meeting. I would like to visit Club No. 5 at the Ruckingham if they would hold their meeting on another day but when I go I feel that I should go to Club No. 2 as that was the one I joined but would like to visit the other one seeing there are old friends of mine who are going to the other club. Mary Ann Friendly said she had a very pleasant time at the meeting.

Ora: How is hubby? Hope he is feeling better?

Chocolate: Thanks for bringing the purse. It would have been a great loss if she had not found it again.

Effie M: Where are you keeping your self? And Student are you alive and well?

Priscilla: Although living in Hartford we would like to hear from you. Have you learned to dance the Charleston? If so will you teach me? But on second thought I don't think I will learn. I was reading in the paper that it was making the buildings shaky so I will leave that to the slim ladies for it is no place for Calla Lily, Wetona, Tiger Lily or myself. We will have to be contented with the Virginia reel.

I will have to stop or I will be getting too personal and the editor will throw this in the waste basket and if I'm good he might remember me with a pin.

Hope all the sick are on the gain.

BONIE.

Another Birthday Suggestion

Dear Social Corner Sisters:—Thanksgiving has come and gone and didn't we have a beautiful day. I hope most of the sisters enjoyed it as much as Bob White, Betsey Bray and I did. We went out to dinner and had a delightful day. I presume everybody is busy as bees now-adays, the days are so short, getting up from the breakfast table and starting right in getting dinner. But it wont be long now before the days begin to lengthen. How the time does fly! Biddy: Your letter was good, especially where the soup-plates came in. Keep up guessing.

Happy go Lucky: For breakfast this morning had Johnny cake made from your recipe, was fine. Come again, and perhaps Zany will send in a good recipe.

Anna Z: You sure had a big not little, surprise. It would take me almost forever to get over it. Though you were lucky not to lose the rest of them.

Double Fuschia: You suggest observing the birthdys. Why not have a small table set aside and when a cake, pie or salad and so forth is handed in and it looks especially nice like a birthday goody, put it on this table, and all sisters that have a birthday that month be seated at that table, and call it the birthday table. They can also help with the entertainment. What say! Hope those out of health are more comfortable if not wholly recovered.

"MARIGOLD".

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: A great many suggestions for Christmas presents have been sent in recently. I would like to make a plea for more books as gifts. A great many people think books are so high priced and they cannot afford to buy them, but try giving the children good books instead of so many toys, which they soon outgrow or tire of, while books they can treasure all their lives. Books help in their school work so much too, and if the children are interested in books it is not a difficult problem to keep them entertained these long evenings.

When a child, I was hungry for books so I decided to get as many good books for my children as I could. We have a nice little library of which we are all proud and the children are getting so much good from it, especially through the reference books. It is difficult for a child to read the Bible, but they never tire of Bible stories in book form.

If you do not know what books to select, go to a library and ask the librarian for a list of books or the manager in a book store will advise you.

I enjoy the Corner very much and get many helps from the letters.

ANDIETTA.

PLAN FOR MORE GLADNESS

Dear Corner Sisters: Somehow this day has been full of memories. I have just recalled one in particular, which used to bring so much gladness.

When I was a youngster in school, our class used to take huge baskets of good things to eat to the poor families on Thanksgiving and Christmas days—each one of the class donating something worth while. It did our hearts so much good and I was just thinking of a plan to bring more gladness into the world.

Wouldn't it be lovely for those of us who have no children of our own—to begin right now and make such little surprises as we can, for instance, a pretty scrap-book, some dressed up paper dolls, strings of bright beads made from our broken strings, doll clothes, etc. There are lots of left-overs around the house to be made into pretty things for children. Now and then a toy from the shops can be added to the treasure box. At Christmas time these "treasures" can be wrapped in bright paper and distributed among the unfortunate little ones whom you have often noticed and felt sorry for.

I can not think of a sweeter and better way to spend spare time, and the children will repay you with their happy smiles.

It has been a long time since I wrote the Corner but I realize that I must do my bit. I hope the suggestion will be adopted by many.

Best wishes from

CENTURY PLANT.

AN APPRECIATED GIFT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: With Christmas near at hand I would like to give others my idea of bringing cheer and pleasure to some of our country relatives and friends. Of all my Christmas gifts received last year I appreciated the one from my country sister most of all. She, with a group of little ones to raise, finds it hard to make ends meet at times, still she feels she must give something in return for the gifts received. In my Christmas box from her last year, there was a nice dressed chicken, a jar of her home-butter, a pint of rich cream (on this she had a note saying: "I know you loved whipped cream cake"); also a box of cracked hickory and walnuts. Well, I surely enjoyed this right from the farm!

So I have decided on a little plan for this year which, I think will work fine. I will purchase a large market basket and fill it with goodies which are hard for them to obtain at their little country stores. Begin with a box of good chocolates—this will please the children; some nice grape fruit for their Christmas breakfast; some malaga grapes, figs and dates; a jar of my orange marmalade; some nice head lettuce, radishes and one-half dozen fresh tomatoes. These are more reasonable now than they have been for years at this season and will just top off their Christmas dinner and will be a treat for all. Then I wrap the basket with red and green crape paper with a greeting card attached: "A merry Christmas for the whole family."

Hope this idea will make some other country folks gladdened.

Yours for the Corner.

MARY J.

IN-LAWS

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: Wasn't that a nice letter N. O. T. sent in on in-laws. We all do have to watch our step where there are in-laws, especially daughter-in-laws are very quick to take offense. Sons-in-law are quite different I have both and know where I speak. N. O. T. is right, newly married people are best by themselves. I am a mother-in-law and so far have been well enough and able to care for myself, but will I always be? I hope the good Lord will find a way for me when the time comes that I have to make a change. My daughters are both living in the south, and two sons are near at hand. I prefer my daughters homes but would not care to take the trip and live so far away from my home friends. Isn't it hard for us older ones to settle down to new surroundings? My husband has gone before me by many years leaving me with four small children to bring up. They too have left me for homes of their own. They have been good children, and still are, but I feel that they belong to someone else now, and I am trying to give them up and hope I shall never have to give up my own little home while I live. But oh the loneliness! when I think how much I have given and have nothing for it. I hope some of the other sisters will write on this subject as it helps one to decide what is best to do. Most sincerely.

E. O. G.

OUR HOMES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Do let us housewives stop apologizing for our homes. Once is too much. All of us have had the experience of going into a home and being made to feel like intruders by the housewife's apologies. And most of us have been guilty of the same thing. Very often the apology merely serves to call attention to something which would never otherwise be noticed.

Our houses cannot always be in order particularly if we are the mothers of little children who are indoors most of the time, and we do all our work without help.

If our friends come to call and really want to see us they will overlook the house. If they won't apologizing will not help matters—more likely make them worse. If the caller is a stranger or probably they do not care either way.

It is said that the true hostess will never make any caller or guest feel unwelcome by apologizing for anything. So if we do not have the true instincts of a hostess, do not let us cultivate them and make our friends feel we are glad to see them—not just sorry because our house is not spick and span.

NORMA.

CLUB NO. 5'S MEETING

Editor and Social Corner Sisters: What a fine time we did have at Club No. 5, Dec. 2, with each sister helping to make a merry good time. The dinner was a grand success, and such a quantity of it! The table linen was fine, also the spirit with which it was given.

The pianist, choir and vaudeville added to our fun and I want to thank them.

L. J. B.: You had our sympathy in the illness and bereavement in your family.

Deborah: Heard you and daughter were in town. Wish I could have seen you. Hope you are feeling fine now.

We all missed our Franklin friend and daughter. Hope it was not illness that kept them away.

Calamity Jane and I thank you all in your share of help and entertainment.

Hope to meet you all January 6, 1926 and a Merry Christmas to all.

VESTA.

GREETINGS FROM VOTAMI

Dear Social Corner Editor: I was reading a paper and saw a poem so thought I'd let the rest of you read it so I am sending it in.

Peggy Alden: I have done it again. Has it had any more bidders yet?

Skinny: Can you change a two dollar bill yet?

Johnny on the spot: Will you please write and tell me how you got your name?

Cenzi: Three guesses.

Photographed Telegrams

Bellnograph, the system of sending photographs of autographed telegrams by wire, is becoming popular in Europe, says the Popular Science Monthly. The cost of sending an autographed telegram has been reduced in France to 25 cents.

Many advantages are pointed out for this new type of telegram. Messages need not be translated for transmission. One hundred words can be written easily on a form and go as a single photograph. The sender can be sure his message will be delivered exactly as he wrote it and the receiver can identify the sender by his own signature.

Moreover, the transmission is declared to be very rapid.

The man who wants to be mean never wants for an opportunity.

SALE OF MORE BUILDING LOTS OF GUTHRIE ESTATE, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 5.—Deeds transferring title to four building lots on Lower Boulevard, from the Pequot Realty company to Everett P. Smith, Thomas H. Ireland and Roberta Morgan Ireland, were recorded in the land record today at the office of the city clerk. The tracts are a portion of the property recently acquired of the C. A. Guthrie estate by the realty company, which concern disposed of the parcels here by public auction.

Irving R. May, upon orders of the receiver of the Savings Bank of New London property on the easterly side of North Bank street, between Main and Douglass streets, formerly owned by the Soltz company. The sale price was $13,000. The property consists of a store, dance hall and two tenements. The property was obtained by the Savings Bank of New London several months ago when the realty was sold at public auction by order of court. The Soltz company had gone into bankruptcy and the sale was necessary to take care of mortgages that had been foreclosed.

Miss Marjorie Peabody has sold her undivided half interest in the Vogue Shop to Miss Nellie Sheldon.

Parking ordinance violators are evidently not to be treated as lightly in the future as they have been treated in the past. There seems to be no reason why they should not conform to the laws of the city as other folks adhere to ordinances. Today three men who were in court for parking and leaving cars on Bank street near the Capitol theatre, were fined $5 each. They represented that they did not see the restriction signs that are placed at close intervals along the street. But that was not regarded by the court as a reason for defying the provisions of the ordinance. The autoists did not claim their sight was defective and there was no reason apparent why they did not see the signs placed for their benefit and for the information of others.

The retiring room at the police station looks like an old-time bar room, for there are probably 500 bottles of beer in storage there. The beer was seized on Shapley street, but the owner of it saw the police first and made his escape. He has not since appeared to claim what he owns because he thus avoids prosecution.

Unclaimed persons late last night caused the destruction of the two gates on the east side of the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, at the Hallam street crossing. The destruction of the protective gates was not discovered until early this morning. It is believed that the damage was perpetrated by coast guard sailors on their way to the state pier.

Patrolman Stanton Hill, in making his rounds early this morning, discovered a live wire of the Connecticut Power company, dislodged from its support of a pole at the corner of Main and Williams streets. The pole had become ablaze. A telephone message to police headquarters resulted in a repair gang being hastened by the power company to the site of the disaster. The wire was replaced in a short time, without the pole being seriously damaged.

Samuel Harris, occupant of a cottage at 71 Stuart avenue, Ocean Beach, owned by Samuel Hart, of Hartford, complained to the police this morning that last night when he attempted to gain admission to his home he was unable to do so because of the lock on the front entrance having been tampered with, and that he was compelled to obtain sleeping accommodations elsewhere. Harris, accompanied by Patrolman Carlos Selenitsky, this afternoon went to the Stuart avenue house and after they obtained entrance to the place it was determined that nothing had been removed from the house and it was not probable that crooks had visited the place. It was also stated by Harris that the lock might have been damaged the day before when he slammed the door upon his departure for his work.

Miss Mary Bennett, 46, died at her home in Salem, last night, after an illness of but a few days with pneumonia. Miss Bennett for several years was employed as housekeeper by the late Mulford Brown, of that place.

Miss Charlotte M. Albertine, of 110 Lowe Inn, Hartford, where she is connected with the Bureau of Child Welfare, was complained against last evening by Patrolman Henry Sykes and Alson White, the latter of Waterford, who alleged that Miss Albertine had been guilty of reckless driving of her automobile by passing the intersection of Bank, Truman and Shaw streets and Montauk avenue, earlier in the evening, at an excessive rate of speed. The ever, she will not be prosecuted in police court although Miss Albertine was ashamed to this city this afternoon for that purpose. When Miss Albertine reached the police station court had adjourned. She was directed to the office of the assistant prosecuting attorney, where she was given some sound advice by the attorney as to the operation of her automobile while passing through the streets of the city. Miss Albertine stated that she was unaware of having speeded as the police alleged.

Michael Conway, a coast guard sailor, stationed aboard U. S. S. Fanning, was arrested early this morning by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman David Neale charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. Conway was arrested on State street where he was ugly and demonstrative and upon complaint of Chief Petty Officer C. A. Busby. This forenoon Conway was escorted to the state pier by a provost guard, for discipline.

Thomas G. Dillon, appointed several months ago by the probate court to sell real estate owned by the late Thomas F. Morap, has sold a house and lot on Lincoln avenue to John L. and Alice Ganey.

The abundant rain of the past few days has raised Lake Konomoc to a height that there can not possibly be a shortage during the winter or coming summer. The conditions have put at rest all possibility of the city purchasing Miller's pond for an additional supply of water.

The increased reports of the activity of coast guard men in New York for alleged rum vessels to come into waters long said to have been given to land, revived the suspicion that the smugglers' goods, months ago, that liquor was being allowed to pass the coast guard steamers and get to New London. It was said some months ago that liquor was stored in Groton and that it got to New London from that place of storage, but the reports were never traced down nor was there any investigation that would prove or disprove what was rumored. Now that it has been disclosed that coast guard men are implicated in the smuggling in of liquor and that they have been in collusion with bootleggers, the watch that will be kept in the section may lead to some results.

There are fewer yachts laid up in Thames cove this winter than have been laid up there in many seasons. It is possible that some of the craft that have made New London their winter quarters are cruising in southern waters this winter and that they will be delayed in getting to their winter berths.

It is claimed that there is no probability that the city will try to secure a smaller ferry boat than the Mohican to run on the Thames river route between New London and Groton this winter. The automobile traffic between the two towns is reduced to a minimum now and that has curtailed the business of the ferry to a considerable extent. The difference in the cost of operating a smaller boat would not be large and the slips for the use of the boat, if a smaller one was secured, would be considerable, so that the curtailment of expense in the final figures would not be great. In the event that a smaller boat is not secured for this winter there is little likelihood that such a boat will be put on in the summer for then the traffic on the river is at its height.

The fire department has been favored by reason of having but few calls for duty during recent months. The fire at the Crocker house was the last serious blaze the firemen were called upon to fight. That fire led to the purchase by the city of an aerial ladder, but it has never yet been used, and the members of the department are hoping that it never will be called into service. The few fires in recent months have been of small consequence for they have been subdued with chemical chiefly. New London with a volunteer department is escaping expense that would be incurred if a paid department was in service.

There was a big reduction in the number of applications for permission to erect buildings in this city at the last meeting of the city fathers, an indication that there will be little work for mechanics engaged in construction during the winter. The number of applications up to the first of December was a revelation to many and the wonder was expressed by the more thoughtful as to how the funds to finance building at present prices could be obtained. There has been considerable work in the way of repairs or alterations, but even that work has slacked off in recent weeks. A property owner, in pointing to a reason for slackness in building, pointed to the fact that he had some work done in which the material used cost him fifty cents and the labor to make use of the material purchased was $3.75. So it does not seem to be difficult to find a reason for the let-up in building when such cost as is stated is involved in a minor job.

The rain of the past few days has developed leaky places in many roofs in the city and carpenters are finding some work in making repairs.

Funeral services for Benjamin F. Rogers, were held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at his former residence, 356 Williams street, and were attended by a large concourse of mourners. Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiated. The bearers were A. T. Miner, S. A. Prentis, Thomas W. Phillips and E. Davey. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Walter Coe, 229 Huntington street, and the Misses Alice Lewis, William Burdick and Helen Maynard, all of Niantic, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

The annual dance of the employes of the municipal building took place this evening in the ball room of the Hotel Mohican. The affair was enjoyed by about 50 young men and ladies. During the pleasure afforded by the diversion refreshments were served.

Jay S. Lafferty, of the Hotel Narragansett Pier, R. I., was taken into custody, this morning, by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman William Riordan charged with operating his automobile while under the influence of liquor. Lafferty was locked up and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

The continued case of Joseph McFee 55, of 71 Blackhall street, charged with breach of the peace, is scheduled to be tried in the police court tomorrow morning. McFee was taken into custody, Nov. 7th upon complaint of William Banning, an occupant of the same house as Banning. The following day, after much testimony had been taken, Judge S. Victor Prince ordered the case continued until tomorrow. McFee had made assurance that he would vacate the premises he occupied at his earliest opportunity in order to avoid further trouble.

Lawrence Shaw, Chicago, was taken into custody, this evening, by Patrolman Michael Dorsey, charged with violation of the automobile law, in operating his machine when the driver did not possess a license to do so. Shaw's car was placed in a garage to insure the appearance of the accused in the police court tomorrow morning.

GROTON VISITOR TIPS POLICE OF SPEAK-EASY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 5.—Joe Main came over from his home in Groton to have a good time Thursday and managed to get what he came here to procure. It was a bit expensive for him and a little disagreeable, too, but that fact doesn't cut any figure, Main had been to the house at 26 Shaw street on previous occasions and had obtained booze there so he liked that experience and decided to have some more of it. He had $28 in his possession when he approached the house, but came away broke, so he was mad and complained to the police that he had been robbed, though he did not represent that more than $13 was taken from him. Joe was generous after he had imbibed freely, he taking the booze in a pitcher which he said held nearly a gallon. Then he was hungry and went out and obtained cooked ham, canned goods, cake, etc., getting rid of some $15 in this way and in paying for the drinks he had. The house where Main made his visit is that occupied by Josephine Klumberg, and when she peddles with her husband and where, she declared in court the rents rooms. Joe met Louise Ward and a couple of men there, to the party was a lovin' one that continued till 4 o'clock in the afternoon. It began before noon, Main was of the opinion that the Ward woman took his wallet and with it the $13 which he had set aside from other money. He told the police in his complaint that his belief was based on his statement. Officers Hick and Sullivan made an effort to get at the facts. Louise denied that she was a party to the theft and was very emphatic in her statement. She with the two policemen named went to the Klumberg home to establish the fact that no robbery had been effected. Louise was of the opinion that Main spent his money, for, he was quite flush with it while he was under her observation. At the Klumberg house, Mrs. Klumberg was found to be bottling beer. A boy left the kitchen on the entrance of the officers and Sergeant Hick was positive that the lad dumped a quantity of alcohol from a pitcher.

Broadway Theatre

George Hackathorne, as you may know, is generally cast by discriminating film directors, for a young heart-breaker in pictures. Now he has a taste of his own medicine, in his latest offering, "Wandering Fires," the Arrow picture which is the featured attraction at the Broadway theatre Sunday night. George has been cast in a role in which he loses out with the lady of his heart.

"Wandering Fires" is a story from the pen of Warner Fabian, author of "Flaming Youth," a picture which was the most talked-of photoplay of its day. The director, Major Maurice Campbell, long associated with David Belasco, the king of stage producers, needs no introduction to film fans. The story is a most thrilling melodrama which grips the attention from the first foot of film to the last and deals with a most realistic situation and boasts an amazingly strong cast which includes, besides Mr. Hackathorne, Constance Bennett, Wallace MacDonald, Henrietta Crosman and Effie Shannon.

One of the finest "ropers" now before the camera is William Fairbanks, who illustrates his proficiency in a current release featuring himself and Dorothy Revier, "The Man From God's Country." By a clever use of the "lazy loop," he involves himself in trouble with the villian at the beginning of the story. And toward the end a rope nearly proves his undoing at the hands of a lynching party.

"The Man From God's Country" will be the second feature Sunday at the Broadway theatre for the remainder of the week.

Just think of seeing two such features for 25c in addition to a new comedy, Kinograms and augmented orchestra.

Palace Theatre

Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Rudolph Valentino in Cobra will be the feature attraction. The management announces that on account of The Richard Mansfield players coming to the Palace on Wednesday, the vaudeville will be given on Monday and Tuesday only.

Why Harry Accordin, as the father tells the truth about marriage, which it quite enough for anyone to tell in one play. What crowded houses for whole season when it was first produced in New York. Not only that but it won the enviable Pulitzer prize, awarded for the best play of the season, and the play was discussed from the pulpit, the editorial columns, the lecture rooms and the tea tables than any previous play for many years. Why Harry? is brilliant in its dialogue and has a fascinating plot. It pierces the hypocrisy that surrounds our fundamental institution of marriage, presents some novel aspects of divorce, does all this in a light vein with bright satire through it all.

A matinee and evening performance will be given. Tickets will be on sale Monday and as many reservations have been made the management advises all those who intend seeing this play to make their reservations early.

Palace Theatre

Today is your last chance to see Johnny Hines in The Crackerjack. This is without doubt, one of Johnny Hines best comedies and this peppy young comedian will soon be up there with Lloyd and Chaplin where men are comedians. The Crackerjack is a tale of pickles and revolutions and there are more laughs to the inch than there is in The Freshmen. Fred Wheeler the Victor record artist sings from the Palace stage the same number that sold thousands of records for the Victor company On the Road to Mandalay. Mr. Wheeler's songs can be purchased at any store carrying victor records and we predict that you will want all his records when you hear him at the Palace. Frankie Rice is a decided hit at the Palace her impersonations of famous stage stars is a delight to all those who have seen Sophie Tucker, Ed Wynn or Eddie Foy. Miss Rice did an extra bit last night at the cabaret and was the hit of the show. The entire bill found favor with the audience. Its a show you don't want to miss.

Broad Theater

The mightiest motion picture spectacle of the century, revealing the religious significance of the wonderful drama of Quo Vadis, adapted from the world famed romance of Henryk Sienkiewicz's novel, tells a most thrilling, sensational and dramatic story.

The various scenes of pagan pomp to Christian simplicity make the picture story a most appealing one. Added to this is a most powerful love story interwoven throughout—the love of a pagan for a Christian girl.

Among the thrilling scenes is that of Ursus, in the Arena at Rome, twisting a gigantic bull by the horns until its neck is broken. The hero, after killing the animal, releases a beautiful maiden—the Christian girl—who has been bound to the animal's back, and bees the Roman audience to grant her life. The picture will be First National's offering at the Breed theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Occasionally we meet a man who despises the people who flatter him and hates those who do not flatter him at all.

The Armory will be transformed into a circus lot and every thing that goes with a circus will be found there. Plenty of good things to eat, also soft drinks can be had at any of the numerous booths. Some high class vaudeville acts are to be staged, these acts are not home talent, each act has been on Keith's circuit and all are first class acts.

The freaks and oddities of nature that are with this great show, are not fakes. There are 15 of them and they have been with this circus for some time.

Fred H. Graver and Mrs. Stone, managers of this wonderland circus, are on the road the year round with this show. They were in Brockton, Mass., and Newport, R. I., very recently where they had record breaking crowds every night.

The people of Norwich and vicinity will perhaps never have another chance to see a show like this again, and should make a big effort to go and see it.

The doors open at 7:30 and the big show starts at 8 o'clock sharp, and will continue until 11 which gives you three solid hours of fun and entertainment. You will regret it, if you miss seeing it.

Nimrod Grotto prophets who are on the different committees, have worked hard and are still at it, to make this circus a howling success and it is hoped that the people of Norwich will help them do it.

Don't forget that "Neva" the "electing beauty" is to be on exhibition in Schwartz Bros. show window on Main street, Monday afternoon, Dec. 7 also on the 8-9 and 10 and at the armory every evening.

In the early evening Dec. 8, there will be a grand street parade with the usual clown band in line, also Nesirod. Grotto's drum corps with the Patrol in their gaily colored uniforms, also some of the freaks! See the parade, then follow the crowd to the Armory. Ten cents will buy the little piece of paste board that will admit you to the trent Dec. 8-9-10. Dancing every evening.

Berrydale Eggs

The egg shell has long been recognized as one of the original packages. Within this skin tight envelope Mother Nature amply stocks a food that has served and has kept saved, for ages. To the egg the shell is a smooth, tight container.

But the seemingly close reveals a different story. Actually the egg shell is porous. This is the reason why eggs will not keep fresh indefinitely.

Now a way has been found to improve on Mother Nature, or maybe it is only Mother Hen. Berry and Sons, distributors of butter, eggs and other food products, have introduced Berrydale Sealed Eggs. On the shell of each of these eggs they place a paper thin coating of pure paraffin.

Berrydale Sealed Eggs are protected in about the same way that jams and jellies are sealed against the air. Only instead of the hot paraffin being poured on the egg, the egg is dipped in the paraffin. This hot paraffin coats the egg shell completely and seals up all the pores.

The result of this sealing process is that eggs will hold their original freshness indefinitely. Only the very best eggs obtainable are selected for the sealing process. The sealed eggs are used in the kitchen in just the same way as any other eggs. The paraffin coating on the shell is so thin that it is not even noticeable when it does not interfere even in boiling eggs.

Next week at United Congregational Church

The Socialites will assist in the church school rooms at half past seven on Monday evening, to complete the work on, and to pack, the Christmas boxes.

The monthly meeting of the Heartland class will be held with Mrs. Robert Montgomery, at her home, 30 Cottage street, on Wednesday afternoon.

Mid-week worship Thursday evening, at 7:45. Mr. Abbott will speak on the fifth phrase of The Lord's Prayer, "Thy Will Be Done."

The December meeting of the Woman's Guild will be held at the Community house, at three o'clock on Friday afternoon. A delightful Christmas program, with pictures and carols, is in charge of Miss Beevens and Miss Gulliver, and will be followed by tea and a social hour.

The Junior Guild meets at the home of Mrs. A. C. Freeman, 19 Union street, at this past seven on Friday evening. Every member should be present, prepared to work on stuffing dolls for the Christmas party.

The regular meeting of the Camp Fire will be held at the Community House at 7:15 on Friday evening.

Man from South America at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

On Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock the men of the city will have the opportunity of hearing Charles J. Ewald, of South America, a man who has an intensely interesting message. Mr. Ewald became the continental secretary of the Y. M. C. A. National Council in 1911.

He has traveled extensively through the length and breadth of South America, and is familiar with the intrigate problems of that country. He was one of the leading figures in the Panama congress of Christian work in Latin America, and contributed of value to that important congress. The president of one of the South American republics at the close of an interview with him said: "If that's what Christianity means, then we want it as soon as you can bring it to us." Mr. Ewald visited Mexico in the fall of this year and he was brought into close touch with the problems and leaders of that interesting and nearby republic. It is seldom that such a man with such a message can be heard in Norwich. All men are most cordially invited.

Exhibition and Sale

The Students Guild of the Norwich Art school opened on Friday afternoon an exhibition and sale of pottery, jewelry, hooked rugs and tinted Christmas cards.

All are articles of particular interest at this time being suitable for original and attractive Christmas gifts, besides showing the quality of the craft work done in the school.

Pottery bowls, plates, flower holders, candlesticks and vases are shown by Miss H. E. Trumbull, Mrs. F. K. Sudlow, Mrs. Allis, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. F. W. Lester, Miss Elizabeth Huntington and Miss Ava Byrnes and others.

Jewelry of attractive design is exhibited by Miss Grace Taft, Miss Nellie Loring and other members of the Students' Guild.

There are also several hooked rugs done from designs made by members of the Students Guild.

The exhibition will be open to the public every week day until Dec. 18th.

Father John's Medicine

HAS DONE THIS FAMILY A WORLD OF GOOD FOR COLDS AND COUGHS

Mr. David J. McFaul, one of the many enthusiastic users of Father John's Medicine, says in part of his recent letter:—"I am proud of my boys, they are fine pictures of health through taking Father John's Medicine and everybody speaks of them as being nice young boys. Father John's Medicine has done us a world of good and we are seldom without it." (signed) D. J. McFaul, 1565 Madison Avenue, Toronto, Ohio.

In the same way it has been used in Mr. McFaul's family, Father John's Medicine has been successfully used for over 70 years in many other families for coughs, colds and as a body builder.—no drugs.

Chinese Leaders Rally To Gen. Wu Pei Fu

General Wu Pei Fu, former Chihli leader, who has declared his opposition to Feng and to Chang Tso Lin and around whom strong forces are rallying in the Yangtze Valley. He had left Yochow for Hankow, accompanied by two warships. Gen. Hsiao Yao Nan, Military Governor of Hunan Province, in which Hankow is located, was one of the first to side with him, having driven out the staff of the Changsha Arsenal, the most important arsenal in China, and replaced it with supporters of Gen. Wu.

RAISE IN STOCK PRICES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(By The A. P.)—Stock prices resumed their upward movement on a broad scale of trading today, undeterred by intermittent spells of profit-taking. New vitality was infused into the market by the elimination of fears over a possible credit stringency, with public confidence expressed by a renewed demand for many standard railroad and industrial shares. Gains of 2 to 7 points were common in the main body of stocks.

An initial upturn in prices expressed general satisfaction over the maintenance of the 3 1-2 per cent. rediscount rate at New York, indicating that there had been little drain on the local money market. Speculative pools were encouraged to revive their operations and their success in bidding up prices soon attracted outside buying orders into the market. At the same time a retreat of short interests accentuated the rise.

The customary run of week-end profit-taking cropped out several times during the day, but these realizing sales were promptly absorbed. Favorable trade reports including predictions that holiday sales would break all records, contributed to the broader demand for stocks.

The stability of today's forward movement was emphasized by the orderly advance in standard industrial issues. United States Steel opened 2 points higher and later extended its rise to 3 points, closing at 135, for a net gain of 2 1-2. Other steel stocks shared the improvement of the premier industrial issue. Sloss-Sheffield jumping 5 1-2 points and Bethlehem, Ludlum, Crucible and Youngstown Sheet and Tube scoring more moderate gains.

A brisk rally of 13 1-2 points in Du Pont followed the return of General Motors to speculative favor. The renewed demand for the motor shares also embraced Chrysler, Hudson, Willys-Overland issues and Mack Trucks, which advanced one to five points.

Additional gasoline price advances stimulated further buying of the oil shares. Marland reached a new high level at 60 and was accompanied to higher ground by Associated Oil and the Pan-American issues. Among the various specialties which showed conspicuous strength were Postum Cereal, Otis Elevator, Coca Cola, Schulte Retail Stores and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, in which the gains ran from 3 to 6 points. S. S. Kresge sold 25 points higher on a single sale.

Buying of the railroad issues was of a substantial character with activity centering largely in the southern and southwestern carriers. Atlantic Coast Line bounded up almost 6 points to a new high record and substantial advances were registered by Southern Railway, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Frisco, Missouri Pacific preferred and Louisville and Nashville.

Maintenance of call money at 5 per cent. directed attention to the remarkable stability of money rates which has prevailed this week. With the exception of a single day, the five per cent. quotation has remained unchanged. Charges on time loans and commercial paper held firm at previous levels.

Strength of sterling exchange reflected a movement of funds toward Great Britain, attracted by the 1 1-2 point spread between the New York and London bank rate. The demand rate today rose to $4.84 3-4. French francs continued to rally and Belgian francs were strengthened by the establishment of a new exchange stabilization credit.

RAINY TODAY AND NIGHT; CLOUDY TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

1700 1925

NORWICH, CONN., SATURDAY, DEC. 5, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

Norwich, Saturday, Dec. 4, 1925

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The Atlantic coast storm apparently is moving slowly eastward between Bermuda and Cape Cod with diminishing intensity, but it still is causing rains in the north Atlantic states and strong winds along the New England coast. The western disturbance has moved northeastward with increasing intensity.

Still another disturbance is central north of Alberta, while high pressure prevails over northern New England, the Canadian maritime provinces, Manitoba and the western half of the United States. The temperature has risen in the interior of the Atlantic states.

The Illinois storm will move northeastward and it will be attended by rains and fresh to strong shifting winds Saturday almost generally east of the Mississippi river. The weather will clear however, and fair weather will prevail Sunday east of the Mississippi river, except that snow flurries are probable from the lower Lake eastward. Mild temperature will prevail Saturday in the Atlantic states, but considerably colder weather will overspread the Atlantic states, except New England Saturday night.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Strong northeast and east and overcast thick weather with rains Saturday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh to strong northeast shifting to southeast and over thick weather with rains Saturday.

Forecast

For southern New England—Rain and slightly warmer Saturday and Saturday night, Sunday partly cloudy and colder.

NORWICH OBSERVING GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY FOR NEAR EAST RELIEF

In the spirit of "Whatsoever ye would that others should do unto you" (or your children thus left desolate) do ye even so to them," the observance of Golden Rule Sunday is to be carried out in Norwich tomorrow, Dec. 6, as in many other places, a test of our religion. For the sake of our own souls, for the sake of our country, for the sake of the orphans in the Near East, we are asked to eat less tomorrow in order that these children may eat more. Last year at Alexandropol in the Caucasus, with the thermometer at 25 below, the nearby villages under ten feet of snow, the howling of the wolf audible at night, and with no means to dry their wet feet, the 5,000 children of the orphanage voluntarily gave up 50 per cent. of their bread ration to the needier children of the refuge camp.

The following are the names of the Norwich people in different sections of the city who are to be at home all Saturday afternoon to receive the money contribution of their neighbors for the support of the orphans in the coming year:

GRANTS THREE DIVORCES ON UNCONTESTED LIST

Three divorces which were on the uncontested list were granted here Friday by Judge C. L. Avery:

Arthur G. Smethurst of Stonington was granted divorce from Edith Albro Smethurst of Stonington on the ground of desertion on August 4, 1917. They were married November 24, 1913. The husband was given the custody of their two children, a daughter, aged 11 and a son, aged 9.

Elizabeth Vine Clark of New London secured divorce from Edward H. Clark on the ground of adultery since June 1, 1922. He is now of parts unknown. The couple was married January 5, 1922. The wife was given the custody of a two year old daughter.

Nelson D. Theroux of Norwich secured divorce from Alice Buckley Theroux of Webster, Mass., on the ground of desertion since August 1, 1923. They were married November 25, 1925. There are two sons, aged 18 and 17 but no order as to custody was given in this case.

The assigned case of Victoria S. Suchocki of New London, against Alexander Suchocki went off the list. Judge Avery allowed it to be withdrawn after it had been partially heard.

In the complaint it was alleged that the couple were married December 27, 1913, with desertion alleged since January 5, 1922. A question arose over the date of the alleged desertion.

Attorney Morgan stated that he was under the impression that the date was right, but could have it proven by having criminal records introduced. From the records it was read that Suchocki, alias Coman, had been before the criminal court on January 5, 1923, on a charge of theft. Attorney Morgan stated that he recalled the incident as he defended Suchocki at the time and Suchocki inside of ten minutes had disappeared from the court room, skipped his $1,000 bail and has never been seen since. This was the day he deserted her.

As the three years' period had not elapsed the action was withdrawn by permission of Judge Avery.

American Woolen Mills Busy

During a dark afternoon like Friday, the many lights in the big Thamesville mills of the American Woolen company indicate that the mills are busy in all departments.

All wool, part wool and all cotton blanket lines for 1926 were opened during the past week in New York by the company. A feature of the low end of the line is the new ombre patterns in double woven all cotton blankets. These blankets, which are designed to fit in with the vogue for rayon bedspreads, stress ombre stripes and plaids in four-color combinations on a taupe ground. The colors are blue, rose, hello and brown. Ombre polka dots are also shown in these colors. These cotton blankets have a particular effective finish.

He is foreign secretary of the American Baptist Foreign Mission society and is therefore thoroughly conversant with his subject.

HOPING FOR $100,000 IN CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE

More than 1,000 adult and 10,000 juvenile health workers plunged Friday into the thick of the 18th annual Seal Sale in Connecticut, according to estimates made at the State Capitol by the State Tuberculosis Commission which had always directed the Connecticut campaign.

A total of 70 local health organizations head seal sale efforts in the cities and towns of the state, including 19 visiting and district nurse associations, 1 Red Cross chapters, 9 tuberculosis societies, and 7 public health associations. The list of miscellaneous organizations which have become enrolled in the anti-tuberculosis campaign indicates the strength of the good health movement in Connecticut.

In the 1924 campaign, $99,053 was raised in Connecticut. The seal sale total in 1923 was $95,841. In 1922 it was $88,798 and in 1921 it stood at $80,047, and in 1920 at $78,518. The state has consistently increased the annual amount secured and Doctor Stephen J. Maher, chairman of the Commission, is exceedingly hopeful that, for the first time, it will this year exceed the $100,000 mark. To continue the efforts to discover cases of the disease in early stages, either through the efficient nursing system or the clinics that have been established, and to get the patients under proper treatment, even a larger sum would be welcome, but it is felt by the tuberculosis organization officials of the state that $100,000 will make it possible to continue the efforts to combat the disease and again lower the annual death rate in Connecticut, which has fallen from 155 when the seal sale began 18 years ago to 89 last year.

Connecticut stood fourth among the states of the Union last year in its per capita seal sale, and the Commission feels that its citizens will display their pride in attaining this high rank in the 1925 seal sale by slightly increasing their subscriptions of last year.

Hartford raised $13,326 last year, leading the state. New Haven was second with $11,605 and Bridgeport third with $9,000. North Haven led the state in per capita sales with 24 and West Hartford was second with 18. The campaign officially began Tuesday and will continue by mail and booth sale and door to door canvass until Christmas eve.

Next Sunday, December 6th, will be observed the country over as Tuberculosis Sunday, and several Connecticut organizations have planned for talks by clergymen or other speakers.

For commander, Samuel Jennes and Meredith Lee; first vice commander, Charles Olsson; adjutant, Joseph Bellefleur; treasurer, Warren Wilcox. For members of the executive committee: Louis Hawkins, John Bennett, L. Smith, P. Chase, Rev. E. C. Dunbar, Samuel Cramer and Warren Wilcox.

The nominations will not be closed until the next meeting at which time the election will take place. A large attendance is looked for at the next meeting.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA TO OPEN NEW ROOMS

An interesting event in the life of Forestry in and around Norwich is the opening of the new headquarters in the Buswell building on Shetucket street, on Saturday evening from 7 until 10 o'clock.

The decorators have finished their work and have made a pleasing effect in the main hall which is done in a silver gray wall with white ceiling and gray paint. The pool room is done in tan walls and white ceiling, with a brown floor covering and the social room matches the pool room in color scheme. The furniture throughout is quartered oak.

The committee has worked hard during the past few weeks and anticipates that the members will frequent the rooms and take an active part in the activities that are planned for the winter season.

It is expected that a number of Foresters from Taftville, Baltic, Jewett City and Voluntown will visit the new rooms during the opening hours.

For Winter in Scotland

George Faulkner, professional at the Norwich Golf club, is planning to sail from New York next Wednesday on the steamship Berengeria for Scotland where he will pass the winter months with relatives.

STOECKEL COMMENDS LAW FOR "REASONABLE SPEED"

"Speed Limit 15 Miles an Hour—Per Order Board of Selectmen."

There are grounds for criticizing such signs, which are to be found in many towns, said Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Stoeckel in a recent address before the Society of Automotive Engineers at Philadelphia. In states having what is called a "reasonable rate of speed law," he explained, "they are usually not expressive of the exact case because, on account of brevity, they do not indicate the whole situation," adding: "The sign ought to be worded, in effect, 'A Reasonable Rate of Speed for This Place is Considered to be 15 Miles an Hour—Board of Selectmen.'"

The statement by Commissioner Stoeckel was made in discussing the merits of the reasonable rate of speed law, which is what the Connecticut statutes provide. Some states have a specific rate of speed law, under which any operator shown to have driven his car faster than a maximum speed fixed by the law, is at once convicted. The commissioner explained the meaning of the term "prima facie" as used, for instance, in the Connecticut law. This law provides that "if the rate of speed of any motor vehicle operated on any public highway shall exceed thirty miles per hour for a distance of one-quarter of a mile, or if such rate of hour for a quarter of mile through the speed shall exceed twenty miles per or borough where the buildings aver- or borugh where the buildings average for such distance not less than 100 feet apart, such speed shall be deemed prima facie evidence" that he is moving "at a rate of speed greater than is reasonable, having regard to the width, traffic and use of the highway, the intersection of streets and weather conditions."

"The prima facie rule is a rule of evidence," he explained. "It means that where a prima facie rate is prescribed in the statute, the reasonable rate which it interprets still obtains as the real basis for decisions but that if the prima facie rate is exceeded, the burden of proof is on the person who has exceeded." He gave the following example of the prima facie situation:

"If the prima facie rate prescribed by law on an open highway be 30 miles an hour and a person is arrested for driving 28 miles an hour, the burden of proof that he was speeding is on the officer who arrests him. If, on the other hand, he was proceeding at 32 miles an hour, the officer has only to prove the speed and forthwith the burden of proof that the speed was reasonable, is on the person who was arrested."

With regard to the type of sign described at the outset, the commissioner said that an interpretation of the enforcement of such signs in some communities "is entirely simple if one remembers that the persons who in the last instance decide what is a reasonable rate of speed at any given place are the authorities who enforce it. If, then, these officials have a sign put up and the courts back up the opinion as being a proper interpretation, then to all intents and purposes that sign is a warning that the reasonable rate of speed for that particular place is as stated thereon."

Commissioner Stoeckel took the view that there is no question that the reasonable rate of speed law is far more elastic, far better qualified for use in court decisions and better in every way, than a fixed rate of speed law. Those states which have had fixed rates of speed, he pointed out, are gradually discarding them in the light of enforcement of the reasonable rate of speed law in other states.

The large audience that greeted Rev. John S. Wood was delightfully entertained by his moving pictures and lecture on Indian missionary work in the north and southwest Friday evening at the Strand theatre under the auspices of Connecticut Council of Catholic Women. Father Wood kept his audience in gay mood with his keen wit and explained his pictures in a most interesting manner.

The demands of modern business and social life are for efficiency. Good eyesight, an aid to efficiency, is expected as a matter of course, since optical science makes it so readily available.

But our eyes change as we grow older. They lose their ability to see near and far objects with equal ease. They cannot serve us efficiently unless they are aided. STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE ON WILLIMANTIC STREET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 4.—Miss Meda Gilbert, 22, daughter of Mrs. N. A. Gilbert, of Columbia avenue, this city, sustained severe gashes on the leg and bruises about the body, when she was run down by a Ford car operated by John J. Keon of Providence, R. I., while she was walking on Columbia avenue, near the Willimantic cemetery, at 6:45 o'clock this evening. The young woman had left her home a short distance away and was on her way to visit with Superintendent and Mrs. Henry W. Chamberlain at the town alms house. The girl was rushed to St. Joseph's hospital, where an examination proved that there were no broken bones. Keon, who claims that he did not see Miss Gilbert until his car was upon her became so nervous that he could not operate his machine and he temporarily abandoned it in the yard of the Gilbert home. The matter was reported to the local police department and Keon was notified to appear in police court this Saturday morning charged with failure to have an operator's license in his possession.

Golden Rule Sunday

They perish, if we go our way unheeding,
We have abundance—while they starve for bread.
For their dire need, O Lover of young children,
This frugal meal with prayerful thought we spread.

We gather 'round the table our dear children.
O Christ, draw close to bless the simple fare!
We thank thee for thy love, thy dear compassion
Which lets a million happy households share.

In sending bread and life across the waters,
We feel thy gentle presence while we eat.
As long ago, within that upper chamber,
Thou camest when thy loved ones sat at meat.

—Bertha G. Woods in Sunday School Times.

Minot's Beacon

Out where the waves of the ocean
Thunder and break in their wrath,
Here on the outermost danger,
Near the mariner's path,
Standing on treacherous footing,
Towering over the sea,
Flash I my signal of warning
Of one—four—and three.

Wrappped in a mantle of darkness,
Lashed by the wind and the wave,
Swaying beneath their encounters,
Often their furies I brave;
And by the tears of the tempest,
Dimmed though my radiance be,
Still I keep flashing my warnings
Of one—four—and three.

Mist often mingles with darkness,
Pall-like upon me they close,
Hiding my treacherous neighbors
Whom I am here to expose;
Then with my voice I'm proclaiming
Dangers the eye cannot see,
While I keep flashing my warnings
Of one—four—and three.

Winds that have fiercely assailed me
Whisper their gentle regret,
Waves that besieged me in anger
'Round me remorsefully fret;
Always impassive I greet them,
Duty is sacred to me,
So I keep flashing my warnings
Of one—four—and three.

Here through the varying seasons,
Gray, weather-beaten, I stand,
Guiding the course of the seaman
Cautiously making the land;
And to all people who pass me,
Seeking the "Land of the Free,"
Flashing a welcome and warning
Of one—four—and three.

Patrons of the "seventh art"—as the French call the movies—contributed one-third of the entire amount spent in 1924 by the theater-going public of Paris. The box offices in the 100 and more picture houses in the capital and suburbs last year took in 100,500,000 francs.

At government offices in Paris which have to deal with local administrative affairs, it is not unusual to find official documents on which space for the mayor's signature is filled by a cross with the regulation phrase: "States he cannot write." These illiterate mayors belong mostly to small and remote villages where it is difficult to find any one to assume the duties of local government at small pay.

A complete copy of the Bible on a single stripe of paper has been made by a Japanese Christian missionary, Dr. Ishizuka. The paper scroll is about 110 inches long and thirty inches broad. The strip can be read, but only with the aid of a magnifying glass. The text is in Japanese, more than 1,000,000 characters covering the scroll. It required four years and three months to complete. At its completion Dr. Ishizuku fell into a long swoon.

An old-time Erie railroad caboose that has been in arctic regions for four years sits on a siding alongside the Erie station at Susquehanna, Pa. On it is the following inscription: "This caboose was loaned Lieutenant Peary by the Erie railroad and went on his expedition in 1898; was used as a deck-house on the ship Windward, and it is the only railroad car ever sent to the arctic regions." While Peary's ship was being fitted out alongside the Erie Dock in New York harbor, Lieutenant Peary caught sight of the caboose and asked for the loan of it for his trip. It was in the polar regions for four years and recently the railroad had it returned to be used as an exhibit.

PROHIBITION STORM SHOWS NO SIGNS OF SUBSIDING

Representative Gallivan Issues Statement Answering The Attack of the United Committee For Prohibition Enforcement Made Upon President Coolidge and His Administration Because of Alleged Lack of Enforcement—Wayne B. Wheeler Says Prohibition is Advancing Steadidly In Spite of Its Enemies and Some of Its Misguided Friends—Predicts Popular Reaction Against Foreign Beer Invasion.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(A. P.)—prohibition storm having its center over the capital showed no sign of subsiding today, after a week of turbulence in which eddies whirled about the White House, numerous statements were released from wet and dry environs, and the issue was brought further into the open as one of the questions likely to engage considerable attention in the impending session of congress.

Speaking at the Fifth Baptist church here today, Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, dealt with various phases of the subject, while Representative Gallivan, democrat, Massachusetts, a wet leader in congress, issued a statement "answering the attack of the United Committee for Prohibition Enforcement made upon President Coolidge and his administration because of the alleged lack of enforcement."

Mr. Gallivan suggested "that President Coolidge be provided with a uniform, a badge, two six-shooters, and such other insignia of a policeman, and that he be relieved of other official responsibility inconsistent with the reasonable and ordinary demands of Clinton N. Howard, Fayne B. Wheeler, Clarence True Wilson, Governor Pinchot, and a few more, until such time as their demands are completely and fully satisfied."

He also suggested that, "If the problem of the industrial occupation of our convicts has not been solved, a reasonable number of them be assigned to religious missionary work among the leaders of the Anti-Saloon League, the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and public morals, the United Committee For Prohibition Enforcement, and like organizations and associations, indulging in practices that reveal the actual need of such service."

Mr. Wheeler asserted that prohibition "is advancing steadily in spite of its enemies and some of its misguided friends."

"The measure of its success may be gauged by the frantic desperation of its opponents who are seizing at straws today to save themselves," he declared. "The foes of prohibition point to the leak in the dam in the hope that they may weaken the morale of the dry forces. The friends of prohibition point to those same weak spots with the insistence that they be closed and enforcement made more thorough."

Mr. Wheeler also said that a foreign beer invasion of America "announced for January 16" may be called off because of "popular reaction" against any attempt of European brewers, distillers and wine growers to finance and lend a fight against enforcement of the American constitution.

"If the beer bund does invade America," he added, "it will receive the hottest and least friendly reception it ever met."

SAYS POLICEMEN DRANK WHISKEY AT HER HOME

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 6.—(A. P.)—While accusations lodged against nine policemen by a woman who said they drunk whiskey in her home is believed to have inspired Superintendent of Police Patrick J. Flanagan to forecast last week that a departmental shakeup of far reaching consequences will be made, it was indicated tonight by Samuel Dawe, president of the board of police commissioners, that none of the men who are still on duty, will be suspended or formally arraigned on charges for trial.

Mrs. Florence Slosek, in a written statement to the superintendent, said the policemen visited her home for whiskey and food. Some, she said, slept while they should have been on duty, and required of her and members of her family that they watch for signal lights and awaken them.

SAYS OPERATORS FORCING CONTINUANCE OF STRIKE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6—(A. P.)—Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers, in a statement tonight, declared the anthracite operators were forcing a continuance of the suspension of mining and gave four reasons why he believed they were doing so. He said they had not deviated "one single inch" from the position they took at the opening of the Atlantic City wage conference last July.

"First," said Mr. Murray, who is in charge of the union headquarters here in the absence of President John L. Lewis, "the operators propose to fight to the bitter end to prevent anyone from investigating their books and disclosing the huge profits which they make.

"Second, they want to increase the price of coal to the consumer, and the easiest way to do this is to keep the mines closed until the public freezes and suffers to the point where it will be willing to pay any price at all for anthracite.

"Third, they want to reduce miners' wages.

"Fourth, they hope to destroy the United Mine Workers of America and drive the mine workers back to the terrible condition that prevailed in the anthracite industry before the union came in."

Reviewing the hard coal strikes of 1922 and 1923, Mr. Murray declared the operators had made unwarranted increases in the price of coal after the adjustment of the differences with the miners. In 1922, he said, there was no increase in the labor cost of production, "but the anthracite operators added $1 to $1.50 a ton to their selling price when the strike was over." The ten per cent. increase received by the miners in 1923, Mr. Murray said, had added 42 cents a ton to the cost of production, and to absorb this "the operators added $1 a ton" to the selling price.

Mr. Murray said the miners were ready to return to work whenever the operators accept the governor's plan as a basis of settlement.

HURRICANES AND RESCUES DELAYED FREIGHTER

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—Three days late because of hurricanes and two rescues at sea, the Morgan line freighter El Admirante reached port today from New Orleans.

One of the rescues was that of the Dominican freighter Hopper No. 46, which lost one of its rudders and ran out of fuel in battling with the gale on the night of December 2. Flares from the distressed vessel attracted the El Admirante, which stood by all night in heavy seas before a towline could be shot to the other craft.

The forward house of the distressed freighter was chopped to pieces to provide fuel with which to feed the engines used in turning the winches handling the towline. After towing the Hopper No. 46 for 36 hours, the El Admirante turned it over to the coast guard cutter Yamacraw, which aided the freighter into Savannah harbor.

Two hours after the El Mirante had resumed its northward course, another distress signal was sighted. This time from a drafting coal barge from Philadelphia. Two men were rescued from the barge with lifeboats, the seas by this time having become less rough. The two rescued men said the tow line of their barge had snapped during the stormy weather and the tug which had them in tow continued on its course.

THINK SECOND WOMAN MAY HAVE BEEN SLAIN

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 6—(A. P.)—Police and state troopers are investigating the possibility that a second woman may have been slain in connection with the murder of Mrs. Catherine Devine, who was killed with a hammer alleged to have been wielded by her husband, Albert Devine, former Albany alderman and prominent republican.

A gold wedding ring taken from the body of Mrs. Devine after it was exhumed from underneath the porch of the Devine home bears the engraved date "November 27, 1925." Devine, in a confession to the police, said that the murder occurred on September 6, last. The ring also is inscribed "A. D. to C. R." The "C. R." might stand for the initials of Mrs. Devine's maiden name, Catherine Reat.

As a result of the discrepancy in the date, Coroner John J. Skelly said that he would take steps to have a formal identification of the body made. No identification had been made because Devine, in his confession, told the authorities where the body of his wife could be found.

U. S. OFFERS $450,000,000 IN ONE YEAR CERTIFICATES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Concluding the treasury's financing for the calendar year, 1925, Secretary Mellon tonight announced an offering of $450,000,000 in one year, three and three quarters per cent. certificates of indebtedness.

With the proceeds of the certificate sale and tax payments due December 15, the treasury will be able to carry on its operations until March 15 and will be able to reduce the outstanding public debt by thirty-odd million dollars.

By floating the current issue at three and three-quarters per cent. the average interest charge on the new financin, this year has been held to approximately three and one half per cent. This represents an average reduction of one half of one per cent. from the rate borne by the matured securities this retired.

The treasury will be called upon to retire certificates of indebtedness and treasury notes December 15 to the amount of $480,000,000, and these will be accepted in payment for the new tax certificates. The notes maturing on the date of the new issue bear four and three eighths per cent. interest and the maturing certificates of indebtedness three per cent. Subscriptions for which maturing notes and certificates are offered in payment will be given preferred allotment under the terms on the new offering.

In the course of the December financing, the treasury also has prepared to attempt the purchase of fifty million dollars in Third Liberty loan bonds under the debt retirement provisions of the sinking funds, directly from individual holders of the securities as far as possible. The recent announcement of the direct purchase plan said the bond holders need only deposit their securities with their banks or trust companies, which will deal with the federal reserve banks as agencies of the treasury, eliminating all brokerage charges.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE ALLEGED BOOTLEG RING

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—(A. P.)—The grand jury investigation of the alleged bootleg ring involving members of the United States coast guard will continue for a month before it will be possible to present all of the government's testimony, United States Attorney Emery R. Buckner said tonight.

The federal investigation will be in full swing by tomorrow morning, with three assigant United States attorneys working in shifts tonight to organize the government testimony.

While United States Attorney Buckner confidently predicted that incidents will be found against William V. Dwyer alleged head of the ring, and 36 other alleged ring members for whom warrants have been issued, the most outstanding disclosures are expected to come from revelation of the corruption of men in government service.

Twenty members of the alleged ring, sought by the authorities, still are at large. Aside from these many more arrests and indictments, the majority of which will be government employes are expected by the United States attorney, he said.

Six members of the United States coast guards already have been arrested. These men all were members of the crew of the United States coast guard cutter 126.

A complete confession has been made by one of these men, according to the United States district attorney's office.

In addition to this, codes, invoices and memoranda having to do with the alleged relations between the ring and the United States coast guard were found upon Philip Coffey, described as "chief pay-off man" of the ring, who was arrested Thursday night in the Grand Central station with Boatswain's Mate Fred Joseph Lewis, formerly of the coast guard cutter No. 126.

The alleged confession is scheduled to be the first evidence presented to the grand jury tomorrow. Other evidence will be offered in connection with the arrest Saturday at Freeport, N. Y., of Daniel J. Keleher, a special confidential prohibition agent who had twice previously been a department of justice investigator. He is described by United States Attorney Buckner as the chief go-between of the ring and social circles. He is a brother of retired Captain Bernard Keleher, of the New York police department.

Keleher was arrested by members of his own department.

STEAMSHIP AUGUSTA IS PLACED UNDER GUARD

CAPE MAY, N. J., Dec. 36.—(AP)—The steamship Augusta of New York, anchored at Schoellenger's landing, Cape May Harbor, was today placed under guard pending investigation of the story of a sailor that 2,000 cases of whiskey had been unloaded from her under cover of the heavy fog that accompanied the storm on Friday and Saturday. Her captain disappeared and First Mate Albert Errickson, of Mobile, Ala, when questioned by coast guard officials said he did not know his name or whereabouts.

The ship, with engines badly damaged was sighted near the mouth of the harbor late yesterday when the fog lifted for the first time in three days, and towed in by the coast guard. She was left unguarded when the patrol boat CG-292 grounded and called for assistance. Commander Addison of the coast guard base 9, boarded her today, however, after hearing the sailor's story and ordered the guard.

First Mate Erickson was without ship's papers He said the captain had taken them with him. Errickson said the Augusta sailed from New York on Monday, bound for Wilmington or Chester for boiler repairs. He denied knowledge of liquor having been on board.

Commander Addison tonight asked New York custom officials for information concerning the ship and her cargo.

Two Killed When Color Dyer Burst

Dyer Making 22,000 Revolutions a Minute Flew Apart Striking Victims Who Died On Way To Hospital.

WATERTOWN, Mass., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and a third was seriously injured when a centrifugal dyer burst in the Stephenson Dye House here today. The dyer was making 22,000 revolutions a minute when it flew apart and struck the victims.

Barsom Stephenson of Watertown, 70 year old father of Harry Stephenson, owner of the dye house, and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Anna Stephenson of Belmont were killed. Mrs. Stephenson's husband, Hattie, received a broken leg and cuts and bruises which may result in his death. They were making an inspection tour of the plant and were standing near the dyer when it burst.

Stephenson and his daughter-in-law were dead on arrival at the Cambridge hospital, where doctors prepared for an emergency operation of Hattie.

FAVORABLE DEVELOPMENTS IN BUSINESS SITUATION

NEW YORK, (By The A. P.)—Favorable developments in the business situation last week continued to outweigh the scattering irregularities of trade. With the stock market recovering its equilibrium, the financial world was restored to a more cheerful frame of mind and it found additional cause for satisfaction in reports from the various industries.

The approach of the holidays has resulted in a sharp expansion in retail sales, with indications that Christmas business will surpass all previous records. Wholesale trade has reflected the usual off-season slackening of activity, but heavy replacement and filling orders have held activities in this field at a fairly high level.

Improvement in the basic industries continued without interruption. Steel operations averaged above 85 per cent. of tonnage for the remainder of the year. Coincident with gains in the daily production of pig iron, another advance in the price of the product was reported.

The movement of revenue freight by the railroads continued at the high levels which have enabled the carriers steadily to expand their earnings. Net operating income of the Classi roads in October totaled $137,699,986, a gain of $3,000,000 over September earnings. Uncertainty over forthcoming rail legislation by congress is expected to hasten voluntary groupings of a number of carriers along lines tentatively approved by the interstate commerce commission.

Another week passed without any change in the New York Federal Reserve re-discount rate, which is the only one in the country still on a 3 1-2 per cent. basis. Despite an advance in the Bank of England's rate to 5 per cent., it was held that there had been no drain on credit resources at this center to justify a higher charge.

The effects of the higher rate at London are problematical. The wide spread between the two leading markets of the world has already started a movement of capital away from New York, with indications that credit conditions may be tightened here if the differential is long maintained.

A rise in wheat prices to the highest levels of the season gave encouragement to the farming districts. That the post war troubles of the agricultural industry have not been entirely overcome, however, was indicated by the arrangement of a $5,000,000 credit to help the Iowa corn growers.

Manufacturing operations in the motor industry have finally started to taper off after a record-breaking year. Several large corporations, however, reported that current buying orders were still well above the seasonal average. Steady progress has been made in strengthening the position of the oil companies. Prices for both crude and refined products have shown an upward trend coincident with the curtailment of the Petroleum output.

ARMY OFFICERS WILL ANSWER MITCHELLL'S CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—(A. P.)—Satisfied that it has riddled Colonel William Mitchell's accusations against its aviation policies the navy department tomorrow will retire from the front line position it has held in the army court for more than a week. A platoon of army officers, intensively trained during the time the navy engaged the court, will take up the offensive as the sister service retires.

Major Francis Wilby, assistant trial judge advocate, as the platoon commander, will deploy his forces in three waves. The first will have as its objective the nailing of much responsibility for army air service operations on the air service itself; the second will be directed to the mission of proving that anti-aircraft ground fire is effective against air attacks, and the third will explain before the court just what part the army general staff plays in air service control, why the airplane is held to be only an auxiliary weapon, and why it should from the war department's viewpoint, be controlled by the staff as other arms are.

In giving his charges the three objectives, Major Wilby has planned his attack upon Colonel Mitchell's outstanding criticisms of the war department's conduct of aviation. Three major generals probably will be among those put on the stand to rebut the air officer's charges for the department and its bureaus. They are Charles P. Summerall, commanding the second corps area at New York; Dennis E. Nolan, deputy chief of staff, and Mason M. Patrick, army air service chief. These will be reinforced by 18 or more other officers, including Brig. Gen. Hugh Druvm, assistant chief of staff, who has been named by Colonel Mitchell as being among the high army and navy officers who he charged had given congress misleading and false information.

Congress, by opening its 69th session tomorrow, will exert at least one influence on the court. Rep. Frank R. Reid, of Illinois, who has had charge of Col. Mitchell's defense, will have to be excused by the court to be sworn in as a member of the new house and to vote on its organization. In his absence, the court of necessity will recess until the defense counsel resumes his place before the bench.

Pres. Coolidge on Way to Chicago

Will Address The Annual Convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation Today.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(AP)—President Coolidge set out today on the last speech-making trip he may take for some months.

Accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, he departed on a special train for Chicago, where tomorrow he will address the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation at the hour the new congress is convening.

The president will be back at his desk Tuesday after less than forty eight hours' absence. He has indicated that he is adverse to making extended trips from Washington during a session of congress, and is expected to decline invitations to deliver addresses away from Washington during the next few months.

The presidential train left at 3 o'clock. It is due in Chicago tomorrow several hours before the time for his speech. He will remain in Chicago five hours, attending a luncheon tendered him by the Farm Bureau Federation officials at the Sherman Hotel, where he will address the convention, before returning to his train.

Mr. Collidge will return to the white house well in advance of the hour the congressional committee is expected to call to notify him Tuesday that house and senate are prepared to receive his annual message and the budget message, both of which are in readiness for transmission by messenger to both houses.

Contrary to his practice in the past, the president invited none of his friends to accompany him to Chicago. On the train with him and Mrs. Coolidge were Secretary Sanders, Major James E. Coupal, white house physician and Colonel S. A. Cheney, and Captain Adolphus Andrews, aides.

FALL RIVER GROCER SHOT IN HOLDUP

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 6—The police today were unable to find any trace of two gunmen one of whom shot and probably fatally wounded Louis Chouinard, 63 year old grocer in an unsuccessful attempt to rob him of $1,000 in store receipts which he was bringing home last night. Chouinard lay in a critical condition at the Union hospital here tonight with a bullet in his intestines which physicians were unable to remove because of his condition.

Chouinard was shot down as he alighted from his automobile in front of his home. His son and partner, Auguste, city collector of Fall River, who was in the car, escaped death only because the revolver which the bandit placed against his head failed to discharge when the gunman pulled the trigger. The police believe the bandit used a silencer as Auguste said he heard no report when his father was shot.

Both holdup men fled when Auguste shouted for help and a pursuing patrolman lost them in the darkness. Asko and Flora, police dogs, picked up the trail and followed it through back yards and fields for a mile and a half, but lost the scent on the New Bedford-Fall River highway. Auguste's shouts saved the cash, which was in a bag on the floor of the car.

SAYS RHINELANDER VERDICT CONTRARY TO EVIDENCE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Isaac N. Mills, counsel for Leonard Kip Rhinelander will start work tomorrow on a brief in an attempt to upset the jury verdict by which Rhinelander lost the suit for annulment of his marriage to the former Alice Jones, daughter of a New Rochelle negro and a white English woman, he said tonight.

"If the decision of the judge should be against my client's interests Judge Mills said, "I will carry an appeal to the appellate division and if necessary to the court of appeals. I believe my opinion that the verdict is contrary to the evidence will be finally upheld."

The brief will be short, dealing only with the reasons why Judge Mills thinks the verdict is against the weight of the evidence. Supreme Court Justice Morschauser, who reserved decision on Judge Mills' motion to set aside the verdict, is expected to give his opinion before the end of the month.

Judge Mills said he saw no reason why Mrs. Alice Jones Rhinelander should start her suit for separation until the annulment suit is decided in the higher courts as her alimony of $300 a month will continue during the appeal.

THREE-CORNERED CONTEST FOR SPEAKER OF HOUSE

Insurgents Throw Down Gauntlet To Republican Leaders—Have Served Notice That They Will Put Their Own Candidate For Speaker In The Field—Majority Leaders Confident They Will Have The Votes To Elect Longworth On The First Ballot—Insurgent Group Will Continue to Fight The Mellon Tax Plan and Will Urge Real Farm Legislation.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—On the eve of the sixty-ninth congress, insurgents of the house threw down the gauntlet to republican leaders.

After reorganizing their old group, the insurgents served flat notice that they not only would not meet the test of "party regularity" by voting for the party candidate for speaker, Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, but would put their own candidate for speaker in the field.

Moreover, this group, which includes representatives from North Dakota, Minnesota, New York and Illinois, as well as those from Wisconsin, declared in a formal statement that it would continue to fight "the Mellon tax plan" and urge real farm legislation.

The farmers of the country want something more than an expression of sympathy in a presidential message," said the statement, made public by John M. Nelson of Wisconsin, who was reelected chairman of the insurgent organization.

By putting in the field Representative Cooper of Wisconsin, as their candidate for speaker, the insurgents under the program of some republican leaders would lose all of their committee chairmanships and ranking places. They would be treated in committee assignments as though members of a third party.

The speakership fight is expected to be settled tomorrow under the plan of organization of the house at the opening session, and although the contest will be a three-cornered one, majority leaders are confident they will have the votes to elect Mr. Longworth on the first ballot. Representative Garrett of Tennessee, will be the democratic candidate.

Having organized at the special session last March, the senate no longer faces serious contests over any offices and republican leaders there have decided to defer action with respect to the treatment to be accorded to Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, until he himself has indicated whether he desires the majority to assign him to the standing committees.

The question of the party regularity of Gerald P. Nye, senator-designate from North Dakota, has been raised by the state republican central committee of North Dakota, but that issue necessarily must go over until the senate has passed upon his right to a seat as the appointee of Governor Berlis.

The differences between the republican leaders and the insurgents have assumed greater proportions than expected and undoubtedly will add to the difficulties which the majority party faces in the effort to carry through a legislative program in the two houses.

The republican [illegible] very clear-cut majority in the house, but not in the senate, [illegible] republican senators from western states not infrequently oppose administration policies.

Besides the tax bill, which the house insurgents now declare they will oppose, there will be many matters of controversy. These will include air service legislation, the coal situation, farm relief measures, Muscle Shoals and railroad legislation.

Reorganization of the insurgents of the house today came after the conference yesterday of the Wisconsin republican delegation, at which the decision was taken to place Mr. Cooper in the field for speaker.

Besides the ten Wisconsin republicans, the insurgent organization numbered last session about six members. The exact number present today was not made known. It included, however Representative Sinclair, republican, of North Dakota; Wefald, farmer-labor, Minnesota, and Laguardia, socialist, New York.

In a formal statement for the Wisconsin delegation, which was endorsed by the full group of insurgents, Representative Frear said this delegation found itself "challenged by those assuming to be in control of the republican party by threats and intimidation on the one hand, and by the offer of party recognition with its favors and patronage on the other."

"We refuse to compromise," he continued, "or to bargain with Mr. Longworth or with any other member of the house on an issue affecting our rights as representatives in congress to vote our convictions of duty to our constituents under our official oaths.

"Under the circumstances we cannot vote for Mr. Longworth for speaker. Neither flattery nor suggestions concerning committee assignments, nor threats, will cause the Wisconsin delegation in the house to deviate from such course of action as, in its judgment, the public interest seems to require.

VOICE PROTEST AGAINST 'DISMEMBERMENT OF IRELAND"

DUBLIN, Dec. 6—Deputies from both the north and the south of Ireland spoke at a meeting in O'Connell street in Dublin today held as "a protest against the dismemberment of Ireland." The attendance was so great that al ltraffic was stopped for two hours and there was strong opposition to the new London pact.

Eamon De Valera denounced the partition as the greatest outrage ever committed by England on the Irish people. Lincoln, said Mr. De Valera, faced four years of war to prevent the secession of the southern states, which was much more justified than the secession of part of Ireland.

Mary MacSwiney contended that every prophecy made by the republicans since the 1921 treaty had been justified. The new treaty would be repudiated and England would have to pay for the destruction caused by her own hired assassins.

William O'Brien, former parliament leader, sent a telegram protesting against partition and calling for some means to bring representatives of the people together in friendly conference to work for the freedom of Ireland, which the new pact made more necessary than ever.

GIFT OF FIVE STATUES FOR YALE UNIVERSITY

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 6—A series of five statues has been added to the fine arts collection at Yale university through a gift by Maitland F. Griggs, Yale, '96, of New York city. This sculpture is of the last period of late Romanesque French work, according to Dean Everett V. Meeks, of the Yale School of Fine Arts, dating from the second half of the 13th, century. Although mutilated probably during the French revolution, "the quality of workmanship," Dean Meeks said, "stamps them as representative of the culminating period in plastic art and makes them historically and artistically an important addition to American collection of the period.

The figures represent the Virgin and Child surrounded by Saints Martin, Luke, John the Apostle and James. They are in limestone, approximately life size and form an imposing group of medieval scultural art.

The accession to the Yale galleries has come as a direct result of the foundation of the associates in fine arts at Yale, according to Dean Meeks, the gift having been made by Mr. Griggs on behalf of this organization and as an expression of interest aroused by the formation of the "associates" and the announcement of their plans and program.

ANNUAL REPORT OF U. S. CHILDREN'S BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—Increased effort to prevent loss of life among mothers was urged by Grace Abbott, chief of the United States children's bureau, in her annual report, made public tonight, in which she declared that the United States "has a maternal mortality rate higher than that of any other country for which we have statistics," with the single exception of Chile." A high percentage of the losses, she said, are due to preventable causes.

Child welfare studies conducted by the bureau during the fiscal year 1925, included a three-year demonstration of community control of rickets in New Haven, Conn., still under way; a two year investigation into the effect of posture training on the physical fitness of children in which the public schools of Chelsea, Mass., cooperate; a survey of provision in behalf of crippled children in eight states; a state wide study of child welfare conditions in New Jersey; inquiries into vocational opportunities for minors in the printing and women's clothing trades in New York city and a study of work records of employed persons under 18 in Milwaukee; investigation of child labor in 65 oyster and shrimp factories in Alabama, Louisiana, Florida, Mississippi, North Carolina and South Carolina and of children injured at work in Massachusetts, New Jersey and Wisconsin.

Work was completed on a survey of dependent children under the care of state and private agencies in 34 states, and on an investigation of the county provision for children in need of special care in selected counties in Minnesota, North Carolina, New York, Georgia and Pennsylvania.

FAVORS MILITARY TRAINING IN AMERICAN SCHOOLS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—The war department took cognisance today of agitation in various parts of the country against military training in American schools and colleges. In a letter sent to all corps area commanders, the department outlined its attitude on the matter as follows:

"The war department stands squarely in favor of military training for the greatest possible number of students, considering available personnel, funds and equipment. The war department's stand in this matter is based upon its plan for national defense made pursuant to the national defense act, which in turn is based on the constitutional principle of "common defense."

The successful application of the principle of common defense can only be assured when every citizen, including students in universities and colleges, realizes his obligation under the adopted policy, is acquainted with the war department's plans to execute such policy, and is prepared to play his part in these plans. The principle of common defense and the adopted system under which it is carried out is not new, as it has existed in America since the earliest colonial days."

WHO'S WHO ON TICKETS FOR CITY ELECTION TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 6—Today, Monday, voters will turn out for Willimantic's bi-ganial election and up to the eleventh hour indications point to a close contest, in view of the well-matched candidates on the tickets. The average democratic tendency of the city has caused a few stray bets to be placed on that party. This fact has failed to deter republican leaders from remaining highly optimistic as to the outcome. Both candidates for the mayoralty are business men with no previous political experience. John C. Tracy, republican candidate was born in Manchester, Conn., September 12, 1883 and has been in business in this city for about forty years. His slogan is "A Dollar's Worth of Value for Every Dollar Expended" and he promises a wise and progressive administration.

T. Frank Cunningham, democratic standard bearer, was born in this city, June 13, 1891 and for nieven years has been one of the directors and manager of a local mercantile establishment. His motto is "A Good Honest, Efficient, Progressive Administration of City Affairs." It would appear, then, that other than from party adherence, the choice of the public stands between an older or a younger business man, and how the voters will decide on such a matter is a mystery.

The remainder of the candidates on the tickets follow: Republican—Alderman-at-large, Charles H. Beebe, present alderman from the second ward, born in this city October 30, 1868 and is foreman at the Windham Silk company plant. Wilfred J. Laraude, born in Claremont, N. H., July 3, 1900. Republican—City clerk and treasurer, John B. Edgarton, born in this city, September 20, 1872. Bransfield, born in Portland, Conn., October 7, 1869 and a resident of this city for 33 years. Agent of town deposit fund in the past and chief clerk at the local freight station of the New Haven railroad for years.

Sheriffs—Louis H. Hedis, republican, born in Kansas City, Mo April 22, 1896, present town constable, and engaged in business here for six years. James P. Fogarty, democrat, born in Willimantic, August 9, 1893, overseas World War veteran with the Twenty-sixth Division, plumber by occupation. Assessors—Charles R. Cone, republican, born in East Hampton, September 20 1870, and employed at the office of the American Thread company plant here for 14 years. Miss Fioretto Grenier, republican, the only woman candidate and the youngest of them all was born in Voluntown, was graduated from Norwich Commercial school and has been employed in clerical work here for seven years. Thomas J. O'Brien, democrat, was born in Norwich, May 26, 1899 and came to this city 12 years ago. Is employed as insurance agent William H. P. Sweet, democrat, who was nominated at the caucus, since declined to continue in the race, but gave the information too late, so his name appears on the ballot.

Born in Lebanon, November 8, 1875, a Spanish War veteran and engaged in detective work for over a score of years. Albert J. Laramee in the ownership of the Al-Pierre Tabarin.

BAD FIRE SATURDAY NIGHT IN T. R. CADD APARTMENTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 6—Damage estimated at several thousand dollars was caused by fire and water, about 10 o'clock Sturday night when two rooms in the third floor of the T. R. Sadd block, 720 Main street, a brick structure in the heart of the business district, were gutted. Quantities of water leaked into other apartments and into the stores on the ground floor. A serious fire which would have been difficult to combat due to the construction of the building was averted by the timely discovery of the blaze and the excellent work of the firemen, headed by Chief Henry J. Kelley and Lieuten. Michael J. English.

The fire started from a two-burner kerosene stove which had been left burning in the kitchen of a three-room apartment occupied by Mrs. Nellie Swyden, a widow. Apparently the stove became overheaded and the wall against which it had set was ignited. When discovered the flames had gone through the partition and into the adjoining kitchen of the apartment occupied by Noel Richer and family. Following an air space the blaze had benetrated through the ceiling into a blind attack and gave the fire fighters a stubborn battle for over half an hour before being gotten under control. 1200 feet of hose were run from the street hydrant to the top floor of the building and a heavy stream was played on the blaze. Thousands of pounds of water dripped through the flooring and within a few minutes the rooms beneath were being showered. Damage estimated at about $400 by fire and water was caused in the Richer home. There was no insurance on the property, which included furniture and clothing.

Mrs. Swyden, who has been one of the strikers of the American Thread company since last March and is to support a young son places her damage as slight, as her apartment was but scantily furnished. She appeared more concerned over the loss of the meat which had been cooking on the oil burner than the wrecking of the kitchen.

Mr. and Mrs. Richer and Mrs. Swyden and son were visiting Mrs. Elizabeth Cochrane in an apartment on the lower floor, Saturday evening, leaving that part of the top floor unoccupied. At a suggestion that he go out and buy fruit, Mr. Richer went to his rooms to get his coat. Upon opening the door he was met by a cloud of dense smoke and he could hear the crackling of wood. Notifying other occupants of the building as he went, he rushed to the street and to the Bank street Engine House nearby. A quick response was made and the alarm was rung from Box 32, at 9.45 o'clock. Heeding the advice of the firemen Mr. Sadd placed Charles Desformes no guard for the night.

At 11.35 o'clock a second alarm was sounded from Box 32 when Mr. Desformes discovered that the fire had started again in a clothes closet off the Swyden kitchen. The line of hose was again run into the building and the blaze was extinguished. There are twenty-four apartments and offices in the building, and all the occupants spent a sleepless night. The H. E. Remington clothing store on the ground flood was partially flooded, but practically all the stock was saved by the quick work of the proprietors, P. D. Donohue and Joseph M. Berard and employes and the ready assistance of merchants along the street who rushed in with bundles of tarpaulin and oil cloth which was spread over the goods. Water dripped into the Woolworth store next door, but according to Manager Ernest Bottomley the damage was slight.

Montana's Potato Crop Large

Montana's potato crop this year is nearly a million bushels more than in 1924 and the per acre yield of 110 bushels will without doubt be the best of any state in the country, says "The Anaconda Standard." This remarkable production in a year of poor results throughout the country in potatoes will, it is expected, give Montana top place, a position it held in 1922 when the yield was 126 bushels to the acre. The potato yield in Montana last year was 88 bushels to the acre.

New High Explosive

An explosive so violent that it drove the pieces of its container shot-hole fashion clear through a heavy bottle without cracking the bottle was recently demonstrated according to Science.

The new substance is divinyl-acetylene, product of remarkable new developments in acetylene chemistry at Notre Dame University. As usual, dyes and explosives are bed-fellows in this research, and a brilliant new scarlet color is one of the results of combining acetylene with coal tar derivatives. This is the first serious and extensive use of acetylene in chemical synthesis the gas having heretofore been relegated to the domain of the steelwelder.

DANIELSON

CENTER STREET WILL BE ONE WAY STREET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 6—Beginning Wednesday of this week Center street will be a one-way street, the first thoroughfare in Danielson to which this traffic arrangements will be applied. Traffic will enter Center from Main street. No traffic will be allowed to enter Main from Center street. It is anticipated that there will be a bit of difficulty in keeping the arrangement universally observed for the first few days, but strict enforcement of the regulation will be put into effect at once. Accidents and near accidents at the busy corner of Main and Center streets accounts for the arrangement to be made effective Wednesday. The intersection has been a real danger point since motor traffic developed the proportions prevailing since Main street became part of two state trunk lines.

The new arrangement will divert traffic that has been moving through Center into Main street to Cottage, Academy and Reynolds street. Academy, being the most central, likely will get the burden of the traffic diverted under the new one-way rule for Center street.

CHRISTMAS CLUB MONEY MAKES BUSINESS BETTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 6—There was another outpouring of Christmas club funds on Saturday, when the Danielson Trust company released the many thousands of dollars that its club patrons have accumulated during the past 50 weeks. Between $75,000 and $100,000 of Christmas funds already holiday funds and this will be boosthave been released in Danielson together with further releases during the current week. The effect of the distribution of money was evident Saturday in increased buying activities at stores in town. And Saturday, rainy and disagreeable, was not just the kind of a day to bring out a real horde of shoppers.

The Christmas club idea has taken firm root in Danielson. Each year the sums released have increased and this year the amounts to be paid out are the greatest ever. Already the 1926 clubs are being formed and the promise is that even a greater number than ever before will receive Christmas club checks here in 1926. Hundreds have learned from experience and others have learned from observation that it is much easier to save something each week for the holiday season than to dig into a bank roll with one fell swoop, if one has a bank roll, to pay Christmas shopping bills, or to skimp and sacrifice for weeks to tide one over the gift-saving season.

MRS. FLETCHER AFTER CONGRESSIONAL OFFICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 6—One learns that Mrs. Lydia Fletcher of Oneco intends to be at a meeting of the democratic state central committee in New Haven this week and that she has ambitions to be her party's candidate for the nomination for congress from this district at the next congressional election. It will interest many to know that Mrs. Fletcher thinks prohibition is a dat failure in this district that stand would win her thousands of votes and lose her thousands more.

Mrs. Fletcher is a member of the democratic state central committee and has been active in school affairs. She lives on a big farm some distance from Oneco and had a great deal to do with garnering the crops last summer and fall while her husband was ill. Mrs. Fletcher was born in the Austrian Tyrol 4 years ago, her father at that time being a naturalized American citizen. She was brought to this country when she was a year old and lived at Charleroi, Pa., where she attended the public schools. Later when the family returned to Austria for a year and a half she attended a school in that country and won a scholarship prize in citizenship, this winning her an opportunity to tour Europe. Mrs. Fletcher has three children.

It will be recalled that mention was made in this column, something over a fortnight ago of the fact that an aeroplane landed in a field at the Prentice place on the West Side and that the aviator had a pair of baby's shoes attached to the instrument board of his machine "for good luck."

Here's what a columnist in a Boston paper has to say about this same flyer and the little shoes—the plane having flown in Boston just before it landed here:

"Sailors have long had the reputation of being more superstitious than men in any other calling. But some of the aviators believe in "luck," too. B. F. Billings, a representative of an air plane manufacturing company, recently flew to Boston with a pair of his baby's shoes nailed to the instrument board of his plane. They are his lucky charm and he never takes to the air without them.

Here's what happened to a rum-runner at Hopkins Mills, ten miles east of here, after he had safely negotiated his territory on a trip that it is presumed was to have ended in Providence:

A tarpaulin-covered three-and-one-half-ton truck, obviously overloaded, skidded on the wet Danielson pike at Hopkins Mills on its way to Providence. Efforts of the driver and his helper to extricate the truck from the mud failing, the driver left for Providence to get another truck to tow it in. Meanwhile a report of the mishap was made to Police Chief McCormick of Foster, who suspecting the truck to contain liquor, called the North Scituate barracks of the Rhode Island State police, six miles away, asking for aid. A sergeant was sent and arrived in time to help the chief apprehend the crew of the truck, and seize 486 gallons of port and sherry wine, in 24 boxes and two 10-gallon kegs each, under the tarpaulin of the ditch truck.

Chief McCormick, in calling the State troopers, talked with Capt. Harwood, who called Chief Federal Raiding Officer Harry W. Kendall, who, after conferring with his superior, Prohibition Director Henry G. Goodhue, sent Agents T. T. Walsh and William L. Connery to Hopkins Mills to seize the liquor for the Federal government.

McCormick and the trooper sergeant meanwhile had the helper, William J. Lane of 59 Pleasant street, Providence, under observance, and arested him and the truck's driver, Angelo Christoforo of 86 Hester street, New York, took them to Providence and had them booked as federal prisoners to be held for safekeeping at the Central Police station, Providence. The wine, still in the truck, also was brought to Providence and given into the charge of the Broadway Storage company.

The truck is a New York car bearing license number X750,634 and registered in the name of the A. & C. Motor company of New York. A. and C. are, incidentally, the initials of the driver, the police observed.

There was a large delegation of local members of Putnam Lodge of Elks and their friends at Putnam Sunday afternoon to attend the annual lodge of sorrow in memory of deceased members of the lodge.

As a December day, Sunday was not so bad, with a temperature up to 58 degrees early in the afternoon and the sun shining brightly.

Between Danielson and Elmville some sections of the trolley line have been removed. These sections were the ones that temporarily were laid across the surface of the new concrete highway. The removed section sare the first breaks in the continuity of the trolley line north of here.

Not so many came as would have been the case had the weather been more propitious, but there was a very interesting meeting in Odd Fellows' hall on Saturday of Quinebaug Pomona grange. The program was carried out as arranged. State Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne of Putnam was a speaker at the meeting.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward and Attorney Harry E. Jack were visitors in Boston on Saturday.

A near deluge of rain was turned loose on Danielson during the wee sma' hours of Sunday morning, this downpourn bringing to an end a rainstorm that had continued for four days.

The children of the borough are mightily interested in the announcement that Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion, is arranging a community Christmas tree party to be held on Davis park Christmas eve.

It is anticipated that the bridge rails for the new structure over the Assawaga river at Main stret will be poured this week. All of the material for the work is on hand.

Gasoline is up a cent a gallon at numbers of filling stations in Danielson and vicinity. The station price is now at 21 cents a gallon generally, though there are some variations from this price.

INSURED UNDER PROTEST, WORKMAN LEFT 8 ORPHANS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 6—The Jewett City Textile Novelty company, like other manufacturing and industrial plants, insures the life of its employes. Charles Wojtkun, owner of the one-time Church building, on Brown avenue, has worked for the Textile Co. for ten years and never lost a day.

To him all life insurance was unnecessary and an investment not to be considered. Two weeks ago, during the process of a readjustment of its insurance policies, the officials of the company again labored with Charles, to have him pay in his one dollar, and stand in for possible benefits to his family. After hours of argument, telling him of its low cost as compared with its many advantages, Charles, much against his judgment, for he said,—"Me never sick,—no die," —paid his dollar. Within two days he was stricken with pneumonia, and he died in less than 24 hours. Saturday, the company paid the widow $1,000. There are eight small children, with a posthumous birth anticipated.

The local council of Knights of Columbus is to hold an open meeting this (Monday) evening in Forester's hall, in addition to the regular meeting. Several boxing bouts by members of the council and a musical program will complete the evening's entertainment. The public is being invited to attend the open meeting.

Sunday morning a large audience at the Baptist church was interested in the admirable address by the pastor Rev. Elmer C. Scates. The theme was based on Bible day, touching the life of the famous translator of the New Testament, William Tyndale, who was born in the parish of Slimbridge, Gloucestershire, England, in 1484. October 6, 1536, this remarkable character, the speaker said, was found guilty of heresy, was put to death by strangling, and his body afterwards was burned at the stake. William Tyndale, was a linquist, being the master of seven languages. His work of translating the New Testament into English was attended with the absolute risk of his life. Finding publication impossible in England, in May, 1524, he sailed for Hamburg. He visited Martin Luther and later fled to Worms, where his work was completed. Good and brilliant man though he was, he was under the necessity, in the time of King Henry VII, of smuggling his translation into England, and later the victim of intrigue and plot, met a violent death at the age of 52.

Battling all the week the handicap of one storm following another, the Connecticut Co. put over the first week's trip of its brand new fleet of busses between Norwich and Grosvenordale. Prescott were in Jewett City most of the day, with a view to making the passenger service satisfactory to patrons.

THE GOVERNOR AND FUEL

When Governor Trumbull calls a meeting of his joint coal committee for the purpose of considering plans for the education of the people of the state in the use of bituminous coal, it must be regarded as a step in the right direction. This is the very thing that has been undertaken already in some cities. Boston has had its demonstration school and so has Washington, and in the latter city they are to be resumed if there is a sufficient demand for them.

While householders may have difficulty in getting sufficient amounts of anthracite to meet their requirements, or to get it at a price they are willing to pay, there seems to be no question but what they will be able to get all they need in the way of soft coal that is fit for household use. Changing from anthracite to bituminous calls for the observance of different methods of firing but it is no more than a large proportion of the householders of the country are doing for bituminous coal is in much more general use than anthracite.

Being able to get an adequate supply of bituminous coal it is a highly commendable step that the governor is sponsoring in planning to arrange for the giving of instructions. Many people will be able to turn the trick by a little careful reading, or by experimenting, but in the interest of safety and good results certain well directed demonstrations where they will do the most good should prove beneficial.

Not a few are already using soft coal and it is not improbable that many more will be obliged to before the winter is over. It is however just a matter of getting acquainted with such fuel and understanding its requirements to insure heat and comfort instead of the hardships which the coal strike threatened through a shortage of anthracite.

Governor Trumbull is alert to the situation that exists and he has indicated a leadership in this respect that must create a high degree of satisfaction among the people of the state.

THE 69TH CONGRESS

As is always the case the country will watch with sincere interest the progress that is made by the 69th congress which opens its session today. It will be a matter of a few days before it gets down to business, and not until Wednesday will it get the message from the president, but while there will be a raft of business before this congress there are certain important and leading measures which call for early action.

There is the matter of tax reduction about which congress can have but one opinion if it accepts the sentiment of the people. There is a demand for it that will brook no unnecessary delay. In the house the bill promises to be gotten out of the way before the Christmas recess. The senate will not be as prompt, but even the upper house must be aware of the importance of avoiding needless delay.

Another matter which will get much attention is the question of joining the world court, a step which has been recommended by the last two presidents and which has also gained strong support throughout the country. Whether congress will take up the real question is among the uncertainties, but it will be surprising if it does not, even though it hasn't done anything in the past. There will also be the matter of aviation, railroad consolidation, the shipping board, action on the war debt settlements and a large volume of other business.

There never was a congress but what had an opportunity for much constructive work, but that gives no assurance that all that is desirable will be accomplished.

Just how much in the way of obstructive tactics is going to be employed by the insurgent element in congress will be awaited with interest. In the house there is a republican majority over democrats and insurgents so that the trouble makers can be easily submerged, but in the senate the situation is different. There the trouble makers will have a greater chance to obstruct and delay and even prevent the enactment of needed legislation.

THE NEW TAX BILL

Tax reduction is before the congress that opens today in a positive manner. It is not the first time. The last congress wrestled with it and reduced the taxes but it has since been shown that had it been willing to listen to the advice that was given to it by experts it could have done a better job. Efforts to have it do that better job were sincerely attempted, but they encountered opposition chiefly on political lines, with the result that it was possible to demonstrate through the operation of the law as enacted that had proper attention and due weight been given to the expert advice the result would have been far more satisfactory. What the experts had to say was shown to be correct.

With that experience in mind tax revision was undertaken in a different basis this time. The ways and means committee of the house knuckled down to business on a non partisan basis, so far as possible, and because it did so it was ready for action at this time a tax cutting bill that not only will bring about a reduction in income taxes, but cuts the surtaxes in two and does away with many of the nuisance taxes. It is in fact a tax revision on a scientific basis, which can be put into operation without threatening a deficit and which means that the garment has been planned according to the cloth.

It is a bill that meets the situation and through a gradual cutting in the federal taxation will invite an increased investment in industry and which should continue to pave the way for a still further cut in the taxes at no distant date after the results from this step have been ascertained.

Taxpayers bid fair to be relieved in more than one way by the provisions of the bill that is to be presented. About one third of a billion less taxes will be collected under the changes made and yet it is not at all improbable that because of the reduction that enough new capital will be attracted to industry and away from the tax exempt securities to produce an even greater revenue under the reduction than has been estimated.

A PROPER VETO

Certain ones in the Philippines have been talking independence for a considerable time. They have been devoting all their efforts to such an end regardless of the conditions that exist there in general and they have been unwilling to accept the attitude of this government, which has been to the effect that while the time may come when the islands can be given their independence they are not ready for it now and they will not be turned loose until they are properly equipped to take care of themselves.

Throughout his whole administration there as governor general, General Wood has had to contend with this fight for independence. It has taken a new turn of late in a determination to have a plebiscite in the islands, a vote by the people which would determine what the Filipinos want. The Philippine legislature passed the bill but it has received the veto of Governor General Wood, who maintains there is no one vested with the authority to sanction a plebiscite of the character sought but the government of the United States and it has not acted in the matter.

Having assumed a responsibility when it meant a great deal to the Filipinos Uncle Sam isn't going to be shaken off in fully discharging it because of the political activity of certain Filipino leaders. The chaotic conditions into which the islands would be inclined to lapse if permitted to resort to the state of affairs which was a few years ago revealed by the investigators only accentuates the unfitness of the islands for self rule. If the same amount of effort were put forth for the betterment of the islands as is devoted to the political scheming much greater and much needed progress might be displayed.

RECKLESS DRIVING

"Don't drive carelessly or fast on a wet surface. If you have to suddenly apply the brakes you are apt to skid, and a skidding car terrorizes all the passengers even though nothing more serious happens."

This is advice which is offered along with many other timely suggestions by the Automobile Legal association. Most drivers have seen the truth of this demonstrated so that they are quick to appreciate the importance of respecting it, but there are others who do not and by not doing so they endanger others as well as themselves.

In the rain of Saturday a driver of a commercial car was speeding in the car track. When it became necessary for him to pull out for the oncoming electric the car skidded and nearly met the front. Shying from the tracks just in time to avoid the trolley, where the brakes had been suddenly applied, the auto snapped back to the right side of the road and crashed against the curb. Fortunately no one was hurt and apparently there was no great damage except a tire was blown. And yet, but for the fact that the tire made it impossible, the driver tried to resume that reckless driving which he was indulging in before the near collision and smash which should have proved a lesson.

It is driving of such a character that is responsible for too many of the accidents whether they result from skidding or from direct collisions. Drivers place themselves in positions from which neither they nor others can escape. The result is an increasing danger in the highways. Even the careful drivers are imperiled by the recklessness of others.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The best way to tell whether Briand can meet the situation is to judge the results.

Next to the appeal for contributions to various causes is the call for 1926 calendars.

How nervous the members must be in anticipation of the opening of congress this week.

Many in Florida will probably be happy if they don't get soaked otherwise than by water.

The man on the corner says: With a new slogan Norwich should fully respond to the inspiration.

It isn't pleasing, of course, to the democrats that there's a possibility that the republican insurgents will stand, act and vote as republicans.

After Prussia turns over the palaces and millions to the former kaiser, how long will it be before it invites him to return and enjoy them at home?

"Healthiest steel trade since the war days," is the report. From the work of robbers, stick up men and other similar operators there can also be said to be the healthiest "steel" trade.

Trotsky is of course talking through his hat when he tells about America ruining the world. He knows of course we have no such ambition and that we even refused to accept a mandate for Armenia.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To glaze pies brush them with the white of an egg.

To drive away mosquitoes scatter oil of citronella about. They do not like the odor.

Eggs that are to be kept should be stood on the small end and not the broad end.

To brown pies and tarts brush them first, before putting in the oven with a small pastry brush dipped in milk.

Whenever you water the garden, work the ground at least an inch as a little water is worse than none at all.

To remove a grease spot from a silk gown, rub with French chalk on the wrong side of the gown. The powder absorbs the grease and removes the spot.

To renovate a soiled couch hammock, try painting it the desired color. The canvas will take the paint perfectly. Generally two coats are required.

In preparing pineapple gelatine be sure that the pineapple is first cooked, otherwise the raw acid will prevent solidification of the gelatine.

If you have trouble making custard puddings or pies, try this way: Heat the milk instead of using it cold, and beat the eggs, white and yolks, separated, the whites not beaten stiff, and set the pudding in a pan of hot water.

When jelly will not jell, place the glasses in a large dripping pan of cold water, not close enough to touch. Put the pan in a hot oven and allow them to bake until jellied. This usually takes about three-quarters of an hour.

Many accidents have occurred from getting out of a bath onto a slippery floor. One misstep may easily result in a broken rib. A great safeguard against this danger is to have cork or india rubber matting laid along the side of the bath.

Always put a small piece of crust into the frying pan before frying fish. This prevents the fat from sputtering and making the stove greasy, and shows by its brown color just when the fat is at the right heat for the fish to be put in.

POLISHING MAHOGANY

A high polish is given to mahogany by using the following process. First rub the surface with lemon oil and then clean it off. After this soft cheesecloth, which has been treated with alcohol and patted until only the vapor remains, is rubbed quickly over the surface—bringing out a clear, lustrous polish.

CURTAIN TRACKS

Instead of rods small tracks are being used for curtains. The track is screwed against the top of the door or window and a small roller which fits into the track allows the curtain to be drawn back and forth with ease. Upholsterer's pins are sewed far enough below the top so that the curtain covers the track.

TWO CUPS

Two aluminum measuring cups are a joy in the kitchen. One can be used for the dry ingredients and one for the wet, and it certainly saves time when mixing up a cake or a pudding.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Double chins thrive on starchy foods and sweets. They grow fat and multiply when their owner sleeps on a high pillow and sits all day with her head bent over her reading or embroidery, machine or office desk.

When a child has a cold he frequently infects his inner ear from the inside when his nose is blown. Foreign matter is forced into the middle ear canal, which causes the ear to bulge, thereby making the ear throb and ache. A child should always be cautioned to use his handkerchief gently.

If you have an oily skin with enlarged pores, use a good astringent liberally. This will tone and tighten your skin and help to close the pores. This astringent may be entirely applied with a pad, or if you prefer, you may do as one beauty authority suggests and spray it on with an atomizer.

If you have a dry or medium skin, you should not use as powerful a skin tonic as your sister of the oily skin, nor as much of it—just enough to refresh your skin after the massage. Following this application dry your skin gently and smooth in a little more skin food to remain overnight. If your skin has a tendency to flakiness, use a cream composed of rich oils; if your skin is about normal, a light cream will keep it velvety.

WORTH KNOWING RAINY DAYS

When a person is caught out in the rain and is not equipped with umbrellas are liable, that is, in regard to the are liable, that is, in regarded to the wearing apparel. Wet shoes should be stuffed with paper, preferably tissue paper as this absorbs the moisture. This method is really better than using shoe trees, as the shoe tree is ape to stretch the wet shoe out of shape. A shoe that is wet should not be dried too quickly as this weakens the leather and also makes it very stiff and hard.

Stockings that have become wet from the rain should be rinsed in clear water before drying, as some of the dye from the shoes may have been taken up by them.

Dresses and coats that are damp will not become so wrinkled and out of shape if put on hangers to dry. If the color of any of the garments that have become wet is liable to run, dry as well as possible with old towels and do not let in contact with other parts of the material that may become stained from the color.

Umbrellas, too, require special care during the transition from the wet to the dry state. And the more expensive the umbrella, the more care it requires during this drying process. When an umbrella is wet it should be left open to dry or, especially in the case of a silk umbrella, the material will crack if folded while wet.

WATERED MILK

About the only time milk can be "watered" and the same results obtained is when baking a cake. If you have insufficient milk, fill out with water until the called-for amount is reached. You will never know the difference, except, perhaps, the cake may be a little lighter.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Chiffons printed in futuristic patterns are used for new lingerie.

At the moment the smartest fur is the silver fox scarf which is seen on many women recognized as leaders in the world of fashion.

Of unusual interest is the new lingerie in shades of old rose and white which is painted in designs of huge flowers.

Platipus a fur resembling muskrat, is employed for sports very cleverly manipulated in a checkered pattern.

Among the smart fashions are wraps of fur lined with velvet in a vivid shade, or of black satin with a contrasting shade of velvet used for a lining and scarf.

Many new types of bracelets have been introduced since the craze for them has become so general. One finds them in glass, crystal, gold or silver wire, and in fancy beads as well as in jewels.

Sleeves take on added width for formal gowns. Very wide sleeves may have some bearing on the mode, but it is not thought likely that such huge sleeves would ever be adopted very generally. They are, however, very smart.

A chemisette with quite an Oriental effect is made of blue silk with Japanese embroidered motifs cut out and appliqued to the chemisette or waistcoat. These motifs are placed in two rows down the front.

Ribbons are playing a more important part in the boudoir than ever before. Soft pillows, spreads, and even boudoir gowns are made of the supple crepe de chine ribbons in the broader widths which have such splendid washing qualities.

Where a short time ago the skirts of two-piece frocks persisted in the circular cut, a reaction is now evident toward pleated treatments, according to the Dry Goods Economist. There is seemingly no limit to the style or arrangement of these pleatings.

FUR TRIMMINGS IN RED AND BLUE

Much fur will be used on both frocks and coats this winter, and also in the most deft and artistic combinations on evening gowns and evening coats. The furs that will be especially good are rabbit, gazelle, cat, souslik and karakul.

Other trimmings for both coats and dresses will be pailletes, buckles, of various kinds and beads. Among the smartest models shown in Paris are coats of blue velvet with trimming of white cat. Dyed rabbit skins are furnishing odd bits of color in the line of fur. This fur is now produced in the darker shades of blue, red and violet. It will be employed also in narrow bands on hats.

GREEN IS POPULAR

Green stands out as one of the smartest colors of the season and in keeping with the tendency to exploit all tones of this particular shade is a negligee of Nile green velvet, edged with feather trimming, the same shade and ornamented with two large roses, one on the shoulder and one at the hip.

COOKING HINTS

To prevent the gravy soaking through the bottom crust of meat pies, brush over the crust with white of egg.

Put two cookies together with marshmallow whip, ground figs or peanut butter and the kiddies will have a nice surprise in their lunch boxes.

Use curry with meats which need livening, such as soup meat, boiled chicken, sweetbreads, etc., or a sauce for ham, tongue or fish, or in boiled mayonnaise dressing to be used with veal, lamb or vegetables.

Do you ever in making sugar cookies, take the rolled-out dough, spread one half with peanut butter or jelly, then turn the other half over and shape it nicely, then bake as usual and when it is done cut it in squares? Try it. The best ones result from mixing two tablespoons of cocoa, one of butter and two of sugar.

To increase the amount of frosting for custards, puddings, etc., without increasing the amount of material used, take the whites of the eggs you saved, beat as usual, adding three teaspoons of sugar and drop the mixture into a saucepan of boiling water. It will instantly rise to top and will make a large amount of very light, white frosting. Spread at once and serve.

WINTER IS COMING SO PAINT YOUR SCREENS

The time is at hand when screens must be put away for the winter. Otherwise, the long months of exposure to snow and rain will leave them rusty and full of holes so that they will be unfit for use when the warm days of spring bring back the flies.

And practically the same thing will happen to them if they are stored away without first being given a protecting coat of paint. The unpainted wire mesh will rust from the general dampness in the winter air, even if not directly exposed to the elements. And wherever a rust spot comes, a break quickly follows. The rusted mesh loses its strength and gives way before the slightest touch.

Paint puts a good shield between the wire and its arch-enemy, rust. Before this is applied, however, any breaks in the mesh should be carefully repaired. Black is the usual color used for painting screens, although a dull shade of green may be used if preferred.

When the screens are removed is an excellent time for putting up the storm sash, which is a necessity for extra protection in the bitter winters of the more northerly parts of the country. The storm sash should of course, be given adequate paint protection from the weather. It should be painted to match the woodwork of the regular window.

BATIK PAPER LAMP SHADES

Batik paper lamp shades give a very decorative touch to a room. The batik paper is cut in sections and appliqued to a wire frame. It is then given one or two coats of a mixture of clean varnish and linseed oil. This type of shade is very translucent—allowing a splendid light to come through.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Kentucky now has two women county sheriffs.

Policewomen in St. Louis made 3,712 arrests last year.

In England 22,000 women are employed as electrical workers.

The city council of San Diego, Cal., has voted to set aside smoking rooms for women as well as men in all public dance halls.

The Mollison sisters, who operate well-known resort hotels in Western Canada, were the first women hotel proprietors in the Dominion.

Mrs. W. H. Wright, prominent Chicago realtor, is the first woman to hold a chairmanship of a committee in the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Probably the only actress advertised all over the world by postage stamps is Anna Fuhring, who appeared in armor on all the German pfenning stamps from 1900 to 1921.

One of the most interesting students at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology this year is Mrs. Lee Li Fu Tung, who came from China recently to work for a degree in the electrical engineering course at the institute.

ABOUT MERINGUE

Let the meringue cool slowly after it has been browned. If chilled too quickly it is apt to become watery.

PERMANENT STAINS

Never press a stained garment or it will make the stain permanent and impossible to remove without professional aid. Clean off all spots before pressing.

RECIPES

Green Turtle Soup: Remove the meat from one can of green turtle and cut in dice. Add the liquid to one quart of stock and season with six peppercorns, six cloves, a blade of mace, one sprig of thyme, one sprig of summer savory, and one small sliced onion. Brown some butter with the sliced onion, add two tablespoons of flour and brown, then add the stock and stir until it boils. Add to the turtle mixture, strain, add one lemon thinly sliced, the diced turtle, and some egg balls. Reheat and serve.

Blarney Stones: Sift one cup of flour, one cup of sugar and one teaspoon of baking powder into a bowl. Put one-half a cup of milk on the stove, and when hot add one teaspoon of butter. Pour the mixture in a bowl and add two well beaten eggs. Bake in a square pan. Cut in about 16 squares and ice with white icing and roll each one in roasted peanuts which have been ground.

From Small Beginnings

Justus Von Liebig the Great Chemist.

Every one has heard of Liebig's extract of beef, and practically every one has benefited by it. Very often we accept all the advantages that are offered us by science without stopping for a moment to think how or by whom they were given to the world. Liebig's extract of beef is only one of the many boons that Justus von Liebig, the great German chemist, conferred upon the world during his life time of 70 years.

As a boy he grew up among pots and pans and bottles, and breathed the odors of chemicals and drugs as his native element, for his father made dyes, and sold them to his customers. The father was always holding tubes up to the light and pouring mixtures together, and cooking strange preparations in the hope of making colors of new and wonderful shades. The little boy watched his father in admiration, and hoped to grow up into a man who would dabble with liquids and fill bottles with beautiful colors. He much preferred to read his father's books on chemistry to studying languages or history. As soon as he could he got a position with what we should call a druggist, but as he all but blew up the place when he put the wrong things together in a blissful effort to see what would happen, the druggist thought him a very "fresh" sort of a boy.

Justus von Liebig went on to college and there continued to try to learn more about chemicals—for he was interested in nothing else. To his surprise he found that the professors did not know everything, and so he united with other young men in trying to learn by private study and experiment what the class rooms did not teach. He went on to study in France and developed into a professor of chemistry.

When he became a professor he at once tried to give his pupils all the opportunities he had desired for himself—opportunities to "try things out." In other words, laboratory work. For the rest of his life he taught chemistry and was perfectly happy, and never more happy than when he was trying to do something that the books did not teach. Moreover, he taught all his pupils to find out things for themselves—which is the only real way to gain any education at all. Naturally, he discovered so much that he almost founded modern chemistry. Among other things, he worked in the study of foods and the development of food plants. Because Justus von Liebig, the dye-maker's boy, stuck to one thing and wanted to learn for himself, he made much of our modern life possible.

Stories That Recall Others

Retort.

A group of young men had indulged too heavily. One young man who lived only a few blocks distant and felt he could get home safely started out to walk it. When he reached the house he thought was his boarding house he walked up the steps, pushed the bell and when a woman appeared at the door, inquired:

"Does Tom —— live here?"

"No, he does not," she barked and slammed the door in his face.

Quickly he turned and walked down the steps and up the street. At the next corner he paused, thinking to himself: "How does she get that way, getting so tough with me. I'm going back and give her a piece of my mind."

Back he went and up the steps and pushed the bell. The door opened and he looked at the woman. It was the same woman who had slammed the door in his face. Raising his voice to a high pitch he said: "Well, who said he did?"

Jane's Prayer.

Jane was a pretty girl of nine summers, whose serious countenance together with her intelligence made her a favorite. Jane read well and recited nicely for that matter.

The minister of her church had been preaching a series of sermons regarding the duty of the parents to the children and taken the view of the faults and mistakes of the young people today are largely due to the fact that the parents fail to be models of propriety.

One evening the minister called on some children to come forward and lend in prayer. Probably because he knew Jane's ability she was called on first.

"Father, who art in heaven," began Jane, "we pray that you make us boys and girls better fathers and mothers in the future than those we have today in this community."

Jane's mothers says she doesn't know what she will do with the child. Jane takes everything so seriously.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Richard B. Moore, who has been awarded the Perkin Medal for 1925, one of the highest annual awards in chemistry, was chief chemist of the United States Bureau of Mines during the war and was largely responsible for the development of helium production. Dr. Moore was born in Cincinnati and received his education chiefly in England and France. For some years after completing his studies he remained abroad as an instructor in English schools. Upon his return to America he became an instructor in chemistry, first at the University of Chicago, then at the University of Missouri, and later at Butler college. In 1911 he entered the service of the government as a chemist attached to the Bureau of Soils and two years later was transferred in a similar capacity to the Bureau of Mines. In 1907 Dr. Moore spent a year in association with Sir William Ramsay, the eminent English scientist.
